The report of the directors for the year ending Dec. 31, 1869, will be found in our commercial columns.

The Chairman moved its adoption, remarking that the figures of the present were not very different from those of the previous half-year. They afforded the same evidence of the confidence of the public in the bank, in the increase of deposits, but he was sorry to add that the means of employing those deposits during the last six months had been seriously crippled by the depressed state of trade in the East, and the profits of the bank had been materially affected in consequence. The increase in the deposits since that time last year was £1,100.000, which was satisfactory in itself, but, on the other hand, at no period since he had been connected with the institution had they experienced so much difficulty in advantageously employing the money. This was one cause why they had been unable to realise the usual rate of profits. Another was that the entire trade of the East was in a sort of transition state, consequent upon the establishment of telegraphic communication and the opening of the Suez Canal. But these causes were, he thought, only temporary, and he saw no reason why, when things settled down, they should not return to better results. One permanent effect of the establishment of telegraphic communication which he anticipated would be to make money much less valuable in India than it had hitherto been. The working power of money would be increased, and smaller reserves consequently would be necessary. They had therefore already taken steps to reduce the rate of interest on deposits, and they would be obliged eventually to make a very considerable reduction—but the increase of deposits continued nevertheless. The directors had not felt themselves in a position to make such a reduction in the past due outstandings as they had expected, but the amount had been reduced to some extent, and when they could see their way safely to close the account entirely they would be glad to do so. They were proceeding gradually with the liquidations, and upon the whole had no reason to be disappointed with the result. Answering some questions which had been sent to him in writing by a shareholder, he said that the directors were fully alive to the reasons for investing a large portion of the cash and bullion in hand in Government securities, adding that although the previous account showed some reduction owing to realisations made for the purpose of closing certain accounts, the total had been added to during the last few months; and in regard to the effect of the telegraphic communication on the exchanges, and consequently on the profits of the bank, he believed it would be not to increase profits but to enable them to carry out their transactions with more rapidity, and avert those violent fluctuations which occurred in 1866 and 1867, that it would equalise the value of money, and as he hoped increase the safety of banking in India and China.

Mr. Richards complained of the high rate of expense, which amounted, he said, to 60 per cent. on the profits. With this exception, he approved of the report, the adoption of which he seconded with great pleasure.

Another Shareholder asked when they might hope to see the last of the incubus of £283,500 which they had paid as the result of the unfortunate year 1866.

The Chairman replied that the expenses had occupied the serious attention of the directors; but, looking at the importance of having none but efficient servants, and the greater expense necessarily of carrying on a bank in India and China than in England, he could not hold out a hope of any serious reduction. He repeated that the board were most anxious to extinguish the overdue outstandings, but they did not think they were in a position to do so now. At the last meeting, in answer to a question, he said that the total amount still outstanding was under £100,000, and he said the same now. In reply to further questions, he added that the £210,000 which appeared in the assets as landed and house property represented the premises in Broad-street, a considerable portion of which was profitably let off, and the branches in India and China. It was all freehold. He could not say what rate of dividend would be paid in July.

The motion was carried unanimously, and the retiring directors, Messrs. Nicol and Robertson, were re-elected, the Chairman intimating that a special meeting would be called to fill up the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mr. Gilman, and for which the board recommended Mr. E. J. Daniell, of the firm of Daniell and Co., East India merchants. A vote of thanks to the chairman and his colleagues concluded the proceedings.

GERMANY.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

HAMBURG, May 24.

The King of Prussia closed the Session of the German Zollverein Parliament last week by reading in person the Speech from the Throne, thanking the members for their patriotic feelings with the usual verbose and meaningless platitudes common on such occasions in other countries besides Germany. It was a very short Session, there having been only thirteen sittings. There were two Treaties of Commerce (with Mexico and the King of the Sandwich Islands) to be ratified, and a Bill for securing the rights of authors; but all this was speedily got through, and the most important part of the business was the revision of the tariff, on the subject of which there was a great diversity of opinion felt and expressed, for the Protectionists and the Freetraders were brought into direct contact with each other, and had to fight their battle with such eloquence and reasons as they could find. The Bill itself was liberal enough, but the Protectionists, who swarm in the South of Germany and have very distorted views of political economy—or rather none at all—and living inland, where they never saw the ocean, and, therefore, can have no very clear perception of the benefits arising from free trade with all the world, opposed it with great vehemence, and though they formed a minority of about one-third of the whole number of members, it was found advisable for many reasons to make some trifling concessions, without altogether garbling the provisions of the Bill. At the last reading a vast number of amendments were moved, but mostly lost, and the Bill, with the small compromise alluded to, was passed in a very full House by 183 to 91 votes—just two to one. By this measure the duty on coffee has been increased a trifle—25 groschens, or 2s. 6d. per cwt.—but on the other hand, that on various articles is reduced, and on others altogether taken off. A great battle was fought over rice, which was included in the proposed duty-free articles, but here also a compromise was effected and the duty reduced from one dollar per cwt. to half a dollar. Mr. Edgar Ross (one of the members for Hamburg, and senior partner in the firm of Ross, Vidal and Co., of this city, who are large importers of East India and China produce) laid on the table of the House, and handed round for the inspection of the members, samples of the rice in most general consumption in Germany, together with a certificate signed by the two leading rice brokers at Hamburg, to demonstrate that even under thereduced rate of duty there would be a saving of twenty-five per cent. to the consumer in the Zollverein. The duty on raw iron is reduced from 5 groschens to 2½ gr. per centner, on rails from 25 gr. to 17½ gr., on cocoa from $6¼ to $5 5-6ths per 100 lbs., and on tin plates from $2½ to $1⅛ per do. Among the fifty-two articles on which the duty is totally repealed are palm oil, cocoa-nut oil, corks (in the rough and also cut), furs and skins, cabinet woods (vast quantities of which, especially mahogany, walnut, rosewood, and maple are worked up in the Zollverein), wooden ships and boats (the duty hitherto was five per cent. ad valorem), and all descriptions of cattle, game, poultry, and fish, together with a large quantity of miscellaneous commodities, such as chemicals, that produced but little revenue, and are largely used in agriculture, manufactures, and dyeing. In 1868 the quantity of coffee imported into the Zollverein was 1,699,530 centners, and in 1869 it amounted to 1,670,846 do., giving an average of 1,685,188 centners for the two years. This was taken as the basis of the calculation, and calculating the higher duty of 25 groschens it would produce a surplus of $1,404,291. The estimated balance-sheet of the transaction is made up thus:—Excess from the increased duty on coffee, in round numbers, $1,400,000; per contra, loss on rice duty, reduced $400,000, on iron duty reduced $266,700, and on the miscellaneous articles on which the duty is repealed, $576,099—total, $1,242,799; deducting this last sum from the increased revenue on coffee, there remains still a net excess of $157,201 on the transaction in favour of the revenue, without taking into consideration the natural increase of consumption from the reduced duties on iron, rice, and the other articles.

The Berlin correspondent of the Hamburg Nachrichten writes as follows to that paper:—"According to a telegram received here from Washington, the Government of the United States appears to be afraid that, in consequence of the death of Mr. Burlingame, the Chinese Embassy will now be more inclined to support English interests rather than American. This is one of the many fictitious legends that have been circulated against that much abused Embassy. In exchanging friendly declarations, such as may have taken place between some foreign Governments and the Chinese Ambassadors, it may be assumed as a certain fact that neither English nor American interests will be prejudiced in the slightest degree."

The Tea market has been tolerably active, though the prices obtained are a shade lower. The transactions by private contract comprised 1274/4 and 624/8 chests Congou, 1,000 do. Imperial, and 100 do. Gunpowder; and, by public auction, 28 chests Imperial, 61 do. Haysan, and 42 do. Pakling Congou. The fresh arrivals this spring have come in very freely, and consisted, up to the end of April, of 10,232 chests Congou, 804 do. Souchong, 80 do. Pouchong, 742 Pekoe, 621 do. Imperial, 88 do. Gunpowder, and 221 do. other descriptions. The Rice market is calm, with a fair amount of business in clean grain at steady rates; the only transaction of importance in rough was 25,000 bags of Saigon for the steam mills. Pepper has been very lively, and more than 7,000 bags changed hands at higher prices. Cassia Lignea quiet, and Spelter totally neglected.

ROTTERDAM May 23.

The members of the Second Chamber have dealt with the Bill by which the Minister of Foreign Affairs asked a credit to establish a diplomatic mission in China. You will remember that the Chamber declined some months since, when the Budgets were under discussion, to grant this credit; but subsequently the papers, as well as the several Chambers of Trade, urged in such pressing terms the necessity of the measure that the Minister brought in a Bill renewing his proposal. The Chamber was pique au vif by this proceeding, which several members stigmatised as being contrary to the dignity of the House. Both Liberals and Conservatives showed themselves most ridiculously angry, and, overlooking the real importance of the measure, the majority outvoted it by thirty-five against thirty-four votes. Thus the Bill miscarried, notwithstanding that the Minister in a very able speech demonstrated this mission to be of the highest importance to the extension of our trade with China. Without the least doubt the Chamber would have passed the measure had the Minister deferred renewing the proposal till the introduction of next year's Budget. The vote had a personal and not at all a political character. What will be the consequences? The Arnhemsche Courant says that the Minister will resign and take the Florence Embassy as a refuge, and the same paper is assured that Mr. Cremers, M P., will accept the portfolio of Foreign Affairs. The Chamber is now discussing the Bill to abolish capital punishment, and up to this moment the chances of its being carried seem very doubtful. Should it be outvoted then Mr. Lilaar must resign, probably accompanied by Mr. de Waal, the Minister of the Colonial Department, who will persist in the imprudence of introducing his Sugar Bill, without alteration. Universal have been the complaints that its stipulations were too Radical on the one side and too Conservative on the other, that neither party were content with it, and that the Bill must be largely amended to gain the favour of the majority. Possibly the Minister may withdraw the measure, for if it had been his intention to conciliate parties he, of course, would have made the alterations which he now declines to do, because he is of opinion that the Bill contains the best solution of the question. It seems quite certain that the Minister of the Financial Department, Mr. van Bosse, intends to introduce an income-tax in place of the licence-tax, and that on soap. According to the Arnhemsche Courant his intention is to impose no less than four per cent., but I think this figure incredible.

The Staats Courant of the 17th inst. published a paragraph stating that his Majesty had granted to the British Australian Telegraph Company the concession for the construction of a telegraphic line between the coast of Java, near Batavia, and Singapore, and also one from the east coast of Java to Australia. The concession is neither exclusive nor is it granted for a definite number of years. The company will be permitted to land cables in Java at such points as will be fixed by the Governor General. The first line must be ready for operation on the 31st of December next, and the second one year later. You see that I was quite right when I told you that the Minister would give the preference to this company. Many papers complain that matters with regard to this concession have not been quite straightforward. The principal grief is that the official Java Courant of the 25th of March stated that in August or September the company would commence laying the cables, by which it seems certain that the Minister has promised the concession months ago, whilst the competing company believed that the decision would be arrived at this month. Without doubt there is something mysterious in this affair, but still it is a most agreeable idea that we shall be in a few months in direct communication with Java. Our Government is in treaty with that of the United Kingdom for an agreement to forward despatches between Point de Galle and Batavia until the completion of the line.

In commercial circles much anxiety is felt respecting the fate of two merchantmen, conveying each a valuable cargo from the East Indies to Holland. The Catherin Rankin, Captain Peterson, sailed on the 26th of November from Java; and one hundred days have elapsed since the Dagmar, Captain Hansen, passed St. Helena. Nothing has been heard of these vessels, and on the first named a premium of 50 per cent. was paid some weeks since. The general condition of our merchant navy is growing from bad to worse. It seems that our shipowners and builders are still of opinion that we live in times of protection. Nothing is done to compete with English and German vessels, which arrive day after day with Indian cargoes, whilst as well here as in India many Dutch ships are waiting for freight.

Some of the most important Amsterdam commercial houses have addressed to Minister van Bosse a request that he will make such arrangements as shall ensure the mail from India being forwarded via Brindisi in lieu of Marseilles, because letters sent by the first named route have lately arrived earlier than those posted via France. For several months past the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant has published the latest news from India one or two days before the mail via Marseilles arrived.

The manufacturers in Twenthe—the Dutch Manchester—have just organised an association to promote the sale of their cotton goods in the Levant. The capital of the company will be 500,000 florins. Agencies are to be established at Constantinople, Smyrna, Alexandria, Cairo, and Port Said. It is generally thought that this undertaking will prove highly successful.

The season for expositions and congresses has now arrived. We have had already two beautiful flower-shows at the Hague and Amsterdam, and an excellent exhibition of pictures was opened here some days ago. In Leyden a great festival has been organised by the students. On the 5th proximo an important meeting of the libres penseurs will be held at Amsterdam, and several other conferences are in spé.

COMMERCIAL.

COFFEE.—There was a good demand last week, especially for export, and the market looked very healthy. Holders declined to operate without an advance upon last auction prices. The transactions include 800 b. Java, ex Ellen, at 36½c.; 1,650 b. do., ex L. J. Enthoven; 1,026 b. Bali, ex County of Lanark; 263 b. Java, ex Hoek van Holland; 1,139 b. do., ex Johanna Maria; and 316 b. Palembang, ex Graafstroom, at prices that did not transpire. In private auction were sold 6,270 b. Java, Manila, and Macassar. The public sale held by the Trading Company has given the following result:—The quantity sold was 43,300 bags; Preanger realised 2c. to 3c. above valuation, yellow sorts 1c. to 1½c. above, and good ordinary ½c. under valuation.

RAW SUGAR.—On the 24th inst. the Trading Company will offer for public sale 66,476 mats Java; the valuation is as follows:—

No.	May.	Mar.	No.	May.	Mar.
5	f.27	f.30	13	f.34½	f.35½
6	28¾	31½	14	35	36
7	28½	31	15	34¾	36
8	30½	32½	16	35½	36½
9	32	34	17	36	36½
10	31¾	33½	18	36½	37
11	32½	34½	19	36¾	37½
12	33½	34¾	20	37	37½

The market has been very dull and inactive; only the following parcels have changed hands:—1,331 mats Cheribon, ex Leopold Graaf van Limburg Stirum, No. 10 and 11, at f.31¾; 768 mats Samarang, floating per China, at f.33; 307 mats do., floating per do., both No. 12, at f.32¾ to f. 33; 513 mats Java, ex Kenilworth, at secret prices; 848 kr. Java, No. 12, ex Ben Lomond, at f.33½.

RICE.—There is a good business doing. 5,174 b. Java, ex Susanne, sold at f.7½ to f.8; 7,600 b. Rangoon floating, per Hebe, at f.6, 9,220 b. Rangoon, floating, per Nordge, at f.5¾.

SPICES.—The following private lots have found buyers:—45 casks Nutmegs, ex County of Lanark, and 5 casks 5 ch. ditto, ex Vrachtzocker; 8 ch. Mace, ex County of Lanark, and 10 ch. Mace ex Vrachtzoeker; and 22 ch. Cloves, ex ditto. In public auction were sold 48 casks Nutmegs, No. 1 (1848-1864), at 110c. to 116c., and 46 casks, No. 2 (1858-1869), at 103c. to 113c.

TEA.—There has been a good demand, and the market is very active. The lots of China, ex Panuco and Deerfoot, offered some time ago in public auction, but which were brought in, have been sold. On the 31st inst. will be offered in auction 1,627/4 and 3,826.12 ch. China Congou, ex Kalimaas, which are valued at 65c. to 105c.; and 859/4 and 251/12 ch. China Congou, ex Tyburnia and Valkgrun (via London), valued 78c. to 90c. On the 9th of June 3,378/4 and 77/12 ch. Java will be brought forward for public sale. These lots are valued as follows:—Boei, 55c. to 70c.; Congou Boei, 75c.; Congou, 75c. to 90c.; Kempoey, 70c.; Soepoey Pekoe, 130c. to 150c.; Souchong, 90c. to 115c.; Pekoe Souchong, 150c.; Pekoe, 170c. to 400c.; Orange Pekoe, 100c. to 110c.; Tonkay, 130c.; Schin, 80c. to 105c.; Hysant, 140c. to 150c.; Uxim, 140c.

JAVA TOBACCO.—The market is somewhat more active; 284 b. Java F. A. Kediriе, 512 b. Djaiah, 87 b. A. and L. Penawangan 21 b. F.A/B, 719 b. PE, N and K., ex County of Stirling and County of Nairn, 3,872 b., of several trade marks, principally Kaur, ex Maria Elisabeth and County of Stirling, were sold.

ARRACK.—The following parcels have changed hands:—30/1 casks Sourabaya, ex Royal Arthur; 90/1 and 48/2 c. Batavia, ex Northumberland; 40/1 and 20 2 c. do., ex Saga.

TIN was rather dull last week. A trifling business was done in Banca, at f.78¼ to f.78½, and at f.75½ to f.75¾ for delivery out of the forthcoming auction. Billiton to be delivered out of the last Batavia auction was sold at f.75, and is now offered at f.74¼; floating, f.77, now f.76.

HIDES.—Several lots, imported per Susanne, Royal Arthur, and L. J. Enthoven, sold by private tender.

PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

THE STRAITS PETITION.

(May 20th.) Earl GREY: My Lords, the petition which I have to present is well entitled to your lordships' attention, both on account of the persons by whom it is signed and of the subject to which it relates. It is signed by a very large proportion of the principal inhabitants of Singapore of all classes, landowners, merchants, and others, and its object is to complain of a change in the tenure by which the judges hold their offices since the colony has come under the direct administration of the Crown, by which, it is said, that their independence has been seriously impaired. Now, it is certainly of the utmost importance, not only that justice should be fairly administered in our colonies, but also that there should be perfect confidence in the independence of the judges to whom its administration is entrusted, and I am afraid that this petition, and the information supplied to me by those who have placed it in my hands, clearly show that at this moment no such confidence exists among the inhabitants of the Straits Settlements. But though this is greatly to be regretted, I observe with satisfaction that no complaint of any specific evil that has actually arisen is to be found either in the petition or in any of the documents by which it is supported. It is not represented to me that the judges have been unduly influenced in any of their decisions by the Executive Government, that any abuse has yet occurred, or that any want of proper independence has been shown in the conduct of the Chief Justice. I do not observe any complaint of this sort, but what is complained of is, that principles have been asserted and rules laid down which threaten the independence of the judges, and may lead to evil hereafter. Much alarm of this kind undoubtedly prevails, but it appears to me to have been caused not by anything really faulty in the existing arrangement as to the tenure of office by the judges, but by a misapprehension on the part of the inhabitants, produced by what I must regard as very indiscreet expressions used by the Governor in a despatch that has been published. I come to this conclusion because I find that the people of Singapore do not complain of the judges being removable by the Secretary of State, since a similar power existed when Singapore was under the Indian Government; but what they feel to be a grievance is that the Governor should have the power of suspending a judge from his office. Now, if the Governor were invested with an arbitrary power of suspending a judge at his own pleasure and discretion, I should entirely agree with the petitioners as to the great abuses to which it might lead; but this is not the case. The petitioners overlook the fact that, according to the established practice of our colonial service, the Governor is not at liberty to suspend a judge, except for grave misconduct, and misconduct of such a character that serious public inconvenience would arise from allowing him to continue in the discharge of his duty during the time required for a reference to the Secretary of State. This is the rule that used to be enforced, and I believe that this rule remains unchanged. Nor is this all. When a judge is suspended by a governor, the suspension ought never to be confirmed without an inquiry. When I had the honour of holding the seals of the Colonial Department it was once or twice my painful duty to have to decide on the removal of a judge, but I never took that step until the charge against the judge had undergone a careful examination by a Committee of the Privy Council, to which men of high professional eminence were summoned, and before which the judge had an opportunity of being heard by counsel in his defence. Without such an inquiry no judge was removed, and it was perfectly well understood that if a Governor suspended a judge, and subsequent inquiry showed the suspension to have been on insufficient grounds—still more if it appeared that the Governor had acted from any improper motive, or from a tyrannical disposition—it was not the removal of the judge but the recall of the Governor that would follow. A Governor, therefore, exercises the power of suspension under the gravest responsibility, and with the full knowledge of the results which will follow from its abuse. I believe that the origin of this power (which is a very old one in our colonial practice) was this:—In former times, when communication between England and our distant colonies was much more difficult than at present, more than one case arose in which that disposition to quarrel (which I fear distinguishes small societies) led to disputes between Governors and judges, and produced a state of things in some instances perfectly intolerable. Communication with the Government at home being slow and uncertain, it was necessary to avert such inconvenience by vesting in the Governor the power of suspending the judges as well as the other officers of his government. In the present state of the world, and with the present facilities for communication, such a power is less necessary than it was. But if the necessity for it is less, so also is there less danger of its being abused, because a reference to the Secretary of State can now be so promptly made that I do not think any governor would venture rashly to suspend a judge on insufficient grounds. Let me add that no honest error of judgment on the bench would ever for a moment be considered a sufficient cause for the suspension of a judge. Such an error of judgment affords matter for an appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council—not a ground for suspending a judge. Conduct that would warrant his suspension must be conduct of a nature to interfere with the public service, and I believe it has always been perfectly well understood that the Governor has not the slightest right to endeavour to influence the judge in the performance of his judicial duties. (Cheers.) That principle I hold to be a cardinal one, and I trust the noble earl (Lord Granville) will assure me that this is his opinion also. If these rules are acted upon, there can be no real danger to the independence of the judges, and I think, my lords, that the apprehension which exists in Singapore has been mainly caused by what I have called an indiscreet expression of the present Governor of the Straits Settlements, who has said in a despatch that has been published that the judges are liable to the control of the Executive, just like other members of the public service. This I hold to be a mistake. It may be necessary in carrying on the government of a colony for the Governor to suspend a person holding the office of Colonial Secretary, or some similar office, for mere inefficiency and inability to discharge his duties properly, because, otherwise, such difficulties might arise that the public business would come to a deadlock; but he is not entitled to take this course with respect to a judge merely because he thinks his judgments have been wrong. There is, as I have said, another mode of bringing wrong judgments under review. The alarm of the inhabitants of Singapore has been increased by another circumstance. The passage in the Governor's despatch to which I have taken objection has been coupled with another despatch addressed by the late Secretary of State for the Colonies (the Duke of Buckingham), in which he lays down the rule that the official members of the Legislative Council are bound to support the Governor by their votes. So far as regards persons holding offices connected with the Executive Government, this rule is, I think, proper and necessary. It would lead to absolute anarchy, and would render it impossible for the government of the colonies to be carried on if the Governor could not reckon on being supported in his measures by his subordinate officers. They are at liberty to lay their opinions fully and freely before him, and state to him the objections they may see to any of his measures; but in the last resort he must decide, and it is a wholesome and necessary rule in a colonial Government that its members must support the Governor. But I cannot think that the Duke of Buckingham meant to apply this rule to the judges. A judge stands in a very different position to the members of the Executive Government, and I do not see any difficulty or inconvenience in his being left at liberty, honestly and fairly, to give his vote in opposition to the Governor. Of course, his power must be exercised honestly, and it would be cause for complaint if he should systematically place himself in opposition to the Government. My lords, I am afraid that those who put this petition into my hands will hardly be satisfied that I do not go more entirely with them in their complaint. At the same time, when they placed it in my hands, I told them how far I could go. I told that I should state my opinion as to how far I considered that their grievance could be removed. Allow me to add that I do think there is a degree of apprehension existing in Singapore which it is very desirable my noble friend should take measures to remove. I hope that in the answer he will make to me this evening he will state his concurrence in the view I have taken, viz., that a judge ought not to be disturbed in the possession of his office except for some grave misconduct and after adequate inquiry. If he does so, I am hopeful that his explanation will go far to remove the existing apprehension. But I also trust he will go further, and inform me that a despatch will be published in Singapore for the satisfaction of the public, and in which he will lay down in such clear terms as cannot be misunderstood what the rules are which regulate the conduct of the Government at home in these matters. My lords I will only add one word more. I believe that in these cases of dispute, which in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred are of a personal character, there is some fault on both sides; and what is really wanted is, temper and a sincere desire to promote the public service. I believe that when these qualities exist, and when there is a good selection of men on whom high office in the colonies is conferred, these difficulties do not arise. I believe, moreover, that for legal offices in our smaller colonies, it is most desirable that men should be selected, not from the narrow circle of the Colonial Bar, divided as that often is by party spirit and personal animosity, but from the larger and wider sphere of the English Bar, where men of honour, high character, and ability may be obtained for service in the colonies. No doubt appointments from the English Bar would involve adequate salaries, because men such as are wanted would not sacrifice their prospects at home without sufficient consideration; but if I am not mistaken, the colonists would be ready to pay adequate salaries if good appointments were made. This is a matter to which I trust the attention of my noble friend will be directed, and that it will not be lost sight of in any appointments that he has to make. My lords, I beg to present the petition of which I gave notice.

Earl GRANVILLE: I am extremely obliged to the noble earl for having brought forward this subject, for reasons which I will give later. I have listened with great attention to every word he has said, and I believe I perfectly agree with every opinion my noble friend has expressed. My lords, there are two points raised by my noble friend. The petition, a copy of which has been sent me, refers only to one. It is a protest against the unconstitutional power given to the Governor to remove or suspend a judge upon his own responsibility. My noble friend has raised another point, which has regard to the position which a Chief Justice or judge ought to hold in the Legislative Council. I entirely agree with the principle which the noble earl has laid down. I think it absolutely impossible for a Government to be carried on if members of the Executive were allowed to vote in opposition to the Governor. It is obvious that if that were permitted perfect anarchy and confusion would result. I also agree in the exception made by the noble earl, that the judge stands in a different position from the mere Executive. I go further, and agree with him that while there is more freedom given to a judge, partly because he is not connected with the Executive, and partly because he ought to exercise the greatest possible independence in his judicial functions, it is most unbecoming that a chief justice or judge should be found leading an opposition, or doing anything that might have the appearance of factious opposition. It is creditable neither to the Governor nor the Chief Justice—although some difference of opinion may arise between them—if they do not avoid the scandal which necessarily arises when there is a decided difference between the two principal persons in the Legislative Council. With regard to the other question—the irresponsibility of judges—I thought the rule so important, both in principle and practice, that I desired to strengthen in every possible way my position. I therefore directed a memorandum to be prepared stating the facts and arguments on both sides, and I transmitted it to my noble friend the President of the Council, requesting him to gather the opinion of those judges of the Judicial Committee who had the greatest experience in those matters. The result was that the Registrar of the Council drew up a very interesting memorandum, which I should like to read if it were not too long; but I shall make a point of laying the whole of it upon the table, and I am quite sure that it will be well worth the attention of my noble friend, or any other noble lord that may have to consider the subject. The pith of it is this. It was the opinion of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council that some effectual means must exist for the removal of judges in the colonies guilty of grave misconduct. It is impossible to adopt as cumbrous a method as is followed in the case of judges at home; at the same time it is necessary that they should have a hearing before an impartial tribunal. The memorandum shows that it has been almost the universal rule, both with regard to the removal and suspension of judges, that there should be a hearing before the Privy Council. In the case of the removal of a judge under Burke's Act, the appeal is brought as of absolute right before the Privy Council; and so in cases of suspension, as my noble friend says, in later times, it has been usual for the Secretary of State to recommend that the matter should be laid before the General Council or before the Judicial Committee, and in such cases it has been customary for the Colonial Secretary to attend. When charges against a judge, the memorandum goes on to say, are brought at the instance of the Legislative Assembly before the Privy Council, the aspect of affairs is somewhat changed, because then the Judicial Committee, instead of acting as a Court of Appeal, is obliged to take upon itself something in the nature of a Court of Primary Jurisdiction. The difficulty of procedure, the difficulty of getting the issue clearly put with regard both to the law and to the facts and to obtain evidence, makes all these cases most onerous to the plaintiff, and less satisfactory to the Lords of the Council. The memorandum goes on to repeat very much what my noble friend stated, namely, that when a governor of his own accord suspends a judge he takes a step of the gravest responsibility. He is obliged to bring a specific charge, and the judge has a right to give a full answer. The memorandum says that, in point of fact, the governor places himself equally on his trial with the judge. Perhaps your lordships will allow me to read the last two paragraphs of the memorandum. I am exceedingly anxious to give full explanations, not only to your lordships, but also to the petitioners, on this subject, and I think it will have a good effect in the colonies when it is known that I am not stating merely the judgment of the Privy Council, but that it has the authority of the noble Earl, and that those judges who have the greatest experience in these matters entirely approve of it. The memorandum concludes as follows:—

"The experience of the Lords of the Council, therefore, strongly corroborates the arguments stated in Sir F. Rogers' paper in favour of proceedings by the Governor, subject to a review by the Secretary of State or the Privy Council in England; and they have invariably found that in the cases in which proceedings have originated with the local assemblies the delay, uncertainty, and expense have been greatly augmented.

"At the same time, when the misconduct charged is purely judicial, and therefore not properly amenable to the decision of the Executive authority, acting on the advice of law officers or advisers of inferior rank, it would seem that the due maintenance of the independence of judges requires that judicial acts should only be brought into question before some tribunal of weight and wisdom enough to pronounce definitively upon them; and this function appertains with peculiar fitness to the Privy Council, which, as a court of appeal, has to review the decisions of all the colonial Courts."

I apprehend this last sentence is in accordance with the wishes and desires of the petitioners. There is an important minute of my noble friend Lord CHELMSFORD, and another equally so of Sir EDWARD RYAN, and, I may say, in the presence of the noble and learned lord, that they are in accordance with what has been now stated. The opinion of Dr. Lushington is given in very brief terms, and I think I may trespass on your lordships' time, so far as to read what he says. It is as follows:—

"I entertain no doubt in my own mind that the most efficacious means of proceeding, and productive of the least evil consequences, is that the Governors of the colonies respectively should be entrusted with the power of investigating any alleged charges against the judges, and, if in their opinion need be, of suspending them; of course all the proceedings, and the evidence upon which they act, should be remitted without delay to the Colonial-office, and, if need be, Her Majesty will be advised to remit the case to the consideration of the Privy Council. I apprehend that the Judicial Committee has no peculiar claim to take cognisance of such a case. I think that the propriety of the Colonial Governor being invested with this power, great as it is, would be more apparent if contrasted with any other mode of proceeding than that suggested."

Now, my lords, being thus strengthened by these authorities, I am exceedingly glad that this subject has been brought forward, because the discussion upon it cannot but prove satisfactory to those who have thought themselves aggrieved by the results which have followed the placing of the Settlement under the control of the Colonial-office. As regards the importance of selecting the best men, not only for judicial, but for all colonial appointments, that is a subject not at all new to me. I am quite sure that in the place I occupy there is no one thing in which I can be more useful than in the attempt to select, both for judicial and civil offices, the very best men that can be obtained, and in overcoming difficulties, which I own are not small, in respect of the recommendations of persons who sometimes do not turn out so well or so entirely fulfil the character which zealous friends have given them.

The petition was then ordered to lie upon the table.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

THE BRINDISI ROUTE.

(May 20th.) Mr. STACPOOLE asked the Postmaster-General whether any arrangement had been come to by the Post-office Department for the carriage of English mails to India, via Brindisi, and with what company, if any, such arrangement had been made.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON replied that since October last papers had been despatched weekly to India, China, and other countries via Brindisi, and that mails had also been received weekly by that route. The mails were sent through France and delivered to the Italian Post-office, which provided for their conveyance through Italy and from Brindisi to Alexandria.

CEYLON CURRENCY.

(20th.) In reply to Mr. MUNDELLA, Mr. STANSFELD stated that the report of a Commission appointed on the 24th of September, 1869, by Sir Hercules Robinson, the Governor of Ceylon, to consider the necessity or desirability of a change in the denomination of the public accounts, had been received and considered by the Board of Treasury. It was perfectly true that three out of the ten commissioners expressed their dissent from the resolution declaring the necessity for a change; the remainder, however, approved the change, and of the ten four also approved the suggestion that there should be a decimal subdivision of the Ceylon coinage. That representation would have been formally considered if it had been thought that the proper time for its consideration had arrived. It was true that the proposed change had been memorialised against by some of the Chambers of Commerce and merchants, but the arguments they employed were far from convincing.

CONSULAR ESTABLISHMENTS IN CHINA.

(23rd.) Mr. RYLANDS asked the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs if there had been a recent inquiry, conducted under the authority of the Government, into the Consular establishments in China, with a view of effecting a reduction of the expenditure on account of the several Consulates; and, in that case, if he was willing to lay upon the table of the House the report of the Departmental Committee, if any, presented on the subject.

Mr. OTWAY said that the papers had been laid on the table in March or April last. There had been no departmental inquiry, because it was not the custom of the Foreign-office to institute inquiries of that kind; but in May or April of last year directions were sent to all the Consuls in China to make reports on the various items of consular expenditure in China. These reports, when received at the Foreign-office, had been examined by a gentleman thoroughly conversant with the matter, and the result of his labours had been that Lord Clarendon had been enabled to effect a reform in the system of auditing accounts and preparing the estimates which would save the public nearly £10,000 a year.

A NEW JAPANESE JOURNAL.

The active and learned professor of Japanese in the Paris school of Oriental tongues, M. Léon de Rosny, has commenced the publication of a journal for Japan in Japanese. The form of the paper is nearly that of foolscap folded lengthwise, so as to form long narrow slips, or pages, and it is lithographed, in order to avoid the expense and trouble that would attach to the use of type. Fifteen hundred copies have been printed of the first number and sent to Japan, where, it is said, the journal will be published by permission of the authorities.

BANKRUPTCY COURT.

RE J. L. B. TEMPLER.

The bankrupt had traded in partnership with A. W. Benyon and C. Harding as tea brokers at 27, Mincing-lane, under the firm of Benyon, Harding, and Templer. The joint accounts showed debts of £4 491, £4,009 being unsecured, against bad debts, £132. The separate debts are £1,446; assets £50. The largest creditors are:—D. Sassoon and Co., 15, Leadenhall-street, £2,800; Peek, Winch, and Co., £133; and the Consolidated Bank, £482 (holding tea warrants valued at £422.) Mr. Webb, for the assignees, referred to the largeness of the deficiency, and asked that further accounts should be filed. Shortly before presenting his petition, the bankrupt had offered to pay his creditors 20s. in the pound under a deed. The Registrar Mr. (Brougham) thought that further accounts would be useless. The bankrupt, who was examined, said he had kept racehorses at different times. He joined Benyon and Harding in January, 1869, believing that they were perfectly solvent. In August they made a deed to pay 5s. in the pound, and that ended his connection with the firm. He put no money in the business. There was a debt of £76 to Mr. Ford, horse trainer, Rottingdean. Mr. Senaffer, a tailor at the West-end, opposed, and complained of the unsatisfactory nature of the accounts. Mr. Webb suggested that the bankrupt had been guilty of making a vexatious defence to an action, and the discharge was adjourned to June 15, the bankrupt passing his examination.

COOLIE EMIGRATION.—In the year 1869 1,393 emigrants from India were introduced from Jamaica, 6,160 into British Guiana, 3,329 into Trinidad, 343 into St. Vincent, making a total of 11 225 introduced into the West Indies; 1,682 were introduced into Mauritius, and also 146 from Madagascar. In the same year 2,320 returned to their own country from Mauritius, and 372 from Trinidad, these last taking with them earnings to the amount of £13,663, there being also embarked five Chinese, who paid their cabin passage to Calcutta, and took with them £1,562 besides. 408 returned home from British Guiana, taking with them £13,000 in money and jewellery; and with them also embarked eight Chinese, who, besides paying their cabin passage to Calcutta, transmitted to India £333—and the head of this Chinese family is said also to have taken back with him £833 in cash, in addition to a letter of credit for £83 to defray his expenses from Calcutta to Canton.

DUTCH TRADE WITH CHINA.

THE Second Chamber of the States General of Holland recently rejected a Bill brought in by the Minister for Foreign Affairs to provide for the expenditure of about £1,500 for the purpose of establishing a Dutch Legation in China. The majority was a poor one indeed; in a House of sixty-nine members thirty-four were in favour of the vote, thirty-five against it; and the rejection of the measure seems all the more paltry, if it be true, as our Rotterdam Correspondent believes, that the adverse vote was influenced by personal, and not political motives. That the establishment of the diplomatic relations on a proper footing between Holland and China is desired by the commercial interest in Holland, is manifest from the number of petitions presented in favour of the Bill by the Chambers of Commerce in all parts of the country; in some other lands, perhaps, the wishes and opinions of the mercantile element might be considered of less value, but in a country like Holland—which is nothing if not commercial—such an expression of opinion is of the greatest importance. The manufacturers of cotton goods are naturally disgusted with the result. Not only has the direct trade between Holland and China increased of late years, but that between Java and China also, and it was justly expected that the establishment of a Dutch Legation at Peking would tend to a further development of it. These anticipations are of course at an end now the Dutch Legislature has decided to adhere to its old illiberal policy. £1,500 was not much to ask; but Dutch politicians are strangely blind to the importance of measures such as would protect and foster their trade and that of their East Indian possessions. How often, for instance, a subsidy has been asked for on behalf of a line of steamers between Java and Australia, and always refused. Now the telegraph is about to be laid between these places, regular steam communication will become a necessity.

The revival in the trade of Holland with China, to which we have alluded above, dates from the Treaty of 1858; but it still shows a poor figure beside that of other countries, though it has risen from f.220,000 in 1857 to f.788,000 in 1868. Dutch cotton goods, the principal article of export, represented in 1860 a value of f.47,000, and in 1868 f.416,000; but these figures cannot be considered even as approximately true, for they apply only to direct shipments, while those sent via Great Britain are considered to have been at least as large. The imports from China into Java, &c., in 1866 were f.1,040,000, and in 1867 f.1,004,000, while the exports from Java to China in these years amounted respectively to f.1,776,000 and f.892,000. According to Dutch calculations, the entire annual imports of foreign goods into China equal a value of 300,000,000 guilders, and the exports 200,000,000. Of the whole, England has the lion's share—namely, about 87 per cent.; Holland and her possessions from one-third to one-half per cent.! This is not a pleasing state of affairs for our Dutch friends, nor is there much likelihood of any improvement, unless the Chambers begin to legislate in a more liberal spirit.

THE "BOMBAY-ONEIDA" CASE.

THE appeal of Capt. EYRE to the Board of Trade for a reversal of the sentence passed on him by the Court of Inquiry held at Yokohama has not been successful; and as matters have turned out, it is evident that he would have done better to let the case rest as it stood. His complaint that the sentence of the Court was "both unjust and severe" was in itself illogical. If unjust—that is, if there were no proof that his conduct had been blameworthy—the term "severe" would be in no way suitable; such a sentence, or any sentence at all, would in that case have been simply unjustifiable. But if, on the other hand, the finding of the Court was just, that is, if it were proved that any ground for punishment existed at all, then, surely, the imposition of a lighter sentence than six months' suspension of certificate would have been a farce. As we have said on a former occasion, we desired to see a further investigation entered into, in order to show to the friends and relatives of the crew of the ill-fated Oneida that their sad loss was not viewed with indifference in this country, and not from any wish to see Captain EYRE more heavily punished, inasmuch as the knowledge that by his course of action—even though well meant—so many fellow-creatures were doomed to death, must be an ever-present source of self-reproach and suffering to him. But it seems that if the Board of Trade had possessed the power of rendering the sentence more severe, they would gladly have exercised that power; fortunately for Captain EYRE, the Board is not authorised to reopen any such inquiry once concluded, except for the purpose of mitigating or remitting a sentence proved to be excessive or undeserved. They are empowered to commence criminal proceedings in cases where there is proof of criminal neglect or misconduct, but this they do not impute to Captain EYRE, though they consider he has committed an offence for which six months' suspension is far too lenient a punishment, and in confirming it they administer a very severe rebuke, as will be seen in their reply to his memorial, which we reprint in another column. The practical effect of this is, that on the expiry of the brief term of suspension Captain EYRE will be eligible for another command, which he will doubtless readily obtain, inasmuch as his appeal was backed by the P. and O. Company. The feelings that influenced his conduct at and after the moment of the collision, though doubtless wrong, were such as cannot fail to enlist the sympathies of many. The responsibility involved in his command, the safety of his vessel, her passengers, cargo and mails—these considerations were paramount in his mind, and superseded all others, blinding him, wholly or partially, to the possibly fatal effects of the collision on the other ship. He was not inhuman, but so pre-occupied with his own heavy responsibility that his sense of humanity was dulled for the moment. He will not fail, in his future career, to profit by this dearly-bought lesson, and we cannot doubt that it will have the wholesome effect of making all shipmasters more careful, in cases of collision, to look after the safety of the crews of both vessels concerned.

The following is the reply of the Secretary to the Board of Trade to Captain Eyre's letter:—

I am directed by the Board of Trade to inform you that they have given careful consideration to your memorial, dated the 25th April last, in which you pray that the evidence taken by the Naval Court held at Her Majesty's Consulate, Kanagawa, for the purpose of inquiring into the circumstances of the collision between the Oneida and Bombay, and the decision of the said Court thereon may be reviewed by the Board of Trade, and that your certificate may be returned to you. The Board of Trade have, in accordance with your request, carefully considered the report of the said Court, and the evidence taken by it, which have been duly forwarded to them by Her Majesty's Consul, and they have come to the conclusion that there are no grounds for mitigating the sentence of the Court, or for returning you your certificate. The Board have given full weight to the various facts which were alleged in your defence, viz., that the collision was but slightly felt on board the Bombay; that no signals of distress from the Oneida were seen or heard by you, or, as far as the evidence shows, by anybody on board the Bombay; that you were not aware of the full extent of the danger incurred by the crew of the Oneida; that you were naturally and properly anxious to complete your voyage, and to carry your mails and passengers safely into Yokohama; and, finally, that the suddenness of the whole affair, and the necessity for a rapid decision, placed you in circumstances of some difficulty.

On the other hand, it appears to the Board of Trade that no serious injury was sustained by the Bombay, or reported to you; that you were under no apprehension of immediate danger to your own ship and passengers, since, if that had been the case, you would naturally have taken the course suggested by the pilot with respect to the Oneida, and have run the Bombay on the Saratoga Spit, instead of carrying her ten miles farther in deep water into Yokohama; that the circumstances of the collision, and the manner in which the blow was given by the Bombay, and received by the Oneida, were such as to show that the Oneida had probably received severe injury, and that if there was apprehension of danger to the Bombay, there was far greater cause for alarm in respect of the Oneida; that you did as a matter of fact apprehend the possibility of serious injury and danger to the Oneida; that whilst this was the case, and whilst persons on board your ship observed serious injury to the Oneida, no inquiry was made by you upon the subject; that no orders were given to keep a look out for signals of distress from the Oneida; and that you did not wait more than five minutes, at the outside, to see whether the Oneida required assistance.

Under all these circumstances, the Board of Trade are of opinion that you were guilty of a gross breach of the 33rd section of the Merchant Shipping Act Amendment Act, 1862, which provides that "in every case of collision between two ships it shall be the duty of the person in charge of each ship, if, and so far as he can do so without danger to his own ship and crew, to render to the other ship, her master, crew, and passengers (if any) such assistance as may be practicable and as may be necessary in order to save them from any danger caused by the collision."

And the Board are further of opinion that the sentence of the Court in suspending your certificate for six months only, so far from being too severe, is more lenient than the gravity of the offence required. They desire also to point out that the enactment to which they have referred simply embodies the dictates of humanity, and that, in disobeying it, you have been guilty not only of an offence created by statute, but of a disregard of the natural duties which circumstances of danger, such as that of the Oneida, impose on those who have been the unwilling cause of the danger. And they are especially anxious to express emphatically their sense of the importance of these duties at a time when the increase of rapid steam navigation augments the danger of collisions, and renders the performance of those duties more imperative.

DIPLOMATIC AND CONSULAR EXPENDITURE.

THE official correspondence recently published on the expenditure of Her MAJESTY'S Legations and Consulates in China and Japan will be fresh in the minds of our readers. We have already dealt with the Blue-books devoted to reports on the cost of living in those countries, the question of reduction in the staff and in the general expenses of the Consular establishments there; and now we have the last of the series, containing a return of the sums expended in repairing and furnishing Consular buildings from 1848 to 1868 inclusive. The return of course includes other countries—France, Turkey, Spain, and Persia—but our business is with China and Japan only. Beginning with 1848, we naturally find that the entire expenditure in that year was confined to the five original Treaty Ports in China, and the "Superintendency," then situate at Hong Kong. The modest sum of £146 15s. 6d. sufficed for all repairs to buildings, and the still smaller sum of £117 5s. 2d. for furniture—of the latter £3 9s. 8d. being absorbed by the Superintendency. Up to 1857 the entire expenditure under these heads never reached £400; indeed, in 1854 the total was £58 5s. 11d. In 1858 there were no returns. In 1859 the Legation at Yedo and the three Treaty Ports in Japan figure for the first time, and a considerable expenditure for the alterations, repairs, and furnishing of buildings to fit them for Consulates might reasonably be expected; yet we find that the comparatively trifling sum of £782 18s. 1d. sufficed, and in the following year some £250 less. In 1861 the new ports of Hankow, Kiukiang, Chinkiang, Tientsin, and Newchwang had to be provided for, and the total expenditure for China and Japan together rises to £1,792 5s. In 1862 the Legation at Peking has to be taken into account, with two more new ports in Formosa; yet the amount falls to £1,172 16s. 10½d., and on this we find no important increase until 1865, when some rather heavy expenditure on the buildings at Foochow and Shanghai raised it to £5,339 4s. 10d., which was the highest annual sum up to the time when Major CROSSMAN was charged with the general reorganisation of all the establishments, as far as regards the buildings and fittings. During all these years there could surely have been no room for any complaint on the score of want of economy, for it was notorious that our diplomatic and consular officials were worse housed than almost any other foreign residents in China or Japan. At length the Government seems to have been roused to some sense of shame at the shabby manner in which its representatives were accommodated, and a general reform determined on, though not without a strong resistance on the part of some watchful guardians of the public purse, who thought it right and becoming to condemn a British Minister or Consul to live in any hovel, if a ten-pound note could thereby be saved to the British taxpayer. We are glad to say however, that the much-needed reform has been carried out, and between 1866 and 1869 such alterations have been effected that Her MAJESTY'S representatives are now decently housed. At Peking the Legation has been all but rebuilt, at a cost of £9,524. At Tientsin there is an entirely new Consulate, costing £11,440. At Shanghai, £27,150 has been expended on land and new buildings; at Yokohama, £7,442; at Nagasaki, £2,797. At all other ports the buildings have been either renovated or reconstructed, and the entire cost of these works—less than £100,000—cannot, we think, be considered excessive. Only, if some of our wise economists are allowed to carry out the retrenchments they desire, there will be nobody to live in the new establishments!

THE SINGAPORE PETITION.

THE petition of the inhabitants of Singapore on the independence of the judges—which will be found in another column—is a very creditable production. It forcibly expresses, in a few paragraphs, its object, and has thereby ensured a reading. Earl GREY presented the petition to the House of Lords on the 20th, supported by a most practical speech. Several leading peers on both sides of the House were ready to support the prayer of the petition, but before the discussion commenced it was generally understood that the Government not only sympathise with the wishes of the colony, but had thought the matter of such importance that they had obtained from the judges a full opinion as to the rules which should in future be held to govern the relations between the executive and judicial authorities in all our colonies. The more the discussion is considered, the more satisfactory will it seem to all interested in the subject, and the memorandum which the Government laid upon the table will we believe, when published, set at rest all the doubts which may have existed in the Straits as to the perfect independence of the judges in the performance of their public duties. These doubts have, as Lord GREY remarked, possibly been aggravated by what he censured as "a very indiscreet expression in Governor ORD'S despatch, and it is of the greatest moment that they should be cleared away, once and for ever. Three points were raised in the course of the discussion—the independence of colonial judges on the bench, their independence in the legislative councils and assemblies, and the circle from which they should be selected. Nothing could be more assuring than the principles laid down upon the two first of these, and on the last we understand that the Government are entirely in accord with Earl GREY, the condition of affairs in Mauritius having no doubt strengthened them in their discussion. Some wholesome advice was given to our colonies by both the speakers, which, if they are wise, they will lay to heart. Quarrels imply faults on both sides; courtesy and a conciliatory temper will almost invariably prevent disputes between the two leading personages in a small community. Probably the knowledge that each one is independent in his own sphere will go far to ensure a harmonious working between them. Our contemporary the Daily News, the only daily which noticed the discussion, has the following on the subject:—

No part of the Constitution is better settled than that which recognises the independence of our judges. Indeed, no small portion of our political and civil freedom has been founded on the contest which for centuries was carried on between the purely Executive and judicial departments of Government. It is a contest of which we may well be proud, and the fruits of which should be jealously protected, not only in England but in her distant possessions. We are pleased, therefore, though not wholly satisfied, with the answer which was given last night by the Colonial Secretary to Earl Grey on presenting a petition from certain inhabitants of the Straits Settlements, who conceived they saw, in the language used by Governor Ord in a despatch to Earl Granville on October 16, 1869, an invasion of this principle. The language to which the petitioners take exception was the following —

"Her Majesty's Government has laid down distinctly that there is no intention of permitting, in the case of the Settlements, a deviation from the important principle prevailing in all other colonies, by which the Judges are placed under the control of the Executive in the same manner as other public officers."

The Supreme Court of the Settlements was, from its first institution in 1807 until 1867, entirely independent of the local Executive, and good feeling and harmony generally existed between it and the Executive; but on the transfer of these Settlements, in 1867, to the Colonial-office, the judges became liable to suspension by the Governor for any cause that might appear to him sufficient, by a power contained in his commission, and to removal by him and the Executive Council, under the 22nd of George III. The residents of Singapore naturally felt alarmed at this change, for which they felt there was no necessity, especially in these days of rapid communication, and they prayed to be replaced in their former position. It might have been necessary, as remarked by Earl Grey, in early times, when the communication was slow and uncertain between the Settlements and the Home Government, to place a strong power in the hands of the Governor, if anything like harmony was to be preserved between the several colonial officers. But the power of suspending a judge should only be exercised in the case of gross public misconduct on his part, and its exercise should be subject to review by the authorities at home. With the present means of rapid communication between England and her possessions, there was less necessity for its existence at all. Fortunately, in the present case, there was no specific exercise of authority alleged, but the minds of the inhabitants had been disturbed and alarmed, especially when the language of the Governor may have been read in connection with a despatch of the Duke of Buckingham, in which he said that members of the Legislative Council should not vote against the Executive. It is absolutely essential to Government that subordination should exist between its officers, but judges stand in a different position from other officers, for they have not so much to execute as to interpret the law. Earl Granville did not say that he would take steps to abolish the power of the Governor, but he stated that he had submitted the important considerations contained in the petition to the Lord President of the Council, with a request that he would lay them before the judicial members of the Privy Council. They had framed a memorandum on the subject which would, he hoped, be sufficient to ensure the independence of the judges. The class of men from whom our colonial judges are selected are such that we feel confident a sense of their own dignity and the dignity of the judicial office will be always sufficient to preserve them from any conduct that would bring upon themselves suspension from the Governor and scandal on the colony.

SILK PRODUCTION IN EUROPE.

RECENT news from the silk-growing districts of France have created hopes and calmed the markets; the condition of the mulberry trees is reported as excellent, and of course this is a grand point, though the breeders still complain of the want of eggs, and of having paid too dearly for "seed" of doubtful quality. Besides this however, but it is impossible to avoid recognising the fact that even should the diseases which have so long raged in France and elsewhere disappear entirely, silk production is never likely to return to its former condition. BACCHUS forbids it! And when the gods interfere poor man has no chance. M. DE MASQUARD stated the case very clearly and curtly at the late Congress held at Lyons on the subject; he said, that the best thing to be done was to encourage the breeding of the worms in the North, for that even should the disease pass away completely, so as to bring back the old yield of from 96 to 120 lbs. of silk from an ounce of eggs, a very small part of the mulberry trees that had been grubbed up would ever be replanted. In the wine-growing districts labour is always too scarce and too dear to allow of dreaming even of silkworm rearing; none but mountainous districts, ill suited for the vine, would continue it. He concluded with an expression of his conviction that the time would come when more silk would be produced between Calais and Lyons than between the latter place and Marseilles. These considerations give increased importance to the views entertained by many people, that England may produce silk for herself, and perhaps we may some day see Devonshire, Cornwall, Channel Island, or South of Ireland silks quoted in the markets. An Imperial commission has been ordered by the Minister of Commerce to inquire into the condition of the silk industry in the department of the Bouches du Rhone, so we shall probably have more evidence shortly of the probabilities respecting the South of France.

The Chamber of Commerce of Lyons has received an interesting communication from the French Minister at Yedo upon the Japanese method of rearing the Yama-mai worms in the open air, calculated to give hopes of something being eventually done with this species, which M. GUERNI DE MEUNEVILLE has placed before the eyes of all Europe with so much perseverance. The Yama-mai is reared on a tolerably large scale in the provinces of Oshio and Sinchew, in the centre of the Isle of Niphon, the most important silk districts in Japan. The worms will feed on nearly all the varieties of oak and chestnut, but it is the Quercus serrata which is specially cultivated for the purpose in these provinces; but the trees are not allowed to exceed five or six feet in height. The young worms are first fed on branches of the trees placed in water, and while too much sun is to be avoided, a little dampness is not feared. A few days after their first change the worms are placed on trees in the open air, and there the frequent rain seems to do them no harm, while drought long continued weakens them, and watering is had recourse to. A point of importance is positively asserted in the report, namely, that the silk of the cocoon of the Yama-mai is wound in the same manner as that of the ordinary worm, only the Japanese put a small quantity of ash (wood ash, we suppose) in the basins, which softens the hard gummy matter that adheres to the silk. The Yama-mai silk is much in request in Japan, but is used mixed with ordinary silk. Samples of the fabrics thus produced were sent with the document in question, and judging from these the opinion was that the silk in question would produce tissues of great solidity and not wanting in brilliancy, and that beyond question the Lyon's spinners would give a good price for it if offered in sufficient quantities for business purposes.

The Society of the Agriculturists of France offer a prize of the value of £120 to be awarded in 1872 to the author of the most practical and efficacious remedy for the silkworm disease, and the Marquis DE GUIESTOUS adds a medal of the value of £12. M. PASTEUR has published two volumes under the title of "Etudes sur les Maladies des vers à soie." The first volume treats the two principal diseases—pébrine and flacherie—and the means of combating them; the second is composed of documents relating to the mode of selection and rearing recommended by the author.

TELEGRAMS VIA SAN FRANCISCO.

A TELEGRAM in advance of the Pacific mail, dated Yokohama, April 22, informs us that "the Japanese Budget just presented shows a deficit of two millions sterling." We have often pointed out the necessity of accepting these American telegrams from China and Japan with the greatest reserve, as they are evidently framed by persons entirely wanting in any special knowledge of those countries. This one does not seem to be worth much. It is of course known that an assembly of some kind, which perhaps may by courtesy be called the Japanese Parliament, has been established since the MIKADO reassumed the supreme power, but how far its forms or practices assimilate to those of the Legislative Assemblies of Western nations is entirely a matter of speculation, and we were certainly not aware that Japan had so rapidly advanced in civilisation as to have already a Chancellor of the Exchequer and an annual Budget. That the Government is hard up and would like to get two millions of money, or more if possible, we can readily believe, but that the "Budget" spoken of in this telegram is an accurate statement of the national receipts and expenditure, prepared after the fashion of Mr. LOWE'S, we cannot accept as at all likely.

FRENCH MINISTER TO CHINA.

IT was stated confidently the other day that M. JOFFROY, Sub-director in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, had accepted the post of Minister to Peking, and that he would leave for the East within two months. Fresh changes have however taken place in the Ministry, the Duc DE GRAMMONT is gazetted Minister of Foreign Affairs, and this may affect the appointment of M. JOFFROY; should it do so there may be still further delay, for it is understood that the Duc DE GRAMMONT will return to his post at Vienna in order to deliver his letters of recall to the EMPEROR, and perhaps to await the arrival of his successor.

MR. CONSUL KNOX'S report on the trade of Bangkok for 1869 is short, and presents no very important features. For three years the imports have remained almost stationary, and Mr. KNOX states that unless a better wearing material than the cotton goods now sent can be manufactured at prices sufficiently low to tempt the people, the bulk of them, particularly the workers in the fields, will continue to manufacture their own from the cotton of the country, which is abundant enough for the purpose. The total imports for 1869 were valued at £751,870, and the exports £1,181,176.

IN reference to the memorial to the POSTMASTER GENERAL, signed by several Bankers and Merchants in the India and China trade, on the subject of the Brindisi route, we understand that the POSTMASTER-GENERAL has not made any communication on the same to the Directors of the P. and O. Company. The opinion of the Directors in reference to the passage of their vessels through the Suez Canal we believe remains the same.

ITALY AND JAPAN SILKWORM EGGS.

The Italian Minister of Commerce, in announcing to the Chamber of Commerce of Brescia the terms of the convention respecting foreigners visiting Japan, states that the legation made efforts last year to facilitate the purchase of good silkworm seed in Japan, and obtained authority from the Government of that country to make a scientific excursion into the interior of the silk producing districts; but it was found impossible to obtain any other advantages. The Italian Consul at Yokohama also sends some particulars respecting cards of seed. The eggs, if obtained from cocoons, of which not more than 10 per cent. are attacked by the disease called ugi, cost per card about 2s. 4d.; but when the proportion of diseased cocoons rises to 80 per cent. the eggs for each card cost about 21s., the average being about 7s. 8d. at Yokohama; to this must be added Government stamp, transport from the interior, commission, port dues, &c. The demand has caused the average price to rise, loss on exchange included, to 18s. 6d. at Yokohama. The trade in cards of eggs at the other ports open to strangers is very limited, and the seed considered inferior. At Hakodadi cards of bivolting eggs abound, the price varying from 1s. to 5s. At Niegeta which is little frequented, good seed is to be had at 13s. to 12s. Finally, at Hiogo and Nagasaki prices vary from 11s. 6d. for cards of eggs of white quality to 7s. 6d. or 8s. for the annual green variety; in all these cases, however, the transport to the port of shipment must be added.

THE SINGAPORE PETITION TO THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

The following is the petition referring to the independence of Judges in the Straits Settlements, presented to the House of Lords by Earl Grey on the 20th inst.:—

That the Supreme Court of these Settlements was founded by Royal Charter in 1807, which was extended by another in 1826, and amended by a third in 1855, and that from its first institution until 1867 the judges held their office in entire independence of the local Executive, and were responsible solely to the Minister of the Crown.

That under this tenure, which is the same as that of the judges of the Supreme and High Courts of India to this day, these Settlements possessed practically all the advantages enjoyed in England in the tenure of the judicial office ever since the Revolution of 1688.

That under this system, sanctioned by Her Majesty's predecessors and by Her Majesty herself, the administration of justice was always respected, and harmony and good understanding between the Governors and the judges were rarely disturbed. If the conduct of the latter was ever questioned, it was submitted to a great officer of State, who, not mixed up in the controversy and free from all local and personal feelings, decided with impartiality. The judges, though naturally less experienced than those of the Courts at home in certain details of professional experience, and though their sphere of action was distant from the authority which alone had the power to remove them, and though they were exposed to no other criticism than that of a colonial Bar, press, and public, were at the same time called upon to administer the law in all its different phases, and in so doing were never found inferior in purity and honour, and were always respected and trusted by all classes as upright and fearless. Much of this respect and confidence was founded upon the knowledge that they were independent of the local Executive, and that they had therefore no motive for fearing or propitiating it.

That upon the transfer of these Settlements to the Colonial-office in 1867 the judges became liable to suspension by the Governor for any cause that might appear to him sufficient, by virtue of a power contained in his commission, and even to removal by him and the Executive Council by virtue of the Act of the 22nd Geo. 3, c. 75.

That great uneasiness and alarm are felt, quite as much among the various Eastern races as among the British residents of these Settlements, by this alteration. It is opposed to a fundamental principle which has been regarded at home for nearly two centuries, and now, also, by every other civilised nation, as one of the most solid securities of the liberties of the people, and your petitioners think that there is no solid reason why the purity and dignity of the judicial office should be less jealously guarded here. They regret and fear this change further because they have reason to believe that the system now introduced is prejudicial to the colonies in which it is in force. They believe that any suspension of a judge by the local Executive must be detrimental to the community where it takes place, by impairing the public confidence in the Executive or in the judicial authority by lowering the position of the judge, and by introducing discord between the heads of the two departments.

The means of communication between this colony and England are now so frequent and rapid that your petitioners apprehend no practical inconvenience from any delay likely to arise from referring the conduct of a judge directly to the Secretary of State. But they consider that any delay would be a much lesser evil than the loss of judicial independence; not only would a local scandal be avoided, but the decision of the Minister would be accepted with respect and confidence, besides having the incidental advantage of being at once final.

Your petitioners believe that the form of corruption to which judges are in these times exposed is that which is effected not by vulgar bribery and dishonesty but by fear or favour, and to place judges in subordination to the local Executive is to expose them to the influence of such feelings in a manner which may often disastrously affect their judgment.

Deeply impressed with the conviction of the paramount necessity of possessing judges strongly attached to the principle of independence as the only means of securing them, your petitioners pray that their judges may be restored to that position of independence which they held under the Government of India; and that the people of this colony may have their judicial institutions again placed on a basis to which both reason and experience have taught them to attach the greatest value, and the loss of which they regard as impolitic and deeply injurious to them.

THE OPIUM PETITION.

The following is the petition of the "London Missionary Society" on which the debate noticed in our last eventuated:—

1. That on various occasions in recent years religious and benevolent men in England have offered strong objections to the position occupied by the Government of India in reference to the opium traffic; and your petitioners are anxious earnestly to press upon the attention of your Honourable House the importance of inaugurating great changes in that position.

2. That, making due allowance for certain benefits which, under competent medical advice, may be derived from the use of opium, it must yet be acknowledged that great evils of many kinds spring from the habit of opium smoking so prevalent in China; and that for a long period the Chinese Government, by its edicts and other administrative measures, has endeavoured, with laudable anxiety, to repress the practice as injurious to its subjects.

3. That, under these circumstances, it is a matter of deep regret to your petitioners that great English houses and mercantile firms connected with India should engage in the opium trade, and push it so earnestly, simply for purposes of gain; but your petitioners are aware that such trade is free, and must be left to the judgment and conscience of those who engage in it.

4. That for a long series of years the Government of India has been the largest producer of opium in the world, and has reserved to itself the supply of the greatest market in which opium is sold. It has annually regulated the breadth of the opium cultivation by the demands of the China market; and, with a view to secure an increased revenue, it has stimulated the trade in various ways until it has reached its present enormous extent, and until the Indian Exchequer annually receives from the opium duty an amount that has varied in recent years from five to eight millions sterling.

5. That, under such circumstances, the Chinese Government and people not only observe the opium traffic pressed upon the ports and coasts of the Empire by foreign merchants, but they contemplate the spectacle of a neighbouring Government encouraging, stimulating, and personally conducting the growth of opium, with a view to raise a large proportion of its revenue by a system which is specially obnoxious to the laws and customs of the nation among whom it knows it will be consumed. Such a proceeding would be a scandal under any circumstances, towards any European Government it would be simply intolerable; but it is peculiarly a scandal when the Government so acting professes to be guided by the spirit and the dictates, not of a heathen religion, but of the purest religion which the world has known.

6. That your petitioners are aware that the system which they deem so objectionable has grown up with years; and has attained such dimensions as to affect, in a very important degree, the revenue system of India. Nevertheless, like other great evils, they believe that it can be successfully dealt with by men of wisdom and courage; can be settled by sound principles; and that a settlement which is based upon principles of morality can only be productive of national good.

7. That your petitioners would remind your Honourable House that many able officers of the Indian Government, including Sir John Lawrence, have recommended that the Government of India should impose an export duty on all the opium sent abroad, as it now imposes such a duty on the Malwa opium shipped from the harbour of Bombay. It is not for your petitioners to suggest how a revenue from opium should be raised; they cannot, however, withhold the expression of their deep conviction that it is necessary and right for the Government of India to give up altogether the production of opium; to leave its cultivation, manufacture, and sale, under proper regulations, in the hands of private persons; and, in levying a tax upon such an article as opium, rather to consider how the moral and social evil with which it is associated can be restricted within the narrowest possible limits, than calculate the profit which may be derived from it as a source of imperial revenue.

8. That your petitioners consider that the present time is peculiarly suitable for the inauguration of such a change. Under the provisions of the new Convention the Chinese Government has increased the import duty on opium; thus, both recognising the existence of a traffic which it cannot suppress, and endeavouring in a greater measure than before to check it. Why should not the Government of India also assume towards the whole question the attitude which befits a Christian Government in dealing with those great social evils which only an elevated tone of public opinion can finally and radically cure.

9. That your petitioners cannot but point out to your Honourable House that the position so long held by the Government of India in relation to the Government and people of China implies and even constitutes a policy which is in direct opposition to that which the English Government through its Foreign Secretary has pressed with great earnestness in its dealings with China during the past two years. For while the English Government has been striving to strengthen and build up the Imperial Government in China, the incessant pressure of the opium traffic in foreign hands tends ever to break it down. Wherefore your petitioners humbly pray that your Honourable House will be graciously pleased at an early period to take such steps as may be deemed advisable, with a view to such a readjustment of the relations of the Indian Government to the opium traffic as may tend to the entire withdrawal by that Government from the cultivation and sale of opium within the English provinces of India, and thus bring to an end the system of raising a revenue from opium which has hitherto been followed in the presidency of Bengal.

Signed in the name and on behalf of the directors of the London Missionary Society, W. LOCKHART, Chairman.

A meeting has been held by the importers of tea, to consider the present system of tea weights; and it was resolved by the meeting, which included the representatives of the leading firms, to alter the present system, and adopt the Customs' standard of weighing and taring.

In reference to the expedition of the Great Northern Telegraph Company, we understand that the lading of the cable on board the Danish frigate Tordenskjold will be completed this week. The Cella and Great Northern will follow shortly. As announced in our last, it is intended first to lay the Hong Kong and Shanghai section.

At the meeting of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, held on the 17th inst., the following report of the directors was unanimously adopted. A notice of the meeting will be found in another column:—

The directors have now to submit to the shareholders a general statement and balance-sheet of the affairs of the bank for the past year. The net profits for that period amount to £73,927 8s. 10d., nearly 10 per cent. on the bank's capital, out of which have been paid two half-yearly dividends equal to 8 per cent. per annum. The balance, £13,927 8s. 10d., is appropriated to the extinction of the bad debts of the year (which are small), and to the further reduction of those of 1866. The past half-year has been peculiarly unfavourable for exchange and banking business in the East, and the large augmentation of deposits, which would otherwise have been of advantage, has increased the difficulty of profitably employing the bank's funds. Under these circumstances the aggregate profit of the year will, it is hoped, not be considered unsatisfactory, and as the directors have already commenced to bring the rates of interest on deposits throughout the bank more in accordance with the reduced value of money, it is confidently expected that the saving under this head will materially contribute to improve results hereafter. The balance of the old accounts is being liquidated with as little delay as is consistent with a careful realisation of the securities. It is with regret that the directors have to intimate the retirement of Mr. Ellis James Gilman from the direction, in consequence of ill-health; as his successor they have much pleasure in recommending Mr. Edward James Daniell, of the firm of Messrs. Daniell and Co., East India merchants, London, who, from his long and intimate acquaintance with the Eastern trade, particularly that of India, is specially qualified for the office of director, and in accordance with the advertisement already issued, an extraordinary meeting of shareholders will be held on the 19th July next, to fill the vacancy thus occasioned. The directors retiring from the board in rotation are Mr. George Garden Nicol and Mr. James Murray Robertson, who, being eligible, offer themselves for re-election, and the court recommend them accordingly.

The tenders for £400,000 in bills on India were received on the 18th inst., when the amounts allotted were,—to Calcutta, £349,200; to Bombay, £50,000; and to Madras, £800. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 10½d. on the three Presidencies, and tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10½d. will receive about 38 per cent., and on Bombay at that rate about 28 per cent, above in full. These results show a further diminution in the demand for means of remittance to the East.

The Committee of the Stock Exchange appointed the 19th inst. a special settling day for the Imperial Government of Japan Customs Loan for £1,000,000 sterling; the quotation is now to be marked in the official list. The current rate is 3 dis.

An amended prospectus of the Colombo Gas and Water Company has been issued, by which it appears that interest at 5 per cent. per annum will be paid on the capital during the erection of the works. This will, no doubt, induce subscriptions more freely, as in schemes of this nature there is always a desire on the part of capitalists to have some small return for their money at once. The capital asked is £75,000, of which £10,000 has been subscribed in Colombo; this is a considerable security to subscribers of the value of the enterprise. The directors include several gentlemen who have gained experience in India and China as to the working of gas companies, and this is of the last importance to avoid wasteful expenditure. The applications here already amount to a large proportion of the sum required, and the preliminary arrangements for the erection of the works have been made.

The British Australian Telegraph Company (Limited) have notified that they are now in possession of the original concession granted by the Netherlands Government to land the cables on the island of Java, as well as a certified copy of the receipt of the Amsterdam agent of the Minister of Finance for the required caution money, which will be returned to the company—one half when the section of the cable is laid between Singapore and Batavia, and the remaining half when the cable between Java and Australia is completed. This subject is noticed in our correspondent's letter from Rotterdam.

At Lloyd's the question of a seven days' payment of losses after settlement was decided in the affirmative by an overwhelming majority upon ballot. It is clear that the modes or times for the payment of premiums are entirely a matter between the underwriter and the broker; but in losses the former is personally liable to the assured. In future the underwriters will be called upon to look at the two questions separately. Having to pay losses in seven days, they can give the brokers credit as long as they like, or settle the difference in account, setting the loss against the premiums which are due.

At a meeting of the members of Lloyd's, in the underwriters' room, the subject of requiring a money deposit from future underwriting members was discussed, and a committee appointed to consider and report on the advisableness of such a rule. A notice has been posted in the room of a resolution of the Average Adjusters' Association, condemnatory of an alleged practice, referred to in The Times of the 6th inst., of adjusters granting discounts or allowances to brokers off the fees paid by underwriters for statements or adjustments of the claims of the assured, and also of any presents or gratuities being made with the view of influencing business. This resolution, it is understood, does not proceed from the London Association of Average Adjusters, with whom the committee of Lloyd's have for many months been in correspondence, which led to no satisfactory result, but from a larger Association of Average Adjusters, which includes not only the adjusters of London but those of Liverpool and other leading ports.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Pera, from Southampton on the 14th inst., was in gold, to Bombay, £20,000; in silver, to Penang, £29,050; to Singapore, £19,500; to Hong Kong, £29,804; to Shanghai, £2,800; to Yokohama, £1,000; total in gold, £20,000; in silver, £82,154.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Delta, from Southampton on the 28th inst., was in gold, to Madras, £230; to Singapore, £119; in silver, to Singapore, £23,500; to Hong Kong, £12,422; to Shanghai, £41,615; total in gold, £349; in silver, £77,537.

Bar silver is in demand for the Continent at 5s. 0½d. per ounce, and Mexican dollars for China at 4s. 11½d., but the supplies here are limited. A large amount of the latter, however, is expected from Vera Cruz. Most of those coins which have come to hand and subsequently been exported during the last six or eight months have been of new design, and have been viewed with some distrust by the Chinese, who appear to have become thoroughly accustomed to the old coinage. The dollars coined during the reign of Maximilian have nearly disappeared.

An extraordinary general meeting of the China Submarine Telegraph Company was held on the 26th inst.; Mr. John Pender in the chair. The Chairman stated that the object of the meeting was to confirm an agreement, dated the 13th May, between the China Submarine Telegraph Company (Limited), on the one part, and the Great Northern Telegraph, China and Japan Extension Company of Copenhagen on the other part, the approval of which would be of benefit to the undertaking, and prevent the shareholders' pockets being entrenched upon. In reply to questions, the chairman stated that the directors had no intention to alter the undertaking, except as regarded the line from Shanghai to Hong Kong. They were of the same opinion as regarded the favourable character of the undertaking as upon the day when the prospectus was issued. The traffic of the British-Indian Submarine Company was very satisfactory, coming up to anticipations, and the directors had no doubt of the China Submarine proving a very satisfactory investment. The agreement was consequently confirmed.

At a special meeting on the 25th inst. of the Oriental Bank Corporation, it was decided to make a grant of £5,000 to Mr.

Harry George Gordon, the late chairman, in recognition of his services to the company for upwards of twenty years. The money is to be invested by the directors for the benefit of Mr. Gordon's wife and daughters.

The divers of the Salvage Association at Lloyd's have recovered, for the interest of the underwriters, a large part of the cargo from the sunken wreck of the clipper ship Spindrift, lost on the coast of Dungeness, which has been disposed of at public sales, and has produced about £60,000. The amount of insurance on the cargo and ship was £230,000.

The resolutions in favour of the Telegraph to India Company (Limited) being wound up voluntarily, and the transfer of its business and property to the British Indian Submarine Telegraph Company (Limited), were confirmed at the meeting held on the 24th inst. It was also decided to distribute 3d. per share amongst the shareholders for interest to the 30th ult.

The following is from The Times:—

The rapid growth of mercantile intercourse with Japan is attracting much attention in the United States, and an impression seems to be general that in a few years the Government of the island will have been placed on a footing nearly in harmony with that of all commercial nations. According to the Alta California, "the old mystery of the dual Government has already passed away, and all things have become new." A certain leading article in the Japanese language in the Kioto Record, the organ of the Mikado's Government, is quoted, in which these changes are recognised, but are described as being consistent with the primary principles of the State. A desire is expressed to throw open the country, and "make it as free as all foreign countries;" but it is pointed out that after the long non-intercourse of former years all such movements must be gradual. They must be made "little by little, in proportion as the interests of the people can bear the change." The Mikado and the Princes of the Imperial family, conjointly with the Princes of the territories, "shall debate together, and so agree upon what seems to them to be the most improved form of Government." Already it is permitted that the foreign Ministers may visit the Mikado at his capital, so that the old wall of sacred seclusion has been broken down. Further than this, the Mikado has issued a solemn proclamation, which, referring to the ancient theory that he was an isolated being, indifferent alike to the affections and the wants of the people, goes on to say that they have indulged in "the foolish ancient habit of reverential awe towards him, but have seemed to know nothing else, and to understand nothing about what may bring danger or calamity upon the god-country." This, it is intimated, must cease, and the people must learn to respect the Imperial Government (not the Emperor alone) and the Imperial decrees. As for the future, the Mikado, humbly acknowledging his youth and inexperience, adds:—

"But now the nations of the earth are greatly improved, and people fly hither and thither, while our country alone adheres to ancient fashions and habits, knowing nothing of the movements of foreign nations. We, immured in our nine walls, care for none of the novelties of the outside world, forgetting that even one day's neglect may cause a hundred years' sorrow, and call down upon us the maledictions of all people, while disgracing our country before all the nations of the earth, as well as provoking the chagrin of all the Imperial ancestry. This great calamity to all the people we truly deprecate. Therefore, we have assembled all the Imperial household and Daimios to make this vow, so to endeavour to follow the footsteps of our Divine ancestors, and so diligently to rule Niphon by our own hand, as to save the people from all harm, making all the country free, and the people as secure as if their houses were built in the top of Fuji Yama. This is my sincere desire."

"This means," observes the Alta California,—

"That Japan has really been reconstructed, and that the long civil war which has shaken the empire has resulted in the destruction of the old-time mysticism of semi-priestly Government, and that the country is taking its place among the enlightened nations of the earth. Furthermore, nearly every trace of any autocracy is disappearing; in the very first sentence of the proclamation from which we have quoted, the Mikado says that 'all Government concerns shall be settled by consultation with the people of all the provinces of the empire.' It is not the least striking of the notable events of the time that Japan has at last secured a Liberal Government which invites intercourse with all nations of the earth."

EXPORT OF COTTON GOODS TO THE FAR EAST.

The following is a summary of Mr. Sam Mendel's tables for the present month, containing details of the quantities of Cotton Manufactures and Yarn shipped from the ports of London, Liverpool, Southampton, and the Clyde, to Hong Kong, Shanghai, Japan, Singapore, Batavia, Manila, and Ceylon, during the month and twelve months ended 16th May, 1870, compared with the corresponding periods of the two preceding years:—

HONG KONG AND WHAMPOA.

PLAIN COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th May, 1870, 8,948,788 yards; for the twelve months, 53,665,972 yards; for the twelve months, 1869, 45,426,867 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 62,986 421 yards. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 8,239,105 yards.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Capel and Co. report a total want of animation in the market. Transactions by private contract have been consequently on a very limited scale, and prices for all kinds have somewhat receded.

Red-leaf Congous: Siftings have been sold with difficulty at the decline last quoted. Broken-leaf kinds have met with but little demand, and prices have given way ½d. to ¼d. per lb. Fair to good common show no material change, being quoted from 11d. to 11½d. per lb. Fair to good Kaisows have been sold to a limited extent at rather lower prices. In fine to finest there has been but little done, and prices remain nominally the same. Pak Lin kinds have been sold rather lower. Amoy kinds continue neglected. Black-leaf kinds: Ordinary to good ordinary kinds remain depressed, being in over supply; there was at one time rather more inquiry for common to fair common at a slight improvement on last sale prices, but the demand has ceased for the present. Good common has met with a fair sale at 11½d. to 1s. per lb. Fair medium at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 2d. have been dull of sale. Good qualities have been less saleable, owing to a falling off in the demand. Fine to finest remain much as before, the sale being only for small parcels. New-make Canton kinds: Common sorts have sold fully 1d. to 1½d. per lb lower; fair quality, in chests, from 11d. to 1s., show a slight decline; boxes have sold at 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1d. There have been no further sales in the finer qualities. Oolongs show no change. Souchongs remain very difficult of sale. Scented Teas: Common Canton Capers have been very dull even at the low prices current; good to fine remain steady at previous prices. Foochow kinds show no alteration. Orange Pekoes: Canton kinds have been only in limited demand at rather low prices. Foochow kinds: Fair to good qualities have sold 1d. per pound lower; fine show no change, In uncoloured Japans common sorts have been unsaleable; good to fine in fair request at former prices. Green Teas: The market has been very dull for all common to medium qualities, some invoices of which went at public sale at a decline of fully 2d. per lb. Fine kinds have been better supported, and are fairly saleable.

Messrs Kinnear, Hawes, and Hertz report:—The market slightly improved for common Black-leafs. Both the common and good common sorts have been in demand for export, and a considerable business has been effected in them; the quotation for common to good common is 10d. to 11½d. per lb.; for common flavoury, 1s. to 1s. 0½d. per lb. Medium to fine grades show no alteration. The lower sorts of Red-leaf have continued easy. In Scented Teas a fair business has been done. Fine Capers are scarce and much inquired for; the common sorts are a little easier.

SILK.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co report as follows:—

For China Silk there has been steady inquiry, especially for Taatlees, the prices of which have in consequence recovered to the highest point of last March, 28s. for Red Peacocks, and 32s. for best Chop 3rds having been freely paid. In Tayeaams also the best Kahings have touched 26s. 6d. to 27s. 6d., but the medium and lower grades of this and Chin Cum sorts have been and still are neglected, buyers being very cautious in the face of such heavy arrivals and the knowledge of large supplies yet to come. In other Silk we cannot report improvement, only steadiness of price, with but small business. The last few days have been less active, and the market has now resumed its former quiet; still this is nothing but what may be fairly looked for at the present season, and we may expect inactivity or business according as the rumours of the progress of the European crops be favourable or otherwise, or as the wants of manufacturers lead them; of the crops it is much too early for reliable information yet, but pending positive news, we see nothing to interfere with the present firmness of quotations on this market. Deliveries are satisfactory; say from 1st to 18th instant, 2,167 bales China, 373 Japan, 351 Canton, and 271 Bengal. Total, 3,162 bales.

COFFEE.

The offers of Plantation Ceylon have again been limited in extent, and have consisted largely of the commoner kinds, for which but little demand has existed, and these have consequently been quitted at a slight decline at the previously current prices; on the other hand, the colory descriptions have been fairly sought after, and have steadily maintained former rates.

No business is reported in other East India, an offer of 380 bags Singapore being bought in at 50s. Export deliveries have further increased, and as those for home consumption continue above last year's, the total for the week shows an increase of 740 tons, and landings being 300 tons below last year's, the surplus is again diminished about 1,000 tons, being now reduced to 5,000 tons.

The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation 297,857 cwt., against 306,805 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1869; Native, 30 194 cwt., against 42,918 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is 9,499 cwt. Plantation against 10,179 cwt., and 4,806 cwt. Native, against 19,454 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the nineteen weeks ended May 14, 1870, was, of Ceylon, 9,733 tons, against 11,147 tons during the corresponding period of 1869; of all descriptions, 13,793 tons, against 18,059 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 3,866 tons, against 4,051 tons: of all descriptions, 6,652 tons, against 6,796 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 7,728 tons, against 8,996 tons; of all descriptions, 12,745 tons, against 16,885 tons. The stock on May 14 was, of Ceylon, 12,003 tons, against 9,095 tons; of all descriptions, 18,615 tons, against 13,598 tons.

Since we last reported on the Rio market no change has taken place; there is still an entire absence of business, holders and buyers declining to meet the views of each other.

SUGAR.

The desire to buy has become stronger, and with increased sales prices have acquired an upward tendency, particularly low and common qualities, which suffered the greatest previous depression, and may now be quoted fully 6d. above last quotations; medium to good and grocery descriptions have realised quite previous terms. On the spot sales are larger than any week from the commencement of the year, and afloat considerable business has also been effected, but at easy terms.

The quantity of Sugar landed in the nineteen weeks ended May 14, 1870, was, of Penang, 792 tons, against 1,126 tons in the corresponding period of 1869; of Manila, Java, and China, 7,838 tons, against 18,085 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was of Penang, 967 tons, against 1,241 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 9,139 tons, against 5,398 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang 37 tons, against 42 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 1,490 tons, against 700 tons. The stock on May 14 was, of Penang, 2,118 tons, against 172 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 33,049 tons, against 43,731 tons.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The dulness prevailing in the market for Ceylon has led to a further decline of 20s. to 30s.; a small business has been done since our last at £38 per ton. The quantity of Ceylon afloat for the United Kingdom is estimated at 26,069 tons, against 19,575 tons last year, and 11,571 tons in 1868; to the Continent, 5,180 tons, against 750 tons last year.

CARDAMOMS.—Ceylon have slightly improved in value; we note the sale of 39 bags at 3s. 2d. for sound, 2s. 11d. to 3s. 1d. for good but slightly mouldy, and 6d. for shells and stalks.

CANES.—At the sales, 37,988 Partridge were bought in at 2¾d. to 3d., except 5,125 mouldy, which sold at 2½d.; 40.950 Bamboo, slight wormy and mouldy, were bought in at ¾d., 22,500 Tonking at 1d., and 10,000 Whanghee at 2¼d.; 2,900 Borneo sold at ⅜d. to ⅝d.; fancy at ½d.; and 49,200 Tonkin sold at ⅜d. to ½d. each.

CUTCH.—There is only a limited inquiry; at auction, 240 boxes fine Pegue were bought in at 24s., and 277 boxes, saved from the wreck of the Benvenue, from Penang, sold at 10s.

CAMPHOR.—Private business in China is reported to the extent of about 250 cases, at 82s. 6d. per cwt. At auction 60 cases China of fresh import sold at 82s. 6d. in lead, small quantities at 85s.

CUBEBS.—Prices have slightly declined, and about 508 bags have found buyers at 28s. to 28s. 6d. for good quality.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—The market is steady; of 5 cases at auction 3 cases sold at £5 per cwt. for middling lump, and a single case of superior quality, saved from the wreck of the Benvenue, brought £9 7s. 6d. per cwt.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed: Very flat; 5 cases at auction retired at 8s. 7d. Cassia sells in purely retail at 4s. 7d. to 4s. 8d. per lb., but large holders are not selling. Nutmegs: No change. Cinnamon: Scarce, and wanted. Citronelle: Again lower; 61 cases at auction mostly sold at 2¼d. to 2½d. per oz. Lemon Grass: Very dull, and lower, and of 42 cases offered 26 sold at 3¼d. to 3½d. per oz.

EBONY.—At auction 34 logs (7 tons) Ceylon were offered and bought in at £10. 27 tons Ceylon sold at £7 10s.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Siam quiet; 26 cases retired. Sumatra inactive; of 65 cases at auction, 2 only sold at £9 15s. per cwt. for very good seconds. Copal: Steady; of 75 cases Singapore sorts at auction the greater portion sold at 37s. 6d. to 38s. per cwt. for hard gum, fair quality, but part very coated. Damar: Steady; auctions have embraced 152 cases Singapore; part sold at 77s. per cwt., for fine bold selected, rather yellow; 60s. to 66s. for sorts, rather mixed; and 46s. 6d. inferior rough. 110 cases Batavian brought 82s. 6d. to 84s. for fine pale. Gamboge is dearer; of 25 cases at auction three-fourths sold at £17 to £17 5s. per cwt. for fine clean pipe, and £13 to £14 12s. 6d. ordinary drossy and part run.

GUTTA-PERCHA.—The supply continues inadequate to demand, and the market is consequently firm at the late extravagant prices. Auctions have embraced 23 tons, about half of which were placed at 2s. 1½d. to 3s. 0½d. per lb. for fair mixed, part genuine, and 10½d. to 10½d. for very ordinary foul reboiled and dross.

GAMBIER.—The dulness continues, and a further slight decline is reported; the sales have been 200 baskets good cubes at 19s. 3d., 750 mats fair cubes (without reserve) at 17s. 6d. to 17s. 9d., and 366 bales fair common at 16s. 6d. to 16s. 9d. For arrival 100 tons distant shipment have been sold at 16s. 6d. ex ship without guarantee of quality, and 400 bales at 16s. 7½d. to 16s. 9d. for sound ex ship.

GALLS.—There have been no sales; 101 cases and 25 chests China were offered and bought in at 47s. 6d. to 49s.

HEMP.—At auction 60 bales Manila bought in at £57. Privately 100 bales sold at £54 15s. to £55.

HORNS.—Deer: 7 tons (12,542) Ceylon average 1,658 to 1,920 horns to a ton sold at 64s. to 68s. 6d. Buffalo: Of 26,689 (23¼ tons) Manila two-thirds sold average 1,040 to 1,004 horns, at 34s. to 34s. 6d.; average 988 to 932, horns, at 35s to 36s.: and 9,025 (12 tons) Siam sold, average 830 to 574 horns, at 44s. to 46s.

HIDES.—At the last sales, although a fair amount of business was done in East India, the demand was far from active, and it was only for the few good North-Western slaughtered that former rates were obtainable; all other sorts declined ½d. to ¼d. per lb., the greatest reduction being on the lowest qualities. 926 Dry Ceylon Hides offered. 391 sold—Light and Heavy 4½d. to 5⅝d. per lb.; 2,745 Singapore and Penang Buffalo Hides offered—none sold.

INDIA-RUBBER.—There is still an active demand for good qualities, and a considerable business has been done in Borneo at 1s. 5d. per lb.

JAPAN WAX.—There has been no business since our last report.

MUSK.—Prices exhibit some advance; 22 caddies Tonquin sold at auction at 34s. 6d. to 35s. 6d. per oz. for fine thin pods, and 18s 6d to 20s. 6d. fair bally, rather rough. Of 20 tins grain also offered, about half sold at 55s to 56s. per oz. for fine; 52s. to 52s. 6d. very good.

PEPPER.—Black: The market continues quiet, but previous rates are well maintained; at auction 110 bags Penang sold—good, 4¾d.; dust, 3¼d.; and 21 bags Singapore, at 5⅛d. Privately 300 bags Penang have been sold at 4 13-16d. White: There is not much doing, but prices are steady at the improvement reported in our last; the sales have been, on the spot, 149 bags Singapore, at 6¼d., and for arrival, 250 bags Singapore, at 6⅝d, 70 bags Singapore at 6¼d.

PLUMBAGO—The market continues flat; the sales amount to 224 barrels Ceylon lump, at 17s. to 17s. 6d.; chips, at 13s. to 15s. 6d.; medium dust, at 8s. 9d. to 9s.; fine, at 10s. 6d. to 11s. per cwt.

RHUBARB—The market for China is very quiet; of 90 cases offered from former lots a few sold at 3s. 3d. to 4s. for good middling fine fracture, and 2s. 3d. for duller and badly trimmed; large arrivals are expected.

RICE.—The market has become extremely flat, the inquiry having entirely fallen off; the only sales to report are, on the spot, 6,000 bags old Rangoon at 9s., ex quay and afloat the cargo per Indien 750 tons Necransie, April sailing, at 9s. 10½d. for the Continent for a port between Copenhagen and Bordeaux.

SPICES.—Cinnamon: There is but little doing, in anticipation of the periodical sales which are fixed for this day. In Chips there has been no business done. Cassia Lignea continues to meet but little inquiry, and holders generally are anxious to realise, the stock both here and on the Continent being large. A little of the finest in the market has been sold at 125s. per cwt. In Cassia Buds there is no change. Mace has been in good request, and nearly 150 cases have been sold, ordinary Java and good Penang, 2s. 10d. to 3s. 4d. per lb. Nutmegs have obtained fully former rates; 37 cases Penang, 113 to 115 to the lb., sold at 1s. 9d. to 1s 10d., 87 to 85 at 2s. 4d., and 80's at 2s. 6d.; 102 cases Padang chiefly sold, defective at 10d. to 11d., 135 to the lb. at 1s. 6d., 95 at 2s. 1d., 82 at 2s. 6d., 71 at 3s. 2d., and 62 at 4s. 3d. per lb. Cloves: 9 boxes 48 bags good and fine Amboyna realised 6¼d. to 8¼d. per lb.

SHELLS.—Cowries: 75 bags Ceylon Maldive sold—good small at 35s. 6d.; medium at 24s.; a small lot at 40s.; 260 bags Manila sold—chiefly good bluebacks at 21s. to 22s 6d., ditto mixed with yellow at 12s. 6d. to 13s. Ear-shells: 15 tons Japan sold, commencing at £35 10s. and closing at £44 10s. Mother o'-Pearl: At the periodical auctions the supply was of fair extent, and went off with less spirit, a good portion being bought in. Manila partly sold on about previous terms. Macassar were chiefly held firmer and bought in. Of 128 cases Macassar offered, 42 cases sold—fine bold clean medium and small at £12 5s. to £12 7s. 6d., inferior at £10, the remainder being bought in at £13 to £13 5s. Of 125 cases good bold Manila offered, 50 cases sold at £9 2s. 6d. to £9 5s. Tortoise: 3 cases (400 lbs.) Singapore and 6 cases (1,769 lbs.) Batavia were offered and bought in, the former at 9s., the latter at 14s. 6d.

SAGO.—The market is flat; there is a small business doing privately at 18s for good small; at auction 320 boxes and 160 bags were offered and withdrawn.

SAPANWOOD.—Prices are steady; the only sale since our last report has been of 12 cwt. Manila, fair quality but coated, at £7 per ton; 11 tons Siam at £5 15s.

SOY.—The market for China is dull; 20 casks offered in public sale were withdrawn, but have been subsequently sold at 2s. 5d. per gallon, showing a further slight decline.

STAR ANISEEDS.—China continue scarce and firm; 20 cases at auction realised £6 per cwt. for good quality.

STICKLAC.—The market continues very dull; there have been no offers of Siam.

TAPIOCA.—The market still exhibits a quiet tone; of 759 bags Singapore offered in public sale about one-third realised 2½d. per lb. for good quality.

TIN.—The market for Straits has been easier, sales having been effected as low as £132 per ton, but has since improved to £134. Banca and Billiton are without change, the former being still quoted £135, and the latter £133 to £134 per ton.

TOBACCO, &c—11 cases Manila Cheroots, 2s, sold at 6s.; 467 bales Japan Leaf, at 7¼d. to 9½d.; inferior, 2d. to 2½d.; 465 do., damaged, 5½d. to 8 d.; inferior, 2d.; 86 do. Java, 7¼d. to 8½d.

TURMERIC.—There have been no transactions either in China or Java.

VERMILION.—Without change; China is still quoted 3s.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

TEA.

The following is from Messrs. Beebe's Circular, dated 6th inst.:—

Since the issue of our circular under date of April 20th a fair demand has ruled for good to fine Green Tea, and sales are reported to the extent of 10,800 half-chests, at prices indicating no material change in current values for these descriptions. Medium and low grades continue very difficult of sale, and prices show some further decline. In Japans business is necessarily restricted for want of stock. Sales since our last are 3,800 half-chests, including all the unsold parcels then far to hand, except part of the cargo per Herbert Graham just in. For Oolongs there is some inquiry, but at lower rates, and sales are limited to 3,900 half-chests; 2,300 half-chests Souchong and Congou have also found buyers, the demand falling entirely upon good to superior grades.

The following are the current quotations:—Greens (Moyune, Twanki and Fychow): Gunpowder, common to good, 65c. to 105c.; fine to finest, 75c. 120c; Imperial, common to good, 50c. to 90c.; fine to finest, 55c. to 110c.; Young Hyson, common to good, 43c. to 90c.; fine to finest, 45c. to 110c.; Hyson, common to good, 50c. to 85c.; fine to finest, 55c. to 95c.; Hyson Skin, 42c. to 52c.; Foochow Oolongs, common and good, 50c. to 56c.; superior and fine, 58c. to 70c.; finest, 75c. to 110c.; Amoy Oolongs, common and good, 48c. to 55c.; superior and fine, 57c. to 65c.; finest, 70c. to 75c.; Souchong and Congou, common and good, 41c. to 52c.; superior and fine, 54c. to 63c.: finest, 65c. to 85c.; Japans, common, 57c. to 62c.; medium, 65c. to 70c.; fine and finest, 77c to 85c; choice, 88c. to 95c.

The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan at the port of New York from Jan. 1 to May 3, 1870. were as follows:—Greens, 11,029,159 lbs: Japans, 3,782,509 lbs.; Souchongs, 2,178,064 lbs.; Oolongs, 7,175,207 lbs.; other sorts 98,256 lbs.; total, 24,263,194 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1 was 9,866,167 lbs.; which, added to the above total, gives a result of 34,129,361 lbs. Subtracting from this total the exports from Jan. 1 to May 3, 1,767,079 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption during that period, 14,341,678 lbs., there remains a total of 18,020,604 lbs., representing the stock on the last named date. The receipts from April 19 to May 3 amounted to 1,520,192 lbs.; the withdrawals for home consumption to 4,103,052 lbs.; and the exports to 147,990 lbs.

COFFEE.—A decline on Brazil of half a cent shortly after our last report caused business in that description to become very active; extensive purchases were made, after which a quieter tone set in, buyers having supplied their requirements. In East India kinds there has been a larger business than for some time past, both in this market and at Boston on New York account; the following are the sales reported:—5 000 piculs (about 16,000 mats) Java, per Rocket; 10,000 mats, per Wildeman; 12,000 mats, per W. A. Farnsworth; 3,000 mats, per Nevada; 12,000 mats, per Argonaut; 11,529 mats, per Marie and Wallstrom; 12,000 mats Singapore, per Fusiyama; 800 mats, vessel not named; 927 bags Manila, and 350 bags Native Ceylon; the prices paid were Java 21½c. to 22c.; Singapore, 18c. to 19c.; Manila, 16c. to 17c.; Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19c. gold; showing a slight rise on Java and previous rates for the other kinds. Beyond these sales business has been done in Java, of which the particulars as to quantity and prices are withheld. The stock of Manila on the 1st May was estimated at 2,627 bags, against 6,769 bags on May 1, 1869; of Java (Government) at 900 bags, against 2,287 bags; of Java mats, 51,447, against 41 808 bags; of Ceylon, 1,000 bags, against 5,000 bags; of Singapore nil against 1,000 bags.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 18c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.12½; Cassia, $1.25 gold.

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 4c. to 4¼c. gold (duty paid); stock very small, not exceeding 2,000 bales.

FIRE CRACKERS.—There has been a considerable demand for extra, No. 1, at advanced rates; sales have been effected of 2,000 boxes at $2.05 gold (60 days), 1,000 boxes at $2.42½ currency, and 16,300 boxes on private terms. At the close holders declined to transact business under $2 45 currency.

HEMP.—There has been no business in Manila, but prices are without change, holders being firm at 14¼c. gold; we notice sales of 75 tons Manila Rope at 4¾c. to 4¼c. cash. The stock of Manila on the 1st May was estimated at 12,633 bales, against 5,100 bales at the corresponding date of 1869, and 18,319 bales in 1868. The imports into the United States from the 1st January to the 30th April, 1870, were 53,100 bales, against 47,471 bales during the corresponding period of last year, and the quantity afloat on the 30th April was 22,988 bales, against 10,829 bales at the same date last year.

INDIGO.—The market for Manila has been quiet, and lower rates are current, but at the close there is a slight improvement in the demand, with indications of a recovery; the sales have amounted to about 42 cases, at $1.15 to $1.27½ currency.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $8 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is $1 to $2 currency (duty paid), showing a decline of 50c.

RICE.—The general market has been steady throughout, and for Rangoon there has again been a fair enquiry, resulting in sales of 3,200 bags in bond, for export at $3.06½ to £3.12½ gold, 2 000 bags afloat also for export, and 2,300 bags for home consumption on private terms.

SPICES.—The advices from the producing countries generally are favourable to holders; and, with a continued good demand, the market for nearly all kinds is strong, the tendency being still rather in sellers' favour. The following is the business reported:—2,728 bags Pepper at 26¼c. for Sumatra, and 27c. to 27½c. for Singapore. 1,200 bales Cassia at 47c.; 800 cases 12 casks Nutmegs at $1.02½; 350 bales Cloves at 25⅞c. to 26c.; 27 cases Mace at $1.22½ to $1.25, all gold; and 1,000 bales Wild Cinnamon on private terms.

SILK.—There has been a fair amount of activity, especially in the finer sorts of both China, Japan, and Canton, and prices are slightly higher. The current quotations are as follow:—Tsatlee, Nos. 1, 2, and

8 per lb., $10 to 10.75; Nos. 4 and 5, $9 to 9.50; Re-reeled, $9.25 to 10.25; Taysaam, Nos. 1 and 2, $8.50 to 9; Nos. 3, 4, and 5, $7.25 to 8; Re-reeled, $8.50 to 9.50; Haineen, medium to best, $9.50 to 10.20; Canton Re-reeled, extra, $8 to 8.50; Re-reeled, Nos. 1 and 2, $6.75 to 7.50; Japan, superior, $10 to 10.50; common to fair, $8 to 9.50.

SUGAR.—The general market is dull, at a decline of about ⅛c.; there have been no sales of East India. The stock on the 1st of May was, of China, 1,911 bags, against 10 bags at the corresponding date last year; of Manila, 282,539 bags, against 45,861 bags; of Java, 9,024 bags 2,366 baskets, against 310 baskets.

STRAW BRAID.—The sale is reported of 100 bales China on private terms.

TIN.—The advices from England and Holland continuing favourable, there has again been a good demand for Straits, and we note a further advance of 1½c.; the sales have been about 13,300 slabs on the spot, at 34½c. to 35½c. gold; 2,300 slabs to arrive at this port and at Boston, at 33½c. to 35½c. gold; and 4,000 slabs, also to arrive, on private terms. The only sale of Banca has been 50 tons, price not reported; this description is very scarce, and is nominally quoted 45c. gold. Of Billiton 2,050 tons are reported sold at secret prices, and 150 slabs have realised 34c. to 34½c. gold.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE.—There is a good steady trade requirement. We quote O G. Java, 22½c.

CHINA MATTING.—Imports from Jan. 1st to May1st: 54 bales, 2,920 rolls. Moderate sales of China Checked and White 4-4, at $5.25 to 5.50 per roll.

RICE.—Imports from Jan. 1st to May 1st: China, 5,773,952 lbs., 2,276 mats. Prices were hardening under the influence of speculative purchases; sales are reported of 2,000 mats, No. 2 at 6½c., and 3,000 mats recleaned at 6c. to 6⅝c.; No. 1 is held at 6⅝c. to 7c. The William Wilson has arrived with 10,586 bags from Hong Kong.

SPICES.—Imports from Jan. 1st to May 1st:—101 cases 273 packages. Stocks are moderate; we quote Black Pepper at 26½c. to 27c.; Pimento, 22½c.; Cloves, 32c. to 33c.; Cassia, 46c. to 47c.; Nutmegs sell, in lots, at $1.10 to $1.12½; Sago is superabundant, in sacks, selling at 7c., in tin at 8½c., the latter rate in jobbing lots. Tapioca is held at 9c. to 10c.

TEAS.—Imports from Jan. 1st to May 1st:—China, 145,163 lbs., 444 packages; Japan, 360,016 lbs., 2,428 packages. The sales of Japan, "Fan" brand, for April exceeded 400 chests, each containing 4 to 8 lacquered caddies of 5 lbs. each, at 73c. to 75c. We quote "Comet" Oolongs at 75c. to $1.50, according to chop and style of package.

Advices from New York, dated May —, state that the C. C. Leary, from Yokohama to that port, had been in collision with the Barossa (corvette), from Yokohama.

Advices from Capetown, dated April 20, state that the Flora, Satterey, from Bangkok to Europe, which put into Table Bay, April 6, leaky, was discharging.

PLYMOUTH, MAY 23.—The American barque Asterias, of Boston, U.S., Captain Sloan, which left Cardiff May 18, with a cargo of coals for Hong Kong, when off Lundy Island, at 9 A.M. on the 21st, blew up through the ignition of gas generated by the coals. The captain and one of the seamen were killed; the remainder of the crew took to the boats. The wreck foundered about forty minutes after the explosion. The schooner Beryl picked up the boats (two), containing twelve seamen, three of them seriously hurt, and the captain's body fifteen miles below Lundy, and landed them at Penzance.

The Cornelia, from Java, to Amsterdam, which arrived off Bridport May 24, was waiting orders, her master (Walker) having been landed at Bridport sick.

The Apollonia (Dutch brig), de Boer, from Amsterdam to Singapore, with a general cargo, has put into Portsmouth leaky.

The following telegram has been received from Hong Kong dated May 12. The Duwail (? Dunmail), from London to Hong Kong, struck on a rock whilst entering harbour 6th May, and sunk in 13 fathoms water; crew saved; ship and cargo will be raised if possible.

Registered Office—11, OLD JEWRY CHAMBERS, E.C.

The immediate object for which the Company is established is to supply the town of Colombo, in Ceylon, with Gas. Power is also taken in the Articles of Association for water supply and drainage, and hereafter to extend the Company's operations to other towns and places in Ceylon; but these works are not to be undertaken without the sanction of the Shareholders in general meeting.

The population of the town of Colombo is now about 55,000 persons, and is rapidly increasing, while the commerce and civilisation of which it is the centre are largely extending.

A contract has been entered into with the Municipal Council for lighting the town with gas, of which the following are the principal provisions, viz.:—

1. The grant to the Company of the exclusive right of supplying gas within the town of Colombo for three successive periods, amounting together to a period of twenty-one years from the date of the contract.

2. The Company to enjoy the privilege of importing the materials for the works duty free.

3. An immediate order of 600 public lamps to be supplied with gas, and paid for by the Council at the rate of 18s. 3d. per 1,000 cubic feet, in addition to 9 per cent. per annum on the outlay involved in the erection of the lamps.

4. Power to the Company to supply gas to the general public at prices varying from 17s. 3d. per 1,000 feet to small consumers, to 15s. 3d. per 1,000 feet to large consumers.

The Municipal Council have assisted the Company to secure a very desirable site for the Works, containing nearly three acres of land, at a moderate cost, in the centre of the town, on low ground, and with easy water communication for the delivery of coals.

Contracts have been entered into with the eminent firm of Messrs. R. Laidlaw and Son, of Glasgow, for the supply of the materials and for the construction of the Gas Works at Colombo.

Arrangements have been made for the payment of Interest Half-yearly at 5 per cent. per annum on the Share Capital as paid up, until the Works have been completed and handed over to the Company.

The Company will thus be in a position to earn Dividends from the sale of gas secured to them so soon as the Works can be opened, and the profits will be increased by the sale of coke, tar ammoniacal liquor, and other products, for which there is likely to be a large demand.

It has been ascertained, by careful estimates, that £60 000 will be quite sufficient to establish the Gas Works, and leave a working capital of £9,000 or £10,000.

Assuming that the amount of gas supplied to private consumers equals only that supplied to the public lamps, the directors have satisfied themselves that the profit earned by the Company will be sufficient to provide a dividend of upwards of 12 per cent. on the outlay.

With a view to test the feeling of the colony, and in accordance with the wishes of the Municipal Council, one-third of the capital has been offered for subscription in Ceylon. At the date of the last advices shares to the amount of £10.0 0 had been already taken, with an assurance of further subscription.

No outlay for concession or promotion money will be made, and the preliminary expenses are, in the directors' opinion, of reasonable amount. The directors confidently hope that their experience in similar undertakings may be regarded as a guarantee that the works will be economically and efficiently constructed, and that the management of the Company will be conducted in such a manner as to satisfy all parties.

A copy of the Memorandum and Articles of Association, and of the several contracts after mentioned, can be seen at the Offices of the Company's solicitors, from whom, as also from the engineer or secretary of the Company, further information may be obtained.

Shareholders have the option of paying up their shares in full, receiving 5 per cent. interest thereon.

The following is a list of all the contracts entered into by the Company, as the promoters, directors, or trustees thereof, before the issue of this Prospectus:—

21st January, 1869.—The Municipal Council of Colombo of the one part, and the Company of the other part.

24th April, 1869, and 7th May, 1870.—David Laidlaw and Robert Laidlaw of the one part, and the Company of the other part.

28th April, 1869.—The Company of the one part, and Edward Woods of the other part.

COLOMBO GAS COMPANY.—In compliance with the wish of numerous Shareholders, arrangements have been made for the PAYMENT of INTEREST on the Share capital at 5 per cent. per annum until the completion of the works.

C. E. WALDUCK, Secretary.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.

DEPLORABLE MORTALITY.—The number of serious diseases caused by the present inclemency of the weather is indicated by the Registrar General. He reports an excess of deaths in one week above the estimated average. This fearful fatality falls chiefly upon throat and chest affections—scarlatina, whooping-cough, and diseases of the lungs. Holloway's Ointment well rubbed upon the throat and chest never fails in checking inflammation and ulceration, and so soothes the system that fear and danger depart. Holloway's Pills, simultaneously taken, facilitate the cure. While the weather is so changeable, mothers and nurses should never be without a supply of Holloway's remedies, which are useful in all ailments—burns, scalds, bruises, cuts, and sprains.

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vesse's of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds, superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

The DRY DOCK (opened in March, 1859) admits two vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with a depth of water ranging to 15½ feet. A second DRY DOCK of larger dimensions will shortly be completed, and available for the heaviest Steamers.

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMON and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon street, London, E.C.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present mail brings only two days later news, namely, to April 12, but we have now correspondence and papers by the Pacific mail of April 22. The outward mail of Feb. 25 was received April 17. Telegrams via Kiachta to March 22 were received April 20. The following summary of news is chiefly from the Japan Herald:—

The Flying Squadron, consisting of the Liverpool, Phœbe, Barossa Endymion, Liffy, and Scylla, under Admiral Hornby, have come and gone. The passage hither from Australia is described as uneventful, not to say monotonous. Light winds prevailed, and caused the voyage to occupy fifty-six days. The fleet remained with us about ten days, and took their departure for Vancouver's Island April 19, leaving the Barossa on this station in lieu of the Pearl.

There is hope of redemption—not just yet, though—for kinsats, fresh floods of which paper money seem to appear constantly, despite the asseverations of the Government, and promises of contracted issues. This hope lies at the bottom, let us fervently pray of our Pandora's box of evils, and is based upon the engagement of Mr. C. F. Farington, late private secretary of the U.S. Minister, to direct the working of some reopened silver mines on the estate of a neighbouring Prince. That there is plenty both of gold and silver is beyond question; and if the Government will only permit the enterprise of foreigners to do that which it appears incompetent to do of itself—develop the mineral wealth of the country—it may easily effect the desired rescue from external indebtedness, and accomplish the internal reforms so visibly needed. Japanese Budget for last year, deficit £2,500,000, or half the Imperial revenue! One central authority having now been substituted for the dual form lately subsisting, and the new Government having in its struggles for existence had recourse to monetary expedients of a questionable character, which have deranged the commerce of the country, has subjected itself to much odium, and given great dissatisfaction both to foreigners and to its own subjects. With the object, it would seem, of deprecating censure, it has at length laid bare its necessities in the Court Records, and has given to the world, after the fashion of civilised States, a statement of its annual income and expenditure worthy of particular attention.

The paper, commencing with some trite observations on the power of money, proceeds to attack the financial administration of the Tokugawa Government, which it charges with ignorance, and systematic depreciation of the currency to meet its ever increasing necessities. The Japanese Chancellor of the Exchequer (whoever he may be) tells us that the yearly internal revenue of Japan is nearly eight million kokus of rice. Now, if we assume that the koku is worth £2 sterling, this would give an income equivalent to sixteen million pounds, and, taking the population at under twenty millions, which is probably a fair estimate, this would give a liability on the part of each unit of the population to contribute annually for the purposes of Government something under £1 sterling, which is about the same in individual amount as the people of Russia and Portugal have to pay. But the announcement follows that, owing to the poverty of the country, only about one-fourth of the annual taxation is actually collected, which thus brings it nearly equivalent to the contribution per unit of the people to that of Turkey or of Switzerland. By the statement it would appear that the startling amount of 75 per cent. of the Imperial internal taxes are impossible of collection. Available, however, for the business of administration, it does not seem that the Government possesses more than actually—say a little beyond—four million pounds per annum, about one-sixteenth that of the revenue of England. The contribution of the individual tax-payer of the latter country being nearly seven times greater than that paid by the Japanese tax-payer, but from the Englishman's superior energy, wealth, trade, and knowledge, his payment is more easily borne than the pittance the Japanese collector can exact.

The total expenditure, inclusive of payment of 10 per cent. of debt, is set down at the sum of 3,246,660 kokus, and the total income at 1,981,350; leaving a deficiency, according to Japanese financiers, of 1,265,310 kokus, equivalent in money value to about two and a half millions sterling, or an excess of expenditure of 50 per cent. beyond the annual income. These figures, supposing them approximately correct, establish the fact that the Government is spending immensely more than it receives, and that, so far from its financial position being likely to improve every succeeding year, if the foregoing state of things be suffered to continue, will find it sinking deeper into the abyss of debt. Certainly the prospects before loan-mongers are not inviting. Mr. Lay's friends will have to act with the greatest circumspection before irretrievably committing themselves to his engagements. There is no difficulty in inducing the Japanese to borrow, but there is likely, if the foregoing figures be true, to be a little trouble experienced when the day of payment comes round. However, that is a risk that they must prepare themselves to run, and indemnify themselves by such a rate of interest, and by other contingent advantages as will cover the transaction.

The figures supplied by the authorities in the document we have commented on throw more light on the aggregate incomings and outgoings of the Mikado's Government than any yet published, and are well deserving of the attention of all having interests in Japan. That it was poor was known by the financial expedients it from time to time has had recourse to, but it was not expected that when the country should be at peace its income would fall so miserably short of its annual expenditure as the figures given prove.

About forty emigrants to Hawaii returned recently with the Embassy that went there. They landed well clad, healthy, and with watches, money, &c. They are now reported to be in the Government almshouse, with no sign of material prosperity, and have issued a statement to the effect that they were hardly treated, imprisoned, cheated of wages, and so miserable as to have resolved to die when the Embassy came to bring them home. This is contradicted flatly by the Hawaiian Official Gazette's announcement that the commissioners expressed themselves perfectly satisfied with the treatment of the whole body of men, and by the fact that 110 out of 150 prefer to stay in Hawaii. Were the Embassy afraid to make them come? Nobody believes this lot's affirmation in toto, but for all that the coolie traffic is too much like the infernal slave system that has cost both England and America so dear a price in blood and gold ever to be tolerated by any thoughtful man.

We learn that there is a probability of one of the stock sights of visitors to Yokohama—the gigantic bronze statue of Daiboots at Kamakura—being likely to disappear from its pedestal, where, for about six hundred years, it has sat in serene and solemn majesty. The Government being intent on the work of putting down Buddhism is resolved to make away with Daiboots, which, on the score of the antiquity of the image, and the skill—artistic and mechanical—displayed in its casting, is to be regretted. The image is for sale, and will probably be bought by some one for the metal it contains, as it will be impossible to remove it without breaking it up. It is a pity that such an interesting object of antiquity will so shortly be no more.

Under the military government of the Shiogoons, the spirit of persecution had been permitted to slumber somewhat, but the recent investiture of the Mikado with the full powers of the Empire, has revived in its full force and activity the ancient animosity against Christianity. Severe and secret measures, as our readers have learnt, have been taken recently against all suspected of Christianism in Japan.

The Shinto priesthood being now completely in the ascendant, not content with coercing the Christians, have instigated a raid against Buddhism itself. The reign of intolerance is supreme. The proclamation which we publish elsewhere shows that the hand of authority has been stretched out in the interest of Shintoism to smite the Buddhist idols "hip and thigh." They are to be driven out of every Mia wherein the Shinto worship is practised, together with bells, tomtoms, and all other Buddhist implements whatsoever. The priests who have resented this attack are admonished "to consider the dangerous course they are now pursuing, and to try and make peace while they may." "If any one" says the proclamation, "refuses to obey, let him be prosecuted as a criminal." The experiment, so far as it has gone, has proved sufficiently alarming to the Buddhist priesthood, who, finding their order menaced, and their religion decried, have not failed to commence to agitate against the Government that seeks their overthrow. So numerous are the adherents of Buddhism that should these harsh measures be pushed to their extremity, no one can say whether another revolution in the country may not be the ultimate result.

The Japan Gazette gives the following items:—The Mikado has again cast the illumination of his heavenly presence on foreigners no less than three times within the past week. On Friday last his Excellency the Count de la Tour, his Italian Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, was admitted to an audience to take leave of his Imperial Majesty, on his approaching return to Europe. On the same day H.E. Sir Harry Parkes presented Admiral Hornby, the captains of the six ships of the Flying Squadron, and Mr. Lowder, Her Majesty's Consul for Kanagawa-Yokohama. And on Wednesday, the 20th instant, H. E. Van der Hoeven, the new Dutch Minister, was received at the Castle and presented his credentials.

The present steamer takes away from us more than the usual number of old and esteemed friends. Dr. Dunwoodie, R.N., who was obliged to invalid at the very time his successor is expected to relieve him of his charge at the Royal Naval Hospital, and Mrs. Dunwoodie; Dr. and Mrs. Jenkins, who are obliged to go on account of the state of the health of the former, which has sufferred from sheer hard work in his profession. Dr. Jenkins has long held the leading medical practice in Yokohama, and no one could be more generally regretted than he should he leave us permanently. We hope, however, to see him return in perfect health. In addition to these and some other residents, the steamer will bear from the shores of Japan H.E. the Italian Minister Count de la Tour and the Countess.

A correspondent writes that, under the energetic management of Mr. W. H. Smith, the public gardens on the Bluff were making rapid progress, and in a few weeks would be opened. The Takasima coal has been tried on board H.M.S. Adventure, and proved actually better for steaming purposes than ordinary English (north country) coal. The American Pacific line must be paying splendidly, and there is ample room for one or more competing lines, which will probably soon be established either by English or American companies.

THE LOSS OF THE "ELIZA CORRY."

The Japan Weekly Mail gives the following narrative of the experiences of Captain Graham, of the Eliza Corry, the sole survivor of those on board. On reaching the shore, after seeing all the rest washed away and drowned (including his wife), there was no house to be seen in any direction, but a quarter of a mile off the captain perceived a straw shed, and thither he directed his steps; it was now about seven P.M. He remained there all night, walking up and down to keep himself warm. He took one of the mats and made a covering for himself, and some sandals. Three or four hours afterwards a kangaroo hound of his rushed into the hut. Next day, about seven A.M., he saw a man at some distance off, and went towards him. The man was scared, and ran away, but after a while turned back; on a sign that he wanted something to eat he was motioned to stop. The captain followed slowly, and they arrived at a village called Tago, a quarter of a mile off, where they gave him some hot water to drink, he not being able to eat anything. Then follow a series of acts of kindness and forethought on the part of the natives which it is truly affecting to hear, and which are too numerous to enumerate; but I will endeavour to give some faint idea of what these noble-hearted people did.

Tago being an insignificant place, they sent to Noshiro, the capital, three miles off, and in the middle of the night some officials arrived, who wished to remove Captain Graham, but he was too unwell, and for three days was in a state of raving fever, and unconscious part of the time. Every possible care was taken of him. A doctor was sent for from some distance. Finding out afterwards that he was an Englishman, an officer was attached to him who spoke a little English. Clothes were made for him in European fashion, and when he felt better they sent miles away for a chicken, and made chicken broth; a Japanese sleeping dress was procured from a town twenty miles off—one of those thickly padded sleeping gowns. When he was able to move he was taken over to Noshiro, and here they appeared not to be able to do enough for him. He was an Englishman, they said, and they would do anything and everything for him, because the English had not joined the rebels in the late war. It should be mentioned that the interpreter had been with foreigners before in Hakodadi, and this will account for what follows. A camp stool was made and a portable table, a fork and soup and teaspoon of copper (English shape,) plates were got, and after a while they managed to get a wide-awake, apologising because it was second-hand. The captain kept a journal, and finding it difficult to write with a Japanese camel hair brush, a foreign black lead pencil was found and presented to him. The captain of a junk from Hakodadi brought him three California apples, three sheets of foreign paper and a pocket knife. At Noshiro Captain Graham was made as comfortable as possible. He was lodged in the best house, even a room was set apart for his dog and an attendant to wait upon him, and when the captain's meals were served the attendant was ordered to feed the dog as directed. Whilst here he was taken very sick, spitting blood, brought on by a bad cough. Every possible remedy was procured and devised. The official sent four miles to purchase chickens and fresh eggs. Every day he had chicken broth and grilled ch chen, and when potatoes were procurable they were served up as a delicacy. After many endeavours they at length discovered a comb and a looking glass, and one day the officials arrived in great glee, as they had found a European comforter. Captain Graham's legs at one time were very much swollen, but when the swelling went down they became so thin from his bodily ill-health that the Japanese made him some boots of oiled paper (imitation leather) lined with silk wadding. When the captain was sufficiently well, he went with the officials on to the beach to see what had been washed on shore. It ought to have been mentioned before that the morning after Captain Graham was saved he found three bodies, later one body was found, and a few days after two more were discovered twenty-seven miles to the north of the scene of the wreck, thirty coolies having been stationed all along the coast to save whatever was washed on shore. These six bodies of the sailors were identified by the captain, and put into coffins; afterwards they were all buried in the same grave, about a mile from Noshiro.

When the captain felt strong enough to travel he expressed a wish to be sent on to Hakodadi, but the Japanese were rather reluctant to comply with his request until he had been to the wreck. At last, on a smooth calm day, he went off with the officials in two boats. The Eliza Corry was then buried in the sand five feet under water. The Japanese were satisfied, and preparations were made for his journey. After spending twelve days at Noshiro, a small conveyance of wood was erected, 7 ft. by 3 and 3 ft. high, with a firepan inside; a sort of travelling chest was made, divided off into compartments to hold all that was necessary for his journey, and which had been provided at Noshiro. Even provision was made for his dog, two men being told off to carry him, and see that he had the rations allotted to him. It would be impossible to commit to paper all the attention and forethought he experienced on the road. The interpreter and another officer were attached to him to see him safe in the hands of the English Consul at Hakodadi, messengers were sent on ahead, and whenever he arrived at a halting station, everything was ready for him, even the inhabitants coming out with their offerings of sugar and sweetmeats. At last, after eight days from Noshiro, he arrived at Awomori, his attendants having received orders that if he felt unable from the fatigue of the journey to cross the straits, they must send to the English Consul at Hakodadi for English medicine, and take good care of him whilst detained there; they were kept waiting two days, and then it took them four days in a junk in getting to the port. On his arrival here he was taken to the Rusui of Akita, who brought him to the Consulate. After two days his faithful attendants brought him in his travelling house to the Consul, who offered to the Rusui to defray all Captain Graham's expenses, but he would not hear of it.

It need scarcely be added that every attention was paid to the officer and interpreter, who had been directed to accompany Captain Graham as far as Hakodadi. It was so good and so thoughtful of the Akita authorities to send the same men all the way, the two said officials were invited by Mr. Eusden to his house with Captain Graham. Messrs. Thompson and Bewick, on learning his misfortune, at once offered him a home, as did the masters of three British ships.

Mr. Eusden presented the two officials with a watch each, and the three said masters have, through Mr. Eusden, forwarded to the Noshiro authorities a telescope, as an acknowledgment of their appreciation of the kindness and attention shown to a shipwrecked fellow-mariner. Captain Graham has lost everything, including about $3,000 he had on board. The foreign residents have most generously come forward and subscribed a sum of $630 to be presented to him, and Captain Roskell, of the British steamer Thales, offered him a passage to Yokohama.

A letter of thanks was addressed to the Governor of Hakodadi, requesting him to convey to the authorities in Akita and Tsungaru the high appreciation of H. M. Consul of the kindess and attention shown to Captain Graham.

HIOGO.

Advices from this port (by the Pacific mail) are to April 17. The outward mail of Feb. 17, conveying also London telegrams to March 4, was received there April 10.

The Hiogo News of April 16 says:—The handsome Catholic chapel on the Concession will be consecrated to-morrow. The Roman Catholics always pioneer the way in religious matters, and, despite the fact that there are over a hundred Protestants in the community, there is as yet no sign of a place of worship being erected by them.

There is a handsome brick building being erected on a plot of land adjoining the Customs' landing shed at Osaka. It is reported to be for a branch of the Oriental Bank, and as the design is not unlike the one at Kobe, it may be such is the case.

The first Chinese funeral took place here the other day, and the first Chinese mechanic's (a carpenter's) workshop has just been opened here. The Celestials at last are beginning to rent houses here on their own account; hitherto they have traded under European or American protection.

The North German Consul, Mr. Paul Wentzel, has arrived and taken up his post. It is to be hoped that the practice of paid Consuls will be extended, and the abuses connected with private or merchant Consuls be no more heard of.

SHANGHAI.

Dates by this mail are to the 15th April, or two days later. The Shanghai News Letter has the following:—Another event seems to indicate the policy and intention of the Chinese Government, viz., the failure of the American Board's Missionaries to gain possession of premises duly rented and paid for in the city of I-chow, about seventy English miles south-west of Peking. After everything was properly adjusted between the parties concerned, the Chir-chow, or local official, interfered. His representations to the Foreign-office secured a document to the effect that, on account of the proximity of the place to the tombs of the reigning dynasty, foreigners could not be allowed to reside there. The old story of "Feng-shui."

In a recent memorial, the Governor of Kweichow refers to the conduct of the war in that province with evident satisfaction, and is so well pleased with the force and effectiveness of foreign arms, which, he says, sends terrible consternation into the ranks of his enemies, that he ventures to suggest their manufacture at the Shanghai (Kiang-nan) Arsenal on a more extended scale, the expense to be met by a special taxation.

The glorious winter weather that China residents have been enjoying for some time past was brought to a sudden end towards the approach of April, and an indicated fall in the barometer and a rise in the thermometer gave token of an early spring. The heat was excessive from the start, being at least 81 degs. in the shade. This state of things did not last long, however, cooler weather and heavy showers of rain followed, and latterly storms of wind and rain, with some thunder and lightning have been experienced, leaving the atmosphere in a cooler condition. The scarcity of rain has been sorely felt in Shanghai, and even now the supply is far below that of previous years. As it is, however, the budding trees, flowering gardens, and bright spring tints of the surrounding country have given unmistakable evidence of warmer weather.

The entire indifference of the Chinese Government in regard to the apprehension of the parties implicated in the death of Mr. Williamson is significant. One of the party was reported captured, and in prison at Ching-hai Hsien. His confession was of such a nature as to render the capture of his associates easy. Native Christians well say that ten days need not have elapsed before the apprehension of all the party.

A correspondent writes:—"I should like to know what there is to prevent our steamers navigating the rivers of China; the Chinese cannot prevent it, the only impediment is the stupid action of our authorities. Contrast the difference between the action of the Chinese towards the French in their late visit up the Yangtse, when they had only to express their wishes and they were instantly granted, because backed by material force and the action of Prince Kung towards our Minister on the salt question, because he was not backed by material force."

The United States Consular Returns for the quarter ending March, 1870, for the port of Shanghai, show the total value of invoices to be Tls. 1,556,667.78; number of vessels entered 124; classes of vessels entered, 92 steamers, 2 ships, 5 barques, 2 brigs, 13 lorchas; 10 in port at commencement of quarter. The classes of vessels cleared are:—96 steamers, 4 ships, 4 barques, 3 brigs, 13 lorchas; 3 in port at end of quarter. The aggregate tonnage is 133,658 tons; the value of inward cargoes, Tls. 14,020,882, and that of outward cargo, Tls. 9,214,651.

BARON RICHTHOFEN'S PRELIMINARY REPORT.

Western Governments have very generally instituted geological surveys in the interest of their citizens, but the patriarchal Government of China is apprehensive that improvements in the condition of its subjects would increase popular influence and therefore render its power less secure. Such an undertaking, therefore, as a geological survey of the Empire will never commend itself to the administration now in power at Peking. But if that boon is withheld from Chinamen by their Government, they are not doomed to perpetual ignorance respecting the hidden wealth of the soil which they so industriously cultivate. Some future generation of Chinamen, the generation that will have its scientists and enlightened thinkers, will gratefully appreciate that public spirit of foreign merchants at Shanghai which inaugurated the first geological survey of this country. Baron Richthofen, an eminent geologist, having exhausted his private resources in making geological observations in China, was provided with funds by Shanghai merchants to prosecute his researches, which are principally for the benefit of China, and general science. His exploration has been partially completed, and some of ther esults have been published in the Shanghai Evening Courier. Richthofen's geological observations have not yet been given, save in a general way. The extent and availability of the coal measures in China seems to be greater than was supposed; bituminous and anthracite are produced; though of an inferior quality, and at an expense which will barely enable it to compete on the Yangtse with imported coals. Scientific mining will no doubt improve the quality of the mineral, and improved modes of transportation will cheapen the price. The advantage that rail roads would bring to China may be inferred from the fact that between the important marts of Siangtan and Canton, a distance of 549 miles, only thirty of which is land carriage, the charge for transportation amounts to nearly $11 per ton. The railway and the telegraph would give new life to China, by furnishing more profitable employment to her people, together with an increase in all the comforts and necessaries of life, yet the Peking Government prefers to spend money on missions that shall protract their period of inertia, rather than on objects that are adopted to meliorate the condition of the people.

HONG KONG.

A correspondent asks, with reference to the recent transfer of the S. S. N. Co.'s new steamer Shantung, from the English to the American flag, whether this does not clash with the supposed law that only American built ships can legally claim American rights and protection. If that rule hold good in America, he argues, it must also apply in the case of ships and U.S. Consulates abroad.

There is little doubt that the opening of the Suez Canal will make a revolution in the tea trade. If all or a large portion of the tea goes home by that route the occupation of clipper ships will be gone. The Serica has just arrived from London in 109 days, having made the passage round Australia, instead of the usual Eastern passage, and she has beaten all the ships that left about the same time. This confirms the remarks I made on that subject some months ago.

On the 9th April H.E. the Governor laid the foundation-stone of the new Chinese Hospital, near Possession Point, in presence of a large number of the better class of Chinese and others. His Excellency was attended on the platform erected for the occasion by the Attorney-General, the Colonial Secretary, the Registrar-General, the Surveyor-General, and other Government officials, besides a few foreign civilians. An address was read by Mr. Smith, from the Committee or Corporation (a translation of which is appended), complimenting and thanking the Governor for the aid which had been given in the matter. His Excellency replied by giving are turn compliment to the Chinese community, in that they had removed the slur cast upon them by the revolting disclosures of the old E Tsze building. His Excellency likewise expressed a hope that the better educated Chinese would continue their efforts to rid their fellow-countrymen's minds of the prejudices and superstitions which led to such irregularities as those revealed by the old E-Tsze temple. It was also creditable to the Chinese community that they had recently done so much for their fellow-countrymen in the colony, by subscribing for this hospital, by supporting the police of the city, and by aiding the fire brigade (when the foreign community rather threw cold water upon it). This development, he was a little proud to say, had made its appearance very strikingly during his administration, and he hoped it would continue. He would not now say farewell, as he purposed returning from Japan for a couple of weeks to make arrangements as to the estimates. He, however, wished their undertaking God-speed, and promised to urge its increased support in England (say to $50,000), with a view to secure its permanency. The hospital would be the scene of much misery, but that was the occasion of evoking the purest and brightest feelings of mankind; and as an individual, as well as Governor, as a part of humanity, he rejoiced at the formal establishment of the new hospital. The governor and party left the dais amid strains from a Chinese band and a din of crackers. The foundation stone and the silver trowel bore appropriate inscriptions.

The Daily Press has the following piece of news from Foochow, on which, however, the China Mail throws some doubt:—"It appears that the extraordinary conduct of Commander Rising of H. M. Gunboat Midge, has been the subject of official enquiry by the naval authorities, and has been referred home. Incredible as it may seem, it appears that the action of Commander Rising was precisely as described. The captain of the P. and O. steamer Azoff refusing to deliver certain stores until the bill of lading for them was brought countersigned by the agent, the commander of the Midge had his gun loaded, and threatened to fire unless the goods were given up, and then proceeded to take the stores away. It is fortunate that the captain of the Azoff had the good sense not to oppose this mad freak, as if he had done so, it might have ended in serious consequences. Almost the only possible explanation of the matter seems to be, that the commander of the Midge could not have known what he was about at the time."

It is stated, says the Daily Press, upon good authority, that the Government have offered to the China Fire Insurance Company the smaller of the steam fire-engines recently arrived out from home, and have expressed their willingness, should this offer be accepted, to send an order home for a first-class floating engine, which would supply a desideratum that has long been wanted. It is understood that the China Fire Office are not disposed to accept the proposal, a view of the matter, perhaps, to be somewhat regretted, as it may reasonably be supposed that the various insurance offices will be willing to co-operate in the measures necessary to prevent the occurrence of fires.

Some sensation has been created in Hong Kong by a peculiarly daring highway robbery, the mate of an American vessel having been knocked down and robbed in broad daylight, Godown robberies have also reappeared, and generally much fear is expressed with respect to the present state of the police and the increasing crime in the colony. The Government Gazette of the 16th instant publishes Mr. Creagh's report on the police for the year 1869, which gives an apparently satisfactory statement with respect to comparative crime during 1869 and 1868; but there appears to be some ground to conclude that an error has been made in some of the comparisons, which detracts from their value. With respect to the establishment of a Detective Force, Mr. Creagh expresses his opinion that "if such a force existed, it would be of very little use, unless outposts could be maintained under European supervision at different points in the San-on District, and in Canton and Macao, which under existing circumstances would of course be impossible." There is, however, considerable room for difference with this view of the subject.

SAIGON.

We extract the following from Messrs. Hale and Co.'s Circular, dated 25th April:—

Since we issued our last circular, on the 2nd inst., the Donnai which arrived here only yesterday, brought us dates from London to the 17th March, and from Singapore to the 20th inst. Soon after date of our last advices the lower cost of grain at the Bangkok market began to attract the attention of operators in rice, and a considerable amount of tonnage was sent there in preference to our port, to be loaded, principally for Japan. The want of shipping with us could not fail to curtail the demand to a great extent and with but a few purchasers in the market our rates commenced to react. We note sales during the period under review of only 50,000 piculs round grain, at from $2.05 to 1.86 per picul and the latter quotation, equal to 7s. 7½d. per cwt. free on board, we give as our closing one. Long rice continues neglected; only 10,000 piculs were sold at $1.68, and we quote $1.65 (equal to 6s. 9d. per cwt. f. o. b.) to-day. It will however soon come into better favour, as round rice is beginning to get scarce already. Japan advices just to hand continue to be very favourable to the article. Total exports since January 1, 1870, 1,725,207 piculs.

Tonnage, which is very scantily supplied, is much wanted for Japan and China, and for the former destination as much as 76 cents per picul have been paid. Home charters are not in the market. Exchange: Pretty much as last quoted. London, 6 months with documents 4s. 7d. nominal. Paris, 6 months, ditto, from f.5.85.

SIAM.

BANGKOK.

The Weekly Advertiser contains the following items:—H.S.M.'s steam brig Enemy Chaser, and the Siamese steamer Kalahome, have each sailed for Singapore this week. The latter steamer we learn will run regularly between this port and Singapore, while the Siamese steamer Chow Phya will be in dock undergoing repairs at Singapore.

During the month our port has had at its outer anchorage a number of magnificent English tea clipper ships—the Caliph, Leander, Oberon, and Sir Lancelot. They have not yet all left. It would be worth while for Siamese ship owners and builders to visit these vessels and see the wonderful improvements in their style and build. They are well worth imitating. Captain Ritson, commander of the Caliph, we learn is rapidly recovering from the smallpox. We notice the departure in the Windward of Mrs. S. J. Smith, an invaluable contributor to our columns. She is on her way to the United States of America via Hong Kong and California, and will return here again via Europe.

The festivities of the Siamese Kroot, the civil year, preceding the astronomical year, passed off without any startling events. The astronomical year, according to Siamese calculation, took place on the 11th April. The Siamese give themselves up to gambling; almost every family gambles from three to five days both during the Kroot and the Songkrant. The Kroot always comes on the first of the fifth Siamese moon. The day before, the day of, and the day after the first of the fifth moon are the proper Kroot days. The people generally prolong their gambling privilege one or two more days. The same is true of the astronomical day of the new year. On these occasions the monopolists of the different gambling farms cannot arrest any for gambling at other places than the farmers' establishments.

The N.G. steam corvette Medusa has been in our port a month and a-half. Her officers, some of the marines, and crew have witnessed the cremation ceremonies, have honoured and been honoured by their Majesties the First and Second Kings of Siam, and all will carry away pleasing mementoes of the personal kindness of the two Kings. The foreign community paid them special attentions.

Mr. J. H. Chandler, translator and interpreter to the Foreign-office, has removed into the house provided for him by the Siamese Government.

SINGAPORE.

The trade at Tanjong Pagar seems increasing at a rate hardly anticipated. A large proportion of the vessels visiting Singapore now discharge at the wharves adjoining the Victoria Dock. During the year 1869 no less than 336 ships were alongside, with a register tonnage of 189,859 tons. The amount of cargo passed over the wharf was 57,054 tons, and of coals 54,501 tons; total, 111,555 tons. In October next the first issue of the company's debentures falls due, and a fresh issue will be made, bearing interest at seven per cent. The amount ($200,000) is already nearly subscribed for. The investment, we believe, has been a favourite one for trustees, as the debentures constitute an actual mortgage on a most valuable and increasing property.

The Criminal Session, which opened on the 3rd ult., closed again on the 14th. Most of the cases were of an unimportant character. There was one of murder, in which the prisoner, a lascar, was found guilty and sentenced to death; the day for the execution has not yet been named. There has since been a case which will possess more than usual interest, the prisoner being a European. It appears that a Captain Warnkis, master of the North German barque Marie and Helene, had a dispute with the second officer, his brother, and in a moment of passion picked up, as he says, a stick of wood, others say a hammer, and threw at him. The second officer avoided the blow, and the instrument struck a Chinese boy, some five or six years old, the son of a passenger, on the head, fracturing the skull. The child died in hospital from the effects of the blow. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of manslaughter, but the magistrate, on going into the case, committed the captain to answer the capital charge of murder.

At Sarawak the usual routine has been somewhat enlivened by the return of the Rajah, Sir Charles Brooke, with the "Ranee," Lady Brooke. The occasion was made one of great rejoicing, the Rajah and Ranee being received in right princely style, conducted under triumphal arches and through canopied streets, amid the booming of guns, the deafening roar of crackers, and the cheers of the natives. The scene was a very enlivening one, and likely to impress the Rajah and his lady very favourably with the loyalty and devotion of their subjects.

Commercial Report.

The present mail brings only two days' later news from China, Java, and Singapore; there is consequently nothing to add to our last reports from those places. The Japan market information comes via San Francisco.

IMPORTS.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—The market for foreign manufactures continued in a depressed state, and prices generally had had a weakening tendency, notwithstanding a somewhat higher rate of exchange. Grey Shirtings were in very moderate demand at the rates quoted. Cotton Yarn has been imported somewhat largely from Yokobama, on both native and foreign account, and quotations were nominal. Turkey Red Cloth was still saleable at a slight reduction, being in better supply. Black Velvets, comparatively neglected, and declining. Victoria Lawns were scarce and in active demand. Black Camlets had been sold to a limited extent, and the market was tolerably firm. Scarlet and Orange were still asked for. Plain and Figured Orleans in moderate demand. Mousselines de Laine, lower. Black Cloth, best quality only saleable. Blankets had been inquired for again, but no business of importance was reported. Nail Rod Iron had attracted somewhat more attention. Quotations (in rios):—Cotton Yarn, Nos. 16 to 24, per bale, $160 to 162; 28 to 32, $168 to 170; 38 to 42, $185 to 190; G. E. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., 39½ yds. 39 in., per $2.75; 8¼ to 8½ lbs., ditto, $3.12 to 3.18; 9 lbs., 38½ yds. 44 in., $3.37; G. E. White Shirtings, 56 to 60 reed, $3.25; 64 to 72 reed, $3.50; T-Cloths, 6 to 7 lbs., $2.25 to 2.37; Handkerchiefs, assorted, per dozen, $0.65 to 0.75; Brocades and Spots, White, per piece, $2.50 to 3; Dyed, $3.25 to 4.25; Chintz, Assorted, 24 yds. 30 in., $2.25 to 3.75; Turkey, Red Cambrics, 8lbs., $8 to 3.25; Velvets, Black, $9 to 9.12; Victoria Lawns, 1.25 to 1.50; Taffacheless, Double Warp, 12 yds. 43 in., $2.50 to 2.81; ditto, Single, $2.25; Camlets, SS, Scarlet, per piece, $16.25 to 16.50; ditto, Black, $12.75 to 13.00; Iron, Bars, per picul, $2.75 to 3; Nail Rod, 2.75 $2.75 to 3; Hoop, 2.75 to 3; Lead, 6.25 to 6.37.

YOKOHAMA.—The market had been very dull throughout the fortnight, the only article for which any demand had existed had been Cotton Yarn, but the transactions in this although of fair extent had only been effected at a decline on previous prices. Shirtings were neglected and lower, while other Cotton goods and all Woollens were greatly depressed. Quotations:—G. E. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., per piece, $2.75 to 2.77½; ditto, 8¼ to 8½ lbs., $2.95 to 2.97½; ditto, 9 to 9½ lbs., $3.40; G. E. White Shirtings, 56 to 60 reed, $2.65 to 2.85; do., 64 to 72 reed, $2.90 to 3.05; T-Cloths, 6 to 7 lbs., $1.90 to 2.25; Brocades and Spots, White, $2.90 to 3; do., dyed, $3.75 to 4; Chintz, Assorted, $2 to 2.50; Handkerchiefs, per dozen, $0.65 to 1.10; Turkey Red Shirtings, per piece, $3.00 to 3.10; Taffachelass, $2.30 to 3.25; Velvets, Black, $8 25 to 9.50; Cotton Yarn, No. 16 to 24, $50.50 to 51.50; ditto, No. 28 to 32, $50.50 to 51.50; ditto, No. 38 to 42, $56 to 57; Alpaca, 42 yards, $7 to 8; Camlets, S and BBB, $13.50 to 14.50; ditto, SS, $13 to 13.50; do., SSS, $9.50 to 10.50; Cloth, Medium and Broad, $0.80 to 1.60 per yard; Lastings, per piece, $12 to 13.50; Long Ells, Assorted, $8 to 8.75; Orleans and Lustres, Plain, $875 to 4.25; do., Figured, $3.50 to 4.25; Lead, per picul, $5.75 to 6.25; Iron, Nail Rod, $2.70 to 3.60.

TEA.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—Since the last report about 1,000 piculs had been settled, at fully former rates. Owing to the low stock and high prices ruling in Yokohama, many teamen preferred shipping to that port to realising here. The increased value of native currency tended to curtail business. About 600 piculs had gone forward on native account. Arrivals had come forward freely, amounting to about 2,000 piculs. Stocks estimated at 1,500 piculs. Quotations:—Common, Rios 16 to 20 per picul; Good Common, Rios 21 to 25; Medium, Rios 26 to 34; Good Medium, Rios 35 to 39; Fine, Rios 39 to 45; Finest and Choice, Rios 46 and upwards.

YOKOHAMA.—During the fortnight business in this market had continued quiet, and settlements did not amount to more than 500 piculs, making total settlements since the last American mail about 1,100 piculs. Prices had ruled on the whole a little easier, and quotations for medium and fine grades were lower. Supplies principally from Hiogo had come forward rather more freely than usual at the time of the year, and stocks consequently were somewhat increased. The Charles C. Leary, for New York, had not sailed; no other vessel had been laid on. Quotations:—Common, $24 to 26 per picul, nominal; good common, $27 to 29 per picul, nominal; medium, $31 to 33 per picul; good medium, $35 to 37 per picul; fine, $38 to 41 per picul; finest, nominal, $43 to 46 per picul; choice, nominal, $47 to 50.

SILK.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—During the month a fair business had been done in Silk, settlements being estimated at 170 bales of 80 catties. Prices had experienced a considerable advance, as the quotations show, and at which Silkmen were very firm in their demands. Rates in the interior for native use were fully on a par with quotations ruling at this port. Quotations:—Hanks: Fine, 780 to 800 rios per picul; Medium, 730 to 770 rios. Idah: Fine, 830 to 850 rios; Medium, 750 to 800 rios. Sodai: Fine, 740 to 770 rios; Medium, 700 to 730. Itchisen: Fine, 700 to 730 rios; Medium, 650 to 680 rios; Common, 550 to 620 rios. Oshiu, Hamatki: Inferior, 660 to 700 rios.

YOKOHAMA.—The state of the market had undergone scarcely any change during the fortnight; coarse Oshus and Taysaam sorts formed the bulk of settlements, as Hanks appeared to be almost exhausted, and were only offering in small and mostly inferior parcels. Settlements (excluding those for the present French mail) amounted to 500 bales. Quotations were unaltered. Supplies had been moderate, but stocks were rather less than last reported. Quotations:—Mybash and Sinchu Hanks: Best, 35s. to 36s. 6d.; Medium, 30s. 8d. to 33s. 5d.; Inferior, 26s. 10d. to 29s. 5d. Oshu: Extra, 38s. to 39s. 7d.; Best, 34s. 7d. to 36s. 6d.; Medium, 31s. 10d. to 33s. 9d.; Inferior, 26s. 10d. to 29s. 7d. Sodai: Medium, 28s. 9d. to 30s. 4d. Etchesen: Medium, 26s. 10d. to 28s. 9d.; Inferior, 24s. 2d. to 26s. 1d. Mashta: Best, 26s. 10d. to 28s. 9d.; Inferior, 23s. 11d. to 26s. 2d.

COMMERCIAL POSTSCRIPT.

The directors of Hooper's Telegraph Works (Limited) have issued their report. It states that the first section, consisting of 1,098 miles of the China Cable, manufactured for the Great Northern Telegraph (China and Japan Extension) Company, has been completed, and paid for according to agreement, and is now being delivered to the company, by which it will be laid between Hong Kong and Shanghai during the autumn. The manufacture of the remaining 1,198 miles, being the second section for submersion between Possiet Bay and Shanghai, will be completed before the end of the year. Out of the profits already earned, after writing off the whole of the preliminary expenses, the directors recommend payment of an ad interim dividend, free of income-tax, of 5s. per share, being at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum on the average capital paid up to the 30th June. It is proposed that the call of £3 per share, which by the articles of association is payable on the 1st August, shall be deferred. The report also states that additional premises at West Ham, with extensive plant and machinery for insulating purposes, have been secured on advantageous terms.

The resolution passed at the meeting of tea-importers alluded to in our Commercial Article, abolishing the system of allowing 1 lb. draft on each chest, has been agreed to by the importing houses.

CHINA AND JAPAN LOCAL MAILS.

The Postmaster-general of Hong Kong, in his last report, found occasion to lament a falling off in the receipts of the English post-office from local postages, owing in a great measure to the competition of the American (Pacific) steamers. An official document recently issued by the United States postal authorities inaugurates a considerable reduction in the rates of postage to be charged on correspondence, &c., caused by American vessels between ports in China and Japan, and unless Mr. Mitchell is content to see a further decrease in this particular branch of his revenue, it behoves him promptly to effect a corresponding reduction in the rates charged by his department, which are at present far in excess of the American scale. We hope soon to hear that he has arranged with the United States authorities to put English mails on American steamers, giving Americans in return the privilege of using English mail steamers. The document alluded to runs as follows:—

The U.S. Postmaster-General, deeming it advisable, as a means of promoting commercial intercourse with Japan and China, to establish cheap rates of ocean postage on the correspondence transported between the Japan ports of Yokohama, Hiogo, and Nagasaki, and between said ports and the port of Shanghai (China), by the United States mail steamers, of branch line, between Yokohama and Shanghai, has ordered that on and after the 1st of April, 1870, the sea postage on letters and other mail matter originating in Japan or China, and conveyed by said United States mail steamers between ports of Japan and Shanghai, or between the ports of Japan, should be as follows, viz.:—

1. Between ports of Japan and Shanghai. For letters, six cents per each single rate of half an ounce or under. For newspapers and prices current, two cents each; and for other printed matter, two cents per each four ounces or fraction of four ounces.

2. Between the Japan ports of Yokohama, Hiogo, and Nagasaki. For letters, three cents per each single rate of half an ounce or under. For newspapers and prices current, two cents each, and for other printed matter, two cents per each four ounces or fraction of four ounces.

These rates of sea postage must be prepaid by United States postage stamps.

In our last news from Hong Kong we noticed the piratical attack on the Gazelle. Our Hamburg correspondent tells us that the captain of the North German frigatte Hertha caught the pirates, and hung them at the yard arm.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, May 31.

The Reichstag or Federal Parliament was closed on the 26th inst. by the King of Prussia in person, in the presence of the Court, the chief officers of State, several representatives of foreign Governments, and about a hundred and fifty members of the German Parliament. The King, who was looking remarkably well, and appeared to be in excellent spirits, wore the uniform of the 2nd Foot Guards; and the Crown Prince, who has returned from the Baths of Carlsbad, which are said to have completely restored his health, wore also the uniform of an officer of the Guards. Count Bismark, who stood at the side of the King, wore his favourite white uniform of the Cuirassier Regiment, of which he is colonel, and looked very stately, and also in good health. The Speech from the Throne recapitulates the business of the Session, and thanks the members for the patriotism they have evinced by sacrificing in many cases their personal feelings and convictions for the good of the country and the more complete unity of Germany. This refers more particularly to capital punishment, which is not to be abolished after all. On the third reading of the Criminal Code Bill, after a powerful speech from Count Bismark, in which he pointed out that the Governments could not consent to the abolition of death punishments, as it would separate the Germans into two classes, whereas they ought to do all in their power to accomplish the unity of their Fatherland, which was, and always had been, the leading thought of his ambition and policy, the House divided, on the 22nd instant, when the former decision was reversed, and the punishment of death reinstated by 127 to 119 votes. The three members for Hamburg voted in the minority, whilst Herr Meier, the member for Bremen, who at the second reading of the Bill had voted for the abolition, was persuaded by Bismark's arguments and eloquence, and voted in the majority, which included also Prince Albrecht of Prussia, the Duke of Ratibor, Count Eulenburg, the Duke of Ujest, and most of the Conservatives. An amendment or compromise was moved by Herr Plank, to let capital punishment in those States where it is no longer in force remain so, and wherever death is mentioned in the statute to substitute for those countries imprisonment for life with hard labour, and to give other States the faculty of doing so by special enactments of their own several Legislative Bodies. Another amendment, moved by Kardoff and the free Conservative party, for declaring murder and attempted murder of the President of the Confederation or the Sovereign of any one of the Federal States to be high treason, and punishable with death, was passed by 128 to 107, but it is now superseded by the original clause, which had provided for it in text of the Bill, and it is therefore now reinstated by the division on the third reading. Before closing, Herr Simson, the President, gave a résumé of the business they had got through during the Session. It includes thirty-five legislative enactments, of which twenty-two were Bills that have now become law, and seven ratifications of treaties, including that with England for the reduction of the rates of postage; 306 petitions had been received. In the debate on the Bill for the abolition of the Elbe tolls and free navigation of that river, which takes its rise in the Giants' Mountains in Bohemia, and traverses the whole breadth of Germany, some difficulty was experienced by the tenacity of Mecklenburg, which demanded $1,250,000 compensation; but the House agreed to pay that Government a million dollars, in half-yearly instalments extending over twenty years. The claim of Lauenburg (which is not yet fully incorporated with Russia, but still retains its own separate finances) for a compensation of $36,000 was simply negatived without a division. Some alterations had to be made in the Budget, Government requiring a vote of $157.000 for the purchase of a house at Berlin, and fitting it up in a suitable manner for the Naval Ministry; but the vote was disallowed, though, on the other hand, they granted the 600,000 dollars asked for to build a hospital and barracks at the new Naval Arsenal at Wilhelmshaven.

Despatches have been received from Hong Kong announcing the vindication of the honour of the German flag. It appears that a North German brig, the Gazelle, of Apenrade, Captain Green, was attacked and plundered by Chinese pirates on the 26th of March last, whilst on the voyage from Chefoo to Newchwang, and about sixty miles from Hong Kong. The crew were dreadfully ill-treated and mutilated by the pirates, but eventually allowed to escape with nothing but their lives. The North German corvette Hertha immediately got up steam and went in pursuit of the pirates, whom they were fortunate enough to capture, and returned with the junk in tow. Instead of entering the port of Hong Kong, where the commander would have been obliged to deliver up the prisoners to the British authorities, the captain of the Hertha sent a boat ashore for the German Consul, who, on his arrival on board, tried the prisoners for piracy, and, the facts being proved, they were sentenced to death and hung at the yard-arm. The Hertha then proceeded to Shanghai en route for Yokohama.

H.B.M.'s Minister Resident in this city, Mr. John Ward, has delivered to the Senate, in the name and by directions of the British Government, a telescope to be given to Captain Wesenberg, of the Hamburg barque Bonito, in acknowledgment of his humane conduct in saving the lives of the chief mate and five of the crew of the English ship Inarine, wrecked in October last in the China Sea.

Count Bismark, in his capacity of Chancellor of the North German Confederation, has invited the Senates of Hamburg and Bremen to propose some means of preventing North German vessels in the Far East from being overcrowded by Chinese emigrants and workmen. The reason for taking this step is based on the report of the North German Consul at Singapore, stating that within a few weeks two such vessels—one of them with nine hundred Chinese on board—have been totally lost. It will be very difficult to prevent the evil by authority, as neither the shipping port nor that of the vessel's destination are situated in countries under European jurisdiction.

Count von Beust, the Chancellor of the Austrian Monarchy, has just received the distressing intelligence of the death of his eldest son at Honolulu of virulent fever. He was formerly officer in a cavalry regiment at Vienna, but exchanged into the marines to take part in the Austrian Expedition to the Far East.

COMMERCIAL.

The late large arrivals of Cassia Lignea have thrown a dulness over the market, and caused a depression in the prices, the present quotations being 11¾ sch. bco. to 12 sch. bco. per lb. On the other hand, Pepper is in good request, and the transactions have been extensive, full values being easily obtained, and the market appears to be looking up. Very large quantities of Spelter have come to hand, and prices are lower; the only sale recorded was that of 3,000 centners at 12 mks. 6½ sch. bco., since which the market has become firmer, and 12 mks. 10 sch. bco, is demanded, but at that figure no business has been done. The prices of Tea are rather in favour of buyers, Souchong of fine quality being alone able to maintain its position. The following were sold by private contract:—101 packages Kaisow Congou, 356/4 and 905/8 chests Moning Congou, and 258/8 chests Souchong. The cargo of the Esmeralda, from Canton and Hong Kong, consists of 3,000 chests Cassia Lignea, 405 chests of Ginger, and 1,580 chests of Tea. The Guaymas has brought 2,282 chests Cassia Lignea, 80 bales Cinnamon, 200 chests Cassia Flores, 20 chests Cassia Oil, 44 chests Oil of Starannis, and 256 cases of preserves. The Humboldt, from Batavia, 2,000 Buffalo Hides, 60,000 bundles Rattans, and 1,512 kranjangs Sugar. The Scharnhorst, from Samarang and Passaroeang, 18,096 bags Sugar and 2,000 bundles Rattans.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVED.—Esmeralda, from Canton and Hong Kong; Scharnhorst and Humboldt, for Java; Joseph Hambro, from Foochow.

SAILED.—Oscar Mooyer and Civiale, to Singapore; G. F. Vorwerk, to Shanghai.

THE following has been issued for publication by the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty:—"Information has been received at the Admiralty that Her Majesty's ship Rinaldo returned to Hong Kong on the 15th of April last with the master and crew of the barque Renown, lost on the Pellew Islands. The shipwrecked men had been fifty-three days on the islands, and were taken on board the Rinaldo on the 2nd of April. The natives had treated them with the greatest possible kindness and hospitality during the whole of the time, and the Commander of the Rinaldo had received the King of Corror and his chiefs on board, and expressed to him the satisfaction with which Her Majesty's Government would receive this intelligence, making him at the same time a present of various articles of clothing, tobacco, &c., from the ship's stores."

ADULTERATED TEA.—The Food Journal remarks that the trade in the lowest class of adulterated tea still continues; and this month Dr. Muter reports that there have been no less than eighty chests exposed for sale, of which he produced samples. This so-called tea consisted of a variety of rubbish, and is being sold for 2¾d. per lb. It yielded an ash amounting to 22·86 per cent., consisting chiefly of iron filings, and under the microscope presented the structures of many foreign vegetable matters. But the worst sample which came under his notice was a green tea from India, highly faced, and yielding an ash containing a quantity of copper.

THE opening of the Pacific Railroad has rendered desirable some American Custom-house regulation by which goods can be transported across the Continent in bond. For this purpose Senator Cassedy, of California, has introduced a Bill into the Senate providing that merchandise arriving from foreign countries at American ports, which is shown by the manifest of the importing vessel to be destined for a collection district more interior than the port of original importation, or for a place in Europe, Australia, or Asia, via the United States, may be immediately conveyed to the destination in bond by any railroad, steamship, or transportation company, properly bonded. This, when it becomes law, will greatly facilitate trans-continental trade.

NOTICE is given that the distribution of the proceeds of the cargo of a junk captured on the 27th of June, 1867, by Her Majesty's gunboats Havock and Bouncer will commence on the 7th of June in the Prize Branch of the Department of the "Accountant-General of the Navy, Admiralty, Somerset House." The following are the shares due to an individual in the several classes:—Lieutenant commanding, £6 1s. 4d.; fourth class, £4 11s. 6d.; fifth class, £2 14s. 10d.; sixth class, £2 5s. 9d.; seventh class, £1 12s. 1d.; eighth class, 18s. 4d.; ninth class, 9s. 1d.; tenth class, 4s. 6d.

TEA CARGOES AFLOAT.—Sailed, Jan. 19, Callisto, from Shanghai, 555,000 lbs.; March 2, Solent, from Canton, 1,008,000 lbs.; March 10, Londoun Castle, from Shanghai, 959,000 lbs.; March 14, Dartmouth, from Shanghai, 837,000 lbs.; April 4, Clymene, from Canton, 716,000 lbs.; April 9, Shakspeare, from Shanghai, 573,000 lbs.

WE are glad to find that the home representatives of the Missionary bodies are at length waking up to a sense of the responsibility which devolves upon them of bringing facts concerning missionary enterprise in China to the knowledge of their readers. One of their ablest organs, the Christian World, has an article upon Chinese attacks upon Christians, which is evidently written by some one who has been in China, and practically acquainted with the subject.

THE College at Peking, says the Athenæum, is still in trouble. It is now M. Lepissier, the Professor of French, who is dismissed, because he required to be directly under the Chinese authorities instead of under Mr. Hart, the Principal.

A TELEGRAM received from Washington says:—The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations has reported in favour of the Bill for the establishment of a telegraph cable between California and China.

THE June number of the Fortnightly Review contains the first of a series of "Tales of Old Japan," by Mr. A. B. Mitford.

TROUBLES IN JAPAN.

IT would not by any means be safe to accept the fact that Japan has come into the European money market in the capacity of a borrower, as a guarantee that our future relations with her must necessarily be peaceful and satisfactory. No doubt the success with which their first loan has been negotiated will act as a powerful inducement to the Government of Japan to avoid for the future any hostile act or breach of faith calculated to frighten, if not to kill, the goose that so readily lays them golden eggs; for they are likely to want a good deal more English money before all their contemplated reforms and improvements are completed. The MIKADO and his Ministers it must be owned have acted sensibly, and even handsomely, in their reception of the Duke of EDINBURGH, and in all other matters have exhibited a desire to cement friendly relations with Great Britain. As far as the rulers de jure of the country are concerned, we have apparently no cause for dissatisfaction, but unhappily they do not seem as yet to be rulers de facto; otherwise we should not still be kept in anxious apprehension of further troubles by frequent reports of outrages on foreigners. The rumour which reached us lately by telegraph of the assassination of the United States Consul at Yedo turns out after all not to have been entirely devoid of foundation. Major SHEPARD providentially was not killed, but had a narrow escape of being murdered in his bed. Very shortly before this the French Legation was threatened with an attack; and our Nagasaki correspondence by last mail recounts two hostile demonstrations against foreigners, one of them an attempt by a Yakonin to cut down two English naval officers, and the other a similar unprovoked attack on two gentlemen residing at Desima. The prevailing impression among foreigners in Japan—and we cannot for a moment doubt its correctness—is that the anti-foreign party, though less powerful than formerly is by no means extinct, and hopes still to achieve its cherished object, the expulsion or extermination of foreigners, by involving them in new troubles with the Government. This party not only hates the presence of foreigners, but hates the present rulers of the country for permitting their presence, and could they but provoke a collision, the result, no matter in whose favour, would be gratifying to them. Fortunately, with our more extended knowledge of Japan, these outrages will no longer be supposed to be instigated by the Government, and will not be allowed to disturb the cordiality that now exists.

Another source of anxiety in the present state of Japan is the persecution of the native Christians, which we regret to observe still continues. Shocking stories have reached this country of the cruelties perpetrated by the officials on these harmless and defenceless people, but we have reason to believe that some of these have been greatly exaggerated. A wholesale deportation, such as has avowedly taken place, could not of course be carried into effect without the infliction of much hardship on the subjects of it; but then it must be owned that this deportation is only in accordance with a long established law prohibiting Christianity. If we are to admit China and Japan into the family of nations, and place them in all respects on the same footing as other countries—and this is what the policy of the present Government actually does,—we must acknowledge and respect their laws. It cannot for a moment be denied that the intrigues of the Jesuits in olden times gave the ruling powers grave cause to suspect and dislike Romanism and cognate religions, and the true way of ameliorating the condition of Christians in Japan at the present time would be, not to interfere with the operation of the law when its oppressiveness happens to be more conspicuously exhibited than usual, but to endeavour, by argument and persuasion, to procure the abrogation of the law itself. We believe that if the representatives of the Treaty Powers were to make common cause in endeavouring to convince the Government that the Christianity of the present day is altogether a different thing from what they believe and dread, some measure of success would attend them. But the position is a difficult one. Strong as may be our sympathies with our oppressed co-religionists, we cannot deny the right of a foreign Government to rule its own subjects after its own laws, and any steps on the part of the Treaty Powers that might encourage the native Christians to rebellion would be dangerous in the extreme.

A SLIGHT DISCREPANCY.

WHEN the Prophet JOB uttered his celebrated wish that his enemy would write a book, he did not evidently contemplate the worse fate of furnishing material for a "Blue-book." In the one case a friendly "reader" may point out anachronisms or discrepancies before the page is irrevocably struck off; in the other, composed mainly of letters or despatches written at different times and under differing conditions, nothing is done to hide the want of unity or sequence, and our diplomatic employés figure at times in curious positions. Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK, K.C.B., is one of those unfortunates who stand convicted out of their own mouths. We subjoin below two quotations from the Blue-book (China, No. 9, 1870), which we very recently reviewed; no comment is necessary:—

Extract from despatch written by Sir R. Alcock, under date July 31, 1869:—

As it is, the men in office equally with the gentry, or those that have retired, and the literati, who are the aspirants—thus comprising, as it were, three generations of educated Chinese—see in missionaries agents of a revolutionary propaganda, and view them far more in the light of political instruments of encroachment than as teachers of religion. For the latter they would care little, and would leave them unopposed—p. 5.

Extract from enclosure in a despatch written by Sir R. R. Alcock, under date Oct. 1, 1869:—

I reply that of the existence of a hostile feeling towards them as missionaries, teachers of a new religion, and of doctrines subversive of all established order and institutions, the evidences are so abundant and indisputable that I am surprised their production should be challenged. The expulsion of Mr. Taylor and his party was on purely missionary grounds. They were plotted against, placarded, reviled, and assailed in that character, not as foreigners, &c.—p. 16.

Will Sir RUTHERFORD, or Earl CLARENDON, who finds Sir RUTHERFORD'S arguments "clear and convincing," kindly inform a wondering public which of these two opinions is correct? One or the other must be wrong. What were the F.O. clerks about that they permitted two such contradictory statements to appear in the same Blue-book!

THE CHINESE MISSION.

WE understand that the Chinese Mission will return next month to Peking, having only the Italian and Spanish capitals to visit. What it may or may not do at those Courts cannot be of much importance, and the Mission may be regarded as being virtually at an end. But it seems to us that an important question arises as to the position of Mr. MCLEAVY BROWN, who at present officiates as the head of the so-called "Embassy," and who is still nominally in the employ of Her MAJESTY'S Government. After holding for five years a confidential position at Peking as Assistant Chinese Secretary in the British Legation, and as private secretary to the Minister, being of course fully versed in the correspondence and intentions of the English Government, he is allowed to enter the service of the Chinese (drawing a handsome salary from them besides retaining his position in the service of the Foreign-office), and employs himself in furthering a movement which has certainly been inimical and damaging to British interests in China. After the revelations that have been made, his return to his former post, or any position of confidence in the British Legation, would, for obvious reasons, be unreasonable. Neither would it be fair to those below him in the service, who would have grave reason to complain, were one who has temporarily abandoned it for Chinese employ to be reinstated into his former position over their heads. Mr. BROWN should be content to remain in the service of his present masters, who ought to have no hesitation in giving him a suitable post.

THE negotiations with respect to a common action on the part of the British and North-German vessels of war in the Chinese seas against the pirates have, according to a Berlin journal, advanced so far that the Earl of CLARENDON has forwarded a despatch to the English Minister at Peking, advising him to instruct the officers in command of British men-of-war in those waters to act in harmony with the naval forces of other Powers for the suppression of piracy, and first of all to enter into a connection with the naval officers in command of German vessels of war in those parts. The prompt action of the captain of the frigate Hertha, in hanging at the yardarm some pirates who had plundered and murdered the crew of the Gazelle, will, we fear, be too decisive to suit our present Foreign-office authorities. The captain of an English ship-of-war would run the risk of being hung himself if he ventured on such summary proceedings.

WE understand that Mr. W. H. LAY, now Acting-Consul at Chefoo, will relieve Mr. MONGAN, the Consul at Tientsin, who has obtained leave of absence, and may be expected in England by the next Pacific mail. Mr. MAYERS, the Vice-Consul at Canton, will probably assume the post of Acting-Consul at Chefoo.

THE memorial window to be placed in Hong Kong Cathedral by the trustees of the late DOUGLAS LAPRAIK will be completed by Messrs. LAVERS, BARRAUD, and WEST, of Endell-street, London, and shipped out in the present month.

THE SUEZ CANAL AND WESTERN CHINA.

In a forcibly written letter addressed to all who are interested in the manufacturing industries of Great Britain, and consequently in the development of foreign markets, Captain SPRYE calls special attention to the facilities afforded by the completion of the Suez Canal for the adoption of his long cherished scheme of a trade route from Burmah through Rangoon to Western China. We need not recapitulate Captain SPRYE's arguments to show how large a population of probable consumers of English manufactures the western provinces of China contain, how rich those provinces are in various important natural productions, and consequently how important it is that they should be made more accessible to western commerce. All these are acknowledged truths—the only question is as to the best mode of opening up the desired communication. Captain SPRYE points out, once more, that the survey undertaken by the Indian Government, and stopped half-way, showed, as far as it was allowed to go, that his route was perfectly practicable; that it starts from a British port, and for nearly half its length traverses British territory: and that the route attempted by Captain SLADEN has proved an entire failure, his party having had to return to Bhamó after exploring only 147 miles beyond that place, in a period of seven months. Comparing the only existing route to the West of China—the Yang-tsze-kiang—with that via Rangoon, Captain SPRYE shows that from Shanghai to Loo-choo-foo, up the Yang-tsze, the distance is 1,750 miles, while from Rangoon it is but 530. From England, by way of the Suez Canal, the sea voyage and the river transport together are 12,238 miles, while to Rangoon, and thence by rail to the frontier the distance would be 8,360, a difference of 3,878 miles in favour of the latter. Taking these facts in conjunction with the conspicuous failure of the Indian Government to find any route preferable to that projected by him, Captain SPRYE is surely not unreasonable in demanding that the unnecessarily suspended survey of the latter should be properly completed.

ITALY AND JAPAN SILKWORM EGGS.

The Italian Minister of Commerce, in announcing to the Chamber of Commerce of Brescia the terms of the convention respecting foreigners visiting Japan, states that the legation made efforts last year to facilitate the purchase of good silkworm seed in Japan, and obtained authority from the Government of that country to make a scientific excursion into the interior of the silk producing districts; but it was found impossible to obtain any other advantages. The Italian Consul at Yokohama also sends some particulars respecting cards of seed. The eggs, if obtained from cocoons, of which not more than 10 per cent. are attacked by the disease called ugi, cost per card about 2s. 4d.; but when the proportion of diseased cocoons rises to 80 per cent. the eggs for each card cost about 21s., the average being about 7s. 8d. at Yokohama; to this must be added Government stamp, transport from the interior, commission, port dues, &c. The demand has caused the average price to rise, loss on exchange included, to 18s. 6d. at Yokohama. The trade in cards of eggs at the other ports open to strangers is very limited, and the seed considered inferior. At Hakodadi cards of bivolting eggs abound, the price varying from 1s. to 5s. At Niegeta which is little frequented, good seed is to be had at 13s. to 12s. Finally, at Hiogo and Nagasaki prices vary from 11s. 6d. for cards of eggs of white quality to 7s. 6d. or 8s. for the annual green variety; in all these cases, however, the transport to the port of shipment must be added.

THE SINGAPORE PETITION.

The Straits Association addressed the following letter to Earl Grey:—

MY LORD,—I am desired by this Association, to whom the petition from Singapore praying for the restoration of judicial independence in that colony was transmitted, to express to your Lordship on behalf of the petitioners as well as of the Association, their sincere thanks for the interest you have been good enough to take in their affairs, and for the able manner in which you defended the dignity and rights of the colonial bench, in the House of Lords.

The Association gratefully recognise in your Lordship's opinion, supported as it proves to be by Her Majesty's Government and the highest judicial authorities, the acknowledgment of the complete independence of colonial judges in the exercise of their judicial office, and in the honest expression of their views on public policy in the Legislative Council; and they conceive from the statement of the Secretary of State, and from the extracts given by him from the memorandum prepared on the subject, that the Government are prepared to approve of the suspension of a judge only in case of his inability to discharge the duties of his office, or in the event of his commission of some grave offence.—I have the honour to be, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient servant, (Signed) P. F. TIDMAN, Hon. Sec.

REPLY OF EARL GREY.

13, Carlton-house Terrace, May 26, 1870.

DEAR SIR,—I have had the honour of receiving your letter of yesterday, and I have to request that you will return to the members of the Straits Settlements Association, my best thanks for the communication you have made to me on their behalf. It is very gratifying to me to find, that they are satisfied with the manner in which I presented the petition with which I was entrusted, and with the result of the discussion. I trust that after the statement made by Lord Granville on behalf of the Government, no doubt will in future be entertained that the judges in all British colonies hold their offices under conditions, by which the independence it is so necessary they should enjoy, is fully secured. If it were considered desirable that Lord Granville should place the views of the Government on this important subject on record by a formal despatch, I do not suppose that he could have any objections to doing so.—I have the honour to be, dear Sir, faithfully yours, (Signed) GREY.

NETHERLANDS-INDIA STEAM COMPANY.

At a meeting of the shareholders in the above company, held on the 27th ult., the report of the directors recommended a dividend of 2½ per cent., making 5 per cent. for the year, carrying forward £220 as the balance of the profit and loss account, after writing off one-tenth of the original amounts of both the steam service contracts and preliminary expenses; also the sum of £962 14s. 6d. from the account for interest paid shareholders prior to the commencement of the service, which closes that account; and the sum of £7,259 10s. for loss on steamers sold. From the same source the directors have likewise appropriated the sum of £24,869 for depreciation of the fleet; but this being considered far from adequate for the purpose, they have increased the amount by a transfer of £21,062 17s. 10d. from the insurance fund account, which has enabled them to write off about 17 per cent. of the original cost of the steamers. The directors are of opinion that a considerable sum is still required to be written off before the vessels can be regarded as standing at their fair values. The steamers sold as above mentioned were the Padang, the Palembang, the Menado, and the Betsy. The three first named were part of the fleet of Messrs. Besier and Jonkheim, purchased by this company in 1868, and the hulls of the first two being found too far gone to make it expedient to repair them, they were sold to be broken up. The Menado and the Betsy were not required for the company's service, and were disposed of upon the best terms obtainable.

The payments during the past year to the Government of Netherlands-India in respect of the loan of fl.1,000,000, or £83,333 6s. 8d., have reduced the balance due to the Government of Netherlands-India by the company to £62,500.

There have been no casualties of any moment among the vessels of the fleet during the year. The steamer Baron Bentinck has been lately re-coppered, making the fourth of the composite vessels which has been submitted to that operation. With the exception of the Singapore (one of the steamers purchased of Messrs. Besier and Jonkheim), the engines of which are stated to need some repairs, and the Minister Fransen van de Putte, which will soon require re-coppering, all the vessels of the fleet are reported to be now in good working order, and it is not expected that an extraordinary outlay upon them will be necessary for some time to come.

The directors to retire on this occasion are William Mackinnon, Esq., and H. Oliver Robinson, Esq. Both of them are eligible for re-election. The directors, however, consider that it is only necessary to fill up one of the vacancies.

The director proposed to be left out is Mr. H. O. Robinson, by whom the concession was obtained and the company set going. It is to be presumed that the board, which consists of Messrs. Mc. Kinnon, Guiness, Salmond, W. P. Andrew, and Sir Fred. Arthur, have ideas which are not in accord with Mr. Robinson's, and hence they arbitrarily use a power to expel him. To enter into the merits of the case would be out of the province of a newspaper. Mr. Robinson has addressed a temperate circular to the shareholders, from which we extract the following :—

As the owner of the concession from the Netherlands East India Government, and the vendor of that contract to the present company, it was agreed on my part to accept payment of the purchase money in the shares of the company. It was in the full reliance that I should be allowed to take part in the management of the company's affairs that I consented to the terms of that arrangement, and I now claim, therefore, to be permitted to participate in the direction, as then contemplated by all parties to the agreement, into which I entered upon that understanding. At the present time (including the shares which I subscribed for) I hold the largest stake in the result of the company's operations; and it cannot, I think, be denied that if the election of any director is to be omitted upon the present occasion, it will be unfair and unreasonable that the proposal in question should be applicable to one who holds the largest interest, and who, as the vendor of the contract, has been induced to place himself in that position upon the full faith and reliance that he would be allowed to co-operate as a member of the board of directors in carrying out the contract, which he secured at a cost of years of anxious labour and great pecuniary and personal risk.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, June 2.

Our political horizon has been crowded with "black spots;" indeed, a large section of the public believe that the whole Cabinet is on the eve of resigning. The Second Chamber seem decidedly hostile to to the Ministry. The Minister for Foreign Affairs has laid before the members a treaty with some German States embodying such measures as shall tend to protect Dutch salmon-breeding, which, according to the conviction of some naturalists, takes place only in the Rhine. The Germans, who are fond of this fish, wish that the full-grown salmon should not be caught in our rivers, but that opportunity should be given them to reach the Rhine, in order to breed there. The Ministers Roest and Van Bosse defended the treaty, but nevertheless it was outvoted by thirty-four against thirty-one votes. The Minister for Home Affairs has also received the warning of a malcontent Parliament. He asked for a credit of f.10,000, because his Budget Estimate has proved insufficient; but the Chamber only granted half this sum, in order, as was stated, to induce the Minister to adopt economical principles. These two votes have not tended to strengthen the prestige of the Ministry, and of course the Conservative party is upon the qui vive to take whatever advantage the situation may present. All their hopes were fixed upon the Sugar Bill. The Liberal papers have been so decidedly hostile towards it, that they expressed the opinion that it would either be outvoted or enormously amended. If this measure had miscarried, of course the Minister for the Colonial Department would have had no option but to resign, and the position of the other Ministers would have been so much the more weakened. This political consideration alone saved the Sugar Bill, which, to the very great astonishment of everyone, was carried by a majority of seven votes (42 against 35). The Conservative party was so certain of success that not a single member on their side said a word against the Bill, with the one exception of Mr. Heemskerk. The opposition came solely from the Liberal side. Messrs. Mirandolle, Fransen van de Putte, De Roo, and Van Houten severely attacked the measure, and a large number of amendments and sub-amendments were proposed and discussed, but were all outvoted, the Government Bill being carried in its original form. This vote will, of course, make a very bad impression in Java, which will be quite justified, because it was not the interest of Java which governed the vote, but the object of saving the Liberal Cabinet. The voting list exhibits the strange evidence that the leaders of the Liberal party voted with the Tories. Forced labour in behalf of the sugar industry will now be maintained till the year 1890!

The India Sugar Bill, as carried by the Second Chamber, is as follows :—

"No new sugar plantations will be laid out by Government order.

"Wherever the cultivation of sugar exists, the Government, as soon as the year 1890, will no longer dispose of any grounds which were cleared by the natives with a view to private use. After the year 1878 there will be a gradual and yearly restriction of the extent of land allotted to the several plantations. Existing claims, of course, are to be respected. The Governor-General will have to observe :—

"That no plantation must be suffered to continue wherever it burdens the natives to a higher extent than the financial interest of the State has a right justly to demand.

"That only one-fifth of the village grounds can be disposed of in behalf of the said plantation, unless some village itself be desirous to depart from this regulation.

"That a just indemnification is due to the natives for any grounds or labour they may have yielded.

"That there be an end, as soon as possible, to the intervention of the Government concerning the village in agreement with the planter of the aforesaid land, sub. 2.

"That the means to work the sugar-cane ought to be proportionate to the amount of the cultivation.

"That no brook or river which is necessary to the agricultural purposes of the population be abducted in order to move the mills or other engines.

"That the planters will have to procure their own labourers for all in and out-door purposes, without the intervention of the Government, unless that intervention prove utterly indispensable.

"That an equitable tax is to be levied from the amount of the free as well as from that of the obligatory cultivation."

Another important question has been decided by the Second Chamber in a more satisfactory manner. After several days' debate they carried, by forty-eight against thirty votes, the Bill to abolish capital punishment. The principal opponents of this measure belonged to the ecclesiastical party—that of Mr. Groen—and they derived their arguments from the Bible, especially from the passage which says, "for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword." It is remarkable that only one member of the Conservative party opposed the measure. This was Mr. de Brauw, who proposed an amendment that capital punishment should be maintained for the murder of, or for an attempt to murder, the King or any member of the Royal Family, for high treason to the State, and for premeditated murders and parricide. The Chamber however negatived this proposal by a majority of eighteen votes. When the First Chamber—which took recess after having carried some Bills which had previously passed the Second Chamber—will have voted this measure, as undoubtedly it will do, notwithstanding the fine fleur of the fanatics, capital punishment will be definitively abolished here, the substituted punishment being imprisonment for from five to twenty years—except for the army, in which capital punishment is to be retained. The Minister of War has, at last, laid before the members his Bill about fortresses, which, however, does not at all agree with the wishes of the Liberal party. Enormous sums are asked for the defence of our country, and it seems, moreover, that the plans of the Minister leave much room for criticism. It is not at all improbable that the money will be granted, the fortresses built, and that before many years will have elapsed it will be necessary to replace these fortresses by others. Millions are thus to be thrown away—and they will have to be provided by the Javanese. It may well be wished that we could seek our defence in morality and equity, instead of building fortresses and arming our soldiers with breechloaders.

A law suit now pending before the Amsterdam Court creates the greatest sensation, and forms an eminent contribution to our histoire scandaleuse. The question is this. A certain Dr. Elders, brother-in-law to the Minister for the Colonial Department, living at Harlem, signed a document by which he certified that a certain Mr. van Wiersma, living in the neighbourhood of that town, was mad, and that it was therefore necessary to transfer him to the Asylum Meer en Berg. There was, however, a rumour circulating in Harlem that Dr Elders—who is himself married—was on very intimate relations with Mrs. Wiersma, and so the suspicion of the judge who had to sanction the certificate was awakened to the fact that the document might have been given in order that Mr. Elders might feel more at ease in his relations with Mrs. Wiersma. The result was that the authorities laid hold of Dr. Elders, who was accused of having granted a false certificate. The Amsterdam Court has decided that he should be condemned to eight years' imprisonment and two penalties of f.50.

On the 23rd of May the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Rotterdam Bank took place. Mr. F. I. Plate, the President, asked, after having opened the meeting, if any one desired to make any remark upon the printed report, of which you have already published the principal items. One of the shareholders thereupon asked for some information about transactions in Java, especially respecting the mode in which the bank was secured for the claims on the insolvent firm, Van Eck and Co. The president-director, Mr. Muller, gave as much information us he could without prejudicing the interests of the bank, and the meeting was quite satisfied with the communications made. Mr. St. Martin stated that he had asked for them because the bank has now the full confidence of the Bourse, which was not the case under the former managers. Messrs. M. M. de Monchy and H. W. de Critter were elected commissaries. The closing quotation of the shares is 86 per cent.

Mr. C. S. van Heekeren, formerly a partner of the Samarang firm, Van Maanen and Co., and now residing at Maestricht, has published a pamphlet which creates much sensation. Your readers will remember that this gentleman was appointed head agent for Java (of the International Company for Trade and Industry, Rotterdam), and that he was compelled to ask for his dismission, or rather that he was evicted by underhand means. This little book contains the whole history of what has passed between Mr. H. and the managers of the company. The quarrel ended in a verdict of arbitrators being given in favour of the company, and Mr. H., not being content with it, published the pamphlet to clear himself in the eyes of the public. Whether the author will be rehabilitated by it I don't know, but so much is certain, that the company and a great many persons of high standing are injured by the publication.

The Dutch Missionary Society heid its annual meeting some days ago. In the report it is stated that the receipts during the past year amounted to f.27,157.77, and the expenditure to f.27,334.62.

COMMERCIAL.

TEA.—The market is very dull. Yesterday 6,563 chests China were offered at public auction, but only one-fifth sold, viz. :—

The stock in first hands is now 14,650/4 chests China, and 15,250/4 chests Java.

COFFEE.—The market remains unaltered. Good ordinary Java is still quoted 32½c. to 33c. Good qualities find ready buyers, so that several parcels of private import have changed hands. Greenish quality is worth 31c. to 32c. The total unsold stock is 731,600 b., against 719,600 b. in 1869.

RICE.—Very cold and unfavourable weather has improved prices. At the close of the market, however, there is not so much inclination for business. The stock is as follows:—25,000 b. Table, 9,400 b. Sourabaya Carga, 6,360 b. Necranaie, 11,000 b. Rangoon, and 7,800 mats Saigon.

RAW SUGAR.—The Trading Company sold in auction on the 2'th ultimo, 66,476 mats Java. The greater part realised the valuation and a trifle above, while brown quality was decidedly lower in price, being sold at f.1 under the valuation; the result was that brown sorts were sold at f.3 to f.4, yellow at f.1, and white sorts at f.¼ under March prices. Since the auction the market has been very firm, and only a few private lots have been offered. 1,325 mats Java No. 11, ex Ben Lomond, were sold at f.31½, and 933 mats No. 12, ex Cornelia, at f.32.

SPICES.—Dull. The unsold stock is as follows:—Nutmegs, 1,127 casks; Mace 347 casks; and the stock on warrants, Nutmegs, 2,978 casks; Mace, 136 casks; Cloves, 2,689 casks; Cinnamon, 41 mats.

JAVA TOBACCO.—A good business is doing. The following parcels changed hands by private tender:—1,088 b., trade mark PA/Malang, ex T. D. Marshall; 831 b., trade mark PK/Blitar, ex County of Nairn; 383 b., trade mark PK/Blitar, County of Nairn; 567 b., trade mark C/Blita, ex T. D. Marshall.

TIN.—The market has been very dull, but at the close is somewhat firmer, so that f.78½ is paid for Banca. The total stock is 152,415 slabs Banca, against 135,063 slabs in 1869; and 100 slabs Biliton, against 2,122 slabs in 1869.

RATTANS.—The following transactions are reported:—182 piculs per County of Nairn, 150 piculs ex Jedo, 110 piculs per Graafstroom, 102 piculs ex Hoek van Holland.

PRESERVED GINGER.—305 chests China offered in public auction were partly sold at f.73 to f.78, but the greater part was bought in.

HIDES.—The parcels imported per Copernicus, Nederland and Oranje, County of Sterling, D. T. Marshall, and Imperator II., were offered to-day by private tender and sold.

In the small town of Bodegranen (South Holland) a terrible fire took place to-day. About one hundred houses, churches, town-hall, &c., burnt.

Rumours of telegrams announcing the opening of the tea markets at Hankow and Foochow have been current, but not believed, although The Times published it without comment. It is to be hoped that the prices paid will be in accord with our market here, and that the export will not exceed ten to twelve millions per month, or the result will assuredly be disastrous for operators.

The resolution adopted at the meeting held by the importers of tea, at the offices of Messrs. Ashton and Co., to consider the present system of tea weights, which included the representatives of the leading firms, with Mr. Gilman as chairman, to alter the present system of allowing 1 lb. draft on each chest, and to adopt the Customs' standard of weighing and taring, has met with a most determined opposition on the part of the dealers and retail trade. Letters and advertisements have appeared, calling on them to resist the measure. One retail dealer says that the merchants have no more right to introduce this new custom than a landholder has to stop up a thoroughfare. The writer of a letter in the Grocer (Messrs. Holborn) says:—

About this time last year a certain faction of the wholesale tea-dealers, availing themselves of the pressure then made by merchants to effect sales, sought to break down one of the time-honoured regulations of the trade by repudiating their share of the remuneration hitherto paid to the brokers by both buyer and seller. A corresponding clique is now formed among the importers for their benefit, and the first victims are to be the retail dealers, whose profits have already severely suffered by the increased competition of Civil Service combinations and co-operative societies. It has been decided to abolish the 1 lb. draft allowed on all packages of 29 lbs. and upwards, and also to substitute the Customs tares and weights, which are proverbially illiberal. This will diminish the profits on good and fine tea by at least 5 per cent.

The Produce Markets Review, the organ of Messrs. Travers, goes a little further in arrogance and effrontery, coupled with excessive bad taste. It says:—

This apparently trifling alteration appears to us to open up the whole question of the conditions of sale, of prompts, in short, of the whole organisation of the Tea trade. It is therefore to be regretted, if the merchants are to obtain a permanently satisfactory settlement, that they should not abandon their old practice of isolated and secret action. At the meeting in question the trade was not represented at all, nor, so far as we are aware, have the leading dealers been consulted on the subject. We had hoped that the old system of sellers attempting to dictate to buyers had been ended by the complete triumph of the buyers in the brokerage question. But the misfortunes of the last four years have apparently not yet taught the China merchants that the Tea trade is the only one in which sellers fancy they have a right to tell buyers what the latter should or should not do.

A tabular statement, just issued by the Suez Canal Company, shows the monthly receipts arising from the traffic through the Canal up to the end of April. The following figures show the totals, which, it will be seen, exhibit a steady and rapid increase up to March, but a heavy falling off in April. November, f.75,118; December, f.241,795; January, f.250,968; February, f.340,726; March, f.647,588; April, f.377,207.

Subjoined is an account of the quantities of the principal articles of imported merchandise, subject to Customs' duties, remaining in the bonded warehouses of the United Kingdom on the 30th of April, 1870, compared with the quantities in warehouses on the 30th of April, 1868 and 1869:—

Advices by the last mail from Shanghai confirm the telegraphic accounts of the failure of Mr. William Hargreaves; and the prospects of the banks and other creditors were considered extremely bad. It appears that over-trading, amounting to recklessness, has been the cause of the failure. Joint-account operations had been carried on with Mr. H. H. Severs, who lately failed, and other persons without sufficient means. Allusions have been made to the abstraction of goods pledged to the banks, but the action to be taken on this was not decided on. The failure has caused considerable uneasiness in the China trade. A telegram has been received announcing that the estate was to be administered in bankruptcy.

The Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta cable is expected to be in working order next week, when the reduced tariff of the British-Indian Submarine Telegraph Company will come into operation.

The tenders for £400,000 in bills on India were received at the Bank of England, when the amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £347,000; to Bombay, £50,000; and to Madras, £3,000. The minimum price was fixed as before, at 1s. 10½d. on all the presidencies, and tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10¾d. will receive about 18 per cent., and on all the presidencies above that price in full. These results show a slight increase in the demand for means of remittance to the East.

We understand that the case of the Chartered Bank of India and Mr. Finke, of Bremen, in reference to the liability of the latter for bills drawn by the firm of Morgan, Melbourne, and Co., Batavia, is not likely to be brought to trial for several months, owing to the slow course of procedure in such suits in Germany.

The half-yearly meeting of the P. and O. Company will be held on Tuesday next, the 7th inst., to receive the directors' report and to declare a dividend. The report says:—It is gratifying to the directors that, notwithstanding the competition to which the company is now subjected in many quarters, the financial result of its business for the six months ending 31st March last has been sufficiently favourable to justify them in recommending the declaration of a dividend of 3 per cent., free of income-tax, for the half-year.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

During the interval there has been no sign of improvement in the market, business continuing on an unusually limited scale for the time of year. There is no material alteration to quote in prices, with the exception of low qualities of tea, which have sold at public auction at a further considerable reduction. The public sales of the 31st ult. comprised 8,156 packages, of which 6,734 packages were sold without reserve.

Red-Leaf Congous: Siftings have sold at public sale at rather lower prices. Broken-leaf kinds from 9d. to 10¾d. per lb., and fair to good common from 11d. to 11¾d. per lb. show a slight decline, but there have been some few purchases for speculation. Fair Kaisow kinds have been sold with some difficulty from 1s. 0¾d. to 1s. 2d. per lb.; good to fine have been little inquired for; finest remain unchanged. Some sales of Pak Lin kinds have been made from 1s. 6d. to 1s. 8d. per lb., in boxes. Amoy kinds continue difficult of sale. Black-leaf kinds: Some Maloo mixture has sold at public auction from 1¼d. to 1¾d. per lb. Good ordinary kinds from 10d. to 11d. per lb. have been neglected. Common to fair black-leaf kinds, from 1s. to 1s. 1d. per lb., have been in limited request at about previous prices. In good kinds transactions have been small at former rates. In fine to finest there has not been much doing. New-make Canton kinds: About 8,000 boxes, of fair quality, of old import, sold at 1s. 0¼d. to 1s. 0¾d. per lb. Oolongs, Souchongs, and Flowery Pekoes remain much as before, with but little business doing. Scented Teas: Common Canton Capers show no improvement; good qualities have sold ¼d. to 1d. per lb. higher. In Foochow kinds there is no change. Canton Orange Pekoes have met with but little inquiry. Foochow kinds have only been saleable to a moderate extent at the decline last quoted. There is nothing of interest to report in uncoloured Japans. Green Teas: There has been no change of importance in the market. Common to fair kinds have sold at low prices at public auction. The finer parcels of Moyune, at sale, went at full prices, other kinds irregularly. Canton kinds show no change.

The subjoined is an "official account" of the total deliveries and removals of Tea in Great Britain during the four months ended April 30:—Total consumption, 1870, 36,605,543 lbs.; 1869, 36,715,905 lbs. Exports, 1870, 10,929,973 lbs.; 1869, 13,772,976 lbs. Sent coastwise, 1870, 12,186,938 lbs.; 1869, 12,083,297 lbs.

The Circular of Messrs. Lloyd and Cheshire says:—"We have little change to report in our market; all low kinds of Tea are much depressed, and we see no immediate prospect of improvement in them; the quantity afloat is, however, now reduced to a small compass." Messrs. Layton and Co.:—"Importers appear willing to accept privately the reduced prices established at the public sales, but the demand has been very limited throughout the month, and the available supply of ordinary to good common Congou is still very excessive; the trade in these descriptions is, for the most part, confined to orders for immediate consumption; Teas with quality, including good to fine Paklins, being now taken by shippers in preference to the lower grades even at current rates."

SILK.

Since our last report the market has been exceedingly quiet, the disposition among the trade has been to cease buying, except where necessity compelled them, until the result of the European crops was known with some degree of certainty; this time has hardly yet arrived, and although the general accounts of the progress of the worms are so far satisfactory, yet from the fact of the quantity of seed "put down" having been so very considerably below that of last year, there is no probability of the out-turn being equal, the only question being how much less than last season's the present crop will be. Prices of Tsatlees remain firm, as desirable qualities are extremely scarce. The lower classes of Taysaams have given way, owing to further large arrivals but the better descriptions of Kahings maintain their last quotations; a few runs of Fatmow No. 2, Hainins, have been sold at full rates, but other sorts are neglected. Japans and Bengals are extremely quiet, nothing doing. Cantons have been selling in small parcels at 20s. to 20s. 6d. for fair Tsatlee reels, and 22s. 6d. to 23s. for extra Loong Congs. The deliveries in May were very satisfactory, viz., 3,405 bales China; 655 Canton; 624 Japan; and 448 Bengal. Total 5,132 bales.

Messrs. Jacomb, Hogg and Co.'s Circular says: As regards the European crop, opinions have alternated perhaps more than usual; at the moment of hatching the prospects were considered very unfavourable, but a change in the weather led to more sanguine expectations, and the progress of the worms being for a time really satisfactory, hopes became very general that the result of the crop would not be so bad after all; as however the critical stage is reached, these hopes seem but delusive, and it is now feared that although the crop of cocoons may be larger than was at first expected, the yield will be so indifferent that the actual quantity of Silk produced will be much less than last year, while the quality will be inferior.

Messrs. Durant and Co., on the European crop, say:—The uncertainty continues, for although at one moment the apprehension caused by supposed mishap in Spain was looked upon as groundless, and matters were said to be going on more or less well in Italy and France, the telegrams of the last two or three days indicate considerable doubt as to probable "yield."

COFFEE.

There has been no change in the market for Ceylon, which is without improvement. Large supplies of Plantation have been placed on offer at the public sales, the greater part consisting of grey and common kinds, for which the demand has been limited, and which were consequently saleable only at a decline of about 1s. per cwt.; for the small quantity of colory included in the offers, there has been a fair amount of competition, and this description has realized fully previous prices. The latest rates paid have been—Triage and ordinary 37s. to 55s., small grey and dull 56s. to 59s. 6d., low middling to middling ditto 60s. to 64s. 6d., bold ditto 64s. 6d. to 71s., small colory 60s. to 62s. 6d., middling ditto 65s. to 71s., good to fine middling 72s. to 77s. 6d., good to superior bold 81s. 6d. to 87s., peaberry 75s. to 82s. The offers of native have amounted to about 1,088 bags, of which 650 bags sold, garblings at 19s., low good ordinary at 48s. 6d., real good ordinary at 50s. 6d., fine ordinary at 51s. 6d., bold at 53s., peaberry 56s. Privately about 1,200 bags have been sold, good ordinary at 50s., fine ordinary at 52s. The business in other East India has been confined to Singapore; 1,346 bags have been brought to auction, of which about 520 bags sold, Pari Pari at 47s. 6d. to 49s., good pale Bonthyne at 58s. to 61s. 6d., a few lots at 54s. Of 971 bags Singapore offered since 570 bags sold, mixed sound at 42s, chiefly damaged pale and Bonthyne at 47s. 6d. to 52s.

The landings of Coffee, consisting chiefly of Ceylon and Brazil, although large, are 200 tons less than the same time last year, and the deliveries being 330 tons more, the surplus in the stock is again decreased, being now only 3,360 tons.

The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation, 303,452 cwt., against 290,650 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1869; Native, 32,519 cwt., against 36,370 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is 15,177 cwt. Plantation against 10,179 cwt., and 6,992 cwt. Native, against 19,454 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the twenty-one weeks ended May 28, 1870, was, of Ceylon, 11,249 tons, against 13,237 tons during the corresponding period of 1869; of all descriptions, 16,486 tons, against 21,204 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 4,331 tons, against 4,440 tons; of all descriptions, 7,365 tons, against 7,372 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 9,014 tons, against 9,584 tons; of all descriptions, 14,591 tons, against 17,666 tons. The stock on May 28 was, of Ceylon, 10,768 tons, against 10,208 tons; of all descriptions, 18,749 tons, against 15,386 tons.

SUGAR.

Shortly after our last report the desire to buy became stronger, and with increased sales prices acquired an upward tendency, particularly low and common qualities, which suffered the greatest previous depression. On the spot the sales have been larger than in any period from the commencement of the year, and afloat considerable business has also been effected, but at easy terms. Prices generally may be quoted about 6d. higher than those of our last report. The following has been the business of the fortnight:—Penang: At the auctions 5,955 bags sold common to middling brown (duty 4s. 9d.) at 22s. 3d. to 25s. 6d., good to fine strong brown (duty 4s. 9d.) at 27s. to 28s. 6d., low grey and yellow at 29s. to 30s. 6d., good to fine yellow at 31s. to 32s., 275 baskets low dark soft sold at 17s. 6d. Manila: At the public sales 100 tons and 17,822 bags unclayed Zebu sold at 20s. to 23s., 14,000 bags unclayed Taal at 20s., and 2,760 bags good unclayed Iloilo at 20s. 6d. to 21s. 3,634 bags clayed being offered and bought in at 22s. 6d. Privately there have been considerable sales, amounting to about 82,000 bags (or 2,650 tons) as follows:—42,000 bags unclayed Taal commencing at 18s. 9d. and rising to 19s. 9d., 34,000 bags low dark description (duty 4s.) at 20s., and 6,000 bags low clayed (duty 4s.) at 22s. 6d. per cwt. Java, Siam, and China: No transactions.

The quantity of Sugar landed in the twenty-one weeks ended May 28, 1870, was, of Penang, 1,105 tons, against 1,126 tons in the corresponding period of 1869; of Manila, Java, and China, 8,142 tons, against 19,053 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 1,016 tons, against 1,291 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 10,230 tons, against 6,350 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, 44 tons, against 42 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 1,600 tons, against 811 tons. The stock on May 28 was, of Penang, 2,375 tons, against 122 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 32,102 tons, against 41,636 tons.

CINNAMON.—The quantity offered at the quarterly public sales of Ceylon amounted to 3,309 bales, consisting chiefly of low and spurious kinds, which met with little demand, and only partly sold at a decline on former rates; medium qualities sold irregularly, but without material change, while good to fine qualities went off readily at about 2d. above last sales' rates; of the whole about 2,150 bales were disposed of as follows:—379 bales first sort—good to superior, sold at 3s. 4d. to 3s. 8d.; medium to fair, 2s. 6d. to 3s. 2d.; very low and ordinary, 1s. 4d. to 2s. 5d.; 1,035 bales second sort—good to superior, 3s. 1d. to 3s. 6d.; medium to fair, 2s. 4d. to 3s.; low to common, 1s. 2d. to 2s. 3d.; 831 bales third sort—good to superior, 2s. 11d. to 3s. 6d.; medium to good medium, 2s. to 2s. 9d.; low and ordinary, 1s. to 1s. 11d.; 1,060 bales fourth sort and unsorted—good, 1s. 8d. to 2s. 4d.; medium, 1s. to 1s. 6d.; very low and low coarse, 4d. to 10d.

CINNAMON CHIPS.—At the quarterly sales a very large quantity, amounting to 3,502 bags 36 cases Ceylon was brought forward, of which about 2,000 bags and the cases sold at a decline on the last sale's prices; low and common coarse bark realised 2d. to 2¼d., good common to medium thin bark 2¾d. to 3¼d., medium to fair 3¾d. to 5¼d., good thin 7d.; a few lots broken cinnamon and cuttings 11d. to 1s. 0¾d. per lb.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The depression in Ceylon became more marked after the publication of our last, and prices gradually declined until business was done at £36 10s.; subsequently a reaction set in, and the closing rate is £38 10s. on the spot, and £38 to £39 for arrival, at which a fair amount of business is doing. The quantity of Ceylon afloat for the United Kingdom is estimated at 22,499 tons, against 16,093 tons last year, and 16,499 tons in 1868; to the Continent, 5,476 tons, against 750 tons last year.

COIR GOODS.—Large quantities have been brought to auction, and to sell the lower qualities of Yarn a further decline has had to be accepted, but good went at full prices; 168 tons 5,200 bales mostly sold—Ceylon and Cochin, ordinary coarse to very fine, £18 to £67 5s.; low coarse Bombay, £12 5s. to £12 10s.; 20 tons Madras Fibre realised £10 10s. to £27 5s.; and 31 cwt. Brush do., £26 5s.; 37 tons Rope partly sold, 5 to 1 inch, £20 to £31 5s. per ton; 191 bundles Kitool Fibre were bought in at 6¼d. to 9d. per lb.

CANES, &C.—At the sales 296 bundles Malacca were bought in at 3¼d., and 660 bundles Borneo at 2¼d., except a few lots which sold, the former at 3¾d., the latter at 1¾d. to 2¾d.; of 200 bundles ground Rattans offered one lot sold at 5¼d. each. Rattans: The sales have been 4,718 bundles Penang at 2s. 3d. to 2s. 9d., and 399 bundles Borneo at 5s. 1d. per 100 canes.

CAMPHOR.—The market for China is steady; private business is still being effected at 82s. 6d., and 150 cases, good fair quality, in lead were offered at public sale, and bought in at the same rate. In Japan there has again been an absence of transactions on the spot, but the sale for arrival is reported of 400 tubs distant sailing at 82s. 6d.

CUBEBS.—There has been no business; at auction 60 bags good fair quality but rather stalky were offered and bought in at 28s.

CUTCH.—Prices have sustained a further slight decline; the sales have been limited to 500 boxes fine Pegu at 23s. to 23s. 6d. 56 boxes Penang salvage, ex Benvenue, sold at 10s.

CANTHARIDES.—The sale is reported of 3 cases China at 1s. to 1s. 3d.

CHINA GRASS.—An offer of 20 bales was bought in at £70.

CARDAMOMS.—A further advance in Ceylon has been established, 3 bags good fair quality having been sold at 3s. 7d.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—The market is quiet, but firm; 3 cases lump were offered, and bought in at £8 10s. to £9 10s.; and 3 cases reed at £12, 2 cases ordinary lump being sold at £4 5s.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Of 108 cases Citronelle 40 cases sold at 2d. to 2½d.; 6 cases Grass bought in at 3d.; 32 cases Lemon Grass, 3½d. to 3¾d.; 5 cases Sandalwood, 1s. 2d., and 20 baskets Cajaputa, 2s. 11d.; 7 cases Cinnamon withdrawn.

FIBRE.—Shortly after our last report 60 bales Manila Aloe sold at £19; a subsequent offer of 18 bales was bought in at £18 to £26 10s. We note the sale of 25 bales Rhea from Siam at £58 to £60.

GALLS.—Prices show some decline, 105 cases China having been sold at 46s. 6d. per cwt.

GUMS.—Benjamin: 9 cases Siam block were bought in, good firsts at £24; dark and rather hard, at £20; siftings and tear, at £9 10s. to £10 10s. Of 235 cases Sumatra sort offered 102 cases sold, viz., 89 middling to good fair rather streaky seconds, at £7 7s. 6d. to £9; and 63 cases inferior to good brown thirds, at 45s. to 25s. Damar: 10 cases good Batavian, partly small, bought in at 85s.; 23 cases 14 barrels 16 bags Ceylon withdrawn. Gamboge: Of 23 cases offered 11 cases sold, fine pipe partly run at £17; good fair, £16 5s.; fair but mixed, £15 10s.

GAMBIER.—The inquiry continues dull, and former rates are maintained with some difficulty; at public sale 150 bales, import 1868, sold at 15s. 9d., 38 bales at 16s. 3d. to 16s. 6d., 1¼ tons broken at 15s. 6d.; 242 bales fine palo pressed cubes were bought in at 18s., and of 1,391 mats good free cubes offered 200 mats sold at 19s.; re-sales of 250 tons old import have been made at 16s. per cwt.

HIDES.—At the last sales there was a more general demand for East India Hides, and the bulk of those offered found buyers at previous rates to ¼d. per lb. advance for the best descriptions, whilst ordinary and inferior were frequently ¼d. per lb. lower. 4,493 Dry Singapore and Penang Ox and Cow Hides offered, 2,053 sold—Best Light 10d.; small and Calf 8½d. to 9d.; Thirds 6d.; Fourths 5d. per lb. 482 Ceylon Hides offered, 253 sold—Light and Small 7d.; Heavy and Extra Heavy 6d.; Buffalo 4d. per lb. 2,196 Singapore and Penang Buffalo Hides offered, 583 sold—Best Heavy 5½d. per lb.

HEMP.—The demand for Manila has been quiet, but prices are without material alteration; at the auction, of 1,076 bales offered about one-half sold, fair roping at £52 15s. to £53, good to superior at £54 5s. to £56 5s., middling to fine white (Quilot) at £58 to £65 15s.

INDIA-RUBBER.—The only sales have been 220 baskets Penang of indirect import at 1s. 8d. per lb., and 40 bags Assam at 1s. 1½d.

ISINGLASS.—Large quantities of East India offered by auction have a moderate demand, and have chiefly sold at about previous rates; 42 cases Penang sold, good tongue at 3s. 9d., fair at 3s. 6d. to 3s. 7d., middling at 3s. 3d., ordinary at 2s. 6d., leaf at 3s. 3d. to 4s. 3d. Of 3 bales (754 lb.) indirect East India offered, 1 bale good leaf sold at 3s. 10d.

JAPAN WAX.—We note the sale of 10 cases good saucers at 69s. 6d. per cwt.

MUSK.—At the sales 3 caddies inferior Tonquin were bought in at 13s. to 16s. Of 13 tins grain 9 tins sold, fine at 56s., good at 53s., good fair at 51s., dark and damp at 34s.

PLUMBAGO.—The market has continued to present a dull appearance; 517 barrels Ceylon sold at the auctions, lump at 15s. to 16s., chips at 9s. to 10s., common to good common dust at 5s. to 7s. 291 barrels Ceylon sold—common lump at 13s. 6d., low small earthy chips at 5s. 6d. to 8s. 3d., common to middling dust at 5s. 3d. to 6s. 6d.

PEPPER.—Black: There has been a fair inquiry at steady prices; at auction 860 bags Penang have realised 4¼d., and 400 bags Singapore were offered and bought in at 5¼d., except 80 bags, which sold at 5½d.; privately about 2,000 bags Penang have been sold at 4 13-16d. to 4¾d., and 300 bags Singapore at 5½d. to 5¾d. For arrival 4,000 bags Singapore have been sold at 5d. to 5 1-16d. White: There has been a better inquiry, with but limited supply, and rates show an advance; the sales amount to 400 bags Singapore at 6¼d. to 6⅝d. per lb.

RHUBARB.—There has been a fair demand for China at former rates; of 282 chests offered, 215 chests sold, viz.:—3 cases good bold flat, 8s.; round, 6s. 11d. to 7s.; the remainder smaller root—good fair, 4s. to 4s. 2d.; middling to fair, 2s. 1d. to 3s. 2d.; good ordinary to low middling, 1s. 4d. to 1s. 10d.

RICE.—The inquiry, both on the spot and afloat, has been limited, but previous prices have been paid. The sales on the spot have been limited to 1,200 bags Ballam and 2,000 bags Bassein, at 8s. 6d. The business afloat has included four cargoes of Rangoon, at 10s. Continental terms—the Ajax, 1,060 tons, April sailing; the City of Bangor, 750 tons, May sailing; the Micmac, 1,400 tons, May sailing; and the Ilma, 1,100 tons, May sailing. The cargo per Black Prince, 1,000 tons Bassein, has relised 9s. 10½d., Continental terms.

ROOTS.—Colombo: There have been no transactions. China: Of 320 bales offered 29 bales sold, sound at 25s., damaged at 14s. to 20s.

STAR ANISEEDS.—At auction 3 cases China were offered and bought in at £6.

SAPANWOOD.—There have been no sales; 30 tons Ceylon were offered and bought in at £9 10s.

SPICES.—Cassia Lignea: The market is very quiet, and to effect sales in quantity lower prices would have to be effected; 100 boxes unworked, G in diamond KB under, per John and Pauline, retired at 117s., and some middling pile 1 placed at 124s. Vera, without transactions; 890 packages are advertised for sale. Nutmegs have met an excellent demand, the very bold and small (or American shipping kinds) going dearer; afloat, 74 cwt. against 143 cwt. last year; 102 cases good Padang, per Eleanor, sold with brisk competition; 62 to the lb. at 4s. 3d., 71 to the lb. at 3s. 2d., 82 to the lb. at 2s. 6d. to 2s. 7d., 95 to the lb. at 2s. 1d. to 2s. 2d., 135 to the lb. at 1s. 6d., 164 to the lb. at 10d. to 11d.; 32 cases Penang, part new, but chiefly of old and very old import, sold, 78 to the lb. at 2s. 8d., 80 to the lb. at 2s. 6d., 85 to 87 to the lb. at 2s. 3d. to 2s. 4d., 110 to 113 to the lb. at 1s. 9d. to 1s. 10d., 123 to the lb. at 1s. 8d. to 1s. 9d. Mace has been in strong demand, and about 150 cases have changed hands, chiefly Batavian, at 2s. 9d. to 2s. 10d. per lb. for average quality, good fair quality Penang realising 3s. 4d. to 3s. 6d. per lb., 2 cases fair 3s. 3d., and 1 case low 2s. 4d.

SAGO.—Has continued dull, and difficult of sale; 200 boxes good small in boxes have been placed at 18s.; and, privately, 18s. to 18s. 3d. realised. Large and medium grain continues in strong demand, and the supply of these descriptions being extremely limited, as high as 25s. 6d. has been realised by private contract. It is reasonable to suppose that the high prices paid for these descriptions will stimulate the production largely in Singapore, and possibly cause small grain to become neglected. Flour: Has fully maintained its value; about 500 bags being quoted at 14s. to 14s 3d. cash for Singapore, and 14s 6d. for Borneo. Only 84 tons afloat, for London, against 707 tons last year.

STICKLAC.—The market continues very dull; 481 cases good free Siam have been bought in at 55s.

SOY.—The recent decline in China has been recovered, a small sale being reported at 2s. 6d. per gallon.

TAPIOCA.—There has been an over abundant supply, and of 899 bags Singapore offered, only 375 bags were placed; these at 2¼d. for very good Rio kind, and at 2d. to 2¼d. for fair Malacca or lump. Of 1,275 bags Penang about 800 bags sold, very fine, per John Paul, at 2¾d. per lb.; good 2⅝d., and sea damaged at 2d. to 2¼d. per lb. for 1st and 2nd class. Flour: 37 bags good white 1 C S D sold at 2d. per lb. Pearl, quiet, value unchanged.

TOBACCO.—Messrs. Grant, Hodgson, and Co. report as follows:—Manila Leaf of good quality is in request, but little business has been done; there are numerous inquiries, which doubtless will result in transactions of some magnitude. The Hindustan and Doriega have arrived with a further supply of the 1868 crop. Manila Cheroots and Cigars continue in request at current prices; of the latter there is but a small stock on the market. Java: The trade have purchased only sparingly; several parcels of good useful qualities are now offering. Japan: Further arrivals may be shortly expected. The current rates are—Java, 5½d. to 10d.; Japan, 4½d. to 9d.; Manila, 1s. 6d. to 3s. 6d.; Manila Cheroots, 6s. to7s.

TIN.—The anticipations of improved prices have been fulfilled; there is now a steady demand at the following rates:—Straits, on the spot, £134; afloat, £132; Banca, £134 10s. to £135; Billiton, £133 10s.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

—o—

TEA.

The following is from Messrs. Beebe's Circular, dated May 20:—

Since the 6th inst. considerable business has been done in the various descriptions of Tea, and sales reported from first hands during the interval foot up 15,000 half-chests Green, 14,700 half-chests Oolong, and 15,200 packages Japan, the latter including the cargo ex Westbury sold to arrive. The market closes without material change in current values for Greens and Oolongs. On Japans a decline of 2c. to 4c. has been submitted to.

The following are the current quotations:—Greens (Moyune, Twankl and Fychow): Gunpowder, common to good, 65c. to 105c.; fine to finest, 75c. 120c.; Imperial, common to good, 50c. to 90c.; fine to finest, 55c. to 110c.; Young Hyson, common to good, 43c. to 90c.; fine to finest, 45c. to 110c.; Hyson, common to good, 50c. to 85c.; fine to finest, 55c. to 95c.; Hyson Skin, 40c. to 50c.; Foochow Oolongs, common and good, 49c. to 56c.; superior and fine, 58c. to 70c.; finest, 75c. to 100c.; Amoy Oolongs, common and good, 47c. to 55c.; superior and fine, 56c. to 65c.; finest, 70c. to 75c.; Souchong and Congou, common and good, 41c. to 52c.; superior and fine, 54c. to 63c.; finest, 65c. to 85c.; Japans, common, 55c. to 58c.; medium, 62c. to 65c.; fine and finest, 75c. to 82c.; choice, 85c. to 90c.

The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan at the port of New York from Jan. 1 to May 18, 1870, were as follows:—Greens, 12,497,201 lbs.; Japans, 4,896,115 lbs.; Souchongs, 2,229,924 lbs.; Oolongs, 7,344,927 lbs.; other sorts, 98,256 lbs.; total, 27,066,423 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1 was 9,866,167 lbs.; which, added to the above total, gives a result of 36,932,590 lbs. Subtracting from this total the exports from Jan. 1 to May 18, 2,080,634 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption during that period, 16,451,399 lbs., there remains a total of 18,400,557 lbs., representing the stock on the last-named date. The receipts from May 3 to May 18 amounted to 2,803,229 lbs.; the withdrawals for home consumption to 3,826,002 lbs.; and the exports to 313,555 lbs.

COFFEE.—The market for Brazil continues quiet, but former prices are firmly maintained. For East India the quotations are likewise unchanged, but the business has somewhat fallen off, the only sales reported being of 4,000 mats Java per Zeebloem and 3,000 mats in Baltimore on New York account, both on private terms; the current rates are as last reported—Java 21½c. to 22c.; Singapore, 18c. to 19c.; Manila, 16c. to 17c.; Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19c. gold. The stock of Manila on the 1st May was estimated at 2,627 bags, against 6,769 bags on May 1, 1869; of Java (Government) at 900 bags, against 2,287 bags; of Java mats, 51,447, against 41,808 bags; of Ceylon, 1,000 bags, against 5,000 bags; of Singapore nil against 1,000 bags.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 18c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.12½; Cassia, $1.25 gold.

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 4c. to 4¼c. gold (duty paid); stock very small, not exceeding 2,000 bales.

FIRE CRACKERS.—The demand noticed in our last has continued and prices have further advanced; the sales have been very extensive, including 11,750 boxes extra No. 1 at $2.45 to $2.50 currency, and 17,000 boxes on private terms; at the close the market is firm at $2.50.

HEMP.—Manila is without change, being still held at 14½c. gold; there is little demand, and no business has transpired. The stock of Manila on the 1st May was estimated at 12,633 bales, against 5,100 bales at the corresponding date of 1869, and 18,319 bales in 1868. The imports into the United States from the 1st January to the 30th April, 1870, were 53,100 bales, against 47,471 bales during the corresponding period of last year, and the quantity afloat on the 30th April was 22,988 bales, against 16,829 bales at the same date last year.

INDIGO.—There is somewhat more inquiry for Manila, and a steady business has been effected at slightly improved prices, the sales amounting to 48 cases, at $1.15 to $1.35 currency.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $8 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is $1 to $2 currency (duty paid), showing a decline of 50c.

RICE.—The demand for Rangoon has become more extensive, owing to its relative low price compared with other kinds; we note sales of 325 bags for home consumption at $7.12½ to $7.25 currency, and 2,600 bags in bond, for export, at $3 to $3.25 gold.

SPICES.—There has been a large speculative movement in Nutmegs, some 600 to 900 cases having been taken, but the particulars have not transpired; prices, however, tend upward. In Pepper there has been a further purchase of an invoice of 3,000 piculs, to arrive from Singapore, ship still there, at a private price. In the general market the business continues good, and prices are well maintained; the following have been the sales: 1,200 bags Pepper at 27c.; in small lots, 27¼c.; 500 to 600 bales Cassia, 47c.; 200 bags Pimento, 18½c. to 19c.; 300 bales Cloves, 25¾c. to 26c.

SUGAR.—In the general market there has been an improved inquiry, and the recent decline in prices has been recovered. No business has been done in East India kinds.

TIN.—For a day or two after our last report there was less activity in Straits and prices slightly declined, a sale of 100 slabs being effected at 34¼c. 30 days, prompt and 35c. cash; subsequently there was a recovery, 2,000 slabs realised 35c. to 35½c. cash, and at the close the market is reported firm at 35¼c. to 36c. gold. There is no supply of Banca in stock; the nominal quotation is still 45c.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

The berths for the Eastern ports still continue well supplied with tonnage, and rates are without alteration; coal freights from the Northern outports are firm at last quotations.

Current rates of freight for vessels on the berth:—To Yokohama: 32s. 6d. weight, 35s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 120s. weight. 110s. meast. To Shanghai: 40s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 90s. weight, 80s. meast. To Hong Kong: 35s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Batavia: 25s. weight, 30s. meast. To Penang: per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Singapore: 30s. weight, 25s. to 30s. meast.; per steamer via Suez Canal, 70s. weight, 60s. meast. To Ceylon: 20s. to 25s. weight, 20s. meast; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 60s. meast At New York to China: $12 to $15 per ton of 40 cubic feet.

The current quotations for coal, &c., are as follows:—From Wear or Tyne per keel.—For Hiogo: £35. For Hong Kong: £28. For Singapore: £25. For Galle: £27. From Newport, Cardiff or Swansea per ton.—For Hong Kong: £1 8s. For Singapore: £1 4s. For Galle: £1 6s.

CASUALTIES.

Advices from St. Thomas, dated May 15, state that the Herald Gardner, from Java to Boston, which put in there March 27, leaky, had been recaulked and remetalled, and was in the stream rigging.

The Carolina (str.), Brown, from London to Colombo, &c. (via Suez Canal), which arrived at Malta, May 15, had put in owing to the loss of two blades of her propeller, and with some slight damage to machinery; she would have to go into dry dock.

The Sarah Nicholson, from Shanghai to New York, with tea and silk, struck heavily on the reefs off the east end of the Bermuda Islands, May 7, but with the assistance of a pilot, got off with little damage, after remaining about five minutes.

It is expected that the diving operations at the sunken wreck of the ship Sprindrift, off Dungeness, will have to be abandoned until the equinoctial gales set in and wash the sand out of the wreck. She is nearly buried. About 350 bales of goods remain to be recovered from the ship's hold, and an indefinite quantity of broken case goods.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite. The Civil Service Gazette remarks:—"The singular success which Mr. Epps has attained by his homœopathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any experimentalist. By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in tin-lined packets labelled—JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London.

PRICE'S BENZODYNE

AN INTERNAL STYPTIC of great value. In Cholera, Diarrhœa, and Dysentery this medicine far surpasses any other, having a peculiar mechanical power of putting a sudden stop to wasting diseases. Chronic Cough and blood-spitting are immediately relieved by it, as well as pain and debility of every kind. Prepared by Mr. PRICE, Analytical Chemist, 2, Lower Seymour-street, and 30, Duke-street, Portman-square, London; and sold by Chemists all over the world, in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 22s., or in dispensing bottles at 5s., 10s., and 20s. each HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—In general debility, mental depression, and nervous irritability, there is no medicine which operates so like a charm as these Pills. They purify the blood, soothe and strengthen the nerves and system, give tone to the stomach, elevate the spirits, and, in fact, make the patient sensible of a total and most delightful revolution in his whole system. They may be commended most unreservedly as the very best family medicine in existence. Though so powerfully efficacious, they are singularly mild in their operation, and might be given with perfect confidence to young children and delicate women. They contain not a grain of mercury or any other noxious substance, and cannot do harm. Delicate females and all persons of sedentary habits will find these Pills a blessing.

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vesse's of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds, superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

PRESENT DIRECTORS.

M. le Baron de Méritens, Commissioner of Customs.
John Forster, Esq., of Messrs. John Forster and Co.
(With power to add three to their number.)

GENERAL AGENTS, pro tem.
Messrs. John Forster and Co., Foochow.

SUPERINTENDENT.
Captain John C. Skey.

The scheme has been fully discussed by the Foochow community, to whom it was in the first instance submitted, and who generally appreciate its advantages, but require outside funds to assist in carrying it through. At a general meeting a special committee of five gentlemen was elected to investigate and consider the project. The report furnished was highly satisfactory, and was supported by a survey report by competent authorities upon the condition of the Dock and premises.

The object of the Company is to take over from Mr. John Forster the Dock at the Pagoda Anchorage known as the Foochow Dock, with the property and machinery attached, valued together at $130,000, and also the tug steamer Woosung, valued at $10,000. The remaining $60,000 will be used for the purchase of stock and materials (of which a considerable quantity is on hand and is offered at cost price), for the improvement of the establishment, and for the purchase of an additional tug steamer, in accordance with the recommendation of the special committee for working the whole to best advantage.

By arrangement with Mr. John Forster the Company will take over the property to be purchased from him, from the 1st Jan. of the present year, from which date all profits on the business are to accrue to them, while he shall receive interest at the rate of 9 per cent. per annum on the amount of purchase-money until paid up.

The Company will be managed by a Board of Five Directors, two of whom are now elected with the power to add three more to their number; three will retire annually, but are eligible for re-election.

The funds of the Company will be entirely under the control of the Board.

A statement of accounts will be submitted to a Meeting of the resident Shareholders to be held annually, when a dividend will be declared.

Applications for Shares, in annexed form, to be addressed to Messrs. John Forster and Co., Foochow, who will act as General Agents until all are allotted.

An application for Shares, followed by an allotment thereupon, will constitute the applicant a Shareholder in the Company.

The Deed of Settlement will be duly prepared, and copies will be furnished to the Shareholders when ready.

FORM OF APPLICATION FOR SHARES.

TO THE DIRECTORS OF THE FOOCHOW DOCK COMPANY.

GENTLEMEN—, request you to allot to shares of $100 each in the above company, and agree to accept such shares or any less number you may allot to , and to pay the calls thereon, and authorise you to place name on the Register of Shareholders for the Shares allotted.—Your obedient servant,

CHINA.

HANKOW.

HANKOW, April 15.

From the central position which this place occupies in the Empire we are able to take a bird's-eye view of what is transpiring in every quarter. Rebellions in Yunan and in Kweichau, irruptions in Hunan, outbreaks in Sz'chuen, insurrections in Kansuh and Shensi—are sure to be talked of in Hankow. At the present time the current of common rumour flows north-west, towards the two provinces of Kansuh and Shensi, which are to a great extent overrun by Mahometan rebels. Amongst these there are said to be not a few of those marauders known by the name of Nienfei, as well as a sprinkling of the old "long-haired" rebels.

The rebels are said to possess foreign guns, to have become well trained for war, and to be thoroughly roused for conquest—so roused that even their women take to the field, mount on horseback, keep sentry, and fight like men. One rumour states that Tso Ta Ren and his remnant are surrounded by them; another, that they are besieging Siganfu, the provincial capital of Shensi. However much of truth or falsehood these various rumours may contain, it is certain that Li Hung Tsang's orders to Yunnan and Kweichau have been remanded, and that he is now commanded to proceed to Kansuh and Shensi, to rescue Tso and to put down the insurgents. His brother, Li Han Tsang has already arrived it Wuchang, coming hither in a large steamer, accompanied by a smaller one, to take charge of our Viceroy's business during his absence in the wars.

It is certain also that great activity is being displayed in the enlistment of soldiers to compose Li's army. Red coats throng the thoroughfares, and strings of recruits are frequently seen marching off to the various camps outside the city. At first Li, being a Kiang-nan man, showed a decided preference for Kiang-nan soldiers, and few but Kiang-nan men were being enlisted. The Hanyang Shien, however, represented to his Excellency that Hunan and Hupeh men were also subjects of his Majesty, and that they too were eligible for employment; so now his army is being made up in a more general way. It is to contain from 30,000 to 50,000 men, and to be increased on his arrival at Liang-yang. It seems that there are plenty of vagabond fellows to be got for the purpose, notwithstanding it is considered somewhat in the light of a forlorn-hope expedition. The men are not pressed, but enlisted under the agreement that they shall receive four taels two mace (about 26s.) every fortieth day; Li having, on account of the poverty of the Imperial exchequer hit upon this "Liberal" plan of extending a month to that term of days. If this ingenious and economical plan has really bee adopted by the astute Viceroy, what a rare Chancellor of the Exchequer would he make for the present Liberal Government of England! He would out-do Mr. Lowe!

Great bribery is reported in the obtaining of commissions to serve in Li's army, many colonels of regiments purchasing their rank at prices varying from 500 to 1,000 taels. Li himself told the captain of a French gunboat, now at Hankow, that he should be off on the 25th inst. Considering, however, that he ought to have gone some time ago, that is very doubtful. But this morning, probably for the first time, a small foreign steamer belonging to him proceeded up the River Han, to the great surprise of the natives, destined to nobody knows where.

It is thought that if Tso be in such straits as he is represented to be in, it would argue a little more brotherly love in Li if he would make a trifle more haste to relieve him. His not doing so is set down to the account of a slight indisposition towards the whole affair, or else to a vain desire of securing the more glory to himself, by suffering matters to reach their worst before he attempts to mend them.

The result, as the origin, of this wide-spread and flourishing rebellion, is not easy to divine. Possibly the triumphant insurgents are only now avenging ages of wrong and oppression; for though now, to all intents and purposes, Chinese, it is not forgotten that their ancestors were foreigners, and that their creed is foreign too. Should Li be defeated it is not unlikely that they will set up in these two provinces an independent kingdom of their own.

DR. SHEARER'S HOSPITAL AND OPIUM SMOKERS.

We have received the "Second Report of the London Mission Hospital," Hankow, by George Shearer, M.D., from November 1, 1868, to December 31, 1869. This report professes to give an account of the professional labours of Dr. Shearer, for a period of fourteen months, at the hospital itself, and at the dispensaries in Han-Yang and Wuchang. It has seventeen pages devoted to the various diseases treated, with very valuable remarks describing them, or noting some of their peculiarities.

The following general summary will give an outline of the variety of the disorders which came under the Doctor's care, and will indicate the extent of his labours:—

Skin diseases	1,067
Diseases of the digestive system	1,052
Do. do. respiratory system	950
Do. do. eyes	879
Abscess, ulcer, carbuncle, &c.	638
Rheumatic affections	616
Diseases of brain and blood (including ague) ...	602
Venereal and syphilitic affections	315
Fractures, dislocations, wounds, caries, necrosis, gangrene	223
Diseases of heart and kidney	167
Opium smokers	96
Diseases of the ears, &c.	80
Rupture, hydrocele, &c.	72
Diseases of women	63
Tumours, cancers, &c.	34
Miscellaneous	28
Vaccination cases	48
Anæsthesia and leprosy	107
Total	7,037

The remarks of Dr. Shearer relating to opium smokers and his method of treating them will be read with interest by a large class of our patrons.

"Ninety-six opium smokers applied for means to enable them to get rid of the pernicious habit, the majority of whom were below the standard of health—pale, haggard, emaciated, and spiritless, or suffering from dyspepsia, diarrhœa, hœmorrhoids, sciatica or asthma and bronchitis. In ten cases the health was unaffected, the average quantity of opium being used, and for a period of years. Fifty smoked one mace daily and under; forty-six smoked two mace and over; a large number begun the habit, like Coleridge, for the relief of pain. One man, a Tai-ping-kwan had been in the habit of smoking eight mace daily, for a period of fifty years, but by strength of will he conquered the habit, and is now in the best of health. One man had been using four mace daily for seventeen years, and though suffering from internal piles seemed in good health. Four persons, husband and wife, mother and son, using three mace daily for several years, applied for assistance to break off the habit because they were now too poor to get the drug.

"I do not adopt the practice of withdrawing opium smokers from their homes and detaining them in hospital under strict surveillance, as advocated by some, but make use of all the moral persuasives and medicinal adjuncts in my power, and then set them free to struggle with and conquer the vice if they may. Some have brought their opium-pipes in proof of their sincerity, and I have an assured conviction that many have got the better of the evil habit through the means employed. Of twelve at least I am certain, and in their case there is, I think, little fear of their resuming the practice. I use a pill (composed of hyoscyamus, camphor, capsicum, and quinine) which answers well in allaying the morbid craving, and at the same time giving tone to the stomach. In the majority of instances breaking off the use of the drug is followed by nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite, and debility, seldom diarrhœa, but usually within a month the system accommodates itself to privation of the wonted stimulant, and health is recovered."

SHANGHAI.

Dates are down to April 22. The London mail of Feb. 25 arrived out on April 15, with telegrams to March 21; via Kiachta telegrams extend to the 29th. The following items are from the North China Herald:—

The matter of greatest local interest, has been the cause célebre, von Gumpach v. Hart, which ended on Thursday; the jury finding a verdict for the plaintiff, damages £1,800, and Tls. 176, which the community generally endorse.

A meeting of the shareholders in the North-China Insurance Company (1869-71), was held yesterday, when the directors' report and accounts for the half-year ended December 31 last, were presented. These show a highly prosperous state of affairs. After payment of all claims and expenses to date, the working account show a profit of Tls. 226,642, raising the balance in hand to Tls. 606,885, in addition to the paid up capital of Tls. 300,000. And this result has been attained in spite of exceptionally heavy losses, aggregating Tls. 295,268. It was resolved, after some discussion, to abandon the practice of charging policy fees which has been hithorto customary. The following directors were elected for the ensuing year—Messrs. Brand, Bell, Lavers, Michie, Porter, and E. C. Smith.

The French missionaries seem determined to avail themselves of the privileges wrenched from the Chinese during the last demonstration at Nanking, and numerous buildings are in course of erection throughout the country; the one most deserving of notice in this vicinity being a chapel near completion at Woosung, a very creditable structure, about eighty feet in length, and substantial withal. While these good men are steadily working their way up hill against innumerable obstacles, and compelling the natives to respect the cross when once upraised on any house of worship, one would naturally expect to find the same emblem on the portal of a burying-place, equally reverenced; but it is not so; near Woosung, the cemetery, now hardly worthy of that name, is in a deplorable condition. One side of the wall has been knocked down, and what is left of the gates bear signs of wilful demolition; though in the midst of the ruins, with other mounds, may be found (by the aid of a stick as a probe, and a sickle to cut down the rank grass) several monuments to the memory of Europeans, who have died and been buried at this lonely spot. Chinamen respect their own dead, and they ought to be made to respect ours.

A meeting of land renters in the British Concession at Kiukiang was held on the 9th April, when the municipal report and accounts were presented. The latter show a balance in hand of Tls. 544.28, after an expenditure Tls. 768 84. A call of Tls. 30 per lot is made for the current year. Messrs. Hollingworth, Hamilton, and Anderson were re-elected a committee.

The Peking Races came off on the 4th, and afforded two days' very good sport. A report will be printed in our next issue. A correspondent mentions a report that Mr. Hart contemplates founding a weekly paper in Shanghai, to be called the Cycle, and to advocate the views of the Burlingame school.

A Tientsin correspondent writes:—"The weather is still very cold, and we have lately had a good deal of rain for this dry region. Two days ago I saw ice ½ inch thick, the produce of a single night. Further news quite confirms the serious nature of the defeat lately experienced by the Imperialists in Shensi."

A great improvement has been effected in the French settlement, by pulling down all the buildings which surrounded and shut in the French Municipal Hall. This is now left standing in the middle of a large open compound, enclosed by a wall and palisade.

HONG KONG.

The dates by the present mail extend to the 28th April. The London mail of 11th March arrived out on the 20th, with telegrams to the 1st April.

The following summary is from the China Mail of April 28:—

A glance at our Share List must convince those curious in such matters that Hong Kong, in a commercial sense, need not yet be altogether abandoned, although business may not now be so profitable as it was ten years ago. In some senses, perhaps, Hong Kong is now more advanced than it then was; and it is our belief that it would require even a more sanguine temperament than ours faithfully to predict what changes may come about before the year 1880. The Suez Canal, numerous telegraphic schemes from all directions by land and sea, commercial expeditions throughout the Empire and to the borders of Burmah, and the rival strides of advancement taken by the neighbouring people of Japan—these and other influences must ripen into results which, if now predicted, would scarcely be credited. In opposition to all this, it may be said that the effect of these improvements is injurious to trade; and it may be admitted that the sudden glut of the import markets, caused by the opening of the Suez Canal, has resulted in a vexatious and disappointing feeling of stagnation. But these are temporary disorders which will very soon pass off, when the trade will find its healthy level by the judicious regulation of supply and demand. It is unquestionable, however, that the extension of the market for our goods imported into China is the mainspring of our tradal requirements; and it is well that this fact should be frequently placed before both the governmental classes and the merchants engaged in the China trade. While efforts are being made in this colony and Shanghai (as well as in India and England) by the mercantile communities, with this specific purpose in view, it is only reasonable and fair that the policy of the Government should go hand-in-hand with such endeavours.

The report upon the Police Department for the year 1869 appeared in the Gazette of April 16, and deserves some notice. It is known to a few that Sir R. MacDonnell was the virtual head of most of the departments of Government in Hong Kong, and that departmental records frequently appeared fresh from the remodelling pen of the head master. His Excellency's hand is too apparent in the document in question to allow of a moment's doubt, and the report for last year should be entitled "His Excellency's Special Plea for his Police Force." To those who fail to note the hand of the real superintendent we give one or two expressions:—"The working of the police, as tested, has greatly improved;" "the success of the police is so much enhanced. . . . . We have received valuable assistance from the gaming-house licensees;" "its steady decrease (i.e. crime) during the last four years may be reasonably accepted as proof that the exertions of the officers of the departments have not been wholly futile," "larceny by servants has decreased in a very remarkable manner since the opening of licensed gaming houses," "as yet the Sikhs have not had the same local experience as other members of the Indian force," and "I think it will always be found expedient to retain a large Indian element in the force." The footmarks (or rather quill-marks) of the officer administering the Government and defending its policy, are here very clearly seen. In one sense, therefore, we are simply dealing with a sort of rechauffe of arguments, formerly advanced and answered, in connection with his Excellency's colonial policy; so that the interest felt in the report upon the most expensive and least efficient of the departments is thus reduced to a minimum.

ST. SAVIOUR'S COLLEGE.

H.E. the Lieut.-Governor distributed the prizes to the successful candidates at the St. Saviour's School's examination on the 26th. At three o'clock precisely the strains of the National Hymn, from the school band, announced H.E.'s arrival, and, attended by his personal staff, he took his seat upon the platform; the other positions of honour were occupied by his Honour the Chief Justice, the Hon. Mr. Forth, Hon. C. Smith, Hon. R. Rowett, Mr. Lister, Rev. Mr. Kennedy (Naval Chaplain), and Don T. Ortuno, the Spanish Consul, with many of the more prominent of the members of the garrison. After the reading of the report of the year's proceedings by the head of the College, Father T Raimondi, H.E. made a few brief remarks, expressing his thanks to the principal for his complimentary allusions, and expressing his conviction that the parents and relatives of the children must view with great gratitude the labours and success of the past year. His Excellency then proceeded to distribute the prizes, accompanying each with a few appropriate remarks. Several pieces of instrumental music were performed during the exercises by the pupils in a very creditable manner. Several of our leading ladies and many of our prominent merchants were present, and appeared highly gratified. The exercises concluded with a humorous dialogue between seven of the pupils, who contended, each in his own language, for the honour of returning thanks to the visitors; commencing in English, the topic was handled in French, Spanish, Italian, Portuguese, Malay, and Chinese, and finally returning to English, the first speaker thanked the ladies and gentlemen for their attendance in well-chosen terms. After "God Save the Queen," the visitors retired.

PRESENTATION.

Mr. George B. Glover, Commissioner of Customs, Canton, being about to depart from that port, the members of the outdoor staff of the service, and the linguists and writers thereof, presented him with complimentary addresses, each being accompanied by valuable silver ornaments. Mr. Glover acknowledged the compliments in suitable terms, expressing the pleasure he felt at having won the esteem of estimable bodies of men.

A correspondent inquires whether Hong Kong is to be visited or not by the Flying Squadron, which was last heard of at Yokohama. Hong Kong, so far as we have seen, is not included among the "ports of call;" indeed China is altogether excluded from the programme. Perhaps purposely so, for a Ministry which has been so gracefully complimentary to China as to apologise and make restitution for the acts of British officers in defending the lives and property of British subjects, can hardily be expected to risk wounding the delicate sensitiveness of the Chinese Government by such a formidable display of strength in Chinese waters. Mr. Childers may have been apprehensive that the visit would be misconstrued, and Chinamen made very angry at what they might fancy was a covert menace—at any rate, that it was an insolent barbaric demonstration to be resented when opportunity offers. To be sure, the presence of the squadron might have had another effect on the Chinese mind. It might have impressed them with an idea of the real strength that lies behind the mistaken diplomacy which encourages the notion of our weakness, and fosters the not unreasonable belief on their part that the red-headed barbarians will do anything rather than fight.

We hear that the rector of the Macao Seminary has decided to reprint the Chinese-Portuguese Dictionary, composed by the Rev. Fr. Gonsalves, and printed in the same seminary in the year 1833. The work has been entrusted to the well-known printers, Messrs. De Souza and Co. We hear also that the stock of the Chinese and Latin Dictionary, printed here by Mr. De Souza, under the direction of the Rev. Frs. Jerome and Leon, perished in the conflagration of the 19th October, 1861, when the Roman Catholic Cathedral was burnt, the whole of the printing materials and type foundry having been also destroyed on the same occasion. A copy of this dictionary cannot now be obtained.

The following account, duly certified, of the average amount of bank-notes in circulation in Hong Kong during the month ending March 31, 1870, is published for general information:—

	Average Amount.	Specie in Reserve.
Oriental Corporation	$341,247	$113,749
Chartered Mercantile	644,819	250,000
Chartered Bank of India	281,575	100,000
H. K. and S. B. Corporation ...	1,272,628	500,000
Total ...	$2,540,269	$963,749

The clipper Thermopylæ reached Foochow on the 19th April, having made the passage from Melbourne in thirty-eight days. Her outward voyage from London to Melbourne was done in the remarkably short time of sixty-eight days— the quickest ever performed by a sailing vessel between the two ports.

An old familar name reappears in our advertising columns—that of the Agra Bank, which resumes operations in Hong Kong. The local branch is in charge of Mr. H. Hughes, formerly manager of the Melbourne branch. The branch at Shanghai is in charge of Mr. E. Maccall, formerly manager there of the Chartered Bank.

The sugar refining establishment at East Point has been converted into a limited company. The Overland Trade Report says:—

The prospectus has not yet been published, but the following particulars can be relied upon. The company starts with a capital of $1,500,000, to be increased to $2,500,000, with an arrangement to purchase a crushing manufactory near Saigon, in order to proceed at once to the working of the crop of 1870-71. The manufactory is capable of producing 5,400 tons from this crop. For this they are to pay $125,000, and there is an arrangement for three additional mills, with their appliances, to be paid for at 25 per cent. over the cost laid down, if they arrive in time for the same crop; but if not, only 10 per cent. commission will be paid for them. The company is, however, bound by stipulations of the sellers of this property, which provide, first, for the sale to the latter of all the raw sugar produced for eight years, to a maximum of 400,000 piculs per annum, at current rates, to be deduced from those ruling at home (a proviso being added to ensure a profit to the company of at least 50 per cent.); second, that the company shall do no refining work during the eight years.

The Returns of Trade which have been issued by the Imperial Maritime Customs for the year 1869 are not on the whole very satisfactory. The total import and export trade is slightly in excess of the preceding year, namely, after deducting re-exports, in round numbers, about Tls. 142,000,000, against Tls. 140,000,000 in 1868; but, when this is compared with the increase that took place between 1867 and 1868, namely, to the extent of 13,000,000 of Taels, it will be seen that the progress of foreign trade has been comparatively slow during the year 1869. In the imports of foreign goods there is an increase of Tls. 4,000,000 at Shanghai, and of Tls. 1,500,000 at Chinkiang; while at Canton there is a falling off of Tls. 1,200,000, or about twenty per cent. At the other ports the differences between 1869 and 1868 are not great. The amount of the duties collected by the Foreign Inspectorate of Customs was Tls. 9,840,573 for 1869, against Tls. 9,425,656, in 1868.

JAVA.

BATAVIA.

Advices from this port are to the 30th April. The following items of news are from the Java Bode:—

From various Residencies of Java news has been received of injury to dams and the washing away of bridges by floods. In the Japara district and the Residency of that name epidemic fevers and an epidemic small-pox continue to prevail. A Government telegram from Banjirmassin, dated April 3, states that the state of health in that district was satisfactory. After a long and painful illness, the wife of the Governor-General of Netherlands India died at Buitenzorg on the morning of the 8th April. On the 6th April the head agency of the Netherlands India Trading Bank here sold on account of the Billiton Company, 5,051 piculs tin at an average rate of f.72.35½ per picul.

The railway communication with Solo continues faulty, and the opinion gains ground that the side branch to the Fort (William I.) will never be completed. The traffic during the month of February yielded f.28,082.31, amongst which f.6,586.78 were from sundries (diversen). The railroad from Batavia to Buitenzorg is steadily advancing, and a small portion of the embankment near the city is already ready.

A volcanic eruption is reported at Probolingo. On the evening of the 2nd March, about six o'clock, the Mountain Lamongan began to work heavily. The outburst continued three days with more or less violence, and was accompanied by underground sounds. The principal column of flame, which, on the 4th attained a considerable height, proceeded from the old crater, as shown by observations made during the eruption. People have not, however, to lament loss of life or damage to property on the present occasion.

Much comment has been caused by the conduct of an officer's widow, who, in order to be revenged on a boy of about twelve years of age who had ill-treated her little boy, enticed him into her house, and caused him to be beaten so severely by the servant that he died six days afterwards. A post mortem examination was held by two medical men, who ascertained that the child had most probably died from the violence committed.

At Batavia, on the 18th April, the announced Exhibition of paintings and works of art was duly opened at the Botanical and Zoological Garden. So far as we are aware, an exhibition of paintings, &c., was never before held in Java.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

From this port we have advices to May 6. The English mail of March 25 arrived out April 28; the latest London telegrams were to April 18. From the Overland Straits Times we take the following summary of news:—

On the day of the departure of the last mail a meeting of the seat-holders, communicants, and congregation of St. Andrew's Church was held, at which a Church Council was elected to "represent the views of the congregation in matters spiritual, and assist the bishop and chaplain in the promotion of the true interests of the Church here and in the diocese generally." A meeting of the trustees had been held just previously, and the resolutions passed by the trustees were put before the meeting for approval. The most important of these was the one converting St. Andrew's Church into St. Andrew's Cathedral. The proposition struck some of the members as novel, and inquiry was made what changes, if any, would result from the change of name; the Bishop replied that in a cathedral it was usual for the officiating minister to wear a white surplice instead of a black gown, and also for the choir to wear surplices. He could not say these changes would be made here, but as such was the custom, they might be. The resolution was carried, and St. Andrew's Church will soon be St. Andrew's Church no longer.

On the 2nd inst.,' by order of his Excellency the Governor, a special criminal session was held for the trial of Captain Warnkis, master of the North German barque Marie Helene, charged with having caused the death of a Chinese boy on board his vessel. The boy had been struck with a hammer thrown by the captain at the second officer; the skull was fractured, and death ensued several days after. Though the magistrate had committed the prisoner for trial on the capital charge, murder, the Grand Jury brought a bill for manslaughter, and the petty jury found him guilty, but strongly recommended him to mercy, owing to the great provocation he had received from the second officer, for whom the blow was intended—it having been proved that the two had been quarelling for some time, and that a number of missiles had been thrown by both parties before the one that had so fatal a result. The Chief Justice, in passing sentence, said that he was very willing to consider the recommendation to mercy, and therefore imposed merely a nominal punishment, viz., three months' imprisonment in Her Majesty's Jail. Singularly enough, the Chief Justice had forgotton the law passed at the last session of the Legislative Council, prohibiting the naming of any place of imprisonment in a sentence, and next morning he had the prisoner brought back to Court, and changedthe sentence to three months' simple imprisonment.

At the meeting of the trustees of the Raffles Institution, on the 8th ult., the report of the sub-committee appointed by the trustees was read. The sub-committee advocate some very important changes in the educational system—neither more nor less than the carrying out of the original scheme of Sir Stamford Raffles, in the establishment of a college. We are not so sanguine of the success of the scheme as the committee appear to be, and would rather see, for the present, some indication of improvement in the lower schools, and a more thorough inculcation of the rudimenrary studies than any extension of the list.

The Acting Lieut. Governor of Malacca, and also H. E. the Governor, owing to representations made by certain native rulers on the Malay Peninsula, have been to Kallang to endeavour to settle the differences between some of the contending rajahs there. The overtures of the Acting Lieut. Governor of Malacca were not very graciously received by one of the parties, who declined to have anything whatever to say to him. His Excellency the Governor has since been there in the Peiho, with quite as unsatisfactory a result,—as the rajah who was giving the trouble had gone into the interior when the Governor arrived. The real truth of the matter appears to be that the Sultan encourages these occasional quarrels among his rajahs, in order that he may reap the benefit in the payment of the tenths levied on the produce.

With reference to the Kullang affair alluded to in the above paragraph from the Straits Times, a correspondent writes as follows:—

"In 1867 the Kullang river was under the government of a certain Rajah Doolah. Rajah Muhdie, secretely backed by the Sultan of Salenjore, created a disturbance in the territory, and finally drove Rajah Doolah ont of his possessions. The Rajah has since died, and his sons have of late commenced active operations, with the view of regaining what they consider their hereditary rights. For this purpose they have raised a considerable force, and among other allies have secured Rajah Oodin, a near relation of the Rajah of Quedah, who has joined with some six hundred followers. At the Sultan's request, Rajah Oodin took command of the attacking forces, and called on Rajah Muhdie to surrender. The latter, having defied his assailants, was gradually hemmed in by a series of stockades, something like seventy or eighty in number, which were erected around his stronghold. He was, however, assisted in holding out by the Chinese from Malacca, who brought arms, ammunition, and provisions, and smuggled them into the fort. To stop this, Rajah Oodin wrote to the English authorities at Malacca, complaining of the breach of neutrality, and the Governor, having called his Executive Council together, issued a proclamation forbidding the exportation of munitions of war to Kullang. So far so good. But now the Governor seems to have conceived the idea of settling the matter in dispute by a grand stroke of policy, and the Acting Lieutenant-Governor of Malacca was despatched to Kullang in the Rainbow, and opened negotiations not with Rajah Oodin, but with Muhdie, who was invited to meet the Lieutenant-Governor on board his steamer. To do this, the Rajah would have had to pass through his enemy's forces, so very naturally preferred staying safely in his fortress to making an excursion which might have cost him his life; so he politely declined, and the Lieutenant-Governor returned to Malacca. Hereupon, the Governor decided that he would go in propria personæ—surely no native chief would act so disrespectfully to him!—and accordingly the Rainbow and H.M.S. Icarus were ordered to meet the Peiho, with H.E. on board, at the Kullang River, and another letter was sent to Muhdie, who this time refused to receive it; he distrusted the intentions of his new friends, and sent word that he was away from the country, a palpable falsehood, by the way, as he couldn't get out of his fort. This unexpected rebuff made the expedition look rather foolish, so, hearing that the Sultan of Salenjore was at Langat, a place only a few miles off, it was resolved to pay him a visit. This was done next day, but without any result except a fatiguing march on a hot day, and a short and most unsatisfactory interview with the Sultan, who is described as an opium-smoking, "used-up" old gentleman. The expedition then returned to Singapore, having proved as abortive as it was foolish, but having cost the colony a pretty penny. So much for Governor Ord's last freak."

STRAITS, JAVA, CHINA, AND JAPAN IMPORTS.

SHANGHAI.—There had been little or nothing done in any description of cotton manufactures between importers and dealers, the few transactions reported having been by native speculators, and taken for local wants only. With the exception of Chintzes, Fancy Cotton Goods had received no attention; they, in common with other cottons, had shared in the general depression. Woollens: The silkmen had almost exclusively monopolised the trade, and their forced sales of Spanish Stripes, Camlets, Figured Orleans, &c., had utterly disorganised the market. Metals.—Lead: Several sales of L. B. at 4.90 for common chops, 4.75 offered. Market dull, a downward tendency. Iron: A fair business had been transacted. Sales 11,000 bundles at Tls. 2.10 to 2.40 per picul, the latter price being paid for good assortments. Coals: Sales of Anthracite at Tls. 8.80 from ship.

HANKOW.—Grey Shirtings had fluctuated 2 to 3 candareens per piece, and a moderate quantity had been disposed of. Grey T-Cloths had been fairly saleable, but dealers were overstocked. Supply of Dyed Cottons limited, and an advance established. Woollens very difficult of sale. Demand for Camlets had fallen off, and prices were lower 2 mace per piece. Shipments of Long Ells much in excess of requirements, leading to a farther fall of 2 mace per piece. Teamen had bought but little Lead, that, to force sales, a further reduction had been submitted to. Quotations:—Grey Shirtings, 7.0 to 7.2 lbs., Tls. 2.05 to 2.08 per piece; 8.4 to 8.6 lbs., Tls. 2.26 to 2.30; 9 to 10 lbs., Tls. 2.60 to 3.05; T-Cloths, 6 to 6½ lbs., Tls. 1.55 to 1.73; 7 to 7½ lbs., Tls. 1.65 to 1.90; 8 to 8½ lbs., Tls. 2.08 to 2.40; White Shirtings, Tls. 2.20 to 2.73; Camlets, SS., Tls. 11.70 to 12.10; Lastings, Tls. 10.90 to 11.20; Long Ells, Tls. 5.60 to 5.90.

FOOCHOW.—The following sales were reported:—1,400 pieces 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings, $3.11 per piece; 2,000 pieces 7 lbs. T-Cloth, from $2.37 to 2.62 per piece; 1,000 picce 6 lbs. T-Cloth, at $2.10 per piece. Quotations are: 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings, $3.10 to 3.15; 7 lbs. do., $2.40 to 2.80; 6 lbs. do., $2.10 to 2.15. Lead: Nominal at 7¼ for large pigs, and $6¾ to 7 for small.

HONG KONG.—The interval had been one of marked inactivity in the market for manufactured imports. Dealers had not shown the slightest disposition to come forward, and stocks in hand were becoming very unwieldy. The trade which had generally been active at this season of the year was entirely wanting. Grey Shirtings: No change to report. Market very dull; sales small. Rates showed a weakening tendency. 6 lbs., $2.40; 7 lbs., $2.60; 8/4 lbs., $2.85 to 2.90; 9½ to 10 lbs., $3.65 to 3.90. About 1,190 pieces sea damaged 8/4 lbs. placed at $2.77 to 2.86. T-Cloths: Market continued in the most unsatisfactory position. Prices lower, and the tendency downward. Sales, 6 lbs., $1.90 to 1.95; 7 lbs., $2.10 to 2.15 for ordinary, $2.25 to 2.35 for Mexicans; 8lbs., $2.60 to 2.70. White Shirtings: There had been no business. Prices nominally lower. Stocks of all qualities heavy. Drills: Very little demand, prices again lower; English, 40 yards, $4.40 to 4.50, 30 yards, $3.10 to 3.15. Fancy Cottons: Assorted Chintzes in full supply, prices 5 cents lower; no business in Dyed Spots, Brocades, or Damasks. Woollens: Scarlet and Assorted Long Ells declined about 5 to 10 cents per piece; for all descriptions the market was dull and inactive, notwithstanding the very low prices ruling; Long Ells, $7.10 to 7.15; Figured Orleans, $4 to $5.50. Cotton Yarn: Fair demand, but market weak, with a decided downward tendency; Nos. 16/24, $138.50 to $142.50; Nos. 28/32, $144 to 150. Metals: A parcel of Nail Rod Iron, Nos. 1 to 6, sold at 2.35 per picul; some flat bars changed hands at $2.46 per picul; lead still very dull. The only sale had been of a lot of German quality at $6.10 per picul.

SINGAPORE.—The following is from Messrs. Boustead and Co.'s Circular:—There has been a rather better general inquiry for Cotton goods, but in the face of large supplies near at hand, holders are anxious to make sales, and values for almost all descriptions of Grey goods are lower. 39-inch Grey Shirtings: 8¼ lb. in very small supply, continue in inquiry, and worth $3 to 3.2½, stocks of this weight almost cleared; 7 lb. worth $2.50 to 2.52½, 6 lb. saleable to a small extent at $2.10; 45-inch in very small demand, values almost nominal, a sale of 8 lbs. reported at $2.77½. 36-inch White Shirtings: Common qualities still saleable; fine in limted inquiry; 45-inch worth $3.75 to 3.80. 45-inch White Cambrics: 24s, dull at $19½ to 20, 15/16s, placed at $31 to 31¾, other kinds quiet. 36-inch White Spots wanted at $3 to 3.05. 30-inch White Maddapollams very quiet at $21 to 21½. 33-inch Imitation Irish Linens saleable at $2.10 to 2.15, 32-inch Grey T-Cloths: 4½ lbs. sold to some extent at $1.45 to 1.47½; 5 lbs., in small supply and wanted at $1.57½ to 1.60; 6 lbs., inquired for at $1.87½ to 1.90; 7 lbs., dull at $2.05 to 2.10. 32-inch Grey Maddapollams: 3 lbs. sold at $21½ per corge. 30-inch Grey Drills: Both Dutch and English not inquired for. Grey Yarn: 18/24s. dull, and not worth more than $115 to 117½. 30s in less inquiry; 40s also in less request and worth about $142½ to 145. Turkey Red Yarn: Sales at $145 to 146 and 154, for 10 and 12 lbs. Glasgow Dye respectively. Other colours quiet at about last rates. 32-inch Turkey Red Cambrics very dull, rates nominally unaltered. Woollens: Small sales reported of Scarlet Long Ells at $6 for 8 lbs., and $8 for 12 lbs. of Scarlet Bombazettes at $3.20, and Assorted Camlets at $16¾.

PENANG.—Grey Shirtings, 6 lbs., not in stock—quotation nominal clearances of 7 lbs. at $51½ to 51¾, and of 8½ lbs. $61½ to 60½ per corge. 45-inch, no transactions. Long Cloths out of stock—quotations nominal. Madapollams, 2¾ to 3 lbs., sold to arrive at $22 per corge; 5½ lbs., no sales. T-Cloths in very light stock; business in 7 lbs. at $43 and 43½ per corge; quotations for other weights nominal. White Shirtings, Medium to Fine, $62½ to 82 per corge; Low qualities not in stock and in some demand. White Cambrics, Low to Middling, have had a few buyers at former prices; Low sold to arrive at $21½, Middling at $27 per corge. No demand for fine qualities; of Nos. 15/16 sales reported at $32½ and 32 per corge. Grey Sheetings in weak inquiry; small sales only at $88 and 92 per corge, according to weight and quality. The small stock of American Drill cleared at $80 per corge. Turkey Red Cambrics, lighter weights, in fair demand; sales reported of 2 lbs. 8 oz. at $47 and 46; 2 lbs. 4 oz., at $43½; 2 lbs., at $39; 1 lb. 15 oz., at $38 and 38½ per corge. Yarn a little more in inquiry; sales of Grey Mule No. 16 to 24, at $122; No. 24, at $129; No. 30, at $136; and No. 40, at $146 per bale of 400 lbs.

STRAITS, JAVA, CHINA, AND JAPAN EXPORTS.

TEA.

SHANGHAI.—Black: There had been an entire absence of business during the interval. Green: Settlements amounted to 2,285 half-chests, principally Shanghai-packed leaf, at Tls. 23 to 26 per picul. The unsold stock was 6,259 half-chests, common and inferior descriptions.

HANKOW, FOOCHOW AND KIUKIANG.—There had been no business at these ports.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. C. J. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular:—Transactions during the fortnight amount to about 400 bales, consisting mostly of Taysaam sorts (exclusive of 239 bales previously estimated, which went forward by the French steamer). Prices all round have been rather easier as the dealers seem anxious to have the season finished, and n Taysaams a decline of Tls. 5 to 10 may be quoted.

STRAITS PRODUCE.

SINGAPORE.—Malacca Tin: Better demand, but almost wholly on American account, 1,000 piculs resmelted Junk Ceylon sold at $29.90 to 30.30, and about 1,200 piculs Malacca at $30 to 30.30. Gambier in more demand but very little business done, dealers declining to make further engagements at the late decline; about 6,000 piculs contracted for at $2.95, but that price refused at the close, Black Pepper: Very little procurable, about 2,000 piculs sold in small lots at $8.70 to 75. White, some small parcels brought $11.15 to 11½. Sago Flour: An arrival of 1,000 piculs Sarawak brought $2.40. Pearl Sago in more request, about 4,000 piculs sold at $2.95 for small grain. Tapioca not in much inquiry, worth $4. Buffalo Hides more plentiful, purchases at $10.30 to 50. Gum Damar rather dull, good quality worth $16. Rattans unusually scarce, small arrivals bring high prices. India Rubber without arrival, worth $43½ to 44. Gutta Percha: Arrivals of good quality brought $120.

PENANG.—The produce market had not been well supplied with many of the staple articles, and prices had been slightly advanced, there having been a fair demand. Tin was bought after departure of last mail in small quantities at $29½ to 29¾, but the great bulk of the purchases had been made at $30 per picul, which was the closing price. Black Pepper had arrived both from East and West Coast, but quotations of West Coast were nominal, as arrivals had been previously contracted for. Acheen in fair supply, and taken at $8 to 8.05 per picul; quotations of White nominal. Sugar: Penang had not moved; of Chinese manufacture there had been purchases on the spot of picked lots at prices ranging from $3.15 to 3 per picul. Fish Maws: Arrivals secured at $71 for whole, and $91 for split per picul. Gum Benjamin in considerable supplies; only one purchase of No. 2 T. T. and Co. at $20½ per picul. Gutta Percha in fair supply but meeting a brisk demand had advanced, arrivals taken at $116 to 122 per picul. Small arrivals of India Rubber taken at $41 and 41½ per picul.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

TEA.

There is a steady and fairly active demand for all kinds, but more especially for Green Teas, of which description extensive sales have been effected. Prices show little or no change from those last given, having been steadily maintained throughout.

We note the following sales:—3,040 half-chests Greens per Sarah Nicholson, 2,878 per City of Perth, 584 per N. B. Palmer, 904 per E. Dougall, 529 per W. E. Gladstone, 1,476 half-chests Oolongs per Springfield, 555 per Alexander, 2,000, vessel not named, 3,200 half-chests Japans per Havelock, and 200 half-chests Souchong per Game Cock.

SILK.

Messrs. O'Donoghue and Howell report as follows:—The demand for all descriptions of fine Silks has been active, and parcels on offer have been taken by the manufacturers very freely. This is in some measure owing to the limited supply here and the continued strength of the London market, where good Silks seem equally scarce. Re-reeled Haineens and Tsatlees continue to be the favourites, and command full figures, the supply of both being very small. Re-reeled Canton, extra fine and good quality, is not in large stock, and sells rapidly. Common Canton is somewhat of a drug, and neglected at quotations. Usual Reel Tsatlees are very scarce; the best qualities still fetch full figures. Usual Reel Taysaams of good quality are in demand. Japans are not in stock and not wanted, with the exception of Atchezan, late arrivals of which have sold freely. In consequence of the increased demand for Raw Silk for the weaving business, we look forward with confidence to a large trade in the fall, and trust that the order now going forward will have the effect of bringing to our market a better assortment of all classes of Silk than heretofore we have received. There can be no reason, considering the prices our manufacturers are willing to pay, why they should not have the best Silk that the China market can afford. Such Silk is always sooner or later appreciated, and will, we think, tend in a great measure to strengthen and improve a branch of trade which may ultimately prove a very large and important one.

The following are the quotations:—Tsatlee, No, 1, none; 2, $10.75; 3, $10.50; 4 and 5, $8.50 to 9. Taysaam, No. 1, $9 to 9.25; 2, $8.75; 3, $68.25 to 8.50; 4 and 5, $6.75 to 7. Canton, re-reeled, good, $7.50; fair, $7 to 7.25; medium, $6.25 to 6.50. Tsatlee, re-reeled, good, $10.50 fair, $10; medium, $9 to 9 50. Taysaam, do., none. Haineen, do., good best, $10.75; fair, $9.50 to 10. Canton, do., extra fine, $8.50. Maibash, none. Koshio, $9 to 9.25. Atchezan, $8.50 to 9.25. Ida, Sodai, and Oshio, none.

COFFEE.—The market for Brazil is still quiet, without change in prices. In East India there has been increased business, and we note the following sales:—25,000 mats Java to arrive from Padang per Sacramento, 3,233 mats Singapore per Siam arrived at Boston, 927 bags Manila and 150 bags Ceylon; the prices paid are not reported, but are understood to be on the basis of the current quotations, which are without change, viz—Java 21½c. to 22c.; Singapore, 18c. to 19c.; Manila, 16c. to 17c.; Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19c. gold. The stock of Manila on the 1st June was estimated at 1,700 bags, against 6,769 bags on June 1, 1869; of Java (Government) at 850 bags, against 2,235 bags; of Java mats, 35,918, against 41,808 bags; of Ceylon, 9,157 bags, against 1,500 bags; of Singapore 1,000 bags against nil.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 20c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.; Cassia, $1.25 gold.

FIRE CRACKERS.—The activity continues and rates are again higher; the sales have been 18,000 boxes, Extra No. 1, at $2 50 to 2.60 cash mostly at the latter price, and 3,000 boxes on private terms. At the close holders are asking $2.65.

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 4½c. gold (duty paid); stock small.

HEMP.—The sales are reported of 7,200 bales Manila, to arrive via England, per Belvidere, at 14c. gold, 60 days' prompt, and of 2,800 bales, per Adelina, on private terms. The stock of Manila on the 1st June was estimated at 11,613 bales, against 2,802 bales at the corresponding date of 1869, and 17,664 bales in 1868. The imports into the United States from the 1st January to the 30th April, 1870, were 53,100 bales, against 47,471 bales during the corresponding period of last year, and the quantity afloat on the 30th April was 22,988 bales, against 10,829 bales at the same date last year.

INDIGO.—The market for Manila has become quiet, and about 25 cases have been sold at $1.15 to 1.30 currency, showing a slight decline.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $8 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is $1 to 2.25 currency (duty paid.

RICE.—There is still a good inquiry for Rangoon, both for export and home consumption, but the stock being nearly exhausted, the business has for the most part been in parcels afloat; the sales amount to about 11,750 bags at $2.93¾ to 3.37½ gold in bond, and $7 to 7.25 currency duty paid, showing an advance in prices.

SPICES.—The activity in Nutmegs, noticed in our last, continues, and the market has been excited, with a very large business. The movement is based on the short crop advices, light stocks in the English and Continental markets, and higher prices there as well as at the places of production. The transactions embrace about 3,000 cases and 100 casks, including all to be had here and to arrive, beside some invoices by vessels not yet begun to load; prices are higher, and are firm at $1.07½ to 1.10 gold. In other Spices there has been a steady business, and we note sales, in lots of 25 to 30 cases—Mace, $1.22½ to 1.25; 400 bales Cassia, 47c.; 250 do. Cloves, 25¾c. to 26c.; 800 to 900 bags Singapore Pepper, 27c.

SUGAR.—The active tone of the market is steadily maintained, but there is still an absence of business in East India.

TIN.—The business in Straits has been somewhat smaller than of late, but prices are firm at the recent advance. The sales comprise 1,800 slabs Straits at 35½c. to 36c., 2,000 slabs afloat at 35½c. to 35½ 50 slabs Banca at 44c., and 150 slabs afloat at 40c. gold.

Mr. E. Mellish's Hong Kong Circular remarks:—During the short interval that has elapsed since the departure of last mail, very little business has been done in Sterling Exchange, and rates have remained unaltered, except that the tendency of the market is towards higher rates. The amount of locally drawn Private Paper at this season is of course extremely small. Tenders were invited for H.M. Treasury Bills at 30 days' sight, and offers at 4s. 5⅞d. and 4s. 6d. were accepted. The demand for remittance has been for the most part supplied by Bank Bills. Estimated amount of business—Bank paper, £90,000; private bills, £90,000 to £100,000; rupees, three lakhs.

SIR R. ALCOCK ON THE CHINA CONVENTION.

A PARLIAMENTARY paper issued this day (China, No. 10, 1870) contains a lengthy "Memorandum" by Sir R. ALCOCK on the various memorials presented to Lord CLARENDON against the ratification of the new Convention with China. A detailed notice of this document must be reserved for our next issue; for the present we must be content to note that the writer classifies all the arguments of the merchants, and combats them more or less vigorously; and that he concludes by stating that the Convention, as it stands, is very disappointing to the Chinese, but that it has proved "easier to induce them to accept their disappointment, and to move forward in the path of progress, than to persuade British merchants to rest satisfied with anything short of their demands. It is still a question for Her MAJESTY'S Government to decide (says Sir RUTHERFORD) whether, in the presence of such an irreconcilable difference of opinion, they will force the proposed Convention on the merchants, even though it has been entered into solely for their benefit. Lord CLARENDON, in sending a copy of this memorandum to the Committee of London Merchants and the various Chambers of Commerce that have memorialised, says his object is not to invite further controversy, but simply to ascertain whether it alters the views they have already expressed.

THE JAPANESE MINT.

A PARAGRAPH in the City Article of The Times announces, as something new, that the Japanese have purchased the Hong Kong Mint, that they have set it up at Osaka, and that they are about to issue a Japanese dollar to replace their old coinage; all which intelligence appeared months ago in our paper. The Times, however, adds another piece of information which was not likely to appear in these columns, inasmuch as it is ludicrously incorrect. The Hong Kong Mint, it says, "was established five or six years ago at great expense by the British Government, but sold to the Japanese in "consequence of the want of success attending the coinage of "British dollars in China." Unfortunately for the colonists, the undeniably heavy loss entailed by the establishment and subsequent abandonment of the Mint fell, not on the British Government, but on the unlucky tax-payers of Hong Kong. The Mint is likely to be soon in a state of activity; by next mail bar silver to the value of £223,700 is being sent out for coinage.

BANKRUPTCY COURT.

RE GEORGE MELBOURN.

This was a sitting for examination and discharge in the case of George Melbourn, merchant, late of Leadenhall-street and of Batavia, Java, trading in partnership with W. Lichtenberg and R. P. Tolson. The case has been before the Court since March, 1869.

The liabilities are stated at £116,255; assets, £10,882; bad and doubtful debts, £12,831; liabilities not expected to rank against the estate, £5,8702. A proof tendered on behalf of the bankrupt's wife for a large amount under a settlement gave rise to a long discussion. Eventually it was rejected; and Mr. Bagley, on behalf of the assignees, called attention to the voluminous accounts filed by the bankrupt, and which had been prepared with the assistance of accountants specially appointed for the purpose. The bankrupt had engaged in transactions in cotton, sugar, and almost every kind of produce, and although his indebtedness was so large, the only asset actually available was a sum of £4,000 realised by sale of the bankrupt's furniture, which was of the most costly description. He also appeared to have had large transactions in stocks and shares, and it would be necessary to have a lengthened examination of the bankrupt, in order that all the facts of the case might be brought before the Court. Under these circumstances, it was suggested that the more convenient course would be to examine the bankrupt at a private sitting, as the examination would occupy at least a whole day. Mr. Brough, for the bankrupt, said that he had always been, and still was, ready to afford all possible information. He hoped the Court would not sanction needless delay, and asked that the case might proceed.

The Registrar said it was a case in which the assignees were entitled to further time to investigate the accounts, as transactions of very considerable magnitude were involved. He thought it would be more convenient to have a separate meeting for the examination of the bankrupt, and he appointed the 30th instant for that purpose, the present sitting being adjourned until the 11th July.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite. The Civil Service Gazette remarks:—"The singular success which Mr. Epps has attained by his homœopathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any experimentalist. By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in tin-lined packets labelled—JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London.

THE MAHOMEDAN SUCCESSES IN CHINA.

FEW readers who possess the slightest acquaintance with the recent history of China felt any surprise at the news lately published in this country of a serious reverse to the Imperial arms. Rebellion however in China has so long been chronic, and the paragraphs in our Eastern contemporaries, purporting to describe the varying fortunes of the opposing parties, have so uniformly been found open to amendment or denial, that most home residents interested in Chinese matters have become indifferent to reports which seem rather to have emanated from the inner consciousness of the writers than from reliable information. "Wolf" has been cried so long and so often that the oft-deceived hearers refuse to credit the alarm when it is no longer a joke. Conscious of the existence of this feeling, we can scarcely wonder that the remarkable successes of the Mahomedan rebels in Shense, chronicled in recent issues of the China journals, have attracted but little attention in this country. The details just received, however, leave but little doubt that a serious danger is menacing the Dragon Throne. The news which has been already published in the London and China Telegraph of the total defeat of the Imperialist army, organised by the Governor-General TSOH-TSUNG-TANG, but under the immediate command of General LEW-SUNG-SHAN, has been confirmed, and some curious details are given of the means whereby this was brought about. It would appear that the Mahomedan leaders, impressed with a sense of the heavy odds in favour of General LEW, had entered into negotiations with his superior, TSOH, wherein they offered to capitulate upon condition of themselves and their followers being allowed to retire unharmed to their native districts. General LEW however seems to have been animated by a treacherous determination very similar to that which prevailed with the Greek Colonel when he attacked the brigands, and so led to the sad tragedy which but the other day excited the indignation of civilised Europe. He concluded that the rebels would, while negotiations were in progress, be off their guard, and accordingly attempted a surprise. The rebels, warned by friends in the Imperialist ranks, were however fully prepared, and LEW earned the reward of his intended bad faith in his own death and the total defeat and destruction of his army.

Nor is this all. We learn from authority which we believe is reliable that the Mahomedans, exulting in their success, have refused to reopen negotiations except upon terms which would involve the acknowledged dismemberment of the Empire, whose proudest boast is its long-preserved unity, which rebellions from within and troubles from without have hitherto failed to destroy. It is stated that a proposition has actually been addressed to the Imperial Government, urging it to acknowledge the independence of Honan, Kansuh, and Shanse, with a threat that in case of refusal war will be made upon the neighbouring and yet loyal provinces. The success which could embolden any rebel leader to make such a proposal must have been somewhat remarkable, and says much for the importance of the movement. We do not for a moment suppose that the Government will listen to any such demands, but the danger which threatens it is none the less imminent. Scattered throughout the length and breadth of the unwieldy Empire which owns the nominal sway of the Chinese Emperor are hundreds of thousands of vagabonds, remnants of the various bands of Taipings, Nienfei, and other insurrectionary bodies, who would rally round the standard of any leader who promised them plunder and free living. But even assuming that the rebels were prevented from spreading beyond the now disaffected provinces, their pacification will be a work of no ordinary difficulty. It is not merely to match Imperialists against Mahomedan troops; a hostile country has to be penetrated, of which every inhabitant will fight against the detested Manchoo with a zeal such as the fanatical creed of the Koran can alone inspire.

The early history of the Mahomedan settlements in the Western Provinces presents an instance of the curious reversal of ordinary conditions which seems to meet us at every turn in the Middle Kingdom. In other countries the Mahomedan won his entrance by the sword; in China he settled (about A.D. 755) at the free invitation of its then ruler. While the tendency in other countries inhabited by the followers of the Prophet has been to degenerate from the ancient warlike standard, the reverse has been the case in the Celestial Empire—the quiet settler became the troublesome subject, and at length the open rebel. And now, when the crescent is no longer formidable in the West, it is actually menacing the integrity of the most ancient and extensive empire of the Far East. Yet more singular even than this is the strange fact that, while in the West Jews and Christians alike have stood aloof from the Mahomedan, who regarded them with a hatred too deep to admit of bare association with the "Infidel," the descendants of the Jewish sect which flourished in China at the time of MARCO POLO'S travels thither have actually been absorbed into the Mahomedan population—so, at least, say many who are deemed authorities on the subject—until a Jewish physiognomy has become a distinguishing characteristic of the tribe. And with all this, the feud between the Mahomedan and the Chinaman proper has deepened from generation to generation until we find that a popular Chinese author lays down the following as the course which should be adopted towards the hated Mussulman:—"If you "treat him with kindness and courtesy he believes that he is "feared, and becomes arrogant; if you treat him with "hauteur and severity he becomes respectful through fear "and is easily managed." The recent Mahomedan insurrections have been suppressed with ruthless severity, and this may in part account for the deep-seated feeling of hatred with which the Moslem regards the Chinese Government. Still, there is a fanatical feeling at the bottom of the rebellion which owes its origin to religious bigotry, and the Chinese, if they be wise, will not undervalue the magnitude of the occasion. Should the Mahomedan arms be successful, a vast change will necessarily ensue in the status of the Empire, which must eventually affect all foreign relations with the people of China. When the inland trade is affected injuriously—when it is found that opium and grey shirtings, silk and tea, suffer in their import or export, foreign readers of the China papers will perhaps find their political news interesting. As it is, we have no hesitation in saying that there is much in the movement to attract the attention of thoughtful men, be they missionaries or merchants, officials or visitors.

OUR readers will be aware of the expedition of Major SLADEN to explore the Bhamo route from Burmah to Talifoo, China, and of his late return. During an absence of seven months the party could not advance more than 120 miles, i.e., to Momien, which is 7,000 feet above the sea level. The report of his survey was promised by the India-office to be presented to the House of Commons, and although it reached that department (in print) nine months since it has not only not been presented to the House, but we understand that the whole of the copies have been suppressed.

RECENT news from Spain contains an item of considerable interest to our readers; it is no less than that the Spanish Government have decided to grant a subsidy to a line of steamers from Barcelona to Manila. From Portugal we hear that reinforcements or relief troops are to be despatched shortly by a transport, via the Suez Canal.

THE OPIUM TRADE.

THE Calcutta correspondent of The Times writes as follows:—"Sir R. ALCOCK's Convention has sacrificed half a "million of the Indian revenue without India being even "consulted." This is a grave charge. It imputes to the British Minister a violation not only of the rules of official courtesy, but of the requirements of public policy. Can the same be said as to the clauses in the Convention which, by shutting the southern port, injured the trade of Hong Kong? Will some independent member rise in Parliament and ask for the correspondence (if any) between the Minister and the Foreign-office and the representatives of the Indian and Colonial interests? Or will Sir R. ALCOCK come forward and contradict the assertion?

MR. RYLANDS, the infatuated economist who has persuaded himself that the saving of the country depends on a wholesale cutting down of naval, diplomatic, and consular expenditure, especially in China, has been distinguishing himself again. Having sufficiently badgered Lord CLARENDON during the noble lord's examination before the committee of which he is unhappily a member, Mr. RYLANDS has returned to the charge in the House of Commons. Mr. OTWAY, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, instead of administering a well-deserved snubbing, seemed inclined to humour our rabid reformer, and graciously intimated the intention of Her MAJESTY'S Government to make a reduction of nearly £10,000 per annum in the China consular establishments. Nothing is said of reductions elsewhere, so it seems that the China establishments, being conveniently remote, are to bear the brunt of this sudden mania for retrenchment. But how is this to be reconciled with the fact that student interpreters are being engaged and sent out in larger numbers than ever? We are given to understand that part of the reduction is to be effected by a clean sweep of all the Formosa establishments —contingent, of course, on the Chinese giving some equivalent for them elsewhere. A further portion is to be saved by reducing the expenditure on Consular buildings, and there is a possibility of some of the Consular allowances being attacked, but we trust this will not be done, for if so the value of the service in China will be seriously impaired, at a time when its efficiency islikely to be of greater importance than ever.

WE are not surprised to hear that the registration nuisance has once more raised a strong opposition among the residents at Shanghai, and we heartily commend the spirit of those gentlemen who, by way of a practical protest against the iniquitous tax, have carried their resistance to the very threshold of the Consular gaol. It is monstrous that so vexatious an exaction should continue to be levied, and the best way to convince the Home Government of this would be to send a memorial, numerously signed, to the House of Commons, seeing that the Executive Government continues wilfully blind to the injustice of the regulation thus strictly enforced. How can we consistently look a Mandarin in the face and reproach him with the "squeezing" system universally practised by his class, when our own Consuls are annually inflicting a palpable squeeze of five dollars a head on British subjects in China? That it is convenient and desirable to keep a register of the British subjects residing at each port cannot be denied; but, once registered, an annual visit to the Consulate, or the presentation of a printed form without any fee or expense, ought to be sufficient. Just at present, when the only result of being enrolled as a British subject would appear to be the certainty of a less amount of protection than is enjoyed by almost any other nationality, the case seems doubly hard. The opposition, however, must be better organised, or it will do no good.

WE observe that the local papers in China are still restless on the question of the successor to Sir R. ALCOCK, and now take a wider range of surmise, including our present representative at Washington and Athens. We have already stated that it is customary for the retiring Minister to have a year's leave, and his successor is not named for some time after his return. We do not expect any decision to be arrived at for several months.

NOTICES appear in the Gazette that the QUEEN has approved of the appointment of Mr. LUDWIG BEYER as Consul for Holland at Hong Kong, and that Mr. W. H. YOUNG has been appointed a student interpreter in China.

THE North German Correspondent states that the Government of the United States and that of Great Britain have accepted the proposal of the North German Confederation to engage in a common action against the Chinese pirates. "The fleets of the three nations," it adds, "will consequently take "part in a general plan of operations, which will doubtless "be more effective than their separate action has been. As "the Chinese Government is chiefly interested in the matter, "it will be permitted if it pleases to join in these endeavours "to extirpate the pirates."

MR. C. A. WINCHESTER has resigned his appointment as Her Majesty's Consul at Shanghai, the reason being, we regret to say, the impaired state of his health, which would render a return to such a climate dangerous. Lord CLARENDON, in accepting Mr. WINCHESTER'S resignation, has acknowledged in handsome terms his long and efficient services, and has promised that he shall be placed on the most favourable footing as regards a retiring pension.

WE believe that the intention of raising a subscription in this country, in aid of the relatives of the unfortunate sufferers by the loss of the American corvette Oneida off Japan, has been abandoned.

SILK AND SILKWORM EGGS.

The silk breeders in France are now fully employed, and the reports are encouraging although not uniform. The great heats which we have had have brought out the great mass of worms which were behindhand. In most cases the worms have accomplished their third change. Generally, the breeders say that if the season should only finish as well as it has commenced they will be well pleased, Great indignation is expressed against the dealers in what they themselves have the cool impudence to call "cards" or "seed of commerce eggs," which were sold at very low prices, and turned out utterly worthless, most of them not hatching at all, or producing miserable little worms, which died almost immediately. On the other hand, the cards supplied by a few respectable firms have succeeded admirably, and the worms from them are now in excellent condition. The drawback is that such eggs form but a small part of the whole; and many of these are of the trivoltin variety, which yield miserable cocoons.

The accounts from Italy are much the same as those of France, and the season is more advanced. More than a ton of bivolting cocoons were brought to the Naples market in the second week of May, and fetched f.4 to f.4.80 the kilogramme, double and stained cocoons included. Most of the purchases were for seed. The grand point is that mulberry leaves are abundant, and fetch from f.3 to f.5 the 2 cwt. In the provinces of Terre-de-labour and the Abruzzi, where the hatching is late, the leaves are to be had at 5d. to 6d. the cwt. These low prices have induced a greater number of persons than usual to try breeding upon a small scale, which generally succeeds best; but as they mostly depend on eggs of home or reproduced seed, the results are problematical. As regards the market, it is specially noted that the great mass of silk will not arrive at market this year till June and July, whereas last year it was a month earlier; consequently there will be less pressure in these markets, and probably higher prices will be obtained.

TEA WEIGHTS.

We noticed in our last a meeting, held at the offices of Messrs. Ashton and Co., to abolish the allowance now made by tea importers. The following is a list of the resolutions passed, and the various firms who have agreed to the same, which it will be seen includes nearly all the importers. We doubt if any alteration in trade customs has ever been so universally approved. A meeting of the brokers will be held shortly to arrange for the new regulations to be introduced into conditions of sale after 1st July. The opposition of the trade by way of associations and meetings continues. A meeting was held on the 10th (the resolutions will be found below), and a meeting of the retail trade is to be held this day. It is to be regretted that the prompt or time for clearance was not also abolished or reduced to fourteen days. We do not see why the importer should be three months out of his money and at the expense of warehousing:—

"Proposed by Mr. H. Matheson, and seconded by Mr. W. Walkinshaw:—

"'That the conditions under which tea is at present sold, by which, a greater weight is delivered to the purchaser than he pays for, are unfair to the importer, and that it is proper and desirable, therefore, that the terms of sale should be amended.'

"Proposed by Mr. A. Smith, and seconded by Mr. G. Gibb:—

"'That, to this end, tea be sold on Customs' weights and tares, the fairness of which is secured by their being taken in conjunction by the officers of Customs and those of the dock companies or warehouse-keepers, and that no allowance be made for draught.'

"Proposed by Mr. Reiss, and seconded by Mr. E. Deacon:—

"'That the prompt be, as now, three months, to be computed from the date of contract, settlement being made, for the sake of convenience, on the Friday following the expiration of the prompt.'

"Proposed by Mr. Chapman, and seconded by Mr. A. Thorne:—

"'That these resolutions be printed for the information of the trade, the concurrence of importing houses not present at the meeting, including those of Indian tea, being invited, and that the conditions as set forth be acted on with respect to all tea which shall be sold on and after the 1st of July next."

MEETING OF WHOLESALE DEALERS.

"1. Moved by Mr. Dummett (Peek Brothers and Co.), seconded by Mr. Salmon (Moffatt and Co.)—

"'That this meeting deeply regrets that the importers of tea, at a meeting held by them on the 23rd of May, but not reported in The Times till yesterday, should have resolved to alter the conditions of sale of tea without consulting the trade, who are as much entitled to determine the conditions on which they will buy as the importers are to fix the terms on which they will sell produce.'

"'That we more strongly object to the proposed alteration, inasmuch as the allowance for draught forming an element in the merchant's calculation when purchasing teas in China, its abolition will be solely to the advantsge of Chinamen, and by no means to the benefit of the importers; while it will inflict a serious injury upon the retailers and small wholesale dealers in this country.'

"4. Moved by Mr. Holborn (R. M. Holborn and Sons), seconded by Mr. Wilson (Wilson and Bellenger)—

"'That the allowance of draught has been made from the first existence of the trade. The retail of the article has been based upon it, and the members engaged in it are not prepared to relinquish their claim upon the established usage.'

P. AND O. COMPANY'S MEETING.

The HALF-YEARLY MEETING of this company was held at the company's offices on the 7th inst.; Mr. Hadow in the chair. The report issued was as follows:—

The Australia was launched on the 5th April, and so much progress has been made in the fitting of her machinery and internal accommodation that the ship is expected to be ready for active service in about a month. The builders of the Australia, Messrs. Caird and Co., of Greenock, were also the successful competitors for the construction of the two new ships, of about 3,000 tons each, referred to in the last annual report. Satisfactory progress has been made with these vessels, and they have been named respectively the Khédive and the Mirzapore.

Owing to the fracture of one of her cylinders, while on a voyage between Suez and Bombay, the Nubia became temporarily unfitted for the mail service, and as this vessel is in some respects more suited for the Mediterranean than the Eastern stations, it was decided to bring her to England for the necessary repairs, by way of the Suez Canal, the expense of this operation being met by the freight on a cargo of cotton, and by the conveyance of some passengers.

The Delhi is being fitted with new boilers at Southampton, and a poop, which is being added to this ship, will, by altering the disposition of her passenger accommodation, materially increase her capacity for cargo. The Delhi is intended for the Bombay station, and will be despatched via the Suez Canal as soon as practicable, relieving the Salsette, which will come to England by the same route, for service in the Mediterranean. The Madras is also being fitted with a poop, and is receiving new boilers and a general overhaul at Bombay. The Bengal having, by reason of age, become no longer adapted for the present requirements of the mail service, has been ordered home. She left Bombay on 23rd ultimo, with a cargo of cotton for Liverpool, via the Suez Canal. The Percursor, used of late years as a store-ship at Suez, has been sold for breaking up.

In reference to the collision between the Bombay and the United States corvette Oneida, the directors are well assured that the whole body of the proprietors will share the profound regret they feel in adverting to a calamity in which one of the company's ships accidentally bore a part. They would wish to give to these words of their report the power to bring home to the mind of every American citizen, and especially to every household now mourning the loss of relatives or friends in consequence of the foundering of the Oneida, the conviction that the members of this corporation are imbued with feelings of the deepest sympathy towards them, and that the misfortune is deplored with the most heartfelt sorrow. The sincerity of this expression of condolence can be in no degree diminished by the fact that the circumstances which led to and attended the collision are at present regarded from a somewhat different point of view by those most interested; but while the directors refrain from entering upon details on this occasion, they venture to express a belief that closer investigation can only result in greater unanimity of opinion, and the establishment of undoubted truth as regards the history of this sad event.

The foregoing particulars of the movements of the fleet record the use of the Suez Canal by some of the steamers, under circumstances much to the company's advantage. The process of placing new ships on the Indian stations by way of the Cape of Good Hope, or of bringing a vessel home from those stations, was not only a tedious, but a costly operation, as the accounts of past years would testify. The Australia will in all probability be despatched to the East via the canal, and will thus be brought into active service in less than a month after leaving England. On the more important question of the time when it may be for the advantage of the company to adopt the canal as the route for the company's weekly steamers, the directors can only say that they continue to watch its navigation with the utmost care, but that as contractors for the mail service they have to bear in mind that at present the canal could only be substituted for the Egyptian railway at a sacrifice of time. This part of the question has recently been made the subject of an interesting report from the surveyor of the post-offices in the Mediterranean to the Postmaster-General, and Lord Hartington has very courteously furnished the directors with a copy of the document.

The directors would take this opportunity of saying a few words on the Brindisi route, in favour of which a memorial has recently been in circulation. Under the provisions of the mail contract Brindisi may be substituted for Marseilles on proper notice, and on such terms of payment as may be mutually agreed upon between the Postmaster-General and the company; but the Marquis of Hartington is reported to have stated, in reply to a question in the House of Commons, on the 20th ult., that "since last October mails had been despatched weekly to India, China, and other countries, via Brindisi, and had also been received weekly by the same route." It would therefore appear that Her Majesty's Government do not contemplate the immediate adoption of further measures in regard to this line.

It is gratifying to the directors to report that, notwithstanding the competition to which the company is now subjected in many quarters, the financial result of its business for the six months ending March 31 last has been sufficiently favourable to justify them in recommending the declaration of a dividend of 3 per cent., free of income-tax, for the half-year.

The CHAIRMAN in proposing the adoption of the report, said that following the order of subjects laid down in the report, he would first congratulate the meeting upon the fact that the company's fleet had been well maintained, and was in a state of great efficiency. The half year under consideration, although it had been a laborious one for the directors and the whole staff of the company, left very little for comment now that the struggle was over. The Australia, which had just been launched, would be a welcome addition. They hoped she would be at Southampton in a month. She would be the best ship in the fleet, and, whilst carrying a larger tonnage and a greater amount of passengers, had been built with all modern improvements and economies, would draw no more water, and consume no more coal—but rather less—than the ships comprising the present fleet. The two other ships building were being constructed much upon the same plan, and there was no doubt that with these additions to its fleet the company would be able to contend successfully against all the competition which was springing up in various quarters. He desired to imitate the report, and be as reticent as consistent with the gravity of the facts in connection with the collision between the company's steamer Bombay and the United States ship of war the Oneida, and he would simply say that the directors only asked for calm and dispassionate inquiry, which they believed would show that the company was not in fault, and must be held blameless in the matter. It was to be regretted that so much had been said and so much had been written upon the question, the more especially as what had been so said and written was of a character tending rather to inflame men's minds than assist them in arriving at a just and fair conclusion.

In reference to the Suez Canal, whilst desirous of paying all honour and giving all credit to the genius of the man who had constructed it in the face of difficulties, both financial and political, which would have deterred other men, yet it was proper to inform the shareholders that its management was not as yet of that perfect nature to be desired, nor was the Canal itself so perfect as to admit of the large ships of this company passing through it without fear of impediment. The French company had used it, and the result was not what had been anticipated, and it would to all appearances be some little time before this company could avail itself of the Canal, as the advantages it offered were, to say the least, doubtful. One of the great difficulties this company had to contend against was that it was not like an independent trader who could send his ships by any route he pleased as an experiment, and to whom a day more or less was not so great an object. This company, having to carry the mails, did not calculate by day, but by hours, and often minutes, and had to time the arrival of the vessels at points where different routes or systems converged; and from the peculiarities of the Canal they could not calculate with certainty upon the passage of the vessels and the time at which they would arrive at Suez. In reference to the matter the company had been favoured with a copy of the report of Her Majesty's inspector of the mails in the Mediterranean, the general result being that, on a comparison of the time occupied by one of the French mail packets which went through the Suez Canal and that taken by one of the packets of the Peninsular and Oriental Company which went by the old route, both leaving at the same time, there was a gain in point of time of twenty hours in favour of the old Alexandria route. The only way to utilise the Canal at present would be to have special steamers stationed at each end, and that would involve a capital outlay of at least £150,000. The board had a great deal of information in reference to the Canal from various sources, which the shareholders might rest assured would be turned to the best account in their interest. (Loud cheers.)

As to the Brindisi route, nothing definite had been settled. The Post-office sent out a small mail every week, and the only observation he need make in reference to it was that whenever the Postmaster-General called upon this company to carry the mails via Brindisi it would be quite prepared to do so. (Cheers.) Upon the whole, if the prospects of the company were not brilliant, they were good. Whilst he wished to guard against taking a too sanguine view, on the one hand, he wished it to be understood that it was far from his desire or purpose to say one word of a depreciatory character, or which would cause the shareholders to take a desponding view of the company's affairs. The new vessels would enable the company to stand against all opposition, and they would be built and equipped without making any call upon the shareholders. (Cheers.) He concluded by moving the adoption of the report.

Mr. J. Harris seconded the motion.

Dr. Beattie proceeded to offer some remarks in reference to the collision between the Bombay and the Oneida, during which he was frequently called to order; and, from the disfavour with which his observations were received, he was constrained to drop the subject; he thought the Board of Trade most unjust.

Mr. Campbell (an American) thought the shareholders had every reason to be satisfied with the results of the half year's working, and was pleased to hear that the company was in a position to combat successfully with all the the competition, which he knew to be very great, especially at the present juncture. In regard to the Oneida, he thought that as the United States representatives in Japan had submitted to the tribunal for investigating the case, the matter should drop, notwithstanding the feeling which existed in the United States; but he would like to know if the company intended any further action in the matter, to which the Chairman replied in the negative. Mr. Campbell would also suggest that Aden should be omitted in the passage between Suez and Bombay as a useless detention, to which the Chairman made no reply.

Mr. Jones gave one of his usual lengthy addresses, in which he was very frequently interrupted, but he recommended that shareholders who had not half-an-hour to spare for their interests should go away. He defended Captain Eyre, and considered the decision of the Board of Trade a monstrous injustice to this company. He called attention to the fact that owing to the high rates charged by the railways the company were actually paying freight from Liverpool to Alexandria, while their own ships went from Southampton half empty. This state of things was intolerable. He urged the directors to adopt Brindisi or any other suitable port which cut down time and opposition; in fact, to move with the times, and not stop at Marseilles, to see the trade go to other hands. He also wished to know if it were true that actions had been instituted against the company by relatives of those lost in the Carnatic, to which the chairman stated that an action was pending on behalf of a second-class passenger.

A Shareholder asked the chairman to explain how it was that, with an avowed desire to utilise the Suez Canal, this company was building larger ships, and with a greater tonnage.

The Chairman said the new ships were larger, would carry more tonnage or cargo, and more passengers; but being built with all the improvements of modern science they would consume no more coal—if as much—and certainly draw no more water than the ships composing the fleet at present—namely, about nineteen or twenty feet. (Cheers.)

The report was adopted, the dividend declared, and a vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the business of the meeting.

The directors at present comprise:—Patrick Douglas Hadow, Esq., chairman; James Allan, Esq., Henry Bayley, Esq., Thomas Stock Cowie, Esq., William Fane de Salis, Esq., John Ralph Engledue, Esq., Vice-Admiral Sir W. H. Hall, K.C.B., George Carleton L'Estrange, Esq., Hon. R. Leslie Melville, and Edward Thornton, Esq., C.B. The fleet consists of forty-nine steam ships of 93,305 tons, and steam tugs, besides coal and store hulks.

THE MESSAGERIES IMPERIALES.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the shareholders of the Messageries Imperiales has been held, under the presidency of M. Behic, chairman of the company. The report stated that the receipts of 1869 were 45,376,822f., and the expenses of working, of management, and the charges for assurances, interest of loans, &c., 40,092,048f., leaving a clear profit of 5,284,774f. This sum, after deduction for the reserve, enabled 45f. to be given per share, and left 70,535f. to be carried forward. The report stated that the value of the steamships (material naval) possessed by the company on 31st December last was 100,755,597f.; of stores, 12,991,154f.; of buildings, machinery, &c., 14,550,867f. Although the dividend declared was rather less than in 1868, the meeting expressed perfect satisfaction with the report. A shareholder inquired if it would not be easy to publish every month or every three months an account of the situation of the company, so as to enable interested parties to watch its operations; but M. Behic explained that it was not possible to present such an exposé at short intervals, owing to months being required to get precise information about the transactions and stores at a vast distance. The explanation of the chairman was considered perfectly satisfactory.

The directors have made a call of the 250f. due on the shares of the issue of August, 1868, and requires it to be paid from 1st to 10th July.

THE BRITISH-INDIAN COMPANY.

The report of this company states:—

The directors have the pleasure to report that the general business of the company has been conducted satisfactorily, and the mail services with efficiency and regularity, except in the case of the loss of the Cheduba, in May last. The year has been one of dulness in trade everywhere. This company, in common with other similar undertakings, has suffered from that cause, and the earnings from general traffic have not equalled those of some previous years. The result (as will be seen from the accompanying accounts) is that, although the directors recommend the customary dividend of 8 per cent. per annum, with a rateable bonus of £2 per share, a moiety of the bonus has been taken from the profit on the "insurance fund," but without reducing the amount at credit of that account at last balance.

The new arrangement with the managing agents came into operation on the 1st of January, 1869, and has been found to work favourably. The loss of the Cheduba is a casualty the directors deeply deplore; and they deemed it right to appropriate a moderate sum from revenue for the relief of the relatives of the company's servants lost in the vessel. The opening of the Suez Canal, by which a new and expeditious route is to be provided for general traffic between Europe and India, is likely to have an important bearing on the company's interests; but the interval is yet too short to permit of any decided opinion as to the effect it may have on the coasting trade of India. The subject is meantime receiving careful consideration, with a view to such arrangements as may appear best fitted to promote the interests of the company. Sir Frederick Arthur retires from the board at this time, and offers himself for re-election.

DIRECTORS.—Sir Frederick L. Arthur, Bart., W. P. Andrew, Esq., George P. Gunnis, Esq., James M. Hall, Esq., Robert Salmond, Esq., William Mackinnon, Esq.

LIGHTHOUSES FOR CHINA.

In a recent number we noticed the despatch of a light-ship ordered by the Chinese Government. We understand that a second one is now building, also that the lights for ten lighthouses have been ordered, and will shortly be shipped out for lighting the ports on the coast of China, including Chapel Island, Turnabout White Dogs, Lammocks, Shan-wei-shan, Woosung, Shantung, and Newchwang. The lights are to be of the best construction, and to be approved by the Trinity-house Inspector, Mr. James Douglas.

Monetary and Commercial.

Rumours are current of the intention of the Chinese to follow the example of the Japanese, and borrow a million from this market on the security of the Customs.

The Danish frigate Tordenskjold will sail to-day with the first portion of the Hong Kong and Shanghai submarine cable, on behalf of the "Great Northern Company." The Great Northern and Cella will sail in about a fortnight after. The company's chief agent in China, Lieutenant Suenson, is already at Hong Kong.

The vessels engaged in laying the Gibraltar, Lisbon, and Malta Cable have returned, and the line is now completed, giving entire communication by submarine cables to Bombay. A reduced scale of charges will be found in our advertising columns.

The directors of Hooper's Telegraph Works (Limited) have issued their report. It states that the first section, consisting of 1,098 miles of the China Cable, manufactured for the Great Northern Telegraph (China and Japan Extension) Company, has been completed, and paid for according to agreement, and is now being delivered to the company, by which it will be laid between Hong Kong and Shanghai during the autumn. The manufacture of the remaining 1,198 miles, being the second section for submersion between Possiet Bay and Shanghai, will be completed before the end of the year. Out of the profits already earned, after writing off the whole of the preliminary expenses, the directors recommend payment of an ad interim dividend, free of income-tax, of 5s. per share, being at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum on the average capital paid up to the 30th June. It is proposed that the call of £3 per share, which by the articles of association is payable on the 1st August, shall be deferred. The report also states that additional premises at West Ham, with extensive plant and machinery for insulating purposes, have been secured on advantageous terms.

Messrs. C. P. Henderson and Co.'s table of exports from the 1st January to the 31st May contains the following figures:—Plain Cottons, to China, 15,157 bales 2,569 cases; Printed Cottons, 496 bales; Cotton Yarn, 2,576 bales; Plain Cottons, to Japan, 1,741 bales 162 cases; Printed Cottons, 120 bales; Cotton Yarn, 3,450 bales.

In Holland, it seems, certain enterprises earn large dividends. The "Dutch Bank" of Amsterdam, established 1814, has given 19 9-10ths per cent. for 1869, and the Dutch Sugar Refining Company 29.

A petition for reducing the capital of Reuter's Telegram Company from £250,000 to £80,000 is pending before the Court of Chancery.

The following vessels have passed the Suez Canal:—Bolivar, Alonzo, Brightman, Volga, Souakin, Alexandre, Lavalley, Vixen, Apis, Cordova, Odessa, Delaware, Surbiton, India, Olinda, Neera, and H.M.S. Nassau.

An official communication from the Suez Canal Company states that the curve near Lake Timsah, which was found so inconvenient for the passage of ships, is being removed, and that other curves are being properly buoyed. Twelve vessels passed through the Canal from the 1st to the 6th instant. A ship called the Hermes has been chartered to load a cargo of cotton and grain at Ismailia for this country.

The annual meeting of the Ceylon Company will be held on the 21st inst. It is intended to propose altering the existing regulations of the company, by expunging from the articles of association the sixteenth and seventeenth clauses thereof, and substituting clauses authorising differences to be made between the members, both as regards amount and time in payment of any contribution to capital to be made by them on their shares, and authorising any payments made by any member by way of contribution to capital to be appropriated to any one or more of his shares in such a manner as may be agreed upon between him and the directors. A dividend of 7 per cent. for the year.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

The Produce Markets were closed for the Whitsuntide holidays, from the 4th to the 8th inst. There has consequently been but little business done since our last report.

TEA.

The following is from Messrs. Thompson's report:—

The holidays and discussions on the importers' alterations in the conditions of sale, have chiefly occupied the attention of the trade. Business has been very much restricted, and prices remain nominal.

Foochow Congous: At last public sale fair siftings were sold at 5½d. to 6¼d., and broken leaf at 7½d. to 8½d. per lb. Inferior common is still quoted at 9¾d. to 10d., and common to good common at 10½d. to 11¾d., at which rates a few sales have been made. Fair remains at 1s. per lb. In medium to fine grades we have nothing to report. Black Leaf Congous: A few small parcels of very low quality sold in public sale at 4d. to 6¾d. per lb., quotations for common at 10d. to 11d., and good common to fair, at 11½d. to 1s. 0½d., remain unaltered. The medium and fine grades are for the present neglected, and the few transactions reported are at rather easier rates. Tayshan Congous remain at last quotations. Souchongs: A parcel of fair at auction realised 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 0¾d. per lb. Oolongs continue neglected. Scented Teas: Common Canton Scented Caper has been sold at 7d. to 8d. per lb., and some very common and spurious at 4¾d. to 5d. per lb. In Green Teas we have no alteration to report. The China auctions on the 7th and 8th inst. comprised 12,649 packages, 8,607 packages being "without reserve." Prices realised were about equal to those ruling by private contract.

Messrs. Percival and Co.'s Circular remarks:—The market has been without any change of moment, prices have remained much as before, while the amount of business passing has been below the average, Epsom week and Whitsuntide having their usual influence; deliveries continue satisfactory.

Home consumption for London	1870.	1869.
from 1st Jan. to 31st May ...	33,368,000	32,172,000
Export do. do.	14,403,000	16,225,000
Sent coastwise do.	15,300,000	15,434,000
Total,	63,071,000	63,831,000

SILK.

Since last mail very little business has been done in the Silk market. In the beginning of the week a small inquiry for Tsatlees was apparent, but this has died away, and, as is usual at this period, general inactivity prevails. The reports on the European crop seem to point to a decrease of about 30 per cent. on last season's yield. This, however, has produced no effect, it having been very generally anticipated that such would be the out-turn. Quotations for both Chinas and Japans are unaltered; but offers are rather lower than those of last week, consequent, of course, on the inactivity.

COFFEE.

Large quantities of Plantation Ceylon were placed on offer at the opening of the market, for which there was but a limited demand, and for the portion sold lower rates were accepted than were ruling previously, the prices paid being—Triage and ordinary 48s. to 56s., small gray 55s. to 59s. 6d., low middling gray and dull 60s. to 64s., bold ditto 65s. to 70s. 6d., small coloury 60s. to 63s., middling ditto 64s. 6d. to 71s., good to fine middling bold 74s. to 79s., peaberry 75s. 6d. to 81s. A parcel of 468 bags Singapore was offered, and meeting no bids withdrawn, and 305 bags Manila were offered and sold, bold brown Java kind at 54s. to 55s. 6d., one lot at 61s. Of Native Ceylon 820 bags sold—small, 46s. 6d.; small good ordinary, 47s. 6d.; good ordinary, 48s. 6d.; bold, 51s.; peaberry, 55s. 6d. to 56s.—showing a decline on previous rates.

The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation, 303,452 cwt., against 290,650 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1869; Native, 32,519 cwt., against 36,370 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is 15,177 cwt. Plantation against 10,179 cwt., and 6,992 cwt. Native, against 19,454 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the twenty-two weeks ended June 4, 1870, was, of Ceylon, 12,756 tons, against 14,341 tons during the corresponding period of 1869; of all descriptions, 18,704 tons, against 22,877 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 4,566 tons, against 4,668 tons; of all descriptions, 7,749 tons, against 7,701 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 9,730 tons, against 10,013 tons; of all descriptions, 15,799 tons, against 18,144 tons. The stock on June 4 was, of Ceylon, 12,324 tons, against 10,555 tons; of all descriptions, 19,375 tons, against 16,252 tons.

SUGAR.

The market has opened with a very quiet tone, and only moderate sales have been effected, prices being occasionally easier, except for good refining and crystallised. Privately 3,634 bags low unclayed Manila, ex recent auctions, have been sold at 21s. 6d.; and 2,000 bags unclayed Taal, at 20s.

The quantity of Sugar landed in the twenty-two weeks ended June 4, 1870, was, of Penang, 1,252 tons, against 1,126 tons in the corresponding period of 1869; of Manila, Java, and China, 8,150 tons, against 18,953 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 1,076 tons, against 1,300 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 10,747 tons, against 6,747 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, 49 tons, against 44 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 1,600 tons, against 790 tons. The stock on June 4 was, of Penang, 2,457 tons, against 111 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 31,593 tons, against 40,989 tons.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The market for Ceylon is steady at £38 10s. on the spot with full prompt; and for arrival 100 tons August, September, and October sailing have been sold at £39 10s. The quantity of Ceylon afloat for the United Kingdom is estimated at 22,499 tons, against 16,093 tons last year, and 16,499 tons in 1868; to the Continent, 5,476 tons, against 750 tons last year.

CHINA MATTING.—629 rolls were offered and bought in. 4/4 white at 34s. and 40s., 4/4 check at 44s., 5/4 ditto at 55s., 6/4 ditto at 62s. per roll.

CHINA GRASS.—An offer of 160 bundles was withdrawn.

CAMPHOR.—No business is reported in China; some further transactions have been effected in Japan afloat at 82s. 6d., but that price is now refused by sellers.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—10 cases Citronelle were sold at 2d. to 2⅛d., and 25 cases Lemon-grass were bought in at 3¼d.

GAMBIER.—The sales have been 50 tons for arrival, with all faults, at 16s., and 100 ton, now landing, on the same condition, on private terms.

GUMS.—COPAL: 169 cases Manila sold at steady rates, good hard, chiefly bold scraped, at 49s., a few lots at 49s. 6d., rather inferior at 47s. 6d., part soft at 45s., dark at 35s. Damar: 87 cases Singapore, part rather dark sold at 61s. to 63s. Gamboge: 3 chests sold at £16 17s. 6d. for good pipe.

HEMP.—There have been no public sales, but privately about 400 bales fair roping Manila have been sold at £53 10s.

JAPAN WAX.—10 cases good fair saucers realised 68s.

ORCHELLA.—An offer of 46 bales 160 bags Ceylon was bought in at 65s.

PEPPER.—Black: The parcels offered by auction met a limited demand, and were only partly sold on easier terms; 1,359 bags Singapore were bought in at 5⅛d. to 5¼d., but 350 bags afterwards sold, common at 5d., one lot good at 5¼d.; 727 bags Penang sold at 4¾d., a few lots at 4⅞d.; 100 bags from Amsterdam were bought in at 4⅞d. White: A large quantity was offered but only a part sold at a slight decline; of 872 bags Singapore, 320 bags sold at 6⅜d. to 6½d., of 102 bags Penang 75 bags salvaged, ex Benvenue, sold at 5⅞d. For arrival 100 bags Singapore have been sold at 6⅜d.

RICE.—Immediately following our last report the following sales were effected on the spot:—500 bags Ballam at 8s. 6d., 680 bags fine new ditto at 9s. 3d., 1,365 bags ditto at 9s. ex quay, 3,400 bags Rangoon at 8s. 6d. to 8s. 9d., and 6,000 bags Bassein at 8s. 6d. Afloat the following cargoes were sold:—The Johanna, 1,400 tons Rangoon, April sailing, at 10s. Continental terms; the Jorgen Bruhin, 950 tons Necransie, April sailing, at 9s. 10½d. for the Continent. Since the reopening of the market the following cargoes are reported sold:—The Marietta, 1,100 tons Bassein, May-June shipment, at 10s., Continental terms; a cargo of 500 tons Bassein, distant shipment, on the same terms; and one of 1,700 tons Rangoon, at 10s., Continental terms. On the spot we note the following sales:—300 tons field Siam in bags, per Scawfell, sold at 7s. 6d.; and 100 tons ditto, per Max, at 7s. 9d. both ex ship; 26,000 bags old Rangoon, at 8s. 6d. to 9s.; 3,000 bags Necranzie, at 8s. 9d.; 800 tons new Rangoon, per James Lister, at 9s. 6d. ex ship; part of the cargo per Agnes Muir, 300 tons Rangoon, at 8s. 7½d. ex ship for London; and 600 tons in the same ship, at 10s. 1½d. landed.

RHUBARB.—Of China 81 cases sold—low middling, 1s. 5d.; middling, 2s. to 2s. 11d.; fair to good fair, 3s. 3d. to 4s. 1d., one lot, 4s. 4d.; good, 4s. 7d.; good bold, 5s. 6d.

VERMILION—Small sales of China, at 3s. 3d.

ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

During the week the market has not at any time shown much activity, but a fair average business has been done from day to day, and prices have been for the most part steadily maintained. Yarns have been in less active request, and rates are in some cases a shade easier. The usual Whitsuntide holidays commenced on the 8th inst., and business for the remainder of the week was suspended.

WOOLLEN AND WORSTED GOODS.

CASUALTIES.

The Kimpren a. d. Lek, List, from Bangkok, arrived at Falmouth June 4, reports that on May 28, 44 N., 28W., she experienced a gale from S.S.W. to N.N.W., during which she lost several sails and had decks swept and deck seams started.

The Sarah Nicholson, Hefferman, which arrived at New York May 12, from Shanghai, after striking on the rocks at the east end of Bermuda, had also struck on a rock in Formosa channel, and torn away some of the metal on the bow, but replaced it at sea; she had made no water, and the whole of her cargo had been discharged in good order.

Advices from Mauritius, dated May 5, state that the Jacques Seurin, Martin, from Saigon, to Bordeaux, called at the Bell Buoy, April 26, to effect some necessary repairs, and, after completing them, proceeded April 30.

MISCELLANEOUS.

At PORT SAID.—June 4, Chieftain (str.), from London, and left 5 for Japan, after coaling.

At SUEZ.—June 4, Great Victoria (str.), from London, and left 5 for Colombo and Madras.

At St. HELENA.—April 29, George Crosbaw, Alexander, from Bangkok, for Falmouth; Neuvelle Pallas, from Singapore, for Bordeaux; Dageraad v. Striemen, from Batavia, for Rotterdam; Energy, Caulkins, from Batavia, for Rotterdam; 30, Ymuiden, de Jong, from Java. for Amsterdam; May 1, Susanna and Elizabeth, v. d. Heyde, from Java, and proceeded for Rotterdam.

The following is a further additional list of goods recovered from the wreck of the Benvenue, Penang to London:—229 pigs tin, 340 hides, 71 bags pepper, 30 bags tapioca, 11 cases gum benjamin, 1 case fishmaws, 259 bundles rattans, 9 sails, and sundries belonging to ship.

THE "CHIEFTAIN."—It will be remembered that we lately recorded the departure of the corvette Mutine, formerly a Government vessel, for Japan. This ship, the name of which has been changed to the Chieftain, arrived at Malta on the 29th ult. According to the correspondent of The Times, a most extraordinary outrage has been committed by Captain Henry M'Minnies, a passenger by the Chieftain, while in this port. Having become annoyed by the importunity of the boats which surrounded his vessel, seeking employment, he went below, fetched a loaded revolver, and fired two shots at one of the boats, one bullet striking it on the outside, and the other passing through the back board. He may think himself fortunate in the magistrate letting him off with a simple fine of £5, and no detention being caused to the ship in consequence of his escapade.

The new screw-steamer Abbotsford, built by Messrs. Blackwood and Gordon, of Glasgow, has left that port for London, to complete her loading for Singapore and China. The Abbotsford is a large handsome screw-steamer of 1,060 tons new measure, and when loaded she will carry 1,300 to 1,4000 tons dead weight. Her engines are on the compound high and low principle of 110-horse power. On her trial trip on the Clyde she attained the very high rate of fully eleven knots, on a consumption of fuel rather under 7¼ cwts. per hour. She is commanded by Captain C. Mann, of Leith.

The Norwegian ship Lydia, Captain Larsen, from Manila and Zebu, for Liverpool, with a cargo of sugar, and upon which eighty guineas has been asked and paid for insurances, has been reported in safety at Banjoewangie, in Java. She had been 209 days in the China Sea without having been heard of.

Messrs. A. M'Millan and Son have launched from their building yard at Dumbarton a handsome iron barque, of about 400 tons register, for Henry Browse, Esq., jun., London, which was named the Glaslyn. She is built to the highest class at Lloyd's and is intended for the China trade.

Messrs. Shaw, Maxton, and Co.'s new steamer Lord of the Isles, building on the Clyde, will be launched this day.

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vesse's of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds, superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

The DRY DOCK (opened in March, 1859) admits two vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with a depth of water ranging to 15½ feet. A second DRY DOCK of larger dimensions will shortly be completed, and available for the heaviest Steamers.

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMON and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon street, London, E.C.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

A frequent cause of gout and rheumatism is the inflammatory state of the blood, attended with bad digestion and general debility. A few doses of these Pills taken in time are an effectual preventive against gout and rheumatism. Anyone who has an attack of either should use Holloway's Ointment also, the powerful operation of which, combined with the effect of the Pills, must infallibly effect a cure. These Pills act directly on the blood, which they purify and improve. Having subdued the severity of these diseases, perseverance with the Ointment, after fomenting the affected joints with warm brine, will speedily relax all stiffness, and prevent any permanent contraction.

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY

(LIMITED).

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

It seems that a mail steamer is leaving daily. The Americans, I think, are certain of running their semi-monthly in July; they are waiting for a further subsidy, but should they not get it they will probably start without it, as the business hitherto will justify them in so doing. The opposition, we hear, is coming, for the P. and O. Company and the Pacific Company run on to Hong Kong.

All the swamp at the back of the settlement—i.e., the other side of the canal—is to be filled in in six months, and be disposed of to natives. Yokohama is increasing very fast. The railway engineers have commenced their survey, but that is all; no spade as yet has been used, and I have an idea will not be until the Japanese authorities hear from Mr. Lay that the loan is all right. The country is very quiet, and the present Government are working hard to conciliate all parties, and make the most they can of the country. Great efforts will be made to improve the silk cultivation, and also much will be done in the improving of the breed of cattle and cultivation of foreign crops. I cannot say this year or next, but certainly within five years, Japan will be a great beet sugar country. Our public gardens, started a fortnight since, are looking in shape, and, through the exertions of Mr. Kramer, may be expected to be opened on the 1st June. The German Club gave a very nice ball on the 29th. No end of people visiting Hakoni this year; that promises to be in time a great resort. Yedo hotel is looking up.

The cousin of the Mikado is to take rooms in it, and to have opportunities of mixing with foreigners, for I believe he will shortly go to Europe as ambassador. Our weather is charming; trade is tolerably brisk; rice is down. Races to come off this month.

Chosiu has been in difficulty, of late, with his troops. The differences probably arose from various causes, but the discharge of 20,000 men was, it is said, the proximate one. The Prince said that, having surrendered his principality into the hands of the Mikado, and being now a simple governor of a province, he could no longer afford to maintain such an army. The troops mutinied, and Chosiu applied to the Prince of Satsuma for assistance against them. This was given, and the disturbance has now been quieted, Chosiu promising food to many of the disbanded men until they can obtain other employment.

A local paper says, "We have again to record that death has visited our little community, having taken from us Mr. John O'Driscoll, of the British Legation, student interpreter. He was so rarely in Yokohama comparatively, that he was less known than usual to the residents; but on all sides he is spoken of in terms of very high regard by those acquainted with him. A gentleman and a scholar are terms easily written; but they are particularly applicable to him, and he showed every capacity for proving himself a valuable servant of the British Crown."

TWENTY DAYS LATER NEWS BY PACIFIC MAIL.

The Pacific mail steamer Great Republic, with Yokohama news to May 22, reached San Francisco on the 14th June. The following is a telegraphic summary of her news:—

A violent earthquake had occurred in Japan, the severest since the great earthquake in 1855. The accounts of the disaster are meagre but it is reported that several villages were destroyed. The great volcano of Asamayama, in the interior of the Island of Niphon, which had been quiet for centuries, is in violent eruption, accompanied by frequent earthquakes, destroying villages in that vicinity and causing terror among the inhabitants of the province.

The captain of the barque Benefactress reports having observed an active volcano at sea, 200 miles from Yokohama. Some portions of the crater are above the sea. Clouds of steam were issuing therefrom. From the deck of the vessel the water around the volcano appeared to be in a boiling condition.

The officers of the United States squadron on the Asiatic station have decided to erect a monument to the memory of the victims of the Oneida disaster.

The Japanese Government have granted permission for the establishment of a school for the instruction of native youths in foreign languages and naval and military tactics.

The Japan market is depressed. A further decline in shirtings and yarns is noted.

In teas there have been but few settlements for the season at hand, and there is a further decline in rates for the old crop.

The operations in silk are limited, in consequence of scant arrivals. The weather was favourable to the harvest.

NAGASAKI.

NAGASAKI, April 23.

My last was dated 9th inst., and sent via Marseilles. Since then the following proclamation has been issued in the town, by order of the Governor of Nagasaki:—"It having been ascertained that some persons of bad character and of no standing have been putting into circulation packages of ichibus and nibus, stamped with their own seals, which contained spurious coins, thereby defrauding the public, it is determined to put a stop to such practices in future; so it is hereby notified that, from and after the 10th April, 1870, no packages of ichibus or nibus will be recognised as a legal tender unless they have the stamp of the Government or that of the seven bankers and merchants whose names are as follows:—Oshimaya Chiulu, Gusokuya Meydaro, Yebiya Jenjiro, Kina Kuniya Riske, Tawaraya Tasaboro, Arakiya Chosobooro, Mashia Kansiro. All other packages will have to be opened and examined at the time of payment. Eighth day of the 3rd month of the year Uma."

The above document has caused considerable annoyance to the respectable native merchants, who look upon it as a Government plan for squeezing them, as the list of names consists of "money-changers" only, whose establishments are supposed to be under the control of the local officials. The system adopted by the above-mentioned money changers is to take only good and bright coins, and deduct a very heavy percentage from those slightly worn.

The Bertha, steamer, Captain Mooney, arrived in this harbour, from Shanghai, on the morning of the 21st inst., bringing the mails, which have been lying in Shanghai, and which in all probability would have laid there for some time had Adrian and Co.'s steamer not been coming over.

The Russian steamer Nahotka, from Newchwang to Yokohama, with beans, struck upon a sunken rock south of this port, and sank some hours afterwards. The crew, consisting of twenty-six men, took to the long-boat and life-boat, but did not save any clothes or provisions; the latter they received from the Japanese, who, as customary, treated them well. After being in their boats three days, they were picked up by the Rona (steamer), which vessel arrived here on the evening of the 20th inst. from Hiogo.

My last was on the 23rd April via Marseilles, which letter was sent to Hong Kong to catch the English mail leaving there on the 28th idem. During the interval there has been but little general news.

A new bridge is to be constructed across the mouth of Sagromaty creek to connect the Bund of Oura with that of Sagromaty, and will when finished be a great improvement upon the old structure, the elevation of which is far too great, besides which the present bridge from its position renders the journey to the branch Custom House a circuitous one. The work is to be commenced immediately, and will be completed (according to Japanese promises) in about two months' time, but the general impression is that it will take the Japs at least double that to finish it.

The arrivals from the home side have been:—April 29, Admiraal de Ruyter, Dutch barque, from Amsterdam (via Yokohama), and Kuisiu, Dutch schooner, from Rotterdam (direct).

The regatta this year is a picnic with a little boating by way of amusement; in fact, lovers of shooting have a chance of enjoying themselves. It was arranged for the 30th ult., but had to be postponed, in consequence of the arrivals and departures of the P. M. steamers, which appear to be the only chance we have of catching the English mail leaving Shanghai on the 6th inst. The strictest economy has been the aim of the committee, who have not solicited subscriptions from the community this year.

A sitting will take place at H.B.M.'s Consulate on the 28th inst., at which proofs of debts against the estate of Rainbow, Lewis, and Co., bankrupts, will be received, and the bankrupts will finish their examination and make application for their discharge.

Freights to London, nominal; no vessel loading. Exchange, unchanged. Nebus, unchanged, owing to the scarcity of Mexican dollars.

The Dutch schooner Singapore, Captain Geldrop, while on her voyage from Newchwang to Hiogo with beans, &c., encountered very bad weather, and had her decks swept, during which time her cargo shifted. Her cabin on deck has been carried away, together with the captain's nautical instruments and charts, and after knocking about several days she managed to reach this port on the 30th ult.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

The London mail (French) of March 17 was received on the 4th May, and telegraphic advices, via Kiachta, reached to 12th April. The following items are from the North China Herald of May 5:—

The recent defeat of the Imperial troops in Shense is known among the Chinese here, and forms the chief topic of conversation. There is also a rumour abroad that there are disturbances in the neighbourhood of Newchwang, and in the Kwantung and Honan provinces, but there is no definite information of the nature and extent of these outbreaks.

The hope entertained by foreigners, generally, that the Taoutai of Shanghai would employ some of the steam vessels lately built at the Kiangnan Arsenal for the suppression of piracy, has not, unfortunately, been realised. It is true that No. 3 gunboat convoyed three or four fleets of rice-laden junks, bound for Tientsin, so far as the Yang-tze Cape; but, owing to the detestable behaviour of the mandarins on board the said steamer the foreign captain in a very short time threw up the command in disgust; and now the safety of the native craft lies entirely with Chinese gunboats on the Woosung Station, which occasionally go out in fine weather. This fleet did, however, under the command of the Dea-day himself, a few days ago proceed to the islands, and there captured or destroyed six junks of various sizes. The whole of the men taken with them, except those killed in the mêlée, have been sent to Soochow for decapitation, and their heads will probably be distributed round and hung up, as a warning to other rascals of the same stamp who infest these waters.

There have been some expectations that the tea duties would be reduced in the new budget; but a late telegram announces that the budget has been declared, and that tea duties are unaltered.

The Chih-hsien has issued a proclamation, pointing out the value of frogs to the agriculturist, in ridding the fields of insects and thus preserving the crops. He threatens to punish severely any persons guilty of destroying them, and orders the immediate apprehension of any one hawking them through the streets.

The British barque Princess of Wales, 966 tons register, has been sold at auction, by Messrs. John Thorne and Co., for Tls. 4,500.

A Race Ball came off at the Club; about thirty ladies and a large number of gentlemen were present. The guests were indebted to the band of the Hertha for music, and dancing was kept up, under its influence, to 3 A.M.

From Foochow we learn the total loss of the French barque Ruffine, 217 tons register. The Ruffine left Newchang for Hiogo on the 26th October, 1869, and was disabled by a typhoon on the night of the 12th November, and driven on a reef off Tai-ping-chau Island, of the Loochoo group; ship and cargo a total loss. All hands reached the island, and were detained, but not maltreated by the natives, for five months, when they succeeded in procuring a junk, and arrived in Foochow on the 20th April. The French ship Antoinette, from Amoy to Tai-wan foo, has also been lost on Junk Island on the 2nd March. All hands were saved, but the ship and cargo were entirely lost or destroyed by natives.

A Tientsin correspondent writes that Mr. W. H. Lay has been appointed to H.B.M. Consulate at that port, in the stead of Mr. Mongan, who goes home on leave. "I also hear that Mr. Mayers is appointed to Chefoo. There are those who think that Mr. Wade would have shown more appreciation of the relative qualifications of these officers had he reversed the appointments, placing Mr. Mayers at a port where his experience of political intercourse with the Chinese could have found a better field. Mr. Lepissier, Professor of French at the Peking College, goes down by the present steamer, to institute an action against Mr. Hart, similar to that in the von Gumpach case; and rumour says that other similar cases are pending. Little or no business doing. Rain wanted to make the rivers available; this accomplished, a better demand and improved prices may be looked for. 8¼ Greys, Tls. 2.21; 15 lbs. English Drills, Tls. 3.42; 7 lb. Grey Shirtings have been placed at Tls. 1.92; S. S. Scarlet Camlets, Tls. 10.50 to 10.85 per piece."

A meeting of the creditors, &c., on the estate of the late Edward Warden will be held on May 14th, to receive a final report and decide on the apportionment of a dividend.

The municipal accounts for the past and present year have been issued and will be analysed in our next.

A successful launch of a steam dredger has been effected from the Kiang-nan Arsenal. We understand she is intended to do duty on the Grand Canal. The arsenal is really "going ahead," for at the present moment it is engaged in building a steam transport of 1,400 tons, and which it is expected will be finished in September. Further, it is in contemplation to construct a corvette of 2,500 tons, to be armed with 250-pounders, in the waist of the ship, and either 32's or 40 smooth bores to complete the armament.

A letter from Newchwang says, six days ago the English vessel Anne run into the North-German schooner Catharina on the starboard side, and inflicted such damage that the latter vessel in a few minutes made two feet of water. A considerable quantity of cargo had to be thrown overboard. Both vessels returned to port; the Catharina to have most of her cargo taken out and undergo temporary repairs; the Anne to render assistance to the crew of the Catharina in case that vessel should sink, as was at first feared. The captain of the Catharina estimates the damage done to his vessel at $10,000, and has made a claim against the Anne for that amount. It seems the matter cannot be settled here, as the Anne has proceeded on her journey.

The trade with Japan has been considerable since this port opened, three-fourths of the vessels being for one or other of the Japanese ports. It is very questionable if all the cargoes sent there will find a profitable market. The import trade has been very dull, and but for this somewhat unexpected Japanese export business merchants here would have had very little to do. The steamer Shantung leaves for Yokohama, with some 20,000 piculs of peas and oil, in a few days.

A correspondent writing from Kiu Kiang states:—Since the 16th there has been much rain here, and the river has risen 7½ feet. This is calculated to retard the picking of the leaf in the Tea districts, which should have been commenced ere this had the weather been favourable.

The French gunboat Flamme arrived here from Hankow on the 22nd inst., and left on the 26th for the Poyang Lake. Her commander proposed to visit, if practicable, Yaouchow, Shwuyhing, and Woochow, and, if the depth of water permitted, to ascend as far as the capital, Nanchang. To this last point it is very unlikely, notwithstanding the rise in the water of the Lake, that the Flamme can reach. It is reported that in spite of the agreement with M. Rochechouart, that certain ground should be restored to the French Mission in the capital, this ground, which was to be handed over to the missionaries after the next examination, is already being built upon, whether for official or for monastic purposes is not clear, but it is thought for the latter.

The three gentlemen who left this place on the 19th March for Foochow, via the Poyang Lake, Ho-kow, Woo-E-Shan (the Bohea Hills), and the Min, arrived at Foochow on the 17th instant—leaving Woo-E-Shan, where they spent a week, on the 11th inst. It is believed that this is the first occasion of this journey having been undertaken by foreigners.

The three days' races went off very successfully and with the absence of any heavy betting. The spirit has somewhat resumed the old style of Shanghai races.

The Chief Lighthouse Engineer has gone down to the North Saddle with the first instalment of materiel and other appliances necessary for laying the foundation of a lighthouse on that island. A mandarin has also gone down for the purpose, it is said, of effecting the purchase of the land required for the lighthouse, as well as to come to an understanding with the natives as to the beneficent object of the building, and with the workmen, as to their pay.

AMOY.

May 9th, 1870.

There is at present a positive and absolute dearth of news in Amoy. The great question, of course, that is still absorbing the thoughts of the foreigners is the position that the English Government intends taking in reference to the ratification of the new Convention. Lord Clarendon has been so thoroughly answered by Mr. Hugh Matheson that one would hope that some modification must be made in the policy sketched out by him to the deputation that waited on him. The English Government, however, seems so thoroughly imbued with the idea that foreigners in China have acted as tyrants and oppressors of the Chinese that a fair and impartial policy can hardly be expected at the present time. Mr. Burlingame was thoroughly impressed with the same idea, and he has managed to make his countrymen at home believe very much as he did himself, though, as a rule, he has not the slightest sympathy with those of them who reside on the scene of action. Time, however, the great disabuser of all fallacies, will reveal the actual condition of things; but it is unpleasant to consider that in the meantime the true interests of China are being sacrificed for an idea which is a purely sentimental one, and which has no existence in fact.

Considerable alarm has been felt at Sir R. Alcock's proposal to give up Formosa. In these days of retrenchment policy one would not be surprised though his suggestion were actually carried out. Though to do so would, I believe, be attended by anything but beneficial consequences. The island, in a commercial point of view, is one of vast importance. It is rich in valuable productions. If allowed to be properly developed it would be found to contain almost unlimited resources. Such is the testimony of those who have any practical experience in the matter. To retire from it now would be to abandon it to the old condition under which it existed before foreigners began to develop it. Its mineral wealth would be again sealed. Its vast powers of production would be checked and limited by Mandarin exactions; and last, though not least, the Chinese in his region would be fully convinced that nothing but sheer weakness had induced the foreigners to give up what they had been contending for for so many years.

Great preparations have been making for some weeks for the reception of the Governor-General of the Province. He had actually started on his visitation tour, but before he had got half way to this place he was obliged to return very hastily to Foochow. What the cause of this sudden change may be none can tell. Rumours are at present rife amongst the Chinese that a rebellion has taken place in Wanchow, one of the new ports to be opened, and that he was compelled to return to despatch soldiers to the place. As no authentic news has been received of any rebellion having taken place, the mere rumour must of course be taken for what it is worth.

HONG KONG.

We have advices from this port to May 12. The outward mail of March 17 was received on the 29th April, and that of March 25 on the 4th May. We extract the following items from the China Mail.

The Hong Kong Government Gazette of May 7 contains some new regulations regarding the pensions of colonial officials. The same number contains a letter from Lord Granville, acknowledging receipt of the work with photographic illustrations in commemoration of the Duke of Edinburgh's visit, prepared by Mr. Beach; and stating that two copies had been ordered to be elaborately bound for presentation to the Queen.

Universal satisfaction has been expressed at the result, so far, of the home agitation against the one-sided Convention framed by Sir R. Alcock.

By the present mail the genial Consul de France, M. du Chesne, leaves for home, after a stay of a number of years in this colony. The Consul's qualities of sustained courtesy and thoroughly genial manner have made him very popular with all classes of society; and the absence of one of so happy a disposition, who occupied a position so distinguished, will be felt as both a public and a social misfortune. We wish the courteous Consul all success and prosperity.

A Chinese female was found murdered in the house of a foreigner on the night of the 7th, and an inquiry is going on before the Coroner as to the facts.

With respect to the clauses in the new Convention antagonistic to the interests of Hong Kong, the Daily Press notices that there are indications that the Chinese authorities at Peking, backed up by Sir Rutherford Alcock, are determined to do all in their power to divert trade from the port, and to foster it in the North, and there is every probability that the establishment of a Chinese Consulate will force matters still further in this direction. So far as the Home Government are concerned, they seem perfectly willing to acquiesce in the change, and to use their utmost endeavours to bring Hong Kong down to the level of a mere military and naval station, so that, though as a calling place for steamers it will necessarily continue to maintain considerable importance, there is no question that, excepting the establishment of a railway or some other similar event arise to alter the nature of affairs very materially, Hong Kong is destined to sink more and more into insignificance as an emporium of foreign trade as compared with other ports. Under such circumstances there is room for the most serious apprehension with respect to the operation of those clauses in the new Convention, which the Home Government seem perfectly prepared to accept, notwithstanding that they are evidently designed as a blow at the trading interests of the colony.

Public attention has continued to be directed to the state of police administration in the colony, and there is some prospect of an improvement being effected in an important direction, it being proposed to institute a system by which the various inspectors will have a better opportunity than has hitherto been the case of obtaining some knowledge of the Chinese language, their ignorance of which has been a great drawback to their efficiency. Mr. J. C. Whyte, who has for various periods acted as Judge of the Summary Court, leaves by this mail in consequence of ill health. Much regret is expressed at his approaching departure, as he has won general esteem, no less by his astuteness as a lawyer than by his courtesy and kindliness in every relation of life. The subject of the appointment of a Chinese Consul to the Colony has been again under discussion, and one or two able letters in favour of the measure have appeared in the columns of the local press, but the feeling with regard to the question remains unchanged, it being considered as certain that, if such an official were appointed, he would make use of his position to usurp authority which does not belong to him.

Our dull and common-place town is rarely enlivened by an atom of the romantic, but yesterday proved the exception which usually endorses the general rule. A young and loving couple forbidden matrimony by the "stern parient" of the lady, and finding that as she was under age no marriage ceremony could be performed in Hong Kong without the "governor's" consent, found themselves obliged to use extraordingary means to prevent a threatened separation. The bridegroom and bride being both natives of the United States, the former purchased a yacht, registered her at the Consulate, appointed a captain, and after shipping a crew cleared her regularly for sea. She sailed on Sunday, and after reaching the high seas hove-to for orders. Yesterday morning the steamer Fame, having on board a party of the elite of our residents, among whom were the bride and bridegroom, United States Consul, and others, going out for an excursion, spoke the American schooner. The captain of an American ship being by law authorised to perform marriages on the high seas, after an adjournment to her deck the knot was quickly tied, and the fair bride, after receiving the congratulations of her friends, returned to Hong Kong in the steamer.

The British ship Sir William Wallace, bound from Fooochow to London, with an incomplete cargo of tea, put into this port on the 28th April, and is now being docked and repaired.

The British ship Dunmail, while entering the harbour during a severe rain squall, on the 8th May, struck upon a sunken rock, through running too near to the Kowloon shore of the bay, filled rapidly, and sank a short distance from where she struck. She lies in about six to eight fathoms of water, and attempts at raising her will doubtless be very shortly commenced.

A correspondent writes:—

At last the judicial case which has so long occupied public attention, V. Gumpach v. Hart, has been decided, and the Inspector-General of Chinese Customs has encountered a damaging defeat. Although public opinion has been somewhat divided with reference to the justice of Mr V. Gumpach's claim for damages, on the score of misrepresentation as to his position in the Peking College, there has been a very general expression of satisfaction at Mr. Hart's discomfiture, and his appearance in the witness-box has been very strongly contrasted with the frank and manly way in which his adversary submitted to cross examination. Having the whole Customs' revenue to fall back upon the Inspector-General does not intend to give in, however, and is resolved to put the plaintiff to the expense of an appeal to the Privy Council, for the purpose of prosecuting which Mr. Campbell, "chief secretary to the Inspector-General of Customs," goes home by this mail. It is expected, nevertheless, that the Chinese Government will be very much displeased on learning the manner in which its conduct with regard to the Peking "University" has been exposed. Prince Kung has not shown a very complaisant disposition of late to Mr. Hart.

The Marine Department, which has been organised, though very quietly, at an immense expense, has been brought to a standstill by the withdrawal of the whole of the tonnage dues from Mr. Hart's control, for the purpose, as is asserted, of defraying the expenditure entailed by the prolongation of the Burlingame Mission in Europe. In consequence of this stoppage of supplies, the three steam gunboats brought out from England recently to form the marine squadron under the orders of Captain Forbes the "Marine Commissioner," are to be temporarily laid up. These vessels, two of which are small composite-built craft of 200 tons, and the third, a somewhat larger vessel, cost the enormous sum of £73,000 in England. They are denominated "Revenue cruisers," although they have been ostensibly brought out for the service of the future coast lighting operations. All three are at present in Hong Kong waters.

Nothing has transpired as yet with reference to the intentions of the Peking Government in connection with the Mission in Europe since the news of Mr. Burlingame's death was received.

SAIGON.

I avail of the departure of one of the China Sea, Saigon, and Straits Steam Company's" steamers* for Singapore (where she will correspond with the P. and O. steamer), to let you know how we are getting on in this rising colony.

In the staple article a large business has lately been done with Japan, and the official returns show that over 1,500,000 piculs were exported during the first three months of this year. However, the animation is all over now, as last advices report falling prices in Japan, whereas here the natives are holding out for high rates, the best part of the last crop having been exported.

A company has recently been established at Hong Kong, which will tend greatly to increase the importance of this colony. It bears the title of the "Indo-Chinese Sugar Company," and, as you will have seen in the China papers, is under the direction of some of the first merchants in China. The chief purpose of the said company is the manufacture of sugar in Cochin China, for which the country is splendidly adapted. The agents here are Messrs. Wm. G. Hale and Co. The North German corvette Medusa is here, undergoing some repairs, and has availed of the magnificent floating dock belonging to the French Government. The new Government palace (for such it really deserves to be called) is nearly ready, and is one of the finest buildings in the East.

Our rainy season has now thoroughly set in, and our next rice crop will doubtless be a very large one.

SIAM.

BANGKOK.

The only important item of news from this place is the death, by drowning of Senhor Vianna, the Portuguese Consul-General at Bangkok. It occurred while bathing in the Chow Phya River, at Banpeng, a short distance below Ayuthia, the old capital of Siam, during a pleasure trip, in company with Mr. Reichman, of Bangkok. Mr. Reichman warned him not to swim out too far, as there might be alligators in the river; he disregarded the caution, swam out some distance, dived under twice, and the second time did not reappear. The bystanders at once concluded that he had been seized by an alligator, but when the body was recovered next day it was unmutilated, though some parts of it were blackened in a strange manner. The deceased was much esteemed by the foreign community.

JAVA.

BATAVIA.

Regarding the progress of the Railway extension in Java, the N. B. Handelsblad, in its overland summary of the 29th April, has the following:—

"It is a melancholy fact that the Railway from Samarang into the interior cannot be completed, from the want of sufficient capital. If the State affords no help, the works in Djocjokarta must very speedily be stopped. The day before yesterday, another meeting of Raad (Council) of India was held on this important affair. Most accurate estimates place the deficit at f.1,800,000. If this help is refused, the concession must fall to the ground, and endless delay for the line from Batavia to Buitenzorg will also arise; and, on the other hand, the financial results will be very injurious to the State. But we think the heedlessness very blamable whereby former estimates and calculations were made, for however many may be the reasons brought forward for excuse, the deficit cannot be ascribed to unlooked-for circumstances. A wrong direction of affairs has also taken place. The decision on the help asked for is uncertain, for a report that 500,000f. have been placed at the disposal of the Railroad Company is groundless. The N. I. Government thinks, apparently, that ripe deliberation is necessary.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Advices from this port are to the 19th May. The English Mails of the 8th and 15th of April arrived out on the 10th and 16th May respectively. London telegrams had been received up to 5th May. The following is the Straits Times summary of news:—

By the mail which arrived on the 10th inst. we received a copy of the letter of the Straits Association in London of Earl Granville, on the subjects of the cost of Government House and the Singapore Waterworks. The letter is, as usual, very ably and forcibly written, and makes a very practical recommendation to Earl Granville to order the appropriation of the money voted for the new steamer to the completion of the Waterworks. In the correspondence between the Governor and the Municipal Commissioners on Waterworks, his Excellency said the question would be brought before the Legislative Council at an early day. At last there is a prospect of it being finally disposed of, for, after a recess of nearly five months, the formal opening of the session is announced to take place at the Town Hall on Monday next, the 23rd inst. At the time of closing the session last year there were a number of matters under consideration which the Government deemed of urgent importance to the well being of the Colony, and which were allowed to stand over, on condition that no objection was to be raised against their being passed in their present form early in the ensuing session,—a sort of tacit understanding which, it is to be hoped, for the sake of efficient legislation, will not often be come to before a measure has been thoroughly discussed and brought to perfection. It is probable these questions will be revived shortly, and that ere long our little community will find itself again in the heat of discussion of local politics,—which, however little they may interest the general public, have frequently an important bearing upon the social and commercial welfare of the Colony.

We are glad to be able to announce that the Hon. W. H. Read has been reinstated in the offices of Honorary Magistrate and Justice of the Peace—which it may be remembered he resigned nearly a year ago, in consequence of a censure passed upon him by H. E. the Governor, on account of his action in a case which had already been dismissed by the sitting magistrate, Mr. Gottlieb. Mr. Read's reinstalment was due to the intervention of Earl Granville, Secretary of State for the Colonies, to whom the case was referred. Earl Granville, while concurring in the opinion that Mr. Read's omission to consult the stipendiary magistrate before taking the case in hand evinced a want of respect towards that officer, yet administers a quiet reproof to his Excellency for having taken upon himself to interfere in the way he did, and censure Mr. Read.

The Chief Justice left this for Penang on May 6, in the Colonial steamer Peiho, to hold the criminal session there, which opened on May 9. The session was a very short one, for on May 16 we find the Chief Justice of Malacca holding a special session, there being an unusual number of criminal cases to dispose of there,—four of which we are told are for murder, and several others being for gang robbery. Within the past few months a number of outrages have been committed in that settlement, the cause being generally attributed to the disturbances in Klang, but being, we believe, more properly due to the organisation of a regular gang of thieves, whose operations have in one or two instances met with a summary check,—one of the gang having received a stab as they were endeavouring to effect an entrance into a house, which killed him on the spot, upon which the others took flight. A few more cases of this sort would check this species of crime more effectually than could be done by any other means.

The effect of the Suez Canal upon the Eastern mail service is foreshadowed by the fact that a steamer of the Messageries Imperiales has been already able to deliver the French mail here on its thirty-first day from London; and that notwithstanding that she grounded in the Canal, and remained fast for twenty-four hours. The English mail of April 8, by the P. and O. steamer, reached here on its thirty-second day from London, or on the 10th inst, having been brought on by two fast steamers on this side, both making rapid passages, and forming a good connection at Galle, so that the mail was delivered here two days sooner than might have been expected.

I have fully considered as well your despatch No. 183, of Sept. 2, relating to Mr. Read's letter of August 8, 1869, as your subsequent despatch No. 22, of Jan. 31, written in answer to mine of Nov. 26 on the same subject.

Mr. Read's reference of this case to me renders it unavoidable that I should express an opinion respecting his conduct on the Bench, which otherwise I should have refrained from doing.

Considering that the case brought before him had just received full and careful consideration at the hands of Mr. Gottlieb, I think Mr. Read was, to say the least, wanting in courtesy to his brother magistrate in not consulting him upon it before arriving at an opposite conclusion; and I am bound to say that the reasons assigned by Mr. Read for his not doing so do not appear to me entirely satisfactory.

But bearing in mind that the error which Mr. Read has committed was an error of judgment in the performance of his magisterial duties, and attaching, as I do, the highest importance to the necessity of avoiding any appearance of interference on the part of the Executive with officers in the performance of such duties, I regret that you should have thought it necessary to interpose and pass any censure on Mr. Read.

The result of such interference has been that for the time the admittedly valuable services of Mr. Read as a magistrate have been lost to the colony, but I entertain a strong hope that, after this frank expression of my opinion, both parties to this controversy will be ready to forget what has passed, and that Mr. Read will be induced to withdraw his resignation of the office of Justice of the Peace and Police Magistrate.

Commercial Report.

(For dates see First Page.)

STRAITS, JAVA, AND CHINA IMPORTS.

SHANGHAI.—Grey Shirtings: A healthy demand for these had prevailed, but the chief portion of the business was transacted whilst last mail was under despatch. Holders had established an advance in the value of 8¼ lbs. For lighter and heavier makes there had not been so marked an inquiry, but small sales were reported at about previous rates. White Shirtings comparrtively neglected, without however much affecting their value. T-Cloths: It was almost impossible to give a true quotation for 7lb., the market continued so very irregular; 8 lb. 36 inch, from comparative scarcity, were in a better position, and the value had a hardening tendency. Drills: In strong demand, best chop English attracting most attention. American quoted Tls. 3.60 to 3.75; English, Tls. 3.35 to 3.42; Dutch, Tls. 3.20 to 3.25 per piece. Jeans, finest quality, inquired for, and had changed hands, to the extent of 11,000 pieces, at Tls. 2.32 to 2.35 per piece for English. Woollens: For Long Ells a faint speculative inquiry had sprung up, and silkmen had sold out several of their holdings at rather better prices. C. P. H. Scarlets on offer at Tls. 5.70 per piece. H H. Scarlets scarce, and commanded extreme rates, Tls. 6.0.5 per piece having been offered and refused; Assortments very difficult to move. In other Woollen imports few transactions had taken place. Figured Orleans saleable in small quantities at Tls. 3.20 to 3.95. Quotations:—Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., Tls. 2.01 to 2.05 per piece; 8.4 to 8.6 lbs., Tls. 2.2.7 to 2.3.2; 9 to 9.12 lbs., Tls. 2.4.0 to 3.0.3; White Shirtings, Tls. 2.2.8 to 2.7.5; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., Tls. 1.4.0 to 1.6.5; 7 lbs., Tls. 1.6.0 to 1.8.5; 8 to 8½ lbs., Tls. 2.0.0 to 2.1.0; X X., Tls. 2.4.0. Iron: Nail Rod, per picul, Tls. 2.3.5 to 2.5.0; Lead, Tls. 4.9.0 to 5.0.0.

HANKOW.—Grey Shirtings: Business small, at a decline of 1 to 2 candareens per piece. Market closed dull, at Tls. 2.04 to 2.05 per piece for 7 lbs, Tls. 2.24 to 2.29 for 8¼ lbs., and Tls. 2.60 to 3.00 for heavy goods. White Shirtings: No change. T-Cloths: There was hardly any inquiry; few sales made at a fall of 2 to 3 candareens per piece; best 7 lbs., Tls. 1.75 to 1.76; 8 lbs., Tls. 2.10 per piece. Drills: Quotations unchanged, no business reported. Woollens and Worsteds.—Camlets: Demand subsided. Lastings also neglected. Long Ells: CPH Scarlet sold at Tls. 5 75 per piece, showing a decline of 3 mace per piece. Spanish Stripes not asked for. Figured Orleans: Sales difficult to effect. Metals.—Lead: Sales estimated at 1,500 piculs; large pigs, 1 mace lower. Quotation: Tls. 5 to 5.15 per picul.

FOOCHOW.—No business reported.

HONG KONG.—Cotton Yarn: Extensive business in Nos. 16 to 24 "for arrival," at a decline of $3 to 4. Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs. in smal supply and still wanted. Fair demand at 8¼ lbs. at quotations. Heavy weights quiet. White Shirtings: Common to medium neglected and weaker. Fine dull at a decline of 30c. to 50c. per piece. T-Cloths: 6 lbs. fairly saleable at quotations. 7 lbs., both common and Mexicans, continued much depressed at a decline of 5c. to 7½c. per piece. 8 lbs. still difficult of sale, and further declined. All other cotton goods quiet at former quotations. The market for Woollens continued quite stagnant, and quotations were more or less nominal. For Metals the market was also dull, with hardly any demand. Coals: About 1,750 tons Anthracite advertised for sale by public auction. The following cargoes had been sold ex-ship: Sydney, 960 tons at $6.25; 320 tons at $6.25; 500 tons at $6.50; 500 tons at $6.25 per ton; 356 tons, rate unknown. English, 150 tons at $6 75 per ton. Quotations:—Cotton Yarn, Nos. 16 to 24, per bale, $185 to 140; 28 to 32, $144 to 147.50; 38 to 42, $165 to 170; Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., per piece, $2.57½ to 2.62½; 8¼ lbs., $2.87½ to 2.90; 9¾ to 10 lbs., $3.70 to 3.90. White Shirtings, $2.35 to 3; fine, $3.25 to 5.50. T-Cloths: 6lbs., $1.87½ to 2.02½; 7 lbs., $2.05 to 2.35; 8 to 8¼ lbs., $2.55 to 3.70.

BATAVIA.—The following is from Messrs. Hunter, Houghton, and Co.'s Circular:—Cambrics, 45-inch by 12 yards: There is but little doing, best quality 15/16s, f.4.90 to f.5; medium, f.4.75 to f.4.80, ordinary, f.4.60 to f.4.70. No. 24's also quiet, although in more demand than other numbers, at f.3⅜ to f.3¼ per piece. White Shirtings, 40 yards: Demand for 45-inch still very quiet, at f.10.50 to f.10.75 per piece; 40/41-inch dull, and valued at f.9.25 to f.9.50 per piece; 36-inch, 64 reeds, f.8.50 to f.8.75 per piece. Grey Shirtings, 38½ yards: No change to note; 39-inch, 7 lb., f.7.50; 8¼ lb., f.8⅜ to f 8.50; 45-inch, 8 lb., f.8.25 to f.8⅜ per piece. Madapollams, 24 yards: Dutch 33/34-inch remain at about last quotations, f.5,25 to f.5.50 per piece; 40/41-inch in limited inquiry at f.6 to f.6¼; 44/45-inch neglected. Grey also dull; 34/35 inch, f.5.25 to f.5.50; 43/44 inch, f.6.25 to f.6.50. English, 32/33 inch, 3 lb., f.3¼ to f.3.20 cash per piece. Prints: Little doing, but we shortly look for a fair business. Green Grounds, f.7.25 to f.7⅜; Pink Pads, f.7.75 to f.8; White Grounds, f.6.25 to f.6.50; Steams, f.4¼ to f.5 per piece. Printed Jacconets: Little or nothing doing. Dyed Madapollams, 9/8 by 24 yards: Orange in more request; sales at f.4⅜ to f.4.20, 1 month's credit. Other colours not asked for. Turkey Red Cloth, 24 yards: In large supply, and only to be placed at low rates Dutch, 31/33 inch, f.7.50 to f.8.50; English, f.7 to f.7.25 per piece. Twist, Grey: Small transactions in 40's at f.435 cash par bale. Low numbers scarce, and wanted. 30's at f.385 to f.395, 24's at f.360 to f.370, and 20's at f.335 to f.340 per bale credit.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead's report is as follows:—39-inch Grey Shirtings: 8¼ lb. in limited supply, sales at $3.02½ to 2.97½; 7 lb. in fair request at $2.50; 6 lb. placed at $2.12½ to 2.10; 45-inch in good supply, quiet; 8 lb. placed to a small extent at $2.77½. 32-inch Grey T-Cloths: 5 lbs. scarce, and in some request at $1.57½ to 1.60, lighter weights neglected; 6 lbs. dull at $1.85; and 7 lbs. only fine quality saleable at a reduction upon last rates, inferior placed at $2. 32-inch Grey Maddapollams: Very quiet; small sales of 2¾ lbs., at $20½ to 21. Long Cloths nominally unaltered. 36-inch White Shirtings: Common descriptions saleable at fair rates; some sales of fine reported, but at low prices. White Spots sold at $3 on the spot, and $2.99 "to arrive" White Cambrics of all descriptions lower, with a slack demand; 15/16s. sold at $31 to 32½, and 24s at $19½ to 20. Jacconets not inquired for. Maddapollams quiet at late rates. Dyed Shirtings in hardly any request. Nothing doing in Velvets. Turkey Red Cambrics dull; sales of 2½ lbs. at $2.10, and of 3½ lbs. at $2.67½. Turkey Red Mulls still neglected. Woollens: Camlets and Scarlet Long Ells unsaleable; Spanish Stripes, very dull; Lastings, Assorted, placed at 40 cents per yard. Black inquired for at last rates. Yarn of all kinds dull of sale and lower; sales of 16s and 24s at $115 to 116, and of 40s at $140 to 142½. Turkey Red Yarn, 10 lbs., Glasgow dye, sold at $148 to 145. Green placed at $84 to 85, Imperial Red at $71 to 72½, and Orange at $77 to 78.

PENANG.—Grey Shirtings, 6 lbs., not in stock—quotation nominal, 7 lbs. sold readily at $51 and 52 per corge—stocks moderate. 8¼ lbs. goods had met purchasers between $60.50 and 61.50. 45-inch: A sale of 8 lbs. at $58 per corge. Long Cloths not in stock—quotations nominal. No sales of Madapollams. T-Cloths of light weights not in stock, and in moderate demand—of 7 lbs. sales at $43 to 45 per corge. White Shirtings remain as before. Of 45-inch, sales reported at $84 and 85½ per corge. White Cambrics: Low qualities only in request, sales of Medium at $27; of Nos. 15.16, at $32½ and 32 per corge. Grey Sheetings, no sales; American Drills, all cleared out; Dutch Drills, no demand. Dyed and Figured Shirtings and Mulls, also without inquiries. Brocades wanted but not in supply. Turkey Red Cambrics, only a small business done. Sales of 2 lbs. 6 oz., at $44; of 2 lbs., at $40; of 1 lb. 15 oz., at $38½ per corge. Grey Twist very quiet. Sales of No. 30, at $136 and 135; of No. 40, at $145. Lighter weights not in stock. Turkey Red Yarn, but few inquirers; only sales of No. 40, at $144. There had been an arrival of Iron, of which none had been sold—of old stock Bar sold at $2.35; Hoops, at $2.30 per picul. Pig Lead disposed of in small quantities, at $6 per picul.

STRAITS, JAVA, CHINA, AND JAPAN EXPORTS.

TEA.

SHANGHAI.—Black: There had been no business. Green: Business had been small, settlements amounted to 2,165 half-chests. There was no change in prices. The stock on offer was reduced to 4,594 half-chests.

HANKOW AND KIUKIANG.—Nothing to report.

FOOCHOW.—Reports from the tea districts had been received to the effect that prices had opened there at from 3 to 4 Taels under those of last year, but this rumour was not generally believed. Nothing had transpired regarding the quality of the crop, but it was said to be much superior to that of last season. The first Teas were expected to arrive in about ten days.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—We take the following from Messrs. C. J. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular:—The unfavourable nature of the telegrams and the lateness of the season, combined with the undesirable descriptions of silk on offer have tended to check operations; so that, although the dealers have latterly been willing to accept a decline of Tls. 10 on medium, and Tls. 10 to 20 on common parcels of Taysaam sorts, transactions for the fortnight only reach about 250 bales, stock is reduced to about 250 bales, and our next issue on the 19th May will close season 1869-70. With regard to prospects for the coming season, it is too soon even to speculate on the probable outturn; so far the worms have progressed favourably, but the critical period will not arrive for nearly three weeks yet.

JAVA AND STRAITS PRODUCE.

BATAVIA.—Arrack, 4 per cent. overproof: Sales of this article at f.72½ to f.75 per leaguer. Coffee, Java: None in the market; the Government sale of 25,000 piculs, on the 25th April, averaged f.33.86 per picul. Padang, none offering. Gum Damar: In less inquiry, but still to be placed at f.38 to f.39 for well picked. Indigo: Sales at Samarang of No. 1 quality at f.5.15 to f.5.25 per N. lb. India-rubber: Scarce, at f.90 to f.100 per picul for good quality. Tin, Billiton: The next public auction will be held on the 3rd June, when 6,000 piculs will be offered. Nutmegs continue scarce, at f.100 to f.115 per picul for good sorts. Mace in good demand, at f.160 to f.175 per picul. Black Pepper maintains its value, at f.23 to f.23.50 per picul; White, very small supplies. Rattans: Borneo asked for at f.11 to f.12 per picul. Padang changed hands at f.7 to f.8 per picul. Sugar: Small sales from the growing crop at f.14.25 to f.14.50 for No. 14. In higher numbers nothing doing.

SINGAPORE.—There is not much change to report in the position of the produce market since the last mail; business had been limited, and quotations show little alteration. Gambier quiet; about 600 tons were bought at $3, but dealers had been firm for an advance in rates, and afterwards 200 tons were taken at $3.2½ per picul. Black Pepper bought early in the fortnight at $8 70, and a parcel from Siam sold at $8.50 to 8.30 per picul; latterly rates had fallen and Singapore sold at $8.20 per picul; prices had a downward tendency. White Pepper lower in value. Tin in good demand for America, fair business at $31 to 31½ per picul. Pearl Sago firm, and active demand. Sago Flour risen in value, supplies readily taken up. Tapioca: Good quality in demand at previous rates. Coffee unchanged, no supplies of Bontyne or Bally offering. Gum Dammar: Good quality wanted, and high rates paid. Hides in good demand, prices unchanged. Horns scarce, and inquired for.

PENANG: During the fortnight the market had not been well supplied. Pepper: All offers taken at $8.15 for West Coast, $8 to 8.05 for Acheen, and $8.02½ for a small arrival of Trang. White had been rather scarce, small arrivals secured at $11.50 per picul. Tin in small quantities, taken in the earlier days of the fortnight at $29½ and 29.60 per picul; later purchases had been at $29.75 per picul, which was the closing rate. Market nearly bare. Tapioca held for $4. Cutch, in boxes, taken at $4.75; market bare. Fish Maws scarce; arrivals secured at $71 for whole, and $90 and 91 for split. Gutta-percha also scarce; arrivals taken at $105 to 122 per picul. India-rubber, in small quantities, found buyers at $41 and 42 per picul.

As an example of the manner in which the private steamers running through the Suez Canal will compete with the mail companies for passenger traffic, we read in a letter just received from Galle that the Emma Ash, from Colombo to England, takes a number of first-class passengers at £47 10s., the P. and O. Company's rate being £90. The list includes the Archdeacon and his wife. Mr. and Mrs Duncan and family, Lieutenant Edgecombe (73rd Regiment), Miss Duncan, Miss Wall, and many others.

The P. and O. Company's steamer Delhi, which sailed from Southampton on the 25th with the heavy portion of the outgoing mail, will, after landing her passengers and mails at Alexandria, proceed through the Suez Canal to Bombay for service on the other side of the Isthmus.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

GILLILAND V. THE PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.

The plaintiff in this case was the widow of Mr. Gilliland, and she sued on behalf of herself, his mother, and his two children, to recover damages for the loss that they had sustained by his death. The plaintiff's case was, that Mr. Gilliland was thirty-seven years of age, and he was employed by the Indian Government in the accountant's office in the Punjaub. His salary was £660 a-year, and had he lived until he was fifty-five it would probably have risen to £1,200. He would also have been entitled to a pension. He came to England on sick leave, and on his return journey he embarked at Suez on board the Carnatic steamship, which belonged to the defendants, on Sunday, 12th September, 1869. In the course of the voyage the vessel ran upon a coral reef, turned over and went down, and Mr. Gilliland and thirty other persons lost their lives. The action was founded upon the allegation that the loss was occasioned through the negligence of the defendants' servants.

The defence was that the ship was properly and skilfully navigated, but that she, without fault, got out of her course, and so on to the reef. It was, however, submitted that, even had the ship been unskilfully navigated this would not have been material in this action, because the getting upon the reef was not the proximate cause of Mr. Gilliland's death. The captain had an interview with three of the passengers, and explained to them the state of the circumstances, and they thought with him that it would be better that the passengers should not be landed. Shadwan Island was merely a barren rock without water, and the passengers would there have been exposed to the full force of the sun. Further, the Sumatra steamer was expected to pass, and she did in fact come up and took the passengers on board. Beyond this, there was until very shortly before the end nothing to show that there was immediate danger, and under the circumstances it was contended that there was no fault whatever in not sooner getting the passengers out of the ship. Evidence was given for the defence, and it was stated that the vessel must have run upon the reef either in consequence of the compasses being out of order, which they were liable to be in an iron ship, or in consequence of currents, which were uncertain and varying in that part of the sea, having affected the course of the ship. The captain and the chief officer positively denied that the Carnatic was racing with the Tigre, either before or at the time of the accident. In cross-examination, the Captain stated that the result of the inquiry which had taken place was that his certificate had been suspended. Mr. Butt, the plaintiff's counsel, in a vigorous reply, urged that, being four miles out of his course, the captain ought not to have run upon a known coral reef at a speed of twelve or thirteen miles an hour, and that, at any rate, he should have put his passengers into the boats which were alongside, and either landed them before the Carnatic went down, or kept them at a short distance to abide the event.

Mr. Justice Byles left it to the jury to say whether there was such a want of skill or care on the part of the defendants' servants in getting on the reef as caused Mr. Gilliland to lose his life. He expressed his opinion that the suspension of the certificate ought not to influence the jury, and that they should set against that fact the long previous successful career of the captain on various vessels and in different parts of the world. Further, he asked the jury to consider whether there was additional negligence in not endeavouring sooner to land the passengers on the Shadwan Island. He ruled that even if there were no subsequent negligence, then the getting upon the reef was sufficiently proximate to the death of Mr. Gilliland to render the defendants liable. The jury, after considering the matter for half an hour, found that there was negligence both in running the vessel on to the reef and in not getting the passengers off sooner, and they assessed the damages at £3,000, of which they gave to the widow £2,000, the children £400 each, and the mother £200. A bill of exceptions was tendered to the ruling of the learned judge.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

At a meeting of the Royal Geological Society Professor Haughton read a paper on the "Probable Geological Effects of the Permanent Opening of the Suez and Darien Canals." He described the Suez Canal as an interference with nature. He gave a graphic description of the Atlantic and Indian Oceans, with their two great offshoots—the Mediterranean and the Red Sea—seas with not a very limited rainfall area, and subject to immense evaporation; in fact having all the circumstances in their favour to make them the seat of strong currents, the natural tendency of the meeting of which is to build up that vast sand or mud bar, the Isthmus of Suez. The new Canal he regarded as a scratch of a spade, by the hand of a child, across the bar of the two oceans; and the re-formation of that bar he regarded as certain—it would probably be re-formed beyond Port Said. He thought the Darien Canal would have a totally different success. Nature, in scooping out the great gulf in which the West Indian Islands lie, showed her determination to break through the isthmus somewhere, and the great South Atlantic current would keep any canal open that was cut.

MR. COOPER'S TRAVELS.

At the last meeting of the season of the Royal Geographical Society held in the theatre of the Royal Institution, Albemarle-street—Sir Roderick Murchison in the chair,

Mr. T. T. Cooper read an interesting description of his recent travels in Western China and Eastern Thibet. With only a party of two interpreters and a muleteer, Mr. Cooper started from Chung-Too, in the province of Se Chuen, with the view of ascertaining whether any practicable route exists between China and our Indian possessions, so as to facilitate trade between India and China. His object was to reach Lassa, but this intention was frustrated owing to impending political struggles, and after passing Kofau and Ye-tang, he was obliged to make a halt at Batang, and instead of going forward to Assam, only 150 miles distant, to make a circuitous route across the Kiu-Chu-Kiang River to Yun-nan, along the precipitous banks of the La-San River, and afterwards to Weesi-fu, where he was imprisoned for five weeks, but afterwards got safely back to Shanghai. The valleys of Thibet he passed through are remarkably fertile, and studded in some cases with very fine walnut trees; but the great characteristic is the apparent abundance of gold, which, however, like everything else of a yellow colour, belongs of right to the Llama priests. The passage over the mountains of Tassan was exceedingly laborious and painful, the great altitude reached causing bleeding at the nose and ears, and for many days great privations were sustained apart, from the dangers of exploration, owing to the jealousy of the priests and their fear of annexation of their country by the Palims. Mr. Cooper considers the Chinese maps are substantially correct as to the rivers and mountains, and that if the Himalayas do reach the Thibetian mountains their convolutions do not interfere with road communication between Assam and China.

Sir Rutherford Alcock spoke in warm terms of Mr. Cooper's energy and ability in accomplishing so difficult an exploration where the jealousy of the Llama priests was so great an obstacle. He hoped a practical route would be found between Assam and Se Chuen, if not over the mountains, perhaps by tracing one of those great rivers into connection with the Ganges, and such a discovery would be of greater value, if of less fame, than that of the source of the Nile.

The Chairman warmly applauded Mr. Cooper's paper, and assured him the society would do everything in their power to aid in the exploration of Thibet; and after a few words from Mr. Saunders, to which Mr. Cooper replied, the meeting was formally adjourned till next session. A large and fashionable audience attended, among whom were Admirals Belcher, Collinson, and Hall, Sir R. Alcock, Colonel Grant, &c

POSTAGE RATES TO INDIA AND CHINA.

(June 13th.) Mr. CRAWFORD asked the Postmaster General whether, when the intended reduction of postage on letters passing between this country and France had been carried into effect, it would not be fair and equitable to make a corresponding reduction on the postage of letters passing through France by the overland mails to and from the East.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON replied that the additional postal convention with France, which was agreed upon last September, would come into operation on the first of next month. It, however, provided only for a reduction of the rates on international letters. It did not affect the payment by the British to the French Government for mails conveyed through France. It would not be possible to make any reduction in the postage rates to the East.

LAUNCHES.

On the 13th inst. there was launched from the shipbuilding yard of Mr. W. F. Moore, at Plymouth, a fine barque, 650 tons burthen, and 440 tons register. She is to be known by the name of the Florence, and is intended for the China trade. The vessel will be fitted out as soon as possible, and she is to be commanded by Captain Luxton.

A fine clipper brig, named the Lunan, has been launched from Messrs. Humphrey's shipbuilding-yard at Aberdeen. The vessel is 122 feet long, 24 feet 6 inches broad, and 14 feet deep. She is of 270 tons register, and is to be commanded by Captain Cargill. The Lunan, which has been built for Mr. J. W. Morice, London, is intended for the China coast trade.

There has been launched from the shipbuilding-yard of Messrs. Henderson, Coulborn and Co., Renfrew, a screw steamer of 240 tons builders' measurement. Her engines, of 40 horse-power nominal, are on the builders' patent compound principle. She is built to the order of William Ferrier-Kerr, Esq., Glasgow, for the Borneo Company, and was christened the "Sri Sarawak" by the wife of Captain Hewit, who will command the vessel.

IMPORT DUTIES AT MANILA.—BOARD OF TRADE, JUNE 13.—The Right Hon. the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade have received a despatch from Her Majesty's Consul at Manila, reporting that by a decree dated March 29th, 1870, the Customs duties payable upon the importation into the Philippine Islands of the following articles, which were abolished by a decree of the 16th of December, 1867, have been reimposed:—Sweet oil, codfish (bacalao), salted or smoked beef, mutton, or pork, hams and venison, chickpeas, grain, and seeds, such as hay, rye, beans, maize, lentils, &c.—green herbs, garlic, onions, potatoes, and the like; butter and lard, dried, salted, and smoked fish, sardines, hung-beef, bacon, wheat, cattle, asses, horses, mules, sheep, &c., swine, and buffaloes, trees, plants, and seeds, charcoal, and live fish. The provisions of this decree will come into operation at the expiration of eight months from the date of its publication.

THE MID CHANNEL TELEGRAPH CABLE.—The Western Morning News reports that the mid-Channel telegraph cable is being taken up, and the ship Brisk, which was placed fifty miles south-west of the Land's End, is removed from her moorings. Three reasons are assigned for giving up the cable. The Brisk rolled very much in consequence of the heavy swell of the sea and the strong currents which prevail in the chops of the Channel; moreover, she is not suitable, being too large, and presenting too much surface to the sea. Next, homeward bound vessels have not used the cable extensively. And thirdly, the cable has parted frequently, and thus the communication has been interrupted and uncertain, which has occasioned disappointment.

THE launch of the new clipper steamer to be called the Lord of the Isles, which has been delayed owing to the late low tides on the Clyde, is expected to come off to-morrow. She has been built for Messrs. Shaw, Maxton and Co.'s China line, and is of about 2,400 tons burthen.

EXPERIENCED manufacturers, who have examined some specimens of silk from California, pronounce it to be equal to the best silk of India and Japan, the fibre being very strong and fine, free from impurities, and remarkably smooth and glossy. Up to the present time much difficulty has been experienced in obtaining proper machinery for reeling the cocoons, but this is in a fair way to be settled.

AT the last meeting of the Zoological Society of London the secretary called attention to a deer sent home from Singapore by order of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh. This animal appeared to belong to a new species, and was proposed to be called Cervus Alfredi. Mr. R. Swinhoe read zoological notes made during a journey from Canton to Peking and Kalgan.

THE "Albert" gold medal, instituted for "destinguished merit in promoting arts, manufactures, and commerce," has this year been awarded to M. Ferdinand de Lesseps, "for services rendered to arts, manufactures, and commerce by the realisation of the Suez Canal."

INTELLIGENCE has been received of the loss of Her Majesty's gun-vessel Slaney on the 16th May, off the Paracels group, in a gale. Commander Elwyn, Lieutenant Evatt, Mr. Ryall (the surgeon), and forty-three men were drowned.

HER MAJESTY'S screw sloop Columbine, 4 guns, 672 tons, 150-horse power, lately fitted at Sheerness, is ordered to be commissioned for service in China and the East Indies. The Columbine is to be commanded by Commander John C. Tucker, who was promoted in 1866 from the command of the Algerine, gun-vessel at China, and will have a complement of 130 officers and men. She was last in commission in the Pacific, and was paid off in January, 1868.

DR. HASSKARL, formerly superintendent of the Botanic Gardens, and introducer of the cinchona plant into Java, publishes a monograph of the Indian Commelinaceæ, especially those of the Indian Archipelago, with a few other species.

MR. MARKHAM, Consul at Chefoo, now in London, is preparing a narrative of his journeys and experiences.

MESSRS. HURST AND BLACKETT announce Travels of a Naturalist in Japan and Manchuria, by Arthur Adams, F.L.S., Staff Surgeon, R.N.

THE Silk Supply Journal for June 15 is a more than usually interesting number. It contains notices of the Conference on the French Treaty at Macclesfield, Japan Silkworms' Eggs, Silk Production in Europe; also some notes on the China Treaty.

A VERY interesting paper has been contributed by Mr. G. W. Yapp, of Paris, on the food of China, drawn chiefly from information furnished by M. Simon, late French Consul at Ningpo, exhibiting the efforts made by the Chinese to secure food for such an immense and needy population, rice and fish being the great staples.

MR. A. B. MITFORD, Secretary to the British Legation in Japan, now in England, is engaged on carrying through the press a volume of original Japanese tales, illustrated by native Japanese artists. From Mr. Mitford's profound scholarship and intimate knowledge of Japan and the Japanese a genuine book may be expected.

A CONFERENCE was held in the council-room of the Society of Arts on the 24th inst., the subject being "Overland Routes between India, Eastern Thibet, Assam, and China." The discussion was of an interesting character, but we are compelled to defer our report until next issue.

WE notice with regret the death of the Earl of Clarendon, which occurred at an early hour this morning.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite. The Civil Service Gazette remarks.—"The singular success which Mr. Epps has attained by his homœopathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any experimentalist. By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in tin-lined packets labelled—JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemists, London.

COLONIAL GOVERNORS AND COLONIAL JUDGES

(PALL MALL GAZETTE.)

A Parliamentary paper relating to the removal and suspension of colonial judges throws a curious light on the sort of subject in which Englishmen in the various outlying fragments of the British Empire take interest and consequently quarrel over; and it also illustrates the habit of Englishmen, including Secretaries of State, to prefer false issues to true ones, provided only that the first be conventional and familiar. The little but rather important British dependency, consisting of three morsels of territory at the end of the Malay Peninsula, and called the Straits Settlement, appears to have been recently disjoined at its own request from the Indian Empire. As a matter of fact its connection was not with India, but with the East India Company, for it was a most convenient halting-place on the way to China, and of no small value to the Company while it had the monopoly of the Chinese trade. It does not contain, moreover, like India, an indigenous population, but is mainly occupied by a mixture of races attracted by the shelter afforded to them by British power. The free admission of all British traders into China took away all meaning from its subjection to the Government at Calcutta, and the British residents seem for a long series of years to have clamoured for a separation, alleging that the Indian Government, accustomed to a wholly different order of things, misunderstood, and consequently neglected or injured, the interests of the far-removed little settlement. This agitation was successful, and a few years ago the Di facciles of Downing-street granted the establishment of the Straits Settlements as a separate Crown Colony. The Indian and Anglo-Chinese newspapers have resounded ever since with far louder complaints than ever from the newly made colonists. They seem to find their new Government more cumbrous than the old one, far more difficult to move, and much more expensive: what seems to gall them most of all, they find it infinitely more ceremonious and pretentious. Their real grievances, however, are scarcely of a nature to afford a ground for a solemn political movement, and accordingly they prefer to represent that they experience the greatest concern and alarm at a provision in the ordinance prescribing their Government which appears to them to threaten the "independence" of their judges. It seems that when the settlement belonged to India, the judges held office during the Queen's pleasure, and were removable, therefore, only by Her Majesty on the advice of a Cabinet Minister. But under the ordinance, the governor of the settlement may "suspend" a judge, pending the receipt of a despatch from the Colonial-office reinstating him or confirming his deposition from the bench.

The Colonial Secretary makes one point in his reply which deserves attention, and this we will notice presently. Besides this, he sends out some memoranda and minutes by members of the Privy Council which seem to us quite irrelevant to the true question, but which certainly disclose a curious state of the law. It appears that under an old Act of Parliament, of which Burke was the author, a colonial Governor can "amove" a judge appointed under a Crown patent, but the judge can appeal to the Privy Council. The Privy Councillors, whose opinions have been submitted to Parliament, enter on a discussion whether the exercise of this power of "amotion," subject to appeal, is or is not a more convenient course than a reference by Her Majesty to the Judicial Committee of the whole question whether a particular judge has so misconducted himself as to deserve removal. For reasons which are not without force, they conclude that the former course is practically more convenient. But this is not really the point raised in the memorial from the Straits Settlement. The power of "amotion" exists independently of any colonial ordinance, and the ordinance constituting the Straits Settlement a colony appears to confer on the Governor a wholly new power intended to be used in quite a new way. The Governor is not to "amove," but to suspend; and in this last case the appeal is not to a judicial tribunal, but to the Secretary of State, who is technically answerable for all the acts of his official subordinate, the Governor. We must own that this expedient seems to us to have the double effect of unduly weakening the sense of responsibility both in the Secretary of State and in the governor. The Governor no longer feels that he is taking a step which can be appealed against, as a matter of strict right, to a perfectly impartial tribunal. The Secretary of State is not forced to give to a mere confirmation all the grave reflection which he would probably bestow on an original act of his own; it becomes a mere question of whether he shall back a subordinate or throw him over, and on this his leaning will always be towards supporting the executive functionary. The truth is that these powers of "amotion" or suspension are only defensible and are only defended in these papers by reasons which have ceased to have any applicability to the majority of the colonies. The one great reason for conferring them on governors was the distance of the colonies from England. But this element of distance has been annulled in the case of most of them by the post and the telegraph. The Straits Settlement, at all events, lies in the very route of the China mail, and communicates easily both with India and with Australia. It does not appear in any way why a charge of misconduct on the part of a judge could not be investigated on the spot by the governor, and all the materials, together with the judge's defence, if he chooses to make one, referred to the Secretary of State for an original decision. It is quite right that colonial judges should hold office during the Queen's pleasure, and not, as do English judges, during good behaviour; nor is there any urgent reason for getting rid of the statutory power of "amotion." But in the case of a colony not farther off than India, cause has not been shown for this new power of suspension which the Indian Government does not enjoy or apparently require for judges who might make themselves much more dangerous than the judges of the Straits Settlement.

The Duke of Buckingham, who was the Secretary of State answering the memorial, certainly referred to a point which ought not to be left out of sight when he delicately hinted that colonial judges are not quite made of the same stuff as English judges, and are often not controlled to the same extent, through the absence of an efficient bar. The barristers placed on the bench in India and the Colonies have certainly not attained in general the same professional success which qualifies for the English bench; but it is fair to remember that in the peculiar state of the English bar there may be great ability without corresponding success, and that in the case of judges sent to tropical climates the practice now obtains of appointing them for obvious reasons at what among barristers is considered an early age. But we must recollect that the question raised is a question between colonial judges and colonial governors. If colonial judges are sometimes tempted to join in and even to head small local agitations, colonial governors are not seldom vain, fussy, and intolerably pompous. Of the two the chances are on the whole that the governor is the more unreasonable; for his Excellency, who represents the Queen, is a little apt to resent the very existence of his Honour, who has the Queen's patent, as a standing indignity offered to himself. There should be very strong reasons for allowing one of these petty dignitaries to have the power of degrading the other.

THE CIVIL SERVICE ESTIMATES.

The Civil Service Estimates for the present financial year, which ends on the 31st March, 1871, have been issued. The amount required to defray the Government Embassies and Consulates abroad presents a total of £620,593; the vote for the past year—1869-70—was £693,248, so that the reduction which the present Government has announced its intention of carrying out will, according to these figures, result in a saving of £72,655. Of this reduction it appears that £12,448 will be effected on the Diplomatic Service, and £60,207 upon the Consular establishments. Upon the effects of this course of action in impairing the efficiency of the services it is not our present intention to comment; the present article is merely a summary of the figures as detailed in the estimates, and we may leave those of our readers who are interested in the matter to form their own opinions with regard to the results to be produced by the changes now going forward.

Turning to those figures which refer especially to China and the Far East, and commencing with the Diplomatic Service, we find votes of £6,000 for the Minister Plenipotentiary in China, and of £1,200 for the Secretary of Legation and the Chinese Secretary. As regards Japan the figures represent totals of £4,000 for the Minister, £800 for the Secretary of Legation, and £700 for the Japanese Secretary. In the case of these two establishments, the estimates differ in no respect from those of the preceding year.

We come next to the Consular Services, which, as regards China, exhibit the following figures:—Assistant-Chinese Secretary £600, Assistant and Accountant, £400 (a reduction of £100), and Surgeon £600, making a total of £1,600. The allowance of £900 for the Colonial Auditor and his assistant disappears from the estimates, which are thereby reduced by that sum. The Consuls' salaries and allowances amount to £12,900, divided thus—Amoy £900, Canton £1,600, Chefoo £900, Foochow £1,300, Hankow £1,300, Kiukiang £900, Newchwang £900, Ningpo £900, Shanghai £1,500, Swatow £800, Taiwan £800, and Tientsin £900, with an additional allowance of £200. In last year's estimates there appeared a sum of £2,400 as "temporary allowances to the Consuls at Shanghai, Hankow, Kiukiang, and Foochow," which are struck out. For the Vice-Consuls the sum required is the same as last year, £3,350, viz., Shanghai, Foochow (Pagoda Island), and Whampoa, each £750, Tamsui £600, and Taku £500. Interpreters figure for £6,200, assistants for £6,900, student interpreters for £3,300, and writers or linguists for £2,812. There is a charge set down of £400 for a shipping clerk at Shanghai, and one of £460 as the allowance to teachers for student interpreters, neither of which appear in last year's estimates. Passing on we find the following charges: Supreme Court £7,932, against £7,637 last year; wages and allowances to gaolers, constables, coolies, and others employed in the public service £4,828, a sum for which there was no corresponding estimate last year; and incidental expenses, £4,985.

The estimated cost of the Consular Establishment in Japan is shown by the following figures:—First there is a sum of £500 for a Japanese interpreter and translator, and the same amount for the medical officer, there being a reduction under this head of £500 by the omission of the allowance for the "Assistant, Accountant, and Interpreter." The Consuls' salaries are, Hiogo £1,000, Nagasaki £900, Ne-egata £800, and Hakodadi £800, together £3,500, or £1,000 less than last year, when a sum of £1,000 appeared as the cost of the Kanagawa consulate. This is explained in the next estimate, that for Vice-Consuls, which gives a total of £1,800, namely, £600 for each of the three ports Yedo, Osaka, and Kanagawa, the last named settlement appearing for the first time under this head. The charge for Dutch Interpreters, which last year amounted to £1,300, is not in the present estimates, its place being occupied by an amount of £300 as "interpreter allowances to three assistants." Assistants and Student Interpreters figure for the same as last year, viz., £4,500, Writers for £647, and gaolers, constables, &c., for £2,274, and Incidental Expenses for £1,785

The reductions which according to these estimates are to be effected will be best shown by the recapitulation of the following figures, showing the entire sum required for the Consular Service in China, Japan, and Siam:—Salaries, allowances, and wages are charged £68,112, against £72,337, a decrease of £4,225; legation guards £4,500, against £6,066, decrease £1,566; outfits and travelling £5,000; printing and stationery £500; postage £600, against £800, decrease £200; rent £9,413, against £10,900, decrease £1,487; chapels and chaplains £1,200, against £3,000, decrease £1,800; medical attendance, prison charges, and incidental expenses £9,875, against £10,500, decrease £625; relief of distressed

British subjects £250. It will be seen from the foregoing that in all except three divisions there are exhibited reductions on the previous estimate, and, we may add, that this amounts in the whole to £9,903, the sum required for the Service of 1869-70 being £109,353, and that of 1870-71, £99,450.

TEA WEIGHTS.

A meeting of tea dealers and grocers was held at the Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, Mr. James Abbiss in the chair, for the purpose of considering the threatened withdrawal by the importing tea merchants of the one pound draft upon all packages of tea over 28lbs.

Mr. Cooper, of the firm of Ridgway and Co., moved the following resolution:—"That this meeting views with astonishment and regret the proposal of the tea importers to alter the terms of the sale of teas, especially as regards the contemplated withdrawal of the one pound draft, and protests against this change as unjust, and calculated to inflict severe injury upon the retail traders in tea." Mr. Roberts seconded the resolution, which was adopted.

Mr. Bartlett, of Philips and Co., moved:—"That the one pound draft at present allowed has been accepted by the trade as an equitable set-off against the losses constantly and inevitably arising out of causes incidental to redistribution." Mr. Law seconded the resolution, which was carried.

The meeting was addressed by Messrs. Wright, Hawkins, Betts, Debac, Newsom, Tulloch, Moore, Robinson, and others, and a resolution was adopted pledging the meeting to resist the proposed withdrawal of the one pound draft by every legitimate means.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, June 22.

In the present dulness of the news market under which the German press is suffering it is not to be wondered at that the old sea-serpent of a "German colony in the Far East" should again have put his nose above water. The venue has, however, this time been changed to the vicinity of Singapore. The well-informed Berlin correspondent of the Elberfelder Zeitung writes to that highly respectable semi-official journal, which is freely made use of by the Government of Prussia to put forth feelers and foreshadow coming events, as follows:—"This time it appears to be the earnest intention of the Government to acquire a colony in Asia for the North German Confederation, for the negotiations with the Malayan Rajah of Johore, in the peninsula of Malacca, for the sale and purchase of the island of Kalamne, are nearly completed. The acquisition of this island stands in connection with the long-proposed plan of establishing a permanent naval station for Germany on the east coast of Asia, where, ever since the expedition to Japan (1859 to 1862), there has never been more than one single corvette. Since the opening of the Suez Canal the Hertha has been sent out to reinforce the Medusa in the East, and it is intended next year to strengthen the naval force there by another and additional corvette. To ensure a proper and abundant supply of commissariat stores for these vessels, it is considered very important to have a depôt of our own, which is to be formed, with magazines for ammunition and ships' stores, on the above-named island. The Rajah in question has declined to become a member of the North German Confederation—probably on account of the large Federal contributions he would be called on to pay every year—and prefers to sell his sovereign rights over the territory to Prussia for hard cash. The island would then stand in the same relation to Prussia as the new Federal port and naval arsenal at Wilhelmshaven, in the Jahde Busen. The treaty will thus require the sanction of the Prussian Chambers and also of the North German Parliament."

In consequence of representations from Bremen, the Federal Council have drawn up a code of regulations for rewarding native or foreign captains and crews for saving the lives of German seamen in cases of shipwreck, fire, and other accidents at sea. The execution is to be placed in the hands of the Foreign-office at Berlin, and the rewards will no longer be honorary orders of merit or medals, which are not much appreciated by the mercantile marine of any nation, but useful nautical instruments, such as chronometers, telescopes, and sextants, with a suitable inscription engraved on them.

Herr W. von Pustau has purchased the extensive and beautifully-wooded grounds at Nienstedten, on the banks of the Elbe, known as "Parish's Villa," from the family of the late Mr. Parish, formerly the head of the firm of Parish and Co., China merchants in this city, for the sum of 200,000 marks currency, with the intention of pulling down the old building and substituting on a better locality in the centre of the park a handsome modern country villa.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, June 22.

The topic of the day is the fact that the Oost Indische Maatschappy van Administratie en lyfrenten has been obliged temporarily to stop payment, in order to come to an arrangement for its future conduct. I need not add that this has created the greatest astonishment and alarm, the general opinion being until now that this company was perfectly solvent. It is stated that some India firms will lose enormously by this misfortune, and many rumours are circulating thereabout.

The meeting of the Credit International of Rotterdam has also caused much excitement, owing to the unfavourable state of the report and balance-sheet.

The Second Chamber has been occupied for some days with the New Postal Bill, which at last was carried by 61 against 8 votes. The debate has, of course, no interest for your readers, and so I only state that the proposal of the Minister to increase the postage upon newspapers has failed. Not only will the one cent postage for the larger papers be maintained, but smaller ones will have only to pay a rate of one half cent.

The Minister of the Colonial Department has asked for a supplementary credit of f.100,000 to cover the expenses of the Governor-General of Java during his last tournée. When this bill was examined in the sections very severe remarks were made about this prodigality. Mr. Myer, it was stated, was so anxious to avoid falling short, and ordered such a mass of things, that when he returned the portion of his equipment that had not been required was sold in public auction for the enormous sum of f.45,339.

The Dutch vessel Augusta, with a cargo of samples for the Far East, which are designed to promote the trade of Germany and Austria, sailed this morning from our harbour. Mr. F. Peil, of Cologne, is conducting this enterprise.

The law suit against Doctor Elders, of which I recently gave you particulars, has been decided. The verdict of the Court was Not Guilty, and the doctor has been set at liberty.

COMMERCIAL.

COFFEE.—The market is very dull. Only one lot of 500 bales has changed hands.

RAW SUGAR.—Remains unaltered. About 2,000 mats sold at f.¾ under May prices.

SPICES.—There is some demand for speculation. For Nutmegs, No. 1, 121c. to 122c. was paid, and for No. 2, 115c. to 116c.; but holders now decline to operate without an advance.

TEA.—3,536/4, and 77/12 chests Java offered in auction were sold at firm prices, only 300/12 chests being bought in.

TOBACCO.—About 500 bales Java sold by private tender at prices that did not transpire.

HIDES.—Several parcels, imported per Susanne, Jedo, and Courser sold by private tender.

TIN.—Shares in the general dulness which prevails. The price is nominally f.79½.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—June 8, at Brouwershaven, from Padang, St. Jan; at Texel, from Passaroeang, Utinia; June 10, at Brouwershaven, from Sourabaya, County of Elgin; from Banjoewangie, President van Ryckevorsel; at Hellevoet, from Banjowangie, Isabella Johanna; June 11, at Brouwershaven, from Singapore, Edith; at Texel, from Padang, Padang Packet; from Banjoewangie, Sindbad; at Texel, from Macassar, Hellevoetsluis; at Flushing, from Batavia, Stad Middelburg; June 13, at Brouwershaven, from Samarang, Evanell; June 14, at Texel, from Batavia, India Packet; from Banjoewangie, Vier Gebroeders.

DEPARTURES.—June 8, from Brouwershaven, for Batavia, Baron van Pallandt van Roozendaal; from Texel, for Batavia, Vice Admiraal May; 15, from Texel for Macassar, Elizabeth and Jacoba, Hollandia; from Hellevoetsluis for Java (via Birkenhead), Graafstroom.

FREIGHTS.—The Trading Company has chartered the following vessels to convey produce from Java to Rotterdam: Erasmus, Hulshoff, 655 lasts, f.74; India, Pons, 685 lasts, f.74. To Dordrecht: Bali, Van Rossen, 572 lasts, f.74; Dordrecht II., Rotgans, 408 lasts, f.75. To Amsterdam: Bestevaer, Rosier, 393 lasts, f.74.98; Jan Pietersz, Koen, Ouwehand, 409 lasts, f.74.98; Noordbrabant, Roovers, 1,060 lasts, f.75.47.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.—For Java: per Vice Admiraal May, Messrs. H. C. Bordewyk and family, J. Fokker, Miss H. Donleben.

PASSENGERS INWARD.—From Java: Per Padang Packet, Mrs. M. C. Arriens and family, Messrs. F. B. Intfeld and family, J. Boon. Per Hellevoetsluis, Mrs. Goudswaard, Wynmalen and family. Per India Packet, Messrs. C. Pabst, C. F. Hermann, M. Hazenberg.

THE BRINDISI ROUTE.

THE question of the Brindisi route for our postal service to India and China continues to be agitated. The Times, Economist, and other papers advocate its adoption, but our Postmaster-General is mute as to his intentions on the subject. Now, whatever may be his views on the subject, the public have certainly a right to know them. The memorial, signed by a large number of the influential bankers and merchants in the trade, forwarded a month ago, remains unanswered to this time. The Chairman of the P. and O Company, at the meeting of shareholders lately held, stated that no communication had been received from the Government as to adopting the port of Brindisi, but that they would be perfectly ready to do so according to the terms of the present contract when required. So it is quite clear that the Marquis of HARTINGTON stops the way. We understand that the Dutch Government have decided on using the Brindisi route. In addition to the Mont Cenis tunnel, which will be completed by the middle of next year, a project is on foot for piercing the St. Gothard Pass. The Brenner Pass is already used by passengers desirous of reaching Germany, and this route is also a pleasant change for English travellers via Ostend. The time, however, is some twenty hours longer than by the Mont Cenis. On all sides there seems a determination to substitute Italy for France as the high road to the Far East.

LONDON: MONDAY, JUNE 27, 1870.

THE TEA WEIGHT QUESTION.

IN our last number we gave the resolutions of the tea importers to abolish the 1 lb. draft on the 1st July next. We also gave the resolutions passed at a meeting of the wholesale dealers and of the retail trade. We now proceed to notice them, premising, however, that it is purely a matter in which the importers have a fair right to act on their own responsibility. The manner in which the proposed alteration have been noticed in the papers devoted to the interests of the dealers is however so objectionable that we cannot refrain from pointing out how erroneous are the doctrines of the dealers. The resolution of Mr. PEEK (F. PEEK, WINCH, and Co.), seconded by Mr. ROGERS (TRAVERS and Co.), is as follows :—

"That we more strongly object to the proposed alteration, inasmuch as the allowance for draft forming an element in the merchant's calculation, when purchasing teas in China, its abolition will be solely to the advantage of Chinamen, and by no means to the benefit of importers, while it will inflict a serious injury upon the retailers and small wholesale dealers in this country."

Passing over the grammatical blunders and obscure construction of this resolution, we glean from it that a total ignorance of the matter is involved in its meaning. It is more than probable that the gentlemen who moved and seconded this resolution, and many perhaps who voted affirmatively thereon, have frequently perused the tables which are used by the tea inspector in China—more especially the calculations where the loss of weight is included as an element of the cost laid down ; but they evidently do not know that the rapidity with which the gigantic tea trade is necessarily conducted in China, prevents the weighing of every chest of tea, as is the case in the consuming countries, while it is impossible for buyers in China to tell on which particular parcel the difference will fall. The merchants have taken action—tardily enough it seems to us—to benefit themselves, as, at the smallest computation, they must have lost on the head of draft only since the opening of the trade at least twelve million pounds weight of tea—a loss with which the old East India Company never saddled themselves.

To say that the wholesale and retail trade is based upon this allowance of draft, as enunciated in the fourth resolution of this meeting, is simply untrue. We know how eagerly the dealers look after good taring parcels, and how frequently they have paid a profit for chops of tea because they "tared well." We consider that no time could have been more opportune for the settlement of this matter than the present. The prices at which the trade are now purchasing, and for many years past have purchased, their tea, and the rate at which they vend it to the consumer, has left them large margins of profit. An analysis of one purchase which a few days since came under our notice, and which was bought at one of the largest retailers in central London, showed no less than 1s. 3d. per lb. gross profit ! We leave our readers to form their own opinion of how much or how little grievance the wholesale and retail dealers have to complain at the merchants at last throwing off a burden which for so many years they have rather apathetically borne. We notice that a sum of five guineas per firm is about being subscribed to carry out the views of the "trade" in this matter. We trust at no distant date to learn that the amount so collected has been handed over to the "Treasurer of the Tea-dealers and Grocers' Benevolent Institution."

Several meetings have been held during the past week between the tea importing houses and the dealers, which ended in a resolution by the importers to postpone the time from the 1st to the 18th July, to which the chairman of the wholesale dealers replies by stating that the only mode of settling the question is to abandon the proposed change.

AFFAIRS IN JAPAN.

THE affairs of China have supplied a good many "Blue-books" of late, which it has been our not always cheerful duty to dissect. It is quite a relief to turn to one on Japan, which, though not entirely free from the depressing influence generally characteristic of Parliamentary papers, yet contains much that is novel and interesting in reference to the vast social and political changes that have been so quietly, yet so effectually wrought out in that country during the past two years. The MIKADO's abandonment of his mystic seclusion and entry into Yedo, the voluntary rendition by the Daimios of their sovereign rights, the formation of a deliberative Assembly, and the free exchange of international courtesies incidental to the Duke of EDINBURGH's visit—all these have been chronicled, in a fragmentary sort of manner, in the local newspapers and in the London and China Telegraph ; but in the volume now before us (Japan, No. 3, 1870) we have a connected and official record of all these remarkable events, illustrated by numerous and very able translations from native documents, which have procured for their authors (Messrs. MITFORD and HALL, of the Legation at Yedo) warm and well-deserved praise from Sir HARRY PARKES and the Foreign-office. There are close on one hundred pages of correspondence and documents, all of them full of interest ; but our notice must necessarily be brief.

Passing over a series of despatches in which Sir HARRY PARKES informs the Foreign-office of the MIKADO's arrival in Yedo, and of the surrender by the Daimios of their fiefs and revenues to him, we come to those describing the formation of the National Council, or Parliament. It is a singular fact that the great nobles themselves quite recognised the fact that their lack of experience in the earnest business of life rendered them unfit to assume Parliamentary duties ; and that they deputed their leading retainers—who are really administrators of the affairs of the clans—to act as their representatives. These deputies formed the consulting body, though the Daimios also attended ; but the latter, instead of forming themselves into a sort of Upper House, as might have been expected, sat in the same chamber, and apparently contented themselves with listening to the debates. Such, at least, was the constitution of the Assembly when described by our Minister in April, 1869 ; whether any nearer approach to the form of our own Parliament has since been made, we are unable to say. The functions of this body would seem to be purely deliberative, and in no sense legislative, for Sir HARRY PARKES, having applied for information on this point, was assured that its powers only extended to the recommending of measures to the Executive Government, which might be adopted or rejected, according to the MIKADO's decision ; the "Royal assent" being in Japan by no means a mere matter of form. One of the earliest discussions in the new Parliament was on the foreign relations of the country. At first the preponderance of opinion seemed unfavourable to foreign intercourse, but a document laid before the House by the Japanese Foreign-office, plainly showing the dangers of hostility to foreigners, quite dismayed the opposition, who found the arguments adduced unanswerable. It was this debate on foreign affairs which induced our Representative to inquire whether the Parliament claimed the power of altering existing laws or treaties ; and the result (recorded above) was entirely satisfactory. In a speech made by the MIKADO to the nobles, he said, "I purpose to maintain foreign relations, and while "seeking faithfully and sincerely to carry out engagements, "it will be my first object to uphold in its integrity the "constitutional independence of the country and the "throne." Surely nothing could be more conciliating, yet dignified, than this ; and in all matters touching international relations, Sir HARRY PARKES finds the conduct of the MIKADO and his Government deserving of the warmest commendation.

We may briefly touch on a few other discussions in the Japanese Parliament, on which some light is thrown by this correspondence. One arose on the time-honoured custom of extorting levies of money in times of urgent necessity from farmers and merchants. A motion was brought forward that in future this system should be exchanged for the European one of raising money on Government bonds bearing interest ; this was carried by 123 Ayes to 30 Noes. Since then the Government has taken further lessons in Western finance, as evidenced by Mr. LAY's recent successful operation on their behalf. On another occasion the question whether partnerships between native and foreign merchants should be legalised was ably argued on both sides. Eventually the House came to what Sir HARRY PARKES considers the right decision —they rejected the proposal by 142 votes to 39. A far more important debate than this was one on the reform of the Constitution, wherein six different schemes of Government, or Reform Bills, were considered. The arguments for and against each plan having been laid before the MIKADO, his Majesty promptly decided in favour of the simplest—that whereby each Daimio retained the government of his own territory in the capacity of prefect. Other debates had reference to the national custom of haru-kiri, and the practice of wearing two swords, each of which a few enthusiastic reformers sought to abolish. Both proposals were negatived by large majorities. These debates in what may be considered a sort of experimental Parliament are full of interest, and, notwithstanding the restricted powers it boasts, are of no small value. Recent advices show that the state of the national exchequer—showing an alarming deficit—has been laid before the Assembly, and we shall await with no little curiosity the advice that will be tendered as to the best mode of replenishing the empty coffers of the State. Of the difficulties that yet stand in the way of the remodelled Government, those of finance will probably prove the most difficult to overcome.

A small but very important part of this correspondence has reference to the introduction of railways and telegraphs into Japan. Sir HARRY PARKES has undoubtedly made good use of his opportunities of urging these measures on the Japanese authorities, and they soon recognised the expediency of acting on his advice, but found a difficulty in procuring the requisite funds. A beneficent fairy however opportunely appeared in the person of Mr. H. N. LAY, and the manner in which he met their wishes is described by the Minister in these curious terms:—"Their difficulty in making a commencement lay in the want of funds, and this was met by "an offer on the part of Mr. LAY to lend the Government "£1,000,000 sterling on the security of the projected line of "railway and the Customs' revenues. They accepted this "offer, and Mr. LAY returned to England to raise the above "sum." According to this Mr. LAY undertook to lend the money before he had taken any steps to raise it! Whatever peculiarities there may be about the manner in which the money has been procured, we cannot but feel that there is great reason for congratulation in the fact that railways have actually been undertaken in the country. A line of telegraph is already in operation, and others are in progress. In the hands of so energetic and practical a people there can be no doubt of the entire success of both these undertakings, more especially as a commencement was not made with either until the question had been fully discussed in Parliament, and the opposing party—at first rather strong—had been brought round to a favourable view of the innovations. Translations are given of minutes handed in by two members of the Government in support of railways, one of which contains a remarkable paragraph anticipating and refuting the very objection which is made so much of by the Chinese Government—namely, that the employment of steam locomotion for inland traffic would throw native boatmen and others out of employ, and thus produce discontent, starvation, and ruin. "If railways were constructed," says the writer of this minute, "aged men, "women, and children would travel with ease, and trade "would become more and more flourishing. Chair-"bearers, horse-boys, boatmen, and innkeepers will reap "the benefit of the increasing prosperity, and will be "able to find means of gaining a livelihood." Here we must bring our commentary to a close. It necessarily gives but a meagre outline of a most interesting series of papers, and we strongly recommend those who have the time and inclination to learn more to get the Blue-book and read it conscientiously through. We have entirely passed over many interesting details regarding the hospitable reception accorded to the Duke of EDINBURGH, which reflected the highest credit on the Japanese Monarch and his officials, and was most gratifying to the Prince and his countrymen. Their conduct on this occasion is consistent with many other evidences of a sincere desire to cement friendly relations with Great Britain, which deserve our respect and admiration.

SIR R. ALCOCK ON THE CHINA CONVENTION.

IT was pretty generally understood that the delay on the part of the Foreign-office in giving any definitive reply to the numerous representations made by mercantile bodies against the new China Convention, was due to Lord CLARENDON'S wish that Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK, on his return to this country, should himself study these criticisms on his action, and draw up an answer to them. Judging from the time he has taken to do this, it would seem that a good deal of thought and ingenuity was required to meet the objections raised against the Convention, but at last the results of his task are before us, in the shape of the Parliamentary paper noticed in our last issue. Sir RUTHERFORD'S "Memorandum," which is somewhat diffuse, has been forwarded by the Foreign-office to the Committee of London Merchants and to the various Chambers of Commerce who memorialised, with a curt note from the Under-Secretary, stating that Lord CLARENDON'S object in communicating it to them is "not to invite any further controversy on the subject, but "simply to inquire whether it alters or modifies the views "already expressed concerning the Convention."

Turning to the Memorandum itself, we find that the writer classifies the arguments of the merchants, and combats them all more or less vigorously, occasionally, however, making admissions that very much damage his case. Sir RUTHERFORD starts by repudiating the charge of having first sought the advice of the mercantile communities as to the bases of his Convention and then deliberately disregarded it. He was bound, he says, to ask the opinions of these communities for his own guidance, but could only take action in accordance with his instructions from Government, and that Government "held a very different opinion from the memorialists. This," Sir RUTHERFORD observes with delightful self-complacency, "disposes of the whole of the complaints under that head." We humbly beg leave to differ with his Excellency. If he had specific instructions from his Government, from which he was unable to depart, and therefore could only adopt the opinions of the merchants if by chance they exactly coincided with his instructions, what, in the name of common sense, was the use of soliciting those opinions at all? The Minister modestly goes on to claim credit for having, by a year's continuous effort and discussion, obtained for the benefit of English merchants certain "concessions in favour of trade," which he enumerates as follows:—(1) A rearrangement and simplification of the whole system of transit dues; (2) the removal of minor obstacles, and concession of additional facilities for the increase of trade; (3) concessions to the Chinese in a spirit of equity and reciprocity. The first of these consists, as we all know, in making the two-and-a-half per cent. transit duty on all imports compulsory, without any security for corresponding advantages; how far this may justly be called a "concession in favour of trade" is not very clear. Number two is disappointingly vague also; what "minor obstacles" are removed, and how, are points left in uncertainty, and the "additional facilities for trade"—unless we are prepared to acknowledge the two additional ports as of great value, and the one solitary tug on the Poyang Lake as the necessary forerunner of an inland steam fleet—are shadowy in the extreme. Number three, to quote his Excellency's own words, involves a readjustment of duties on silk and opium favourable to the Chinese Government; and here again we are puzzled to find out how this can be regarded as a concession to British trade. Probably to help us in this difficulty, Sir RUTHERFORD goes on to point out that "Treaties are not of private interpretation." When a Government makes a Treaty, it puts its own interpretation upon it, and that interpretation is authoritative. Now this is awkward, as Sir RUTHERFORD seems to hold the opinion—shared by some other diplomatists—that language was given to man to enable him to conceal his thoughts. Here is a clause in a Treaty whereby the duty on silk exported from China is doubled. To the ordinary commercial mind, high duties are indicative of restrictions on trade. But Sir R. ALCOCK steps in and corrects us; in this particular case a doubled duty is absolutely the reverse—it is "a concession in favour of trade." This is the "authoritative reading," and we are bound to accept it. "None of your private interpretations," says Sir RUTHERFORD; "they are all wrong. If Her MA-"JESTY'S Government says ten per cent. is less than five per "cent., it must be less; so don't argue the point." Certainly, discussion is not of much use if those who see reason to disapprove of the Convention are debarred from the right of forming any opinion of their own as to its true meaning and probable results, and arbitrarily compelled to adopt an "authoritative reading" which is at variance with common sense.

Reverting to what is, after all, the point most open to discussion—the "rearrangement" of the transit-dues system—the writer observes that the merchants own this would be valuable could they be assured that the Chinese would faithfully perform their part of the agreement; and he states that there are "four grounds of confidence and security," which he considers form as complete a guarantee as need be wished for. The first is, that the Chinese have entered into this agreement freely, "after mature consideration and long discussion." We fail to see that this is any security at all that they will prove faithful in fulfilling it. The second lies in the fact that their own interests would be advanced by a loyal adherence to their undertakings. Doubtless; but has this motive been appreciated by them in any other case? We don't remember one. The third is, that if they do not fulfill their engagements, it is in the power of Her MAJESTY'S Government to demand a further revision of the Treaty. Yes; but where on earth is the use of "demanding" what you can't get? Sir RUTHERFORD having acknowledged in the early part of this very document that he could obtain from the Chinese no concession whatever, except such as they spontaneously offered to make, what "security" is there in the fact that we are at liberty to make more fruitless demands? The fourth guarantee Sir RUTHERFORD seems to have forgotten—at any rate, we find no mention of it. The exaggerated description our Minister gives of the concessions he has obtained is amusing. Article XII., he says, gives us "an unlimited right of access and trade, not only along the "whole one thousand five hundred miles of coast, but of "navigation throughout the inland waters of China." As regards the coast, we get one new port, but then Hainan and Formosa are to be abandoned; and "navigation throughout "the inland waters" is rather a magniloquent phrase for describing the privilege of being towed on one lake by a single Chinese tug, and of sculling about rivers and creeks in native sampans. Sir RUTHERFORD speaks of the restriction which prohibits the use of any but native boats, and the hoisting of the English flag, as of small moment; and almost immediately afterwards, he asks, "In how many "Western States are foreign ships allowed the right of navi-"gating inland waters?" As if China did allow us this right. In this respect, and indeed in all others, Sir RUTHERFORD insists that China is giving us largely increased facilities for trade, and benefits of all kinds—which he does not think are half appreciated.

The appointment of a Chinese Consul at Hong Kong Sir RUTHERFORD defends, on the ground that it will afford the most effective and least objectionable means of suppressing contraband trade between the island and the mainland. So it would, if we could be sure that the Chinese Consul would strictly confine himself to the duties of his office, and be above all suspicion of corruptness. How these necessary conditions are to be secured Sir R. ALCOCK fails to show. This is the last point touched on in the Memorandum; and it winds up with a lucid exposition of how very much worse for us the Convention would have been if all that the Chinese asked had been granted. If you fall down and break your leg, it is small consolation to be told—as some kind friend is pretty sure to tell you—that it might have been your neck. In like manner Sir R. ALCOCK congratulates his countrymen on having escaped certain conditions which the Chinese tried hard to gain—namely, the suppression of missionaries, the prohibition of opium, the renunciation of ex-territorial privileges, the doubling of all duties, and the abolition of merchant consuls. (By the way, we don't see what the last item has to do with the British Treaty, but we heartily wish they may obtain it from other Western States.) In view of these awful possibilities, he considers he has got us off very cheaply, and that we are by no means sufficiently grateful for what he has done for us. "The result has proved," he says, "that it was easier to in-"duce the Chinese to accept their disappointment, and move "forward in the path of progress (!) than to persuade British "merchants to rest satisfied with anything short of their de-"mands." And he concludes with the remark that it is still a question for Her MAJESTY'S Government whether, in the presence of such an irreconcilable difference of opinion, they will force the proposed Convention on the merchants, even though it has been entered upon solely for their benefit. The question, we believe, is virtually settled, and we are probably quite safe in predicting that, Sir RUTHERFORD'S ingenious defence notwithstanding, the Convention, in its present form, will not be ratified.

With reference to the Memorandum a meeting was held on the 15th inst. of the Committee of London Merchants, who, after considering the document, passed the following resolution:—"That, having considered the communication from "the Foreign-office, and the Memorandum from Sir R. AL-"COCK which it conveyed, the views already expressed by "the Committee in regard to the inexpediency of ratifying the "proposed Convention remain unaltered." It was arranged that Mr. MAGNIAC (who presided) should convey this resolution to Lord CLARENDON and the Chambers of Commerce, and the following letter was accordingly addressed to the Foreign Secretary:—

MY LORD,—On the 10th inst. I had the honour to receive, on behalf of the Committee of China Merchants in London, Mr. Hammond's letter of the previous day, communicating, by desire of your lordship, for their information a memorandum drawn up by Sir Rutherford Alcock, commenting upon the objections that have been advanced in different quarters to the Convention lately negotiated with the Chinese Government. This letter and its enclosure have received the most careful consideration of this Committee; and, while desirous of keeping their reply strictly within the terms of your lordship's invitation to avoid all further controversy, they nevertheless feel called upon, as well in justice to themselves as for a right understanding of the subject, to disclaim certain opinions and expectations erroneously attributed to those who condemn the Convention, and to demur to the inferences which have been drawn from them.

In answer to the inquiry on behalf of your Lordship contained in the concluding paragraph of Mr. Hammond's letter, I am desired respectfully to state that the Committee find no grounds in the Memorandum of Sir Rutherford Alcock for changing or modifying the views they have already expressed concerning the Convention; and it is satisfactory to them to know that, so far as time has admitted of information being received, the mercantile bodies throughout the country have arrived at a similar conclusion. I have only further to express their unanimous hope that Her Majesty's Government will not hesitate to recommend the rejection of a Treaty, the provisions of which seem so little calculated to improve our commercial relations with China, although they trust it may not be found impossible to reopen the negotiations upon the basis of mutual advantage, without any undue sacrifice of the just rights and privileges of either country. —I have the honour to be, &c., &c.,

CHARLES MAGNIAC, Chairman.

THE JAPAN LOAN.

We understand that bills in Chancery have been filed by Mr. NOVELLI, Mr. SMITH, Mr. FAIRBARN, and Captain SHERARD OSBORN against Mr. H. N. LAY. The dispute arises out of some misunderstanding between the parties, concerning an arrangement entered into when Mr. LAY left this country for the purpose of entering into financial transactions with the Government of China. As our readers are aware, it was in Japan only that any result was arrived at.

COLONIAL JUDGES.

THE Parliamentary paper lately issued on the question of the power of Governors of Crown Colonies to remove or suspend judges contains, besides some correspondence that has already been made public, documents throwing further light on the circumstances wherein originated the present anomalous state of the law. With the petition of the European and native inhabitants of the colony, Sir HARRY ORD'S despatch, and the views of the Straits Settlements Association our readers are already familiar; and practically the discussion may be said to have been brought to a close, at least for the present, by the recent debate in the House of Lords, wherein it was made clearly manifest that although the Governor of the colony is nominally invested with what common sense must pronounce a wrongful power, any attempt to exercise it arbitrarily would but recoil on himself. This power enables him to do no more than "suspend" a judge pending the decision of the Secretary of State, and it is quite clear that except in the case of some almost inconceivably gross misconduct on the part of the judge, the Governor would shrink even from this responsibility, and report any grievance he might have against a judge to the Colonial-office at once, waiting a reply before putting his power of suspension into force. But though the colonists may now dismiss all fear of any practical evil results from the power of the Governor being confirmed, is not the moral evil as great as ever? Does not the fact remain that the judge is, in a sense, subordinate to the Governor? And will not the untaught native population still believe that his decisions are liable to be biassed by this relation? It seems to us that this must be the case, and that proper means should be taken with as little delay as possible, to bring home to the minds of the native population of the Straits the fact that this subordination of the judges is really only nominal, and can in no degree empower the Governor of the Colony to influence the impartiality of the Judicial Bench. This should be seen to by the Straits Settlements Association.

THE WATERWORKS FOR SINGAPORE.

THE question of a water supply for the town of Singapore is still undecided, but will, we understand, come on for discussion at the meeting of the Legislative Council in the present month. Mr. E. J. WELLS, the manager of the Singapore Gas Works, now in London, has, we believe, sent out to the Municipal Council fresh estimates for works capable of supplying 1,500,000 gallons daily at a total cost of $166,000, under the high pressure and gravitation system. All attempts on the part of the Government to obtain a supply of water having failed, it is to be hoped that the matter will be left in the hands of the Municipal Council. With the settlement of this question we hope also some plan will be decided on for connecting the new harbour with the town by means of a tram or railway, which would not only remove the present slow, dirty, and intolerable means of conveyance for both passengers and goods, but improve the condition and value of the land en route. At present the road is most offensive, sadly mars the natural beauties of the neighbourhood, and, we may add, is a disgrace to Singapore.

THE CHINESE EMBASSY.

WE lately called attention to the anomaly of Mr. MCLEAVY BROWN holding office under the Chinese Government while he still remained in the Consular Service, to the detriment of other officers. We are glad to see that Colonel SYKES has called attention to the subject in the House of Commons as follows:—

Colonel SYKES asked the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs whether Mr. McLeavy Brown, ex Chinese Secretary to the Legation at Peking and Private Secretary to the British Minister, and now in charge of the Chinese Embassy to Europe, has resigned his office, or is still in the service of the British Government; and, if so, whether, on the return of the Chinese Embassy to Peking, he will be permitted to resume his place in the British service to the prejudice of the claims of his juniors for promotion in the Diplomatic line.

Mr. OTWAY, in reply, observed that the hon. and gallant member was premature in describing the gentleman to whom he referred as the ex-Chinese Secretary to the Legation at Peking. He had been permitted to attend the Chinese Embassy to Europe on leave, but without pay for a certain period, which leave had been further extended by the Secretary of State at the request of the Chinese Ambassador.

MR. MERCER AND THE HONG KONG MINT.

"THE TIMES," in a notice of the Hong Kong Mint, made the mistake of assuming that the Mint had cost the British Government a large sum. Mr. MERCER, the ex-Colonial Secretary of Hong Kong, writes as follows on the subject:—

Will you excuse my presumption in endeavouring to correct what seems an error in your City Article of last evening? You say the Mint at Hong Kong was established at great expense by the British Government. It had been better to say that the expense fell on the colony, and that had the Mint received that support from the British—i.e. the Home—Government which it had a right to expect, the experiment might have succeeded.

A NOTICE has appeared from the Post-office that letters reaching New York on the 26th of the month will be in time for the steamers leaving San Francisco for Japan and China. To save our readers from losing the post we would warn them that these steamers now leave on the 1st and not on the 4th, and consequently that correspondence must be in New York by the 22nd or 23rd of the month.

MR. GEORGE PRESTON WHITE, C.E., who has for some time past held the post of consulting engineer to the India-office, has, we understand, received permission to accept the same office for the Japanese Government in the construction of the railway for which the loan was recently raised.

THE EAST WINDOW FOR HONG KONG CATHEDRAL.

Having had an opportunity of inspecting the stained-glass window just completed for the cathedral at Hong Kong by Messrs. Lavers and Barraud, of Endell-street, we have no hesitation in pronouncing it to be a very fine work of art, worthy alike of the place it is to occupy and of the object of the donor, Mr. John S. Lapraik, who erects it as a memorial to his late uncle, Douglas Lapraik, Esq. As our readers are already aware, it is intended to be substituted for the existing east window of the cathedral and from this fact some idea may be formed of its large size. New stonework for the window is supplied with it; this is so designed as to form five tall "lancet" lights, surmounted by a beautiful "rose," an arrangement well suited to the treatment of the design, which, in general terms, may be said to comprise the Ascension and Crucifixion of Our Lord, with some "types" and busts.

The upper parts of the lancets are occupied by the twelve Apostles and the Virgin, and in the rose above them is the Ascension, in which the figure of the Saviour is surrounded by angels, filling in the "foils" of the rose. Below, and extending across the whole of the centre part of the fine lights are a series of representations of the Crucifixion. Under these again are four "types" of a true sacrifice, being the Sacrifices of Abel, of Abraham, of Melchisedek and Noah; the central opening being occupied with one of the Ascension, viz., Elijah being taken up to heaven in the fiery chariot. The subjects are all executed from admirable designs, in the style prevalent in the large churches of Flanders and Germany during the sixteenth century, the breadth and boldness of which especially adapt it for large buildings. The colours are very fine, and notable for a softness generally wanting in modern stained glass, which has not been acted on by the mellowing influence of time. The cost of this window we understand is about £1,000 sterling.

We may mention that the same firm have recently supplied several windows for the new Trinity Church at Shanghai. These include one to the memory of the late Mr. Fitzroy, another in memory of Mr. Lawrence, and a third of Mr. Pritchard, R.N. A larger one is now being constructed for the same church as a memorial to the late Rev. John Hobson, many years Consular Chaplain at Shanghai.

NOTES OF A VOYAGE ON THE RIVER HAN.

In the London and China Telegraph of April 11 we gave the first portion of Mr A. Wyllie's interesting narrative of his voyage on the River Han. The second and concluding portion has been published in the Revue Orientale, and would have been sooner transferred to our columns had space permitted:—

November 1st opened with a thick mist on the river, and soon after passing the first rapid, we stopped at Seaou-ho-kow, a large village on the right, standing forty feet above the water. A range of hills now appeared all round at a few miles distance, closing in ahead as we approached the prefectural city. Early the next day we were stopped by a head wind at the village of Luh-kea-tseih, on the right.

At noon on the 3rd we were at Tung-tsin-wan, a long straggling town, consisting principally of small shopkeepers, but with a tolerably large accumulation of junks. The same day we stopped at Chang-kea-wan, a large village at the mouth of the Pih-ho river, the main branch of which, extending upwards of a hundred miles north into Ho-nan, passes the prefectural city of Nan-yang (from which it was at that time navigable for boats of a medium size), and after receiving several important affluents discharges into the Han. The junks and boats here are very numerous, and at the time we arrived the number was increased by a large accession carrying students to the literary examination, just about to take place in the prefectura city.

Having spent Sunday, the 4th, in this neighbourhood, our approach had become rumoured abroad, and on arriving opposite the city the following morning hundreds had collected on the shore to see us.

Opposite the city lies the great commercial town of Fanching, about half the size of Hankow, and standing in the same relation to Seang-yang that Hankow does to Woochang. The shipping here is very dense. Scarcely had we cast anchor in the middle of the river when a few boats put off on a tentative adventure. On returning ashore and reporting their reception, the excitement became prodigious. Every small boat was taken up for the service; the daring, the curious, and the incredulous crowded the deck, roof and sides of our boat, from morning till dusk, with little abatement of the interest for two days, while the ferrymen reaped a golden harvest playing to and fro. Withal we found the people in general very friendly, and little occurred to interrupt the harmony of our intercourse.

About four hundred miles distant from Hankow, the city of Seang-yang is an important fortress, lying at the foot of a tolerably lofty mountain range. The walls are in good repair, and a garrison is stationed there. A peculiar interest attaches to the city from the notice given of it in Marco Polo, where we learn that it was one of the last cities to succumb to the Yuen Mongols. The passage reads thus in Wright's edition:—

"Sa-yan-fu is a considerable city of the province of Manji, having under its jurisdiction twelve wealthy and large towns. It is a place of great commerce and extensive manufactures. The inhabitants burn the bodies of their dead, and are idolaters.

"They are subjects of the Grand Khan, and use his paper currency. Raw silk is there produced in great quantity, and the finest silks, intermixed with gold, are woven. Game of all kinds abounds. The place is amply furnished with everything that belongs to a great city, and by its uncommon strength it was enabled to stand a siege of three years; refusing to surrender to the Great Khan, even after he had obtained possession of the province of Manji. The difficulties experienced in the reduction of it were chiefly occasioned by the army's not being able to approach it, except on the northern side; the others being surrounded with water, by means of which the place continually received supplies, which it was not in the power of the besiegers to prevent. When the operations were reported to his Majesty, he felt extremely hurt that this place alone should obstinately hold out after all the rest of the country had been reduced to obedience. The circumstance having come to the knowledge of the brothers Nicolo and Maffeo, who were then residents at the Imperial Court, they immediately presented themselves to the Grand Khan, and proposed to him that they should be allowed to construct machines, such as were made use of in the West, capable of throwing stones of three hundred pounds weight, by which the buildings of the city might be destroyed and the inhabitants killed. Their memorial was attended to by the Grand Khan, who, warmly approving the scheme, gave orders that the ablest smiths and carpenters should be placed under their direction; amongst whom were some Nestorian Christians, who proved to be most able mechanics. In a few days they completed their mangonels, according to the instructions furnished by the two brothers; and a trial being made of them in the presence of the Grand Khan and of his whole Court, an opportunity was afforded of seeing them cast stones, each of which weighed three hundred pounds. They were then put on board of vessels, and conveyed to the army. When set up in front of the city of Sa-yan-fu, the first stone thrown by one of them fell with such weight and violence upon a building that a great part of it was crushed, and fell to the ground. So terrified were the inhabitants by this mischief, which to them seemed to be the effect of a thunderbolt from heaven, that they immediately deliberated upon the expediency of surrendering. Persons authorised to treat were accordingly sent from the place, and their submission was thrown on the same terms and conditions that had been granted to the rest of the province. This prompt result of their ingenuity increased the reputation and credit of these two Venetian brothers in the opinion of the Grand Khan and of all his courtiers."

The use of these catupults is noticed in Chinese authors, and it is curious to find that they refer the origin of firearms also to the siege of Seang-yang. Some interesting investigations on this subject are given in Pauthier's beautiful edition of Marco Polo, pp. 473—475. A recent excavation in the city has discovered a hoard of treasure, buried in the ground at the time of the siege.*

Leaving Seang-yang, we were at Chuh-teaou-poo, a town fourteen miles distant, on the morning of the 9th. In the wet season this is on the river's edge, but was now about a quarter of a mile distant, in consequence of the fall of the water.

A little higher up, on the opposite shore, a temple is seen picturesquely built in a recess of the rock. This is the entrance to a curious cave, which, as tradition will have it, extends thirty miles, or as some assert, even as far as the province of Sze-chuen. I could not learn, however, that there was any record of the transit having ever been made. Unwilling to spare the time for an extensive exploration, I merely penetrated a few hundred yards, the way being led by a priest with a torch. For that distance I found a very complex series of passages, sometimes through apertures little more than two feet high, opening out into chambers, eight or ten feet from the floor to the roof. The rock consists of kaoulin, the material of which the fine porcelain is made, and the water having percolated through the roof, was collected at places in small pools, while a ray of light from above in one part gave an agreeable relief to the gloom of the vaulted galleries.

* I was so fortunate as to obtain from one of the authorities one of the exhumed cash, a Ching ho tung paou (A.D. 1111-1171).

THE "GREAT NORTHERN" TELEGRAPH CABLE.

Now that the undertaking which is to supply, or, at any rate, to assist in, the establishment of the long needed telegraphic communication between the Chinese ports and the continent of Europe, has so far advanced towards completion that the vessel with the first section of the cable has actually sailed, a few facts detailing the measures that have been taken for achieving the objects for which the "Great Northern Telegraph Company" has been established may not prove uninteresting. It is exactly six months since the Danish frigate Tordenskjold was despatched from Copenhagen, and cast anchor in the Thames as the pioneer vessel in the expedition. The Tordenskjold is said to be the finest frigate in the service of his Danish Majesty; but it may be remarked that in both appearance and size there are many among the old wooden vessels in the British navy. not pretending to the title of "frigate," that would completely surpass her. This will be readily understood when we mention that she is but 160 feet in length and 42 feet in beam amidships, with a capacity of 1,435 tons. In general appearance she is strikingly unlike what a closer inspection proves her to be, a screw-steamer, chiefly from the large size of her masts and the comparative diminutiveness of her funnel. In fact, under present conditions, that is with the greater part of her armament removed, this vessel might well be taken or mistaken for one of those Australian or East Indian clippers with which "Greens" and "Wigrams" have familiarised us of late years. However, frigate or otherwise, the Tordenskjold is evidently well adapted for the work she is now engaged upon, and if ever called upon to fulfil the duties for which she was originally designed, we have no doubt that she would not be found wanting. The other ships engaged in the work of laying the cable are the English screw steamers Great Northern and Cella. These vessels both surpass the Tordenskjold in dimensions, the first named being in length 243 feet, in beam 32; and the second 300 feet long and 34 feet in beam. The Great Northern, which is lying in the Thames at Charlton, off the wharf of Messrs. Siemens Bros.—the firm who have been entrusted with the construction of the cable—is now being fitted with the tanks, drums, windlasses, and other apparatus necessary for the work she is to undertake. The scene on board at the present time is one of the most picturesque confusion; on one part of the deck may be observed the instrument-room, from whence it will be possible to detect the slightest fault in any portion of the cable during the process of submersion, and these instruments are being fitted up by an entirely different class of workmen to those who are to be seen close by placing in position, with the aid of screw-jacks and levers, accompanied by the expenditure of much "undefiled Saxon," the engine which is to aid in the process of transferring the cable from the factory to the vessel. After having glanced at the various objects on deck, and we trust escaped being suddenly and unceremoniously reduced from the perpendicular to the horizontal position by one of the huge timbers that are constantly being swung up from lighters over the side of the ship—such was the fate of the present writer—the visitor's attention will be drawn to seven enormous chasms. These extend downwards from the main deck past the lower deck into the hold, and are the tanks in which the cable will be coiled during the outward voyage The preparations we have briefly described are being pushed forward with the utmost diligence, and in a very few days the Great Northern will be in perfect readiness to receive her freight.

From the vessels that are to lay the cable the natural transition is to the cable itself. This, with the exception of the completed portion despatched on board the Tordenskjold, is in course of manufacture by the firm to whom we have already referred, Messrs. Siemens Bros., of Westminster, and the Charlton Telegraph Works. It consists of three distinct divisions, known respectively as the main cable, the intermediate cable, the ordinary shore end and the heavy shore end. Of these the "core"—through which the actual transmission of the electric current is effected—is the same throughout, the distinction arising from the different methods adopted of "sheathing," or protecting this core according to the varying liability to exposure and injury. The core consists of a strand of seven copper wires, cased with tin, weighing 300lbs. the nautical mile, covered with the composition known as "Hooper's Dielectric," which of itself weighs 200 lbs. the mile; this process being completed, the core is again covered with a layer of felt, coiled in tanks under water, and subjected to tests as to its electrical condition before being, what is termed, "sheathed." As we have before remarked, it is the sheathing that gives the distinctive names to the cables, and it will be best, with the view of ensuring a clear idea of the processes, to describe the four sheathings separately. There is first the outer covering for the "heavy shore-end cable," consisting of a serving of jute next to the core, a sheathing of "best best" drawn and galvanised iron wires, 0·160 in. diameter, weighing per nautical mile about 5,023 lbs., a serving of jute round the sheathing, a second sheathing of "best best" rolled and galvanised iron wires, 0·380 in. diameter, and finally an outer protection of two layers of bitumen compound, with two layers of jute between, laid on as follows:—The first coating of the compound next the wires, then a serving of yarn, then a second coating of compound, and lastly a close serving of tarred yarn, laid in an opposite direction to the one previously laid on. The outer covering for the "ordinary shore end cable" consists of a serving of jute next to the core, a sheathing of "best best" rolled and galvanised iron wires, 0·300 in. diameter, weighing per nautical mile about 13,311 lbs., and finally an outer protection of two layers of bitumen compound, with two layers of jute between, laid on as before specified. The outer covering for the "intermediate cable" is composed of a serving of jute next to the core, a sheathing of "best best" drawn and galvanised iron wires, 0·160 in. diameter, weighing per nautical mile about 5,023 lbs., and the outer protection of two layers of bitumen compound and jute. The outer diameter of this cable is about 1·06 inches, and its weight per nautical mile about 3 tons 2 cwt. The outer covering for the "main cable" is a serving of jute next the core, a sheathing of "best best" drawn and galvanised iron wires, 0·095 in. diameter, and the outer protection of bitumen compound and jute. The outer diameter of this cable is about 0·86 in., the weight per nautical mile being about 1 ton 16½ cwt. Messrs. Siemens Bros. are able to sheathe the cables at the rate of 180 to 200 nautical miles per week.

The manufacture of the first section of the cable—that to be laid between Hong Kong and Shanghai—is now complete; it consists of 685 nautical miles of main cable, 272 miles of intermediate, 111 miles of ordinary shore end, and 30 miles of heavy shore end, in all 1,098 nautical miles. Of this the following has been shipped on board the Tordenskjold:—50 miles of main cable, 4 miles of intermediate, 32 miles of ordinary shore end, and 10 miles of heavy shore end · a total of 96 nautical miles. The Great Northern will receive on board, into seven iron tanks, the following lengths of cable:—140 miles of main cable, 58 miles of intermediate, 70 miles of ordinary shore end, and 20 miles of heavy shore end, or 288 nautical miles in all. The Cella will take in after the Great Northern, and will receive 495 miles of main cable, 210 miles of intermediate, and 9 miles of ordinary shore end—a total of 714 nautical miles.

We may mention, in conclusion, that the second section of this company's line—namely, that from Shanghai to Posiet Bay—is also in course of manufacture at Messrs. Siemens' works. This consists of 990 miles of main cable, 92 miles of intermediate, 96 miles of ordinary shore end, and 20 miles of heavy shore end, thus comprising an entire length of 1,198 nautical miles. The sheathing of 150 miles of this cable is complete.

Monetary and Commercial.

The Globe Marine Insurance Company has now fairly started in business, with good support. The directors have decided on giving the assurers an interest in the success of the undertaking as well as the shareholders. After paying the latter 10 per cent. the surplus profits are, to the extent of 25 per cent., to be divided amongst the insurers who shall contribute £500 during the year. The list of directors includes Mr. Ludwig Wiese, from China, and the secretary is Mr. Cobb, also an old resident in China, who have a large connection and an intimate knowledge of the China trade.

The China Submarine Telegraph Company gives notice that a call of £2 per share falls due on the 1st of July next.

The directors of the London and Provincial Marine Insurance Company have resolved to make a payment to the shareholders on account of interest for the half-year ending the 30th of June at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

The Governor of Aden has officially notified to the superintendent of the Telegraph Company that ships calling at Aden to deliver telegrams will not be charged any harbour dues.

Another call has been made on the unfortunate shareholders of the Constantinople and Alexandria Hotels Company of £2, making £10 per share. The list of directors, on the formation of the company, included Sir Edmund Hornby, the present Judge at Shanghai, and late Judge at Constantinople, but Sir Edmund fortunately retired from the concern before any calls were made.

Bar silver is firm at 60½d. per oz. standard, the demand being for Holland and Japan. The next mail will take over £100,000 for the Mint at Osaka. There are no orders whatever for India, and no arrivals to report. We continue to receive shipments of Mexican Dollars from New York, the Weser having brought £24,000. The Cuban has also brought £11,900 from the West Indies. The demand continues good for China and the Straits, and the price remains firm at 59⅝d. per oz.

The solicitors of the National Bank have, by order of the directors, filed bills in Chancery against Sir Joseph N. M'Kenna, Mr. Harvey Lewis, M.P., and some others of the expelled directors, in order to compel restitution by the defendants of the profits alleged to have been made by them out of certain dealings and loans in connection with the issue of the new share capital; and also for restitution to the bank of the losses of £50,000 and upwards incurred by the bank from certain alleged breaches of trust on the part of the defendants in the matter of Charles Laffite and Co. (Limited). With reference to this proceeding, Sir J. N. M'Kenna writes to say that every act of his in connection with the bank has been done for its benefit and protection, and will bear the test of investigation before any Court in any proceedings to which he is made a party.

The liquidator of the Oriental Hotels Company (Limited) announces the sale, by private tender, of the Oriental Hotel at Galle. Tenders must be sent in before the 15th proximo.

The following steamers have passed through the Suez Canal from Suez:—Nyanza, Volante, Adalia, Lady Clive, P. and O. steamer Bengal; and from Port Said Godafinch, Hipparchus, Meinam, and Imperatrice, the two last with the French mails for India and China.

The diving expedition sent out from England to China to recover, if possible, the treasure of £50,000 from the British ship Hamilla Mitchell, from London to Shanghai, wrecked on the Lencouna Rock, off the latter port, in the China Seas, on the 12th of last August, have been partly successful, the divers having sent up two boxes of specie, containing $7,600. From the position of the wreck—lying between two rocks, with 18 fathoms of water over it, and the specie being stowed away in the treasure-room in the stern of the ship under two decks—Lloyd's surveyors at Shanghai considered the chances of saving any of the specie as most remote, especially as a rapid current which was constantly sweeping through the rocks would, it was said, preclude the descent of divers. It is apparent that these obstacles have been overcome, and the present success leads to a belief that most of the specie may be saved. The expedition is under the direction of Mr. Lodge, on the part of London insurance companies interested, upwards of £200,000 being effected on the Hamilla Mitchell and her cargo.

The directors of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China have announced a dividend of 4 per cent. for the half-year ending the 30th current.

The new firm of [illegible] Houghton, and Co., Batavia, now consists of Mr. G. A. Houghton, W. W. [illegible] D MacNair, and the London agents, Messrs. Clarence, Houghton, and Co.

The report of the Assam Company, to be presented on the 27th inst., describes a further great improvement in the affairs of the company, and recommends a dividend of 3½ per cent., making, with the interim payment of 2½ per cent. a total of 6 per cent. for the year.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Delhi, from Southampton on the 25th inst., was in gold, to Galle, £56; in silver, to Penang, £13,450; to Singapore, £64,250; to Hong Kong, £24,896; to Shanghai, £1,300; to Yokohama, £108,400; total in gold, £56; in silver, £212,296.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

During the past week a fair amount of business has been transacted, but only at the very low rates now ruling. The attention of the trade has been chiefly directed to the large public sales which commenced on Tuesday last, comprising 40,000 packages, 32,600 being printed "without reserve." Inferior common black leaf congou has realised only 5¾d. to 6d. per lb.; common 8¾d. to 9d.; common to good common 10½d. to 11½d.; fair to good 1s. 1d. to 1s. 1½d. per lb. Common to fair red leaf congou 9½d. to 11½d. per lb.; siftings and broken leaf 5¾d. to 6¾d. per lb.; low Canton congou 3½d. to 6d. per lb.; common to good common 10d. to 10½d. per lb. Souchongs: Several sales have been made in the good common and medium sorts at very low rates. Oolongs show no improvement. Scented Teas: fine Canton capers are scarce; the common grades have sold for 6½d. to 7½d. per lb., showing a further decline of 1d. per lb. Green Teas: with the exception of the finest sorts are easier.

The Circular of Messrs. Percival and Co. has the following:—The market is in a most depressed and unsettled condition, the attention of the trade having been chiefly occupied in opposing the contemplated changes in the conditions of sale, as proposed and agreed to by the general body of importers. The threatened withdrawal of the one pound draft has created the strongest feelings of discontent and opposition from the retail branches of the trade, and if persisted in by importers must tend to lead to further complications, and thus prevent any life or activity in the market for months to come. Cargoes afloat, March 14, Dartmouth, 837,472 lbs.; April 1, Sir W. Wallace, 86,000 lbs.; April 9, Shakespeare, 573,000 lbs.; total 1870, 1,496,472 lbs.; same period 1869, 3,074,541 lbs.

The following is from Messrs. Shepard, Harrison, and Rehden's Circular:—There has been a strong desire on the part of several influential importers to quit stocks, prior to the arrival of new season's Teas, which are expected earlier than hitherto, via Suez, and though extreme low prices have been taken, it has failed to induce extended transactions, for there is a large quantity of Tea offering, nearly all of it below the value of 1s. 2d. per lb. There has also been some agitation the past few days, owing to a decision of importers, come to at a meeting held 23rd May, that, on and after 1st July next, the customary allowance of 1 lb. draft on packages weighing over 28 lbs. gross, be discontinued, and the Customs' weights and tare be accepted in future; unless the question is amicably settled, it is likely to interfere with business, as the majority of retailers throughout the kingdom have passed resolutions not to purchase on the proposed conditions, and should shipments from China prove excessive, as at the commencement of last season, considerably lower prices may rule. Telegrams are advised from Shanghai, via Kiachta, the latest to 28th May, reporting the market opened at Hankow, equal to Tls. 40 per picul, or 2s. 6d. per lb., we presume for the Russian market, as there is no chance of profit, if for consumption here. For the Continent, business has quieted down. Deliveries are satisfactory, though barely up the figures of last year's, and they stand thus:—

Home consumption for London from 1st Jan. to 31st May ...	33,365,000	31,678.000
Export do. do.	13,300,000	17,243,000
Sent coastwise do.	16,400,000	14,900,000
Total,	63,065,000	63,821,000

SILK.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co. report as follows:—

The market has been extremely quiet, and at the moment there is an almost general absence of business, holders being firm under the belief in an European crop deficient by 20 to 25 per cent. from that of last year, and by strengthening telegrams from China, where the new crop is estimated at 45,000 bales, and the expectation of very high opening prices for Silk in Shanghai; buyers pause under these circumstances, and will probably do as little as possible during the next six weeks, pending the arrival of the new season's Silk, although it is difficult to see how prices can decline, at any rate at present. Tsatlees remain exceedingly firm, and are becoming scarcer every week. Fine Taysaams are inquired for, but the medium and common sorts, which form the bulk of the late arrivals, do not go off, nor is there yet any improved demand for Hainins. Japan and Bengal Silk are both neglected for the time; in the latter there is really nothing doing. In Canton Silk there is a little inquiry for Tsatlee reel at and under 20s. 6d., but in other classes nothing doing. Deliveries continue good of all but Bengal Silk, being, from 1st to 15th inst., 1,626 China, 388 Canton, 186 Bengal, and 457 Japan; total, 2,657 bales.

Messrs. Durant and Co.'s Circular, dated June 23rd, is as follows:—The perlodical public sales commenced yesterday, and are concluded. The quantity offered was 1,150 bales Bengal, 2,500 bales China, 700 bales Japan, 1,600 bales Canton Silk, with about 200 bales Bokhara and 200 ballots Persian Silk. The whole was allowed to pass rapidly without bidding, except some few hundred bales of various sorts which were printed "to be sold without reserve," and these were taken at very irregular prices, generally at considerable reduction upon supposed value.

COFFEE.

Within the past few days considerable supplies of Plantation Ceylon have been brought to the public sales, and for these a fair amount of competition has been di played, resulting in fairly extensive sales for the most part at last rates, but in some instances at a slight advance. For the parcels of Native Ceylon that have been placed upon offer the biddings have been on a very low scale, and all have consequently been bought in, with the exception of 300 bags, sea damaged, which sold at 43s. to 49s., and seven tierces peaberry that realised 49s. 6d. There has been no business in other East India; 557 bags Singapore were offered, and bought in, mixed at 48s., pale at 56s. to 57s.

The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation, 349,701 cwt., against 319,821 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1869; Native, 36,242 cwt., against 39,610 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is 15,177 cwt. Plantation against 10,179 cwt., and 6,992 cwt. Native, against 19,454 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the twenty-three weeks ended June 11, 1870, was, of Ceylon, 14,212 tons, against 15,402 tons during the corresponding period of 1869; of all descriptions, 20,384 tons, against 25,300 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 4,761 tons, against 4,927 tons; of all descriptions, 8,080 tons, against 8,079 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 10,418 tons, against 10,429 tons; of all descriptions, 16,826 tons, against 18,735 tons. The stock on June 11 was, of Ceylon, 12,897 tons, against 11,041 tons; of all descriptions, 19,697 tons, against 17,706 tons.

SUGAR.

The market has been extremely dull throughout the interval, and there being little disposition to purchase any description on previous terms, only small sales have been effected chiefly at easier rates. The deliveries are nearly equal to last year's, the landings, including 700 tons Penang and Manila, are 2.000 tons heavier than in 1869, and the stock is now 6,000 tons more than at this time last year. The transactions in East India kinds have consisted exclusively of Penang, an offer of which 2,563 bags sold, common to good common soft brown at 21s. 6d. to 23s.; middling to good brown (duty 4s. 9d.) at 24s. to 26s.; yellow at 28s. to 30s.; 130 baskets low washed realised 17s. A subsequent offer of 4,360 baskets, consisting wholly of date kinds, met no biddings and was all withdrawn. Of Manila 1,900 bags fine clayed were offered and bought in (duty 4s.) at 25s.; duty 4s. 9d. at 25s. 6d., and 7,697 bags common at 23s. Privately 100 tons unclayed Zebu have been sold at 20s.

The quantity of Sugar landed in the twenty-three weeks ended June 11, 1870, was, of Penang, 1,604 tons, against 1,128 tons in the corresponding period of 1869; of Manila, Java, and China, 8,536 tons, against 19,076 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 1,093 tons, against 1,310 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 11,260 tons, against 7,077 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, 84 tons, against 44 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 1,600 tons, against 794 tons. The stock on June 11 was, of Penang, 2,757 tons, against 103 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 31,466 tons, against 40,779 tons.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The market for Ceylon is active; for pipes the price is steadily maintained at £38 10s. full prompt, but for hogsheads sellers decline transactions at that quotation. The quantity of Ceylon afloat for the United Kingdom is estimated at 30,084 tons, against 16,835 tons last year, and 18,167 tons in 1868; to the Continent, 5,476 tons, against 750 tons last year.

CAMPHOR.—There has again been an absence of transactions on the spot, but afloat 300 tubs Japan distant shipment have been sold at 82s. 6d.

CHINA MATTING.—We note the sale of 144 rolls without reserve—5/4 white at 27s. 6d. to 28s., 6/4 white at 31s. to 31s. 6d. Of 600 rolls 4/4 Fancy offered, about 150 rolls sold at 32s. to 33s. 6d. per roll.

CUTCH.—There is some difficulty in effecting sales, even at the low rates now current; the only transactions since our last report have been 420 boxes good from Penang at 22s., and 567 boxes from Singapore at 22s. 6d., an offer of 782 boxes fine Pegu being bought in at 23s. 6d., and 500 boxes Rangoon at 23s. per cwt. In auction 600 boxes Pegue from Penang sold, fine at 22s., one lot 22s. 6d.; good, 21s. to 21s. 6d.

CARDAMOMS.—Ceylon are slightly lower, a sale of 12 cases having been effected at 3s. 3d. to 3s. 4d., chiefly the latter price; 33 bags mouldy were bought in at 3s. 2d.

EBONY.—The sale is reported of 32 logs (10 tons) Ceylon at £10 7s. 6d. to £11 2s. 6d.

FIBRE.—An offer of Manila Aloe, consisting of 68 bales dressed, was bought in at £40, tow £20, except 4 bales extra long, which were sold at £42.

GAMBIER.—The tone of the market is still very dull; the only sale has been of 300 bales old import, on the spot, at 15s. 6d. per cwt., showing a decline of 3d. on former quotations.

HEMP.—The market for Manila is quiet, but previous rates are maintained with fair steadiness. At the auctions, of 859 bales offered about one-half sold—fine roping, at £55 to £56; one lot superior at £58: a good portion sea-damaged first-class fair roping, at £53 to £53 5s., the remainder being bought in at £52 to £55; white Quilot at £65. Privately 2,500 bales Manila of the mark BB & Co. have been sold—price not reported, but supposed at about £53 10s.

HIDES.—The last sales went off heavily, and the demand for East India Hides [illegible] limited than has been the case for a long time past, rather less than two [illegible] quantity offered could be sold. The best descriptions of slaughtered [illegible] bought previous rates, but were in many instances ¼d. to ½d. per lb. lower, whilst ordinary and inferior qualities were difficult to sell at an average decline of ½d. per lb. 19,002 Dry Singapore and Penang, &c., Ox and Cow Hides offered, 9,087 sold—Singapore and Penang Best Light, 10d.; Seconds, 8d. to 9¼d.; Heavy 8d. to 8¼d.; Extra Heavy, 7d.; Thirds, 5¼d. to 6¼d.; Fourths, 4¼d. to 4¾d.; Small and Calf, 8½d to 10d.; Siam, Light and Small, 7¾d.; Heavy and Thirds, 6¼d.; Extra Heavy, 7¼d.; Manila, Light and Small, 6¼d.; Heavy and Extra Heavy, 6¼d. per lb. 1,818 Ceylon Hides offered—none sold. 3,653 Singapore and Penang Buffalo Hides offered, 1,429 sold—Best Heavy, 5½d.; Light, 6d. to 6½d.; Seconds, 4¼d. to 5d.; Thirds, 3d. per lb. 594 Siam Buffalo Hides offered, 135 sold—Light, 6d.; Seconds, 4½d. per lb. 107 Manila Buffalo Hides offered and sold—Best and Seconds, 5d.; Light, 6¼d. per lb. 197 Ceylon Buffalo Hides offered and sold—Best, 6⅜d.; Seconds, 5¼d. per lb.

ISINGLASS.—At auction 6 cases Penang sold, fine pale thin leaf at 4s. 1d., medium at 3s. 4d. to 3s. 5d., tongue at 3s. 6d.

JAPAN WAX.—There have been no transactions.

PEPPER.—Black: The demand is very limited, but prices are steady at the recent decline; at auction of 886 bags fresh Singapore offered, 386 bags greyish sold at 5d., and 228 bags Penang bought in at 4¾. Privately about 1,000 bags good Singapore have been sold at 5¼d., and 300 bags Penang at 4 13-16. White: The market continues dull, without alteration in rates; at public sale 50 bags Singapore realised 6¼d. cash, and privately 100 bags Singapore of fresh import ex recent auction have been sold at 6¼d.

PRESERVES.—200 cases Chyloong China Ginger were offered and bought in at 1s. per lb.

PLUMBAGO.—There is but little inquiry; of 554 barrels Ceylon offered, about one-half sold—good lump at 18s. to 20s., middling at 16s., small at 11s., good chips at 10s., good dust at 9s., common at 5s. 6d. to 5s. 9d. per cwt.

RICE.—The market is active, and higher rates are paid; the arrived cargo of garden Siam, 800 tons per Benmore, sold at 8s. 6d. prompt three months; the Gustav Adolph, 1,000 tons Necransie, April sailing, resold at 10s. continental terms; the Thomas Fletcher, 850 tons, ditto, resold at 10s. ditto. The Frederick, 1,300 tons, ditto, May sailing, sold at 9s. 10½d. Continent, or 10s. ex ship for London.

RATTANS.—Immediately following our last report 6,670 bundles Penang sold at 3s. to 3s. 9d. per 100 canes, and 2,139 bundles wrecked per Benvenue sold, commencing at £5 5s. and closing at £6 12s. 6d. per ton. Subsequently 2,147 bundles have been sold at 3s. 6d. to 3s. 10d. per 100 canes, showing an upward tendency.

RHUBARB.—The only offer of China, 28 chests common quality, has been sold at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 3d.

SPICES.—The business done since our last report has been limited in extent, but for the most part at steady prices. Cassia: No transactions. Cinnamon: Of 150 bales Ceylon about 80 bales sold at about previous rates, middling first sort at 2s. 9d. ordinary seconds at 1s. 10d. to 2s., very low coarse at 3d. per lb. Chips: 54 bags Ceylon were bought in at 4½d. to 5½d. Cloves: 11 cases good Penang sold at 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 0¾d. Nutmegs: 18 cases Penang sold, 77 nuts to the lb. at 2s. 9d. to 2s. 10d., 79's at 2s. 8d., 92's at 2s. 3d. Mace: 26 cases Penang offered were chiefly withdrawn and bought in at 3s. 2d. to 3s. 6d., only five cases indirect selling, low middling red at 2s. 11d. ordinary broken at 2s 7d.

SHELLS.—Cowries: 39 bags Ceylon oil damaged sold, good small at 35s. to 35s. 6d. Green Snail: 251 baskets and 8,300 loose were partly sold, large at 5d. to 5½d., medium at 4d. to 4¼d. each. Mother-o'-Pearl: The periodical public sales were not heavy, and went off with a moderate demand, Macassar at lower rates, Manila at former prices; 191 cases 6 casks Macassar chiefly sold, fine bold thick at £12 to £12 2s. 6d.; of 70 cases Manila only a few good quality sold at £8 17s. 6d. Tor-doise: Of 2 cases (314 lb.) Singapore offered 190 lb. sold at 8s. 6d., of 6 cases (681 lb.) Manila offered about one-half sold at 12s. to 16s. 6d.

SAPANWOOD.—40 tons damaged Siam sold partly at £8, chiefly without reserve at £4 10s. to £5 5s.

SAGO.—In auction 200 bags large Pearl sold steadily—good at 23s., rather dull at 22s. 6d. Flour: 1,700 bags Borneo have been sold at 14s. 6d.

STICKLAC.—At public sale 254 boxes and 21 bags Siam were offered and bought in at 52s. 6d. per cwt.

TAPIOCA.—At auction there have been no sales of East India, an offer of 435 bags Penang being withdrawn; privately there has been some demand, and about 300 bags Singapore are reported sold at previous rates.

TIN.—There is not quite so active a demand for Straits, and prices are lower, the current quotations being £132 10s. on the spot, and £132 afloat; Banca rules at £134 to £135; Billiton, £133.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE.—There has been somewhat more activity in Brazil and a steady business has been done at about the prices previously ruling. For East India the market has been quiet, but former rates are maintained without change, viz.—Java 21½c. to 22c.; Singapore, 18c. to 19c.; Manila, 16c. to 17c.; Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19c. gold. A parcel of Native Ceylon, consisting of 8.657 bags ex Choice, was offered by auction; there was a fair amount of competition, and 6,321 bags were sold at 15¾c. to 20½c., (average $17.05 gold) 60 days; the remaining portion was subsequently sold on private terms, as was also 57 casks and 57 barrels Plantation per same vessel; the only other sale has been 2,000 mats Java at the current rates. The stock of Manila on the 1st June was estimated at 1,700 bags, against 6,769 bags on June 1, 1869; of Java (Government) at 850 bags, against 2,235 bags; of Java mats, 35,918, against 41.808 bags; of Ceylon, 9,157 bags, against 1,500 bags; of Singapore 1,000 bags against nil.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 20c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is [illegible], Cassia, $1.25 gold.

FIRE CRACKERS.—[illegible] active tone of the market has continued for the fortnight, and a further advance has to be reported with extensive sales, amounting in the aggregate to 24,500 boxes, Extra No. 1 commencing at $2.65 and closing at $3.20; and 4,000 boxes of the same quality on private terms. At the close holders are demanding $3.25.

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 4⅛c. gold (duty paid); stock small.

HEMP.—The market for Manila has become quiet, the recent activity having entirely disappeared; the nominal quotation is 14c. to 14½c. gold. The Samuel Larrabee and Great Admiral have arrived, bringing 12,472 bales, of which about 10,000 bales has been sold previously to arrival on private terms. The stock of Manila on the 1st June was estimated at 11,613 bales, against 2,802 bales at the corresponding date of 1869, and 17,664 bales in 1868. The imports into the United States from the 1st January to the 31st May, 1870, were 51,472 bales, against 52,397 bales during the corresponding period of last year, and the quantity afloat on the 31st May was 45,074 bales, against 34,285 bales at the same date last year.

INDIGO.—There is no change to report in the market for Manila, which continues quiet at last quoted rates; the sales amount to about 30 cases, at $1.17½ to $1.30 currency.

MOTHER O'PEARL SHELLS.—There have been some large arrivals of Manila, and the demand being very limited, some parcels have been forced off at the extremely low price of 38c. to 45c. currency.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $8 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is $1 to 2.25 currency (duty paid).

RICE.—The advance in Rangoon was lost shortly after our last report, but owing to the short supply of all kinds there has been a fair demand throughout the fortnight. The sales have been 7,750 bags for home consumption, at $6.87½ to 7.12½ currency; 5,100 bags for export, at $3.06½ to 3.25 gold (in bond); and 1,500 bags prime quality to arrive, at $3.06 to 3.09 gold.

SPICES.—There are no large parcels offering, and the market remains steady and firm. The business has been confined to jobbing lots, the demand from the trade having fallen off, probably owing to the renewed agitation of the new Tariff Bill, which largely reduces the duties. Sales have been made in lots of 240 cases Nutmegs, at $1.10; 30 ditto Mace, $2.25 to 2.30; 2,500 mats Cassia, 47c.; 50 to 60 bales prime wild Cinnamon, 45c. to 46c.; 600 to 700 bags Singapore Pepper, 26½c. to 27c.; and 300 bales Cloves, 25¾c. to 26c., all gold.

TEA.—The market since our last report has been quiet, the sales being limited in extent at unchanged rates.

TIN.—Straits has been actively inquired for during the fortnight, and the supply being small and in few hands prices have advanced. Banca, on the contrary, has been offered freely and in considerable quantities, which has lowered prices about half a cent. The sales reported are:—Of Straits, on the spot, 2,000 slabs at 36c., to 38c. cash, and 38½c. 60 days to arrive; 300 slabs at 38c., and 2,000 slabs on private terms. Of Banca, 150 slabs, on the spot, at 43½c., and 650 slabs.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE.—Importers evince increased firmness in their demands for all kinds. Ceylon is quoted at 21c., and O. G. Java 23c. per lb.

CHINA MATTING.—Imports from Jan. 1st to June 1st: bales 77, rolls 3,406. In the absence of reported sales, we continue former quotations. At auction: 150 yards imitation coir matting sold at 40c. per square yard; 775 yards 4-4 do sold at 32½c.

RICE.—Imports from Jan. 1st to June 1st: China, 5,863,492 lbs., 61,747 mats. Imports from China during the month of May were 3,000,000 lbs., as follows:—William Wilson, 509,000 lbs.; Japan, 68,000 lbs.; Niagara, 1,190,000 lbs.; Panther, 469,000 lbs.; Malay, 734,000 lbs. The market is quiet, though prices are steady at 6c. to 6½c., with sales of 2,500 mats. Extra No. 1, at 6¾c. to 7c.

TEAS.—Imports from Jan. 1st to June 1st:—China, 169,803 lbs., 1,824 packages, Japan, 448,000 lbs., 2,428 packages; China and Japan, 3,643 packages. The market lacks animation. Since January 1st there has been forwarded East by rail about 800,000 lbs., the bulk of which was in transit, and sent forward in bond. We quote Japans, in lacquered boxes, 75c. to 85c.; the same in bulk, 60c. to 70c.; common Greens, 5c. to 50c.; Oolongs, 55c. to $1—the latter for "Comet;" extra choice do, $1.25 in jobbing lots.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

Freights to the Eastern ports are still ruling dull, steamers (via the Suez Canal), however, meet with average support, and the various berths are well supplied with tonnage; in coal freights from the Northern outports we have no change to note.

Current rates of freight for vessels on the berth:—To Yokohama: 32s. 6d. weight, 35s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 120s. weight 110s. meast. To Shanghai: 40s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 90s. weight, 80s. meast. To Hong Kong: 35s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Batavia: 25s. weight, 30s. meast. To Penang: per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Singapore: 30s. weight, 25s. to 30s. meast.; per steamer via Suez Canal, 70s. weight, 60s. meast. To Ceylon: 20s. to 25s. weight, 20s. meast; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 60s. meast At New York to China: $12 to $15 per ton of 40 cubic feet.

The current quotations for coal, &c., are as follows:—From Wear or Tyne per keel.—For Hiogo: £35. For Hong Kong: £28. For Singapore: £25. For Galle: £27. From Newport, Cardiff or Swansea per ton.—For Hong Kong: £1 8s. For Singapore: £1 4s. For Galle: £1 6s.

INVENTED BY

EUG. DEVERS, QUIMICO.

PATENTED S.G.D.G.

PREPARATIONS for the Toilet, and particularly Soaps; Powders, &c. for the Teeth; Toilet Washes, and Vinegars, have of late assumed an importance in proportion to the demand for them. Foremost amongst these is GLYCERINE, a remarkable unctuous substance, which softens the skin without greasing it; its valuable qualities were quickly recognised by the most eminent physicians. Experimented on by MM. Dumarquay and Sutom (See "Reports and Memoirs of the Biological Society, 1836," &c.).

GLYCERINE CREAM for the skin.
GLYCERINE TOILET WATER for baths and ablutions.
GLYCERINE ELIXIR for the mouth.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

SYSTEMATIC TREATMENT.—Few statements are more wide of truth than the assertion that for the cure of disease the ailing part alone demands attention, whereas both local and general mischief requires redress. These medicaments boldly face the evils they profess to remedy; local relief and general purification progress together; the diseased portion is cured, the foul whole is cleansed. Holloway's Ointment rubbed on the throat and chest exercises the most beneficial influence over sore throats, diphtheria, and cough, whether resulting from catarrh, asthma, or bronchitis. This unguent acts miraculously in arresting the extension of sores, healing ulcerations, curing skin diseases, and completely stopping all destructive inflammations.

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vessels of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds, superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

The DRY DOCK (opened in March, 1859) admits two vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with a depth of water ranging to 15½ feet. A second DRY DOCK of larger dimensions will shortly be completed, and available for the heaviest Steamers.

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

MAY 10.

The commercial department, Japanese Government, has purchased the Nymph and Sukana for a mail line to Hiogo and Nagasaki. They also purchased an oil mill lately brought out, and three steam lighters, one of them to be sent to the Isle of Sado to be erected, and run between Sado and Nee-e-gata; the others, I think, will be for Yokohama, and it is to be hoped for a lighter company, for such is much wanted—over 100 vessels in harbour, and great trouble in discharging them. All is life on both Hotobas. Great progress is being made with the erection of godowns on the ground which I mentioned in a former letter was to be filled in between the Native Hotoba and French Legation.

Yokohama is increasing in business daily, and native houses are flying up in all directions. All the swamp at back of settlement is to be filled in in six months. Lamp-posts have arrived from Shanghai—will shortly be erected. Drainage and streets progressing well. Public gardens are making a show, and the opposition have retired. I think there is no chance of the opposers tackling the swamp piece; that must be given up for a railway station.

The last two days a succession of earthquakes—as many as fifteen felt in one night on the Bluff. The British Legation on the move to Yedo, now called Tokei, and it is said that the present Legation houses will be pulled down and carried there.

Sir Harry, Lady Parkes, and party are off to Nico, the burial-place of the first Tycoon, seventy miles north of Tokei, and described by the natives as the finest place in Japan. Tokei is quiet; the railway people are at work surveying. The Pacific mail steamer Oregonian arrived from Inland Sea with large cargo, and large number of Japanese. We are now entirely dependent on Kobe district for good beef—high time the Government turn their attention to the breeding of cattle. In Yedo four to six bullocks are consumed daily; also in the interior, where rice is dear.

A grand matszri religious festival is to be held in Yokohama on the 14th and 15th; grand preparations are being made, and a very large sum of money has been collected from merchants (natives) to support it. You know what Japanese are during holiday time, how thoroughly they enjoy themselves, and certainly, by the talk in everybody's mouth, they intend to do it on the 14th and 15th.

Rice has fallen, and with it no doubt you will hear of a few failnres, and cases of non-fulfilment of contracts. I believe one or two shaky cases against foreigners will soon be heard. Japanese merchants have more savee now, and so the Tojin must mind how he conducts his business.

TIENTSIN.

A correspondent on 1st May writes:—Mr. Fred. F. Low, the United States Minister, arrived at Tientsin in the steamer Szechuen on the 13th April, and remained till the forenoon of the 16th. During his stay, he called on his Excellency Chunghow, who returned his visit at the United States Consulate on the following day. Letters received from Peking, per Customs post yesterday, mention Mr. Low having taken charge of the Legation on the 20th April.

We are going to lose Mr. James Mongan, Her Majesty's Consul, and the oldest of the foreign residents at Tientsin, who leaves here on the 3rd of May on his way to England, via America, on leave of absence. He yesterday handed over the charge of the British Consulate to Mr. Wm Lay, as acting Consul. As Mr. Mongan's amiable and genial manners have endeared him to every one who came into relation with him, either in his official capacity or privately, I feel certain I express the truth when I say that he takes with him the hearty and cordial wishes of every foreign resident in Tientsin, and, I may safely add, of many Chinese, for his safe arrival in old England, and for his enjoying every happiness which it is possible for a man to obtain in this the nineteenth century, amongst his friends at home.

SHANGHAI.

The dates by this opportunity extend to the 13th May. The London mail of 25th March arrived out on 9th May. The following are the leading items since the last mail:—

The first annual meeting of rate-payers under the new Land Regulations was held on the 9th. It had been expected, says the North China Herald, to be an unusually full one, from the increased number of voters admitted by the new franchise; and it had been called at the Masonic Hall at 10 A.M., instead of at the British Consulate at 2 P.M., as had been the previous practice, in order to allow more space and more time for discussion. The bad weather and the arrival of the English mail just before the hour of meeting combined, however, to interfere; and instead of an unusual number of voters presenting themselves, an hour and a half elapsed before a quorum could be gathered. A slight difficulty presented itself at the outset in regard to the election of a Chairman—H.B.M. Consul demurring to take the post, on the ground that he was not senior Consul. But this was gracefully overcome by Mr. Dixwell, who asked Mr. Medhurst to preside in his capacity of rate-payer, and the business went on under his presidency. Rules of procedure were first agreed to, after some debate; and the reports and accounts then came up for discussion. Mr. Hanbury raised an interim question—as to the qualification of voters, and one or two other points, in regard to wharfage dues, Chinese land owners, &c., were mooted. Eventually the report and accounts were passed, and the meeting adjourned till 10 A.M. on Friday next. Judging from the time occupied in getting over this short stage, the proceedings will extend over at least two days more. Several important topics for discussion are suggested in the remarks accompanying the budget, and others are sure to arise in connection with the estimates, and from the inner consciousness of individual rate-payers. The questions of Bund frontage, of water supply, of new roads and streets, of appointing an officer of health, are all fertile, and all need settlement.

A Tientsin correspondent writes that things are very dull; no business doing, and prices tending downward. The weather is very unpleasant and dusty; no water in the river or canals, to enable goods to be forwarded into the interior.

A naval Court of Inquiry has been held to inquire into certain charges preferred by the second officer against the master of the Windover. They were held not proven.

A meeting of pew-renters in Trinity Church was held on the 6th, to discuss the vexed question of the position of the pulpit and of the arrangement of seats. It was resolved that the pulpit should be placed in front of the pillar supporting the transept arch, and that the seats be arranged with a view to this change.

A small schooner named the Georgina Godfrey, of 15 tons register, arrived here from Sydney via Manila on the 7th May. She proved herself a perfect little miracle, having made the passage to Manila in the short space of 28 days, where she embarked a cargo of sugar for this port. She again took her departure on the 14th April, and on the 20th at noon she fell in with a heavy gale of wind from the N.E. in lat. 18.14 N. long. 120. 12 E., which compelled her to bear up and anchor under the lee of the land for shelter; the gale lasted several hours. She again got under weigh at 5.30 P.M. of the 21st, and met with favourable weather till the 29th, when a strong breeze set in from the northward and eastward, increasing to a gale, with heavy sea; double reefed mainsail stowed jib and reefed foresail, vessel labouring heavily and heavy seas coming on board. 30th, same weather, with squalls at intervals, after which the weather moderated, and had fine weather until reaching port.

A new weekly newspaper, entitled the Cycle, has appeared. It is said to have been established by the Inspector-General of Customs to advocate views similar to those put forward by the Burlingame Mission; and its first number echoes the opinions of the politicians who look upon the Peking Government as the representative of the Chinese people, and hold it to be sin to hurry the mandarins along the path of progress.

The Asiatic Society have appointed a meeting for the 18th, when a paper will be read by the honorary secretary, Mr. J. B. Robertson, on "The Convention of Peking."

The steamer Appin left Tientsin on 7th May, and Chefoo at 5 P.M. on 9th May, arrived at Shanghai 12th. Tientsin and Chefoo had been visited with a succession of westerly gales, bringing hot scorching weather, and filling the air with dust. At Tientsin there was a rumour that the Mahomedan rebels had captured a large city.

The prospectus has been issued of the Hong Que Wharf Company, the directors being Alexander Michie Thomas Probst, and David Reid. The managing agents being Chapman, King, and Co.

Mr. G. B. Stacey, the General Superintendent of the British-Indian Submarine Telegraph Company, has notified that telegrams from China for London can be forwarded by the company's line. The messages are to be addressed to the agent of the company at Galle, who will forward them on to Bombay, from whence they will be wired direct to their destination. The Chartered Mercantile Bank will receive deposits of not less than £25, to be applied to the payment of telegrams sent by the company's line. All messages addressed to the British-Indian Company will be sent from Galle to Bombay without prepayment, and the local Indian charge, as well as the through rate from Bombay, will be deducted from the sender's deposit with the bank, which will render a periodical statement to each depositor, showing the amounts withdrawn from his account and the balance in hand. The bank officials will not see the messages, but will be furnished by the company with a printed receipt for every message paid for through a depositor's account

The Circular of Messrs. W. G. Hale and Co. is as follows:—

RICE.—The demand for Japan having continued, prices remained throughout the month at an average of $1.90 per picul for round, and $1.75 per picul for long grain. This steamer brings news of a rapid decline in Japan, which of course must in due time cause the article here to recede also, but we consider that there is no prospect of it going sufficiently low for Europe business this season, as fully two-thirds of the crop has already been exported.

The following is a table of exports:—

	Since April 25th. Piculs.	Previous. Piculs.
China...	5,100	196,878
Japan	124,424	1,423,572

BANGKOK.

Dates are to the 21st May. An immense building has been erected in front of the Royal Pavilion, plappla sung, at the Palace of the Supreme King, for theatrical and other amusements connected with the Festival of the Royal Relics of the late King. At the close of the amusements there were Buddhist ceremonies at a new Wat, called Rajbopit.

H.M. the King, after the close of the festival for the relics of H.M. the late King, proceeds to Prat'om, to honour the dedication of the rebuilt Pra chadi and Wat at that place. The rebuilding of this temple has been achieved at immense expense and labour. His lordship, the Pusamset Rajakan Tangprat'ate has been personally interested in its accomplishment, and will deserve, for his great pains and expenditures, the thanks of Buddhists.

The sickness of H.M. the King of Cheangmai has been daily augmenting, and the general impression seems to be that his Majesty will not recover.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this opportunity extend to May 28. The outward mail of April 22 arrived on May 24.

The meeting of the Legislative Council on May 23 was thus alluded to in the Straits Times:—

Digitized by Google

The speech of his Excellency the Governor at the opening of the Legislative Council, on Monday last, is far more satisfactory than his Excellency's utterances have usually been. Several topics of very considerable public importance were introduced, first and foremost of which was the apparently never-ending one of the new steamer, which it appears has now assumed a new phase. It is some consolation to know that although the Secretary of State is not prepared to veto the building of the vessel altogether, he considers $117,000 too heavy a price to be paid for her, and that "Her Majesty's Government will endeavour to purchase a fast and commodious vessel which will answer the purpose of the Government for a much smaller sum." H.E. the Governor, however, evidently has some misgivings with regard to trusting the matter in the hands of the Earl Granville, for he says:—"The conclusion has of late been forced upon me that it would have been more advantageous for the colony if the steamer had originally been ordered to be built here instead of at home. She might not have been so perfect a vessel, but time and money would have been saved, and all local requirements would have been carefully attended to. . . . I have written to the Secretary of State, pointing out that a vessel in all respects suitable for our purpose could be built on the spot for a sum not exceeding $80,000, and suggesting that it would be far better to adopt this arrangement than that in contemplation." There is little reason to doubt that, if we are to have a new steamer at all, time and money might have been saved had she been ordered to be built here in the first place, inasmuch as the cost of the voyage out would have been avoided, and the delay that has been experienced would not have occurred, so that the existing steamers might have been disposed of to better advantage than they can now be. We cannot look upon the actual cost of the new vessel in the same light as his Excellency does. He says:—"As Her Majesty's Government have approved of my recommendation that the present steamers shall eventually be sold as favourable opportunities offer, the actual expenditure it will entail will be considerably below this sum." Now, it is well known that the Peiho was purchased for $65,000, merely as a temporary vessel, until the other one should be built, when she was to be so; the Rainbow cost the former Government $18,000. The loss sustained upon the sale of these two vessels should, we think, be reckoned as so much added to the actual cost of the new steamer, instead of the sum originally paid for them being altogether lost sight of when crediting ourselves with the price they are likely to bring in the market. Under this method of computation, instead of the colony having some $30,000 or $40,000 to set down on the credit side of its accounts, it will be found to have sustained a loss of about equal amount. And here we leave the question for the present, trusting that if it again comes before the Legislative Council it will meet with fair consideration, and, if the vessel is not necessary, that it will be disallowed.

In reference to the long-agitated question of a new steamer for the Governor, a correspondent says:—"The association in London must not be off its guard, for our Governor has not abandoned the idea. The other day he asked the captain of H.M.S. Donegal to survey the Peiho, the present colonial steamer. The report was however favourable; it stated that although the boilers had been badly used they would, with less pressure, last two or three years; the engines were quite good."

The British steamer Craigforth, Captain Froud, from London 12th April, via the Suez Canal, has arrived, having made the passage in 44 days, including stoppages. Her draught of water in running through the Canal was 17 feet 6 inches. Captain Froud confirms the intelligence already received by telegraph that the M.I. steamer Tigre made the passage on a draught of water of 20 feet.

His Imperial Majesty's steamer La Oreuse, Captain Lacombe, from Suez 23rd April, via Aden, arrived here, en route to Saigon with troops. La Creuse has on board 1,000 men for the Cochin China service.

We note that there is at last some prospect of getting a light-house on the North Sands, instead of the present light-vessel, which occasionally meets with serious misfortunes. The importance of this work has been so frequently urged, both here and by the Straits Settlements Association at home, and is so apparent, that no comment is necessary.

IMPORTS.

SHANGHAI.—Piece Goods: The market continued very dull, and with the exception of 8¼ lb. Grey Shirtings, and best 8 lb. T-Cloths, there was scarcely an article which did not show a decline on previous quotations. Stagnation prevailed at Tientsin, but the accounts from the river were little better. Grey Shirtings: 8¼ lbs. had maintained their value, and a small daily business had been done in them, best chops commanding most attention. In 7 lbs., trifling sales at rather low prices are reported, but the heavier makes had not been wanted, and very few had changed hands since last mail. White Shirtings: In these there was no change. T-Cloths: A considerable trade in the better kinds of 7 lbs. T-Cloths was going on, but at almost daily declining rates. The quotations must be regarded as nominal, as there seemed no rule in selling, each holder being a willing seller whenever a fair offer, or what in the state of the market appeared to be a fair offer, was made. Best 8 lb. 36 inch goods had been inquired for, and sales at, in some instances, a slight advance had been effected. The commoner kinds were not in much favour, and their prices were somewhat irregular. Drills continued in demand, but business was restricted, holders showing some reluctance to sell on the basis of Tls. 3.3.8 to 3.4 per piece for best 15 lbs., English make, which were the figures offered by dealers. Jeans: English, of finest quality, had been sold to a small extent, at a decline of 2 cent per piece; medium and inferior kinds not wanted. Sheetings: Firm at last quotation. Fancy Cottons generally lower in value, with very little doing. Woollens showed no improvement. HH Scarlet Long Ells still inquired for, but a resale by Chinese at Tls. 5.9.5 per piece interfered with settlements, buyers naturally being unwilling to give more, while holders generally were disinclined to lower their demands. CPH Scarlets also wanted, at Tls. 5.7.0 to 5.7.5 per piece. Assorted colours neglected. Fair assortments of CPH Spanish Strips offered by Chinese, on the market, at 0.5.0 per yard, otherwise the market for woollen fabrics remained unchanged. Lead: Sales of common chops reported at 4.45 to 5.0.; market very much depressed. Coals: Transactions unimportant; demand limited, rates unchanged. Quotations (duty paid):—Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., Tls. 2.0.0 to 2.0.5 per piece; 8.4 to 8.6 lbs., Tls. 2.2.7 to 2.3.2; 9 to 9.12 lbs., Tls. 2.4.0 to 3.0.0; White Shirtings, Tls. 2,2.8 to 2.7.5; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., Tls. 1.4.0 to 1.6.5; 7 lbs., Tls. 1.6.0 to 1.8.5; 8 to 8¼ lbs., Tls. 2.0.0 to 2.1.0; X X., Tls. 2.4.0; American Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.5.5 to 3.7.5; American Jeans, 30 yards, Tls. 2.6.5 to 2.7.5; American Sheetings, 40 yards, Tls. 3.4.5 to 3.7.5; English Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.3.0 to 3.4.0; Dutch Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.2.0 to 3.2.5.; Camlets (English), S S, Tls. 10.7.0 to 11.8.0; S S S, Tls. 9.7.5. to 10.2.0; Spanish Stripes, per yard, Tls. 0.4.8 to 0.5.2; Medium Broad and Habit Cloth, Tls. 0.9.0 to 1.5.0; Long Ells, per piece, scarlet, 24 yards H H, Tls. 5.9.0 to 6.0.0; C P H, Tls. 5,7.0 to 5.7.5; assorted, H H, Tls. 5.6.0 to 5.7.0; C P H, Tls. 5.7.0 to 5.8.0. Iron: Nail Rod small sizes, per picul, Tls. 2.3.5 to 2.5.0; fair to good assortments, Tls. 2,1,0 to 2.3.0; hoop, Tls. 2.0.0; flat and round, Tl. 2.0.5 to 2.2.5.

SAIGON.— 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings and the lighter weights of Grey T-Cloth had been in good demand. Of the former a lot found purchasers at $3.26 per piece, but prices had again receded, and that figure was no longer obtainable. For 7 lbs. Grey Shirtings and the heavier weights of Grey T-Cloth the demand had been more moderate, and prices were unchanged. White Irishes: Very dull of sale. The news of a downward tendency in the Singapore market would probably cause a decline in rates. The quotations were:—Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $3.15 to 3.20; do., 7 lbs., $2.65; Grey T-Cloth, 6 lbs., $1.85; do., 5½ lbs., $1.75; do., 5 lbs., $1.70; do., 4½ lbs., $1.60; White Irishes, $2.15 to 2.20.

SINGAPORE.—The latest quotations are:—No. 40's Mule twist, $140; 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings, $8.05; 7 do. do. $2.52½; 5 do. T. Cloths, $1·57½; 6 do. do. $1.90; 7 do. do. $2.07½ to 2.10.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

SHANGHAI.—There had been no transactions since last mail. The stocks were estimated at 1,200 chests Black, and 4,300 half-chests Green, and these were firmly held. It was considered probable that the bulk of the green tea held over would be mixed with the new season's crop,

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—Since the last mail no business had been done. The very small stocks of 200 bales may be considered as the last supplies of old Silk, and, consequently, the season of 1869-70 had virtually closed, giving a total export of 42,750 bales, against 46,650 bales for season 1868-69. The reports from the interior continued satisfactory; the weather had been fine, and the silkworms are progressing favourably. Price for mulberry leaves had again declined, and had reached a point lower than had been seen for some time past; this was said to be caused by the producers rearing less quantity of seed than usual.

SIAM AND STRAITS PRODUCE.

BANGKOK.—The following is Messrs. Markwald and Co.'s report, dated 4th May:—Rice: Shortly after despatch of our last Circular advices were received from Hong Kong reporting a considerable advance of prices; our market assumed in consequence a very firm appearance, and prices advanced rapidly to $1.35 per picul for Steam Mill Field Rice, and $1.55 per picul for Steam Mill Garden Rice. Supplies of paddy were very small at the time, and for several days they amounted to next to nothing. A further advance was, under these circumstances, anticipated, but the amount of tonnage in port being moderate, there was no further rise established. Our market has since continued firm at prices fluctuating from $1.35 to $1.30 per picul for Field, and $1.55 to $1.50 for Garden. There are now but few vessels expected from China and Singapore, and our market may probably are long be easier again. Our quotations are for Steam Mill Field Rice (new) $1.30 per picul, equal to 5s. 5¾d. per cwt. f.o.b.; Steam Mill Garden, $1.50 per picul, equal to 6s. 3⅜d. per cwt. f.o.b.; Native Cleaned Garden Rice, resifted, $1.50 per picul, equal to 6s. 3⅜d. per cwt. f.o.b.; Native Cleaned: White No. 1, Tls. 58 per coyan, $1.78 per picul f.o.b. Sugar: The market is firm, and prices are well maintained. White, superior, Tls. 10 per picul, equal to 25s. 4d. per cwt. f.o.b.; No. 1, Tls. 9¾, per picul, equal to 24s. 8½d. per cwt. f.o.b.; No. 2, Tls. 9½ per picul, equal to 24s. 1d. per cwt. f.o.b.; No. 3, Tls. per picul, equal to 22s. 10½d. per cwt. f.o.b.; Brown, No. 1, Tls. 5 to 5¼ per picul; No. 2, Tls. 4¾ per picul. Black Pepper: The first supplies of this season found buyers at Tls. 13 per picul, but prices gradually declined to Tls. 11¾ per picul, equal to 8d. per lb. f.o.b.; at present the market is cleared, but further supplies are shortly expected. Sapanwood: Without alteration; 3 to 5 pieces per picul, Tls. 2¼ to Tls. 2¾ per picul; 5 to 6 pieces per picul, Tls. 2 per picul; 6 to 7 pieces per picul, Tls. 1¾ per picul. Cut Sapanwood, roots dressed off, for shipment to Europt, Tls. 2 per picul, equal to £7 2s. 1d. per ton of 20 cwt. f.o.b. Teakwood: Supplies are very small, and native sawyers are now holding for Tls. 10½ per yoke; steam-mill sawed, 55c. to 60c. per cubic foot, according to quality. Cow Hides: Tls. 16 per picul, equal to 4d. per pound f.o.b. Buffalo Hides: Tls. 10¾ per picul, equal to 3d. per lb. f.o.b. Buffalo Horns: Tls. 14½ per picul, equal to 36s. 6d. per cwt. f.o.b. Deer Horns: Tls. 12½ per picul, equal to 32s. 2d. per cwt. f.o.b. Gum Benjamin: No. 1, Tls. 125 per picul, equal to £16 3s. 2d. per cwt. f.o.b.; inferior, Tls. 45 per picul, equal to £6 5s. 5d. per cwt. f.o.b. Teel-seed: Nominally Tls. 100 per coyan. Sticklac: None in the market. Gamboge: Tls. 90 per picul.

SINGAPORE.—The following are the latest prices for produce:—Gambier, $3.05; Black Pepper, $8.25; White Pepper, $11.30; Sago Flour, $2.45; Pearl Sago, $3; Tin, $31⅛.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite. The Civil Service Gazette remarks:—"The singular success which Mr. Epps has attained by his homœopathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any experimentalist. By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in tin-lined packets labelled—JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London.

THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH IN CEYLON.

In his parting speech, delivered at Galle, the Duke of Edinburgh spoke perhaps more feelingly his sentiments on this subject, now that all was over, than when in the height of the bustle and excitement of the scenes he has passed through. He said:—"I shall never forget the pleasant days I have passed in Ceylon. And it has been most gratifying to me to witness the demonstrations which have met me on every occasion during my progress throughout the island, and which evince the feelings towards the Queen, my mother, entertained alike by all men and all creeds." There is something pretty in this touch of nature, the reference to "the Queen, my mother." And doubtless to the many virtues of that mother Queen, and to her widespread fame, is due much of that cordial welcome that has everywhere been accorded, and those demonstrations of loyalty and affection that have everywhere been so profusely showered upon her son; but in Ceylon at least the Prince has gained golden opinions on his own account. A gentle, manly nature is his. Free from pomp and affectation, he has entered cordially into all the entertainments got up for his amusement, not the least enjoyable of which were the toils and pleasures of the chase—into these he entered con amore; and in all such cases, whether in the camp or in the field—in a small company or at a great gathering—at a kraal or at a ball—he has acted in such a way as to commend himself to those about him, and leave a favourable impression wherever he went. To the native mind, perhaps, a little more pomp and show would have better accorded with their ideas of the greatness of a Royal Prince; and had he come amongst them with a gold crown on his head, bestudded with gems of "purest ray serene," dressed in the most gorgeous attire; covered with orders, ribbons, medals, et hoc genus omne, he would have doubtless come nearer their ideal of the son of a Queen "under whose dominion the sun never sets." But they are being educated up, and by-and-by will come to understand that a Prince is but a man, who when "unadorned 's adorned the most."

Notwithstanding the absence of such dash and splendour, however, the Prince has left his mark; and the visit will be an epoch in the history of them to whom previously a Queen was but an idea, and her son a myth. They have now seen with their own eyes the son of a Sovereign whom they have known only in name, and therefore they are convinced that her gracious Majesty Queen Victoria who rules these realms is no ideal person. Much they have heard of her greatness and goodness, but only now have they experienced this, when she has sent her son to visit them; for they see thereby that she does not forgot her most distant dependencies. The Royal Duke's presence among us has done good in many ways. It has struck a heavy blow at the iniquitous system of caste, which prevails to such a lamentable extent in Ceylon and India; it has shown to the native mind the noble example of a Royal Prince considering it no indignity to dine with a low caste commoner; it has illustrated the fact that in England, as in every enlightened nation, men are appreciated for their worth, not on account of their origin.

At the ball given by the De Soyzas men of every rank and class were invited, and the attendance of Europeans and Eurasians was large; the different classes of natives were also freely represented, yet caste could not hide its baneful head. The Modliars to a man (except the Maha Modliar, who, probably, was ordered by the Governor to be there) refused to come. What! men of their high caste sit down and eat with a man of the fisher caste!—not to be thought of for a moment. Even a Christian (?) minister refused to come; strange to say, too, he was one who had been honoured by the De Soyza family; for their predecessor, the late Jervius de Soyza, built a church, mostly at his own expense, for this clergyman. Would he go and dine with these fellows? he is represented to have said, as he insultingly returned the invitation, he—a clergyman of the Church of England—dine with fishers? The Queen's son and the Queen's representative might go there; not Mr. D., Church of England divine. He did not, probably, recollect at the moment that, besides insulting the host, he offended, against good taste towards the guests, including the Prince and the Governor; and his Excellency was not slow to mark his sense of the indignity by asking Parson D. to send in his resignation of an office which could not with propriety be held by a man who evidently ranked caste above Christianity.

The Modliars, not being paid servants of Government, could not be thus summarily dealt with; but doubtless they will perceive the tacit rebuke administered by the above fact to them also, and they may probably learn that, all-powerful as caste is in uncivilised communities, it holds no place in the esteem of an enlightened people.

Another advantage of the Royal visit to us colonists is that it has caused our highways and byways to be rubbed up, our towns to be cleaned and burnished, and our loyalty to find an outlet. It was really surprising the eagerness of the great mass of the natives to get a sight of the Prince. Some of them came great distances, and on the day of his arrival at the central capital the crowd that surged upon the green—one living, moving mass—was so dense that there was hardly room to move. Men of every nationality resident in the island were there—Moors, Tamils, Malays, Singhalese, Chinese, Portuguese, Dutch, and English in one promiscuous throng. All were dressed in holiday attire, and the natives especially were decked out in the most gorgeous colours, the tout ensemble presenting a very fine effect. The number of persons on the Esplanade that day was estimated at fifty thousand. Doubtless it will be an event in the lives of many of them, their visit to Kandy on that great gala day.

Yet another advantage of the Royal visit remains to be told. It will make our island better known than it has ever been. A lamentable ignorance of our geographical position, and all that pertains to our little isle, is frequently manifested in England, which the ducal visit will help to dispel. Doubtless in the suite of the Duke of Edinburgh there will be "a chiel amang them takin' notes," and the result will be a book of travel, history, or sketches of the Prince's tour, which will no doubt contain much that is new and interesting to residents at home, and which will consequently be largely read. It is not often that a Royal traveller publishes a book, and no Prince in Christendom could have made the extensive tour the Royal Duke will have made ere he returns, all within the dominions of the Crown, save one of the Royal House of England. In his tour he will have seen much, and he will have learned how profound is the esteem in which his Royal mother is held throughout her vast dominions by all classes that claim to be the subjects of good Queen Victoria.

SIR R. ALCOCK'S CONVENTION.

(GLOBE.)

Sir Rutherford Alcock's memorandum in reply to the memorials which have recently been presented by the China merchants to the Government is just such a document as might be expected to emanate from the framer of the China Convention. His ideas of what a convention should be are, to say the least of them, quaint. He seems to consider that its articles should be such as to afford the merchants opportunities for gambling, under the conditions of which they may possibly lose heavily, but at the same time may by chance win something, and that, therefore, on the whole, it may be worth their while to run the hazard; and at the same time that he expresses a childlike faith in the yielding disposition of the Chinese Government, he attributes his want of success in obtaining a more liberal Treaty to their insisting on claiming "a right to profit by the first opportunity that occurred since the occupation of Peking by the allied forces, to cancel or limit the privileges previously extorted from them." It will be remembered that the China merchants objected to the enforced payment of an additional 2½ per cent. import duty on all goods, in return for the bare promise of the Peking Government, without any guarantee that such merchandise as they desired to send into the interior should be permitted to pass free. This astonishes Sir Rutherford Alcock not a little. "Well," he says, "but do they (merchants) not habitually venture a small risk to secure the reasonable chance of a large return? And if this be a rule of commerce, where is the force of their objection to this clause of the Convention?" So that a Treaty is to be accompanied by as many uncertainties as a risky mercantile transaction. If this is so, the sooner the principle of limited liability is introduced into Treaties the better. He, however, finds further consolation for the merchants in the fact that if the Chinese Government do not in this particular fulfil their part of the contract, it will always be competent for Her Majesty's Government to demand a further revision of the Treaty. But if the Chinese on this occasion have shown themselves only willing "to cancel or limit" the privileges obtained by the former Treaty, what guarantee has Sir Rutherford Alcock that, in case Her Majesty's Government found it necessary to demand a further revision for the purpose of cancelling the additional 2½ per cent. import duty, that the Peking Government would consent to yield the point? It is now generally acknowledged that the Convention is a failure, and it is equally certain that it will not be ratified. Under these circumstances, Sir Rutherford Alcock would have done well to have abstained from attempting to justify its provisions.

ORIENTAL LANGUAGES AND INTERPRETERS FOR COCHIN-CHINA.

The Paris School of Eastern Languages was reorganised last year with the view to the practical teaching of Oriental idioms in the interest of colonial and commercial relations. The principal changes consisted in the establishment of a professorship of Annannite, the proposed appointment of assistant professors or masters, natives if possible of the country whose language was to be taught, not for the literate but the ordinary spoken language of business, an increase in the payment of the professors, and the establishment of scholarships for pupils who should have followed assidnously the course of stude during twelve months. The extra expense of these changes was set down at £2,400 a-year. This plan has not been carried out yet, and arrangements were not sufficiently matured to allow of the necessary credit being included in the Budget for 1871, but the training of interpreters and consular agents for Cochin-China is now declared to by urgent, and a small supplementary vote is now demanded for those objects.

The decree which carries this subject before the Corps Législatif while praising the climate as well as the character of the population of Cochin-China, adds that the occupation of the isle of Paulo Condor, and the free access to the great river of Cambodge, guaranteed to the French flag, give inestimable facilities for the mercantile marine and commerce of France to carry out fruitful operations in those parts, and lay the foundation of a colony, which shall become the seat of French influence in the Far East. The announcement made in November last, that the Government intended to ask for a grant on this head caused an increase in the number of pupils, thirty-three having immediately made formal application for admission, and it was necessary that some provision should be made on their behalf. The chief European nations, and especially England and Russia, had preceded France in this path, and diplomacy and commerce both demand that the latter should take steps in this matter; several Chambers of Commerce have, moreover, offered to found scholarships in connection with the re-organised School of Oriental Languages.

THE PACIFIC TELEGRAPH LINE TO CHINA.

The project originated by Mr. Cyrus Field for a cable between California and China does not make much progress in Congress The plan for a land subsidy has been abandoned, a most determined opposition being made to further land grants, and now a Bill has been introduced granting a money subsidy of $500,000 a-year for twenty years. This Bill is pending in the Senate, but its passage is very doubtful, the Foreign Affairs Committee having determined to oppose the granting of any subsidies hereafter, either of land or money, to any cable company. The tariff proposed for telegrams by this cable is $30 gold for ten words between California and China.

THE CHINA CONVENTION.

Mr. Magniac, on the 30th ult., put a question to the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs in reference to the Convention of Sir Rutherford Alcock, which Mr. Otway answered by requesting that the subject might be postponed, owing to the lamented death of the Earl of Clarendon. We observe that Mr. Magniac will repeat the question this evening.

DEATH OF THE EARL OF CLARENDON.

One of the most popular and one of the most distinguished of the hereditary peers of England passed away on the morning of the 27th ult. The death of Lord Clarendon will make a sensible void in English society. Trusted by all ranks, from the Sovereign whose friendship he had for many years enjoyed, he was one of the few men who held the respect of all classes of Her Majesty's subjects. He was a Liberal, and the last great representative of the old diplomatic school.

Our regret is not the less sincere because we have lately had to condemn the policy of the Foreign-office towards China, for we are persuaded that the Board of Trade has had much more to do with it than the Foreign-office. Lord Clarendon himself had certainly not embraced the advanced liberal views of either Mr. Gladstone or Mr. Bright, and any one who heard his examination by the committee appointed on the Diplomatic and Consular Service would readily perceive that his noble spirit still preserved sufficient conservatism to protect the service from such men as Mr. Rylands, who pushed his lordship rather rudely to answer the same questions in various forms. That is the last time that we had the pleasure of seeing his lordship, and we must confess that his conduct then completely belied any petty treatment towards the Diplomatic and Consular staff. The bland sarcasm with which his lordship met some of the members of the committee proved him to be quite a match, and more than a match, for some who attempted to badger him. The perfect temper with which his lordship went through the ordeal was remarkable. It certainly struck us that he would have been quite warranted in leaving the committee-room, and declining further examination at the hands of men whose conduct was simply intolerable to a man of the standing, experience and ability of such a statesman as the Earl of Clarendon.

LAUNCHES.

On Monday, the 27th ult., Messrs. R. Napier and Sons launched from their building-yard at Govan an iron screw-steamer, built to the order of Messrs. Shaw, Maxton, and Co., London, and intended for the East India and China trade. Her principal dimensions are:—Length, 320 feet; breadth, 37 feet 9 inches; depth, 31 feet; tonnage, B.M., 2,250 tons; engines, compound, 240 nominal horse-power. The dogshores being cut away by Miss Sowter, London, the ceremony of naming the vessel "Lord of the Isles" was performed by Miss Jessie MacLean; and the launch, which was witnessed by a large number of spectators, was entirely successful. We may add that the Lord of the Isles is the first vessel built on the Clyde under the new rules recently adopted by Lloyd's Committee, being classed 100 A by the new designation.

On the 30th ult. Messrs. Alexander Stephen and Sons launched from their works at Kelvinhaugh a fine new three decked iron screw-steamer for Messrs. John Warrack and Co., Leith, of 1,400 tons, and 95 A at Lloyd's, fitted with compound engines of the newest description, of 170-horse power, by Messrs. Howden and Co. The vessel is to be employed in the Eastern trade, via the Suez Canal. She was named the Atholl.

There has also been launched from the yard of Messrs. Charles Connell and Co., at Overnewton, a finely modelled composite sailing ship of 1,235 tons, built to obtain the highest class at Lloyd's, and to the order of Messrs. Sandbach, Tinne, and Co., of Liverpool. She has been specially designed by Messrs. Connell and Co. to attain great speed, combined with large carrying capacity. She was named the Ailsa, and is to be employed in the East India and China trade.

THE LOSS OF THE "CARNATIC."—It is the intention of the P. and O. Company to take the action brought against them by Mrs. Gilliland, for the loss of her husband by the wreck of the Carnatic, to a superior Court. The jury, as we reported in our last issue, have given a verdict for Mrs. Gilliland for £3,000 damages. The company intend to raise the point of law whether, under the circumstances, they are liable in law or not. They allege—(1) that the ship was properly and skilfully navigated, and that her running upon the reef was a pure accident, whereas the contrary is alleged by the plaintiff; (2) that Mr. Gilliland and the other passengers remained on board, after the ship ran upon the reef, of their own choice, and therefore took upon themselves the risks attendant thereon. We shall look with interest for the decision of the Court upon this point—which, however, cannot be given until November next at the earliest—inasmuch as it will settle the question of the liability of the company, not only in this case, but also as regards any other possible cases arising out of the loss of the vessel.

THE "POPLAR ACCIDENT HOSPITAL."—This institution was started in the year 1855 for the relief of accidents, and, since the opening, some 25,000 cases have been received, while, including cases recommended by Governors, 50,000 persons have received medical relief. The hospital is in the midst of the large shipping establishments, and many a life has been saved by the instant attention paid to those seeking aid. The question has been earnestly discussed whether, in view of a great want of funds, the committee should give up and close the hospital, but they have determined to make a special effort, and, in lieu of a public dinner this year, they will hold, on the 6th and 7th inst. a fete, for the exhibition of specimens of art and curiosities, as well as for the disposal of any things specially contributed for sale. We trust that so useful an institution will not be given up, and that our readers and the public generally will respond liberally to the call for funds. The bazaar will be held on board the Shannon and Paramatta, in the East India Docks, opening at 1 P.M. on Wednesday and Thursday.

THE will of Sir Edmund Antrobus, Bart., banker, was proved under £300,000 personalty. He leaves to each of his partners in Coutts' banking-house £500; to Miss Burdett Coutts, £100, for a ring. Legacies to the clerks and servants. He has made a liberal provision for his wife and sons and daughters, and appoints his eldest son, the present baronet, residuary legatee.

THE "COLUMBINE."—The following have been the appointments to the Columbine, commissioned for the China station:—Sub-Lieutenant, H. C. Cane; Staff-Surgeon, W. N. Brake; Surgeon, Gordon Jackson; Acting Assistant Surgeon, W. D. Isaac; Engineer, John Taylor; Assistant Engineer, R. Gillespie; Midshipman, Hastings Lees.

THE NEW FOREIGN SECRETARY.—We have much pleasure in announcing that Earl Granville will succeed the late Earl of Clarendon as Foreign Minister. The Earl of Kimberley, at present Lord Privy Seal, succeeds Earl Granville at the Colonial-office.

THE BRITISH MINISTER AT HAMBURG.—The Senate of Hamburg has presented to Mr. Ward, Her Majesty's Minister to the Hanse Towns, on the occasion of his retirement, a gold medal in testimony of their high sense of his conduct during his long residence in that city.

A telegram from Madrid states that Spain, England, and Holland have decided to organise an expedition to Oceania to put an end to piracy. The Spanish squadron will be charged to explore the Sea of Ile Ile and the Philippine Islands.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, June 28.

By a Royal decree of the 21st inst. orders have been given for the construction of a new ironclad steam-frigate, with two revolving towers, containing four 10-inch guns of twenty-two tons each, besides three rifled 24-pounders of four tons each, with engines of nominal 900-horse power, the vessel to draw twenty-four feet water. It is further ordered that after the launch of the steam corvette Ariadne, now building in the Royal dockyard at Danzig, the keel be immediately laid of a sister ship on the same lines. The frigate is to be called the Borussia, and the corvette named the Louise, after the consort of Frederick Wilhelm III., and mother of the present king. With regard to the two gunboats of a new class called "avisos," named the Albatross and Nautilus (for the German navy) now in course of construction at Danzig, and destined for service against the pirates in the China seas, they are in such a state of forwardness that, according to the present arrangements, the former will be launched very shortly, and be ready for the pennant this autumn, whilst the latter will be commissioned in the early part of next year.

We are also to have correspondence cards in Germany, like those about to be introduced in England; but with this difference, that whereas in England they will be sold for a halfpenny, and thus cost one half of a letter—saving, moreover, the expense of letter-paper and envelope—the German cards are to cost one groschen, the same as a letter weighing more than half an ounce, so that the public will not gain much by it. The new system is to come into operation by the 1st of July, when also the new postal treaty between Germany and England is to take effect, as well as that between Germany and the United States, by which latter country letters to China and Japan will be forwarded, via New York and San Francisco, at very reduced rates of postage. The sale of the correspondence cards commenced on the 18th inst. at Berlin, on which day 45,468 were disposed of to the public.

The Federal Council have appointed a commission to examine into the monetary state of Germany, and make proposals for amalgamating all the present different systems, with one single joint set of coins for all Germany. It is no doubt a very difficult problem to solve; nevertheless it is quite true that "where there's a will there's a way," and it is after all but the complement and natural sequence of the metrical decimal system of weights and measures, now, to be sure, only used permissively, but which after another year will become compulsory.

The law for the subvention of the St. Gotthard Railway and tunnel, towards the expenses of which the German Parliament has voted ten millions of francs, has now been promulgated, and negotiations have been opened, and are being actively carried on, with Bavaria, Wurtemburg, and Baden, to induce them to contribute towards the opening up of the most direct route of communication between Germany and Italy, which, when completed, cannot fail to have a most beneficial influence on the commerce and passenger traffic of the two countries, which are now separated by the almost impassable ranges of the Alps.

Arrangements are being made, and drawing near their conclusion, for the opening of the new Supreme Commercial Court for North Germany at Leipzig, which is fixed on as the seat of that tribunal. The judges have been all appointed, and had an audience of the King of Saxony at Dresden. The sittings will commence in August next.

been induced to accept lower prices than they have hitherto demanded, found buyers quite willing to do business, and the following sales were concluded :—1,042/4 and 978/8 chests of Congou, 882/4 and 1,655/8 ditto Kaysow Congou, 359/8 ditto Souchong, 16/8 ditto Tonkay, and 79/8 ditto Haysan, after which the market closed firmer. The same was the case with Cassia Lignea ; the late large importations had depressed the prices, but after the sale of 6,000 chests by importers the market recovered its former elasticity, and prices have again risen to their previous standard. Pepper continues in favour, but without alteration in the quotations; 2,500 bags of Singapore, to hand per Uranus, were previously sold for delivery on arrival. Nothing has been done in Spelter, but purchases might probably be effected on more favourable conditions.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, June 29.

A general depression prevails throughout the whole country, owing the stoppage of the O. I. Maatschappy van Administratie en lyfrenten. The general opinion obtained that this company was a model of stability, and that money could not be invested in a better or more secure way than in its shares. As I told you formerly, the shareholders, who have only paid 20 per cent. on their shares of f.5,000, will be compelled to furnish the remaining 80 per cent., and it is said that even this will not be quite sufficient to cover the loss. The capital of this company, whose managers are Messrs. R. van Eibergen Santhagens and F. A. Jas, is f.2,500,000, with a reserve of f.220.139.85. I need not demonstrate that the results of this deplorable failure will be deeply felt as well here as in India, where it was customary with functionaries and small merchants to entrust their money to this bank. Strange stories are current with regard to the administration; it is said that whenever any agricultural enterprise of this company gave an unfavourable result then the money lost was added to the capital, so that some enterprises appear for a very considerable amount upon the balances, the real value of which is only a fraction of the sum. The stoppage seems to have occurred most unexpectedly; according to private letters received here by the last mail from the company's officials, the future was as bright as possible. The same statement was made by the managers at the last annual meeting when the dividend was fixed for that year at 4 per cent., with regard to which, it was said, "the advices from India are so favourable that we do not hesitate to anticipate upon the profits of next year (1869), and to add an extra dividend of 2 per cent." It is impossible to state all the rumours, more or less compromising, which circulate, but it is quite certain that the stoppage of this company is a national calamity.

Bright weather and sunshine every day makes Parliament idle. In the Second Chamber the debates on local questions, of no interest to your readers, creep on. The Chamber has resolved that the most important Bills, ready for discussion, shall not be dealt with in this session. Within a day or two the members will leave the Hague, not to return before the opening of the new session. Their fear of doing too much is supported by the fact that our Lords are obliged to meet in the Lower House, while their own is undergoing repairs. The discussions of our tired M.P.'s have furnished but one fact worthy of being mentioned. One day we were surprised by a statement in our official journal that Holland was on the eve of a war with Venezuela. It appears that for some time past there have been internal dissensions in Caracas, in which the Dutch authorities appear to have most imprudently mixed themselves up by expelling some revolutionists, who prepared their plans at the Dutch settlements. These revolutionists, however, succeeded in overthrowing the Government of Venezuela, and being then the dominant party they seized the Dutch packet steamer Honfleur at Laguiara, and also the Dutch schooner Sarah, whose owner they prevented going to Caracas. The representatives of the other foreign Governments protested against the seizure of the Honfleur, but without effect. On the contrary, instead of the steamer being restored to Mr. Rolandus, our representative, he was told in the most offensive terms that all relations with him—not with the Government — were broken off. Mr. Rolandus then asked for his passport. After much delay this was given him and he left the town, but was arrested on his way to Laguiara by a special order from the President. The whole corps diplomatique again protested, and induced the Minister of Foreign Affairs to make an apology to Mr. Rolandus, who was then released and escorted to Laguiara, where he took refuge on board the Dutch man-of-war Kykduin. When the news of these outrages reached our Government the Minister instantly despatched the frigate Admiraal van Wassenaar to Venezuela in order to protect our subjects and their property. The commander is ordered to demand full satisfaction. This is the brief account given by the Staats Courant. Of course the Ministry was at once interpellated respecting the statement, but the Minister for Foreign Affairs did not give any additional information. I think, with the greater part of the papers, that the whole story will prove "a storm in a teacup." It is thought that the question is nothing more than a personal dispute between our Consul and the Government. Some of the newspapers say that the Government of Venezuela was perhaps quite justified in seizing the Honfleur and Sarah, because it is not at all improbable that they were partly laden with contraband of war.

Perhaps something more nearly approaching to drought has been felt in this country during the present year than at any time within living remembrance. From January to June less than half the average rainfall occurred, and the results in some respects are most serious. It is, however, quite certain that our grain and pulse crops will be better than appearances in the fields indicate. But there has not been for many years so little grass in the third week of June as at the present time. Nor are the pasture lands any better. Not only is the grass so short that scarcely one-half the usual stocks can be got in, but the great want of water is being felt. Yet, with all this dry weather, potatoes promise remarkably well; and that fruit of all kinds will be most abundant seems quite certain. As yet the stock has been free from disease, but a very dry summer usually results in more or less of epidemic complaints amongst cattle. On the whole, it is to be feared that farmers will not find the present year one of much profit.

Strange rumours are afloat about the Governor-General, Mr. Meyer, whose nickname is the "squanderer," since he spent £8,000 more than the sum granted for his tour through a part of Java. The most extravagant accounts are published about the luxury of that gentleman, who is said to emulate the style of Oriental despots, and to enjoy the slavish reverence of the native. The local paper, Amersfoortsche Courant, says that it is quite clear why Mr. Meyer spends so much. Without these extras he would not have left Holland, enjoying, as he does, a pension of f.10,000. The paper further states that Mr. Meyer, before his departure, made the condition that he should not be recalled before a certain time, which is stipulated. This story is, perhaps, or rather most probably, quite untrue, but I thought it advisable to reproduce it.

Mr. C. van Heukelom has resigned his post as member of the managing council of the East India Railway Company. It seems that the very unfavourable condition of that company, about which the last mail brought us so much alarming news, induced Mr. Heukelom to take this course.

In yesterday's sitting of the Second Chamber the Ministry was interpellated by Mr. Nierstrasz respecting the East India Railway. As it was feared, the Minister of the Colonial Department confirmed the statement that the works were suspended, but stated that the Government had not forwarded instructions to the Governor-General with reference to the matter, and that there need be no apprehensions of the intervention of the State, because it had been resolved at a meeting of the shareholders of the company to take such measures as should be necessary to raise the two millions of guilders which are necessary to finish the railway in the Samarang principalities, so that there will only be a further delay, as was stipulated by contract. The Minister further stated that the four million guilders destined for the construction of the Batavia-Buitenzorg branch were under the control of the Government. The Opposition was not content with the elucidation given by the Minister, and Mr. Nierstrasz proposed that the Chamber should declare that the members were not satisfied with the Government explanation. This political demonstration found supporters in Messrs. Heemskerk Az, Insinger van Goltstein, Stieltjes, and Storm van 'sGravezande. The two last-named were convinced that the management in India had been as good as it could have been. Strangely enough, Mr. Nierstrasz did not maintain his motion; for, amidst the sneering of the members, he retracted his proposal.

The members of the Society for the Welfare of the Javanese are organising a general petition to induce the First Chamber to outvote the Sugar Bill, as approved by the Second Chamber. The President, Mr. W. Bosch, is of opinion that this Bill is shameful, that it maintains slavery till 1890, and that Holland is in a worse condition than Spain, because Holland is going backward by restoring slavery, whilst Spain is abolishing it. I need not add that there is a good deal of exaggeration in this reasoning. The society can, if it succeeds, prevent something good, but it then remains to furnish us with something better.

According to the Rotterdamsche Courant, the Minister for Foreign Affairs will, when laying his Budget before the members, again propose to appoint an Ambassador in China. You will remember that this plan has already been twice rejected.

According to the Handelsblad, the Ministry is prepared with its Reform Bill; and if this paper is well informed, it is the intention of the Cabinet to fix the franchise at f.20. Such a change would have the most important consequences upon our political state.

The well-known French revolutionist, M. Armand Barbès, died on Sunday last at the Hague. Sixteen years ago he sought and found a refuge here, and has lived since a retired life. He was born in 1810, in the island of Guadaloupe.

The Orthodox party is organising a political demonstration, and a petition, to be addressed to the First Chamber, urging the necessity for outvoting the Bill abolishing capital punishment.

LONDON: MONDAY, JULY 4, 1870.

THE WEEKLY MAIL TO CHINA AND JAPAN.

THE postal communication between Europe and the Far East is now augmented by the inauguration of a fortnightly service by the Messageries Imperiales via the Suez Canal. Up to the present time there have been but three mails per month. We shall now, however, be able to depend upon a mail every Friday. The advantages secured by this arrangement are evident, and the French Company will no doubt maintain the reputation they have succeeded in establishing by the regularity and safety of their service. Appreciating as the public fully do our own national service, the P. and O., it must be borne in mind that it is due to the friendly rivalry of the French Company that the present advantages are secured to all interested in the communication with the India and China waters. The great strides made by the Messageries Imperiales in their relations in the Far East suggests to us that some particulars respecting the resources of this company, extracted from the report of the directors, may be interesting to our readers.

The Messageries Imperiales, on the 31st December last, owned a fleet of sixty-nine steamers, of 22,885-horse power nominal and 150,000 tons, and valued at upwards of £4,030,000. Many of these ships, varying from 1,500 to 4,500 tons, are also engaged in the Brazils and River Plate trade. The Imperatrice, Donnai, Cambodge, Tigre, and Hoogly, so well known on the other side of Suez, will be shortly joined by the still larger vessels, Sindh, Amazone, Pehio, Ava, and Meikong. These vessels, which are fitted out with all the most modern improvements, have shown in their trial trips the most satisfactory results as regards speed. Passengers proceeding by these steamers will retain their berths the entire distance from Marseilles, until arrival at Hong Kong. The prospects of the company as regards cargo are also satisfactory, as by their steamers the transhipment of goods is entirely obviated, which is a great advantage, especially in the case of fine goods going by the mails.

The steamers of the Messageries Imperiales, we find, conveyed during last year on their different lines 227,553 passengers and 2,705,807 packages, weighing 224,944 tons. It is worthy of notice here, that, of the above numbers, 63,000 passengers and 6,600 tons of merchandise were carried by the company either free, or at reduced rates for the French Government, which in some measure accounts for the "heavy subsidy" paid to the company by the Government. Comparing the remuneration it obtains to the charges incurred by the company in carrying out the Government traffic, it is evident that the amount received is but a fair compensation for the services rendered which includes the carriage free of charge of all specie which the Imperial Government may have to send to, or receive from the colonies, and of the mails, which, extensive as they are at present, are daily increasing in bulk. The regularity and frequency of the Mail Service will, we are convinced, tend more and more to make it self-supporting; but time of course is required to develop this.

The year 1869, when compared with 1868, shows an absolute diminution of nearly 1 per cent. on the total expenses, and, taking account of the respective distances performed, the economy is much greater; the saving in fuel amounts to 7½ per cent. The total receipts amounted to upwards of £1,814,400, and the expenses to just over £1,600,000, including payment of debentures, sinking fund, and assurance, which form about one-sixth of the whole amount, and leaving, after deduction of £13,400 for the reserve, &c., a sum equal to £198,000 to be distributed amongst the shareholders, which allows a dividend for the year of £1 16s. per share.

The increase in the French carrying trade in the general shipping business of South America, the Mediterranean, India, China and Japan, is remarkable, and we cannot but admire the praiseworthy and successful efforts which have caused them to attain their present position, notwithstanding the competition of our own well-known and old established companies. The distance over which the steamers of the Messageries Imperiales have run during the past year amounts to 1,537,842 miles. We can, we think, safely assert that no other company has run their steamers such a distance, representing, as it does, more than fifty-six times the circumference of the globe. Without forgetting the important services rendered by our English Steamboat Companies to the trade of the world, we think the enterprise of the directors of the Messageries highly commendable. They have met us as fair and honourable competitors, in the same waters, with the same objects—namely, the development of commerce, profit, progress, and civilisation.

TELEGRAPHIC PROGRESS.

IN order to keep our readers au courant with the proposed telegraphic cables to connect China, Java, and Australia, we may state that the Hibernia will leave in August with the first portion of the cable which is to be laid from Madras to Penang and Singapore via the Nicobars. The proposal to connect the Andamans and Rangoon en route—which has been made by Government—on a guarantee of six per cent. on the increased outlay involved, has not yet been decided on. The section to connect Singapore with Batavia will also be sent out about August, and the cable to connect Singapore and Hong Kong, as also that for Australia, all in next year. The Great Northern and Cella, with the remaining portion of the cable, to connect Hong Kong and Shanghai, of which we gave a full account in our last, will leave in a week or two. The Anglo-Mediterranean Telegraph Company (Limited) have decided to duplicate their present direct cable between Malta and Alexandria, and have accordingly entered into a provisional arrangement with the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company for laying the cable in December next, for the sum of £180,000. It is intended to meet this outlay, together with the necessary engineering expenses, by the creation of additional capital of £170,000, to be divided into 26,000 shares of £6 10s. each, and 100 shares of £10 each, and by the appropriation from the reserve fund of a sum of £11,000, making together £181,000. The directors also propose to convert the present share capital of £260,000, and the new capital, when paid up, into stock.

SOME further correspondence relative to the collision between the United States corvette Oneida and the Bombay has been published recently. The Secretary to the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company has written to the Board of Trade to say that the directors of the company emphatically dissent from the conclusions of the Board. Captain EYRE, who commanded the Bombay, has furnished to the Board of Trade a long statement of the circumstances attending the collision, and asks for a fuller inquiry than that which took place before the Court of Yokohama. The Board have in reply stated that they see no reason to depart from their conclusions, and they decline to reopen the case.

THE Chinese Embassy, with Mr. BROWN at its head, is again in Paris, after having passed some time at Florence and Milan. After paying a visit of ceremony to the Duke DE GRAMONT, who made their acquaintance at Vienna, the Ambassadors will set out for Madrid—almost the only European capital which they have not yet seen. They will once more return to France, and propose to embark at Marseilles for China about the 21st August for their final departure.

SIR RICHARD GRAVES MACDONNELL, C.B., with Lady MACDONNELL, landed at Southampton on the 27th ultimo from the North German Lloyd steamer America, which left New York on the 16th June.

Monetary and Commercial.

The report of the Netherlands India Bank of Amsterdam has been published, and will be found in another page. We may congratulate the directors in having escaped with such comparatively light loss from the disastrous failures in the Java trade. The report shows that the bank has transacted a large business, and their connection has much increased, as also their credit. The dividend declared is *f.*10.50 per share of *f.*250.

Telegrams have been received announcing that Mr. Wm. Hargreaves has been allowed by Judge Hornby to leave Shanghai for England by the mail of the 4th June. Considerable astonishment has been expressed at this step.

Several meetings have been held during the past week between the tea importing houses and the dealers, which ended in a resolution by the importers to postpone the time from the 1st to the 18th July, to which the Chairman of the wholesale dealers replies by stating that the only mode of settling the question is to abandon the proposed change. The most rational and sensible letter which has appeared on this controversy is from Messrs. Joseph Tetley and Co., wholesale dealers; they say:—

"The phraseology of the resolutions of the tea importers conveys to persons unacquainted with the details of the trade an impression that by withdrawing the allowance of 1 lb. draft, they will place the conditions of the sale of tea on a fair and equitable basis. In these resolutions they assume that the method of determining the Customs' weight and tare ensures their fairness. We think it is not generally understood how this tare is fixed; it is as follows:—A small number of chests, according to a fixed scale, commencing at one out of six, and ending with 12 out of 800, and 16 for any number over 800, are turned out and weighed, the weight being recorded in pounds only, odd weight being reckoned as a pound, then the tare is fixed at the figure which is recorded against the majority of these selected chests. Thus in a parcel of 600 chests, which is a very frequent quantity, 12 chests would be tared; and supposing that five of these 12 weighed 24 lbs. 15 ozs. each, they would be recorded 25; and if the other 7 weighed 23 lbs. 15 ozs. each, they would be recorded 24, and the tare of the whole 600, by the rule of majority would thus be 24, showing a gain to the buyer of 7 ozs. on the 7 chests, and a loss of 4 lbs. 11 ozs. on the 5 chests; or on the average of the whole 600 a loss of 212 lbs. 8 ozs. to the buyer of the parcel. That this calculation by no means overstates the actual facts of the case is attested by statistics submitted to a meeting of the retail dealers in tea, held on Monday last, at the Cannon-street Hotel. One firm of the highest standing records that by comparing the actual weight of 3,211 empty chests with the tare allowed, it showed a loss of 3,458 lbs., and another firm of equally high character gave figures of the actual results of many parcels of different sorts of tea, which showed even more serious losses. And after making every allowance for extra wood, nails, &c., added after the Customs' weighing, no one who investigates the question, either from the ground of theoretic calculation, or of actual fact, can resist the conclusion that the fairness of Customs' tares is not secured by the present method of determining them, and that the withdrawal of the 1 lb. draft by the merchant would cause a certain and serious loss to the whole retail trade. It must, moreover, be remembered that the conditions of sale in the tea trade are framed almost exclusively in the interest of the merchant, and constant small losses, arising from errors in weighing, damage undetected on inspection, excessive sampling, and numerous other causes, have been submitted to under the consideration that this 1 lb. draft was a convenient average compensation, and only those who, as wholesale dealers in London, have large connections throughout the country, know how frequently this plea has to be used, and how seldom it appears to be a sufficient compensation. Surely the merchants of the City of London will recognise the commercial soundness and the equity of the principle that any conditions of trade which are based upon a system of average should lean in favour of the dealer, who has ultimately to bear the burden of all these contingencies, and whose trade is frequently on too limited a scale to permit the proper operation of an average principle. It is on this basis that the conditions of sale of all the leading articles of imported produce have been framed. Immemorial usage, universal custom, and the highest commercial authorities, attest the good foundation of this allowance of draft; and it is even embodied by the rule of tare and tret in the arithmetical instructions of all our schools. It is thus a matter of more than merely local importance that it should be sustained; if withdrawn in the case of tea, every other commodity must follow, to the very serious disturbance of the whole retail trade of the country, and the probable downfall of many honourable and hardworking tradesmen."

The Austrian Lloyd's steamship Apis has brought on her present voyage from Bombay to Trieste, by the Suez Canal route, a cargo of 5,243 bales of cotton, of which 1,920 bales are destined for Trieste, 428 for Genoa, 125 for Marseilles, and 20 for Odessa. In addition, 730 bales of cotton for Liverpool were brought as far as Port Said, and there transhipped into other steamers for England. By permitting their steamers to take goods for other ports than Trieste, the Austrian Lloyd's anticipate that full cargoes will generally be secured for the longer portion of the homeward voyage, and that the threatened competition of a Russian line between Odessa and Bombay may be prevented.

The trade and navigation accounts issued on Friday show that the imports during the month of April were of the computed value of £24,202,817, being a considerable increase on 1869 and the previous year. The total for the four months ended the 30th of April was £73,146,806. The exports during the month of May were valued at £16,786,940, and the total for the five months was £79,801,184, being an increase of more than £5,000,000 on the exports in the corresponding period of last year, and nearly £10,000,000 more than in 1868.

The petition to wind up the European Assurance Company has been dismissed by the Vice-Chancellor on the ground that the petitioner, a large shareholder, had not paid the calls due upon his shares. It was intimated that an appeal to the House of Lords from the Vice-Chancellor's decision would be made.

A meeting of the Ceylon Company will be held on the 12th to confirm the resolution passed on 21st June, altering the 16th and 17th clauses Articles of Association, which are to stand as follows:—

"16. Any difference may be made between the members, both as regards amount and time in the payment of any contribution to capital to be made by them upon their respective shares.

"17. Payments by any member by way of contribution to capital in respect of his shares may be appropriated to any one or more of such shares in such manner as may be agreed upon between him and the directors."

The report of the Assam Company, presented on the 27th ult., describes a further great improvement in the affairs of the company, and recommends a dividend of 3½ per cent., making, with the interim payment of 2½ per cent. a total of 6 per cent. for the year.

The anticipated effects of the transit of teas through the Suez Canal are not looked upon with favour by the importers. The weight of tea arriving on the market in the early part of the season must have a bad effect, and tend to accumulate stocks. The demand from Russia, which has often supported the market, will also be missed this season.

A circular issued by Messrs. Ledward, Greenshields, and Co., Liverpool, announces the establishment of that firm, and that a corresponding firm will be opened in Singapore by Mr. J.J. Greenshields, late of Messrs. Guthrie and Co., under the style of Greenshields, Ledward, and Co.

The following vessels have passed through the Suez Canal since the 25th ult.:—the French steamer Afrique, the English steamers Collingwood, Alice, Albatross, Waverley, Mauritius; also the French transports Paris and Sarthe.

SILK CROP IN FRANCE—JAPANESE EGGS.

M. Ovidè Jouanin, whose name is well known in connection with silk, gives an account of the French crop which, if not overstated, is very serious; he declares that, in spite of some statements to the contrary, the silk crop which is just completed is one of the worst ever known. He says that the Japan annuals have not succeeded quite so well as last year, and not nearly so well as during the first three years of their importation—the malady has attacked them to a certain extent; the Japan Vivoltius have generally produced a large number of cocoons, but many of them double, which many winders will only buy at ridiculously low prices; the Portuguese eggs alone have upheld their reputation to the full; some few have failed, but the greater part have succeeded. The trials with Manchourie eggs have given contradictory results, and the experiment is, therefore, inconclusive. Some of the reproduced Japanese worms have succeeded, but the mass has failed, and the same is asserted of those eggs which were selected by means of the microscope, on M. Oasteur's system. M. Jouanin's conclusion is that the Japanese Vivoltius are not to be trusted, and that breeders should look principally to Japanese eggs from the north, which are yet healthy, and to Portuguese, for their chief supply; but he recommends careful further trial of the Manchourie races, which give fine yellow cocoons. The Comte de Vératry, deputy, put a question to the Minister of Agriculture and Commerce in the Chamber, a day or two since, which has caused some uneasiness; he asked whether it were true that the Japanese Government had prohibited the exportation of more than a million cards of eggs; the reply of the Minister was that the subject was now in negotiation, and that therefore he could not give any further reply for the moment.

Several Prefects of Southern Departments have received the following circular from the Minister of Agriculture and Commerce:—

"I have been made acquainted with the rumour, attributing to the Japanese Government the intention of restricting the number of silkworm cartons which it permits to be exported during the approaching season, to one million. I must emphatically call your attention to the gravity of this fact. As Italian purchases absorb three-fourths of this quantity, the resources available to France in Japan would be, in this case, reduced to 250,000 cartons—that is, to one-third of her average imports in this article. You may foresee what would be the consequences of such an eventuality. If our raisers should find themselves short of supplies next year, the silk manufacturers, already so severely tried, would suffer from a dearth of primary material, and a consequent rise in its price. I have begged my colleague at the head of the Foreign-office to take, through the French Minister in Japan, the necessary steps to induce the Mikado to avert so regretable a measure. At the same time, M. le Préfet, it would be well to make this circumstance known to such persons within your department as may be interested therein. Moreover, it would be useful to recommend that they themselves should prepare a part of the stock of seed which they will require for the raisings of the approaching season, according to former custom. You will be so good as to give all desirable publicity to this circular. Finally, I most especially urge you to adopt whatever measures you may deem expedient to guard the silk trade from the dangers that may menace it."

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

There is again no improvement to report in the market, business during the interval having been principally confined to the public auctions, which have contained sufficient quantities to supply the immediate requirements of the trade, who have paid less attention than usual to the article, being still much occupied with the subject of the draft. Prices of all kinds have given way, but the principal decline has been a further serious one in all low qualities, which now rule below the cost of production. Red-leaf Congous: Siftings have sold from 5d. to 6d. per lb., being ½d. per lb. lower. Broken-leaf kinds have also sold at a similar reduction. Fair to good common show but little alteration, though more difficult of sale at the quotations. Fair to good flavory kinds remain heavy. Good to fine Kaisows have only been saleable in small parcels at a further decline. In finest there are but few left on the market. Pak Lin kinds at public sale sold rather lower. Black-leaf kinds: Low qualities continue much depressed, and have given way a further 1d. per lb. Common kinds, from 9d. to 10d. per lb. show a reduction of ½d. to 1d. per lb. Good common have also sold rather easier, likewise fair qualities from 11½d. to 1s. 1½d. In good to fine few transaction have taken place. In finest there are only small parcels offering. Amoy kinds at 8d. to 9d. per lb. show no alteration. In new make Canton kinds, old season's have been dull at ½d. to 1d. per lb. lower prices. Further parcels of new season's, arrived overland, have been sold; one parcel at public auction from 1s. 10d. to 2s. 3d.; two others by private contract, prices of which have not transpired. Oolongs show no alteration. Souchongs continue difficult of sale. Scented Teas: Fair common Canton Capers from 6½d. to 7½d. per lb., and Orange Pekoes from 7½d. to 9d. per lb., show a decline of 1d. per lb. Good to fine Canton Capers are in fair demand at former prices. Foochow Capers show no change. Canton Orange Pekoes of fair to good kinds remain difficult to move; some fair quality has been sold at 10¾d. to 11d. per lb., being 1d. per lb. lower. Foochow kinds, common to fair, have been heavy, but there has been a limited inquiry for good to fine at about previous rates. Uncoloured Japans remain as before. Green Teas: The market continues much depressed. All the common to medium kinds are selling at very low prices, those at public auction being very irregular. Finer grades, being comparatively scarce, are better supported. Canton-made kinds show no improvement, either in demand or price.

The following is from Messrs. Shepard, Harrison and Rehden's Circular:—There has been the same determination on the part of importers to be making sales, as noticed in our report of 15th ult., and public auctions of Teas without reserve have been held without intermission the past fortnight, resulting in still lower prices; instances of exceptionally low sales have transpired (a chop of fair common Congou, ex Fontenaye, selling at 5¾d. to 6d. per lb.), from which a recovery up to 2d. per lb. has since taken place. The agitation relative to the 1 lb. draft has been intensified by memorials from all parts of the country, and has led to the further postponement of the question to July 18, when we trust there may be some settlement; otherwise, it will most certainly prejudice sales from first hands the coming season. Telegrams from Shanghai, via Kiachta, extend to June 7, and report heavy stocks, and the equivalent of 2s. to 2s. 3d. per lb. asked for the finest Congous. At Hankow, one steamer had sailed for London, and three were loading; settlements reported at 70,000 chests, at prices ranging up to 2s. 7d. per lb. For export to the Continent but few transactions have taken place; to Canada a few orders have come to hand, for Souchong and uncoloured Japan leaf, but at low limits.

Messrs. Kinnear, Hawes, and Hertz report that—"Nothing very striking has happened on our market during the past fortnight. The large public sales of the 21st ult. passed off heavily, lower prices ruling for most descriptions, the attention of the trade at the time being, we think, too much engaged with the "draft" question to allow of the samples being properly valued."

SILK.

The market continues extremely quiet in all its branches, and there are hardly any transactions to report. Tsatlees keep firm, owing to scarcity, but there is very little now doing even in this Silk. Taysaams and Hainins are decidedly easier, but without inducing business. For Canton Silk there is small inquiry at 20s. for good ordinary Tsatlee reel, but the common kinds are still unsaleable. Japan Silk shares fully in the general dulness. The telegrams received this week from Shanghai have had no material effect upon prices on this side, but the opening rates for Silk in the new season are beyond all question excessive, and can hardly be expected to find an equivalent on this market. The deliveries in June have been satisfactory, viz.: China, 3,519 bales; Japan, 652 bales; total, 4,171 bales.

COFFEE.

The improving tendency reported in our last has been fully borne out, being strengthened by the favourable result of the Dutch sale of Java, and considerable sales have again been effected. Plantation Ceylon has attracted the most attention, and has been taken in large quantities at 6d. per cwt. advance. For Native there has also been some inquiry, and the larger proportion of the parcels offered have been taken at improved prices. In other East India the business has been confined to Singapore, of which 172 bags Bonthyne sold—sound at 59s., sea-damaged at 52s. to 58s.; and 252 bags pale at 53s. per cwt.

SUGAR.

Although little decided alteration can be reported in prices, the tendency is still downward for both common and good qualities. An extremely dull tone has pervaded the market throughout the interval, and with scarcely any disposition to buy on previous terms; sales are of small amount, and easier rates have in some cases been accepted. In East India descriptions the business has been extremely small. Of Manila no offers have been made at the public sales; privately 50 tons unclayed Zebu realised 20s. Of Penang 266 bags sold at auction good to fine brown at 26s. to 27s. 6d.; 422 baskets common date kind (duty 4s.) being bought in at 19s. These transactions constitute the sole business of the fortnight.

COIR GOODS.—The auctions since our last report have been very heavy. The demand for Yarn has, however, somewhat improved, and in some cases rather higher prices have been obtained; 279 tons 4,068 bales Yarns mostly sold—low red Coconada at £8 5s.; Ceylon, ordinary to superior, at £19 to £65; Cochin, low to superior, £15 5s. to £53. Of Fibre, 10 tons 1,915 bales sold—Ceylon at £16 10s.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—Privately there has been somewhat less inquiry for Ceylon, and the business has been small at 38s. 6d. At public sale 276 casks Ceylon were offered, of which a portion only sold at 38s. 6d. to 38s. 9d. per cwt. The quantity of Ceylon afloat for the United Kingdom is estimated at 2,620 tons, against 2,882 tons last year, and 18,167 tons in 1868; to the Continent, 5,476 tons, against 750 tons last year.

CAMPHOR.—There is some pressure to sell, and small transactions are reported at 80s. for China, and 82s. 6d. for Japan. The sales of next week will include 504 cases of China of new import.

CARDAMOMS.—Of 55 bags Ceylon offered, 31 bags sold at 3s. to 3s. 4d.; middling, slightly mouldy, at 2s. 6d.; ordinary ditto, at 1s. 9d., one lot seeds at 5s. 6d.

CANTHARIDES.—An offer of three cases China was bought in at 1s. 3d.

CUTCH.—The market continues very quiet, and prices are again lower; 189 cases and 986 boxes were offered, of which part sold at 21s. 6d. to 22s.

CINNAMON.—The market is rather quiet, especially for common descriptions. The auctions have embraced 405 bales, chiefly common and middling kinds, nearly being all retired. Chips: 689 bags coarse barky quality, but part of good flavour, were all sold at 2d. to 2¼d. per lb.

DRAGON'S BLOOD.—There is a steady market; of 15 cases at the public sales, about two-thirds sold at £5 12s. 6d. to £5 15s. per cwt. for medium to fair lump.

EBONY.—There have been no public sales; privately fine figured wood is in active demand, and commands high prices.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Cinnamon: Scarce, and wanted; 1 case at sale retired. Citronelle: A shade better, though not quotably; 169 cases at auction mostly sold at 2d. to 2¼d. per oz. Lemon Grass is dull and lower; 50 cases mostly sold at sale at 2⅝d. to 2¾d. per oz. Aniseed continues very flat; sellers at 8s. 3d.; 5 cases at auction retired. Cassia: Dull; sellers at 4s. 6d., and only moderate trade thereat. Nutmeg: No change.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Siam continues inactive; Sumatra is unchanged, and of 283 cases at auction one-third sold at £7 10s. to £8 per cwt. for middling 2nds, and 76s. to 77s. 4ths, rather wet. Copal: Steady; 90 bags Borneo sold at public sale at 33s. to 35s. per cwt. for hard-coated pale, a little drossy. Damar lower, with large arrivals; 100 cases Batavia, 212 cases Singapore, and 114 packages Ceylon at auction were all retired, with the exception of a few of the latter, very inferior, which brought 5s. to 9s. per cwt. Gamboge: Lower and inactive; of 24 cases at auction a very few sold at £16 12s. 6d. per cwt. for good pipe.

GAMBIER.—The market continues very dull; the offers have comprised 200 bales Block, 489 bales pressed Cubes, and 305 baskets and 130 mats free Cubes, of which the last named parcel only was sold, realising 19s. per cwt.

GALLS.—The dull tone of the market still continues, no private sale, have been effected, and for 322 cases China offered at the auctions there were no bids and the whole was withdrawn.

HEMP.—The business in Manila during the interval has again been limited in extent, but previous prices have been steadily maintained, the market being firm throughout; privately about 400 bales have sold at £53 10s. to £55 10s. for fair to good roping, and 500 bales fair at £55 for delivering at the end of the year; at auction about 1,600 bales have been offered, and 600 bales sold at corresponding rates to those obtained privately.

HORNS.—The market is steady and prices are firm; 12 tons Siam Buffalo sold at public auction at 41s. to 45s. per cwt. for large Horns of fair quality averaging about 3 lbs. each.

HIDES.—The last sales went off very flatly, and only about half the quantity of East India Hides offered were sold. The best descriptions were in moderate demand at about ¼d. per lb. decline, whilst ordinary and inferior were most difficult to sell at a reduction of ¼d. to ½d. per lb. Buffalo were in very limited demand, and a large portion was taken in. 15,999 Dry Singapore and Penang Ox and Cow Hides offered, 10,826 sold—Light, 7¾d. to 8½d.; Heavy, 7d.; Extra Heavy, 6½d. to 6¾d.; Small, 8d. to 8¼.; Calf, 7½d. to 8¼d.; Thirds, 5d. to 5¾d.; Fourths, 4¼d.; Brined, Best, 10¾d.; Seconds, 8¼d.; Heavy, 7¾d.; Extra Heavy, 6¼d. per lb. 2,904 Ceylon Hides offered, 388 sold—Thirds, 4½d.; Buffalo, 5½d. per lb. 6,292 Singapore and Penang Buffalo Hides offered, 1,370 sold—Prime Slaughtered, av. 45¾d. lb. 6¾d.; Ordinary to Good, Best Heavy, 5½d.; Seconds, 4½d.; Thirds, 4d.; Light, 5½d. to 6½d. per lb. 456 Buffalo Hides offered—none sold.

ISINGLASS.—The market is firm at former prices; at the public sales 15 cases 5 bags Penang chiefly sold, middling to good middling tongue at 3s. 4d. to 3s. 6d., ordinary at 3s., leaf at 3s. 4d. to 3s. 9d.; 3 cases Manila sold, middling at 1s. 8d., low at 9d.

INDIA-RUBBER.—There is a slightly quieter tone prevailing; 112 baskets very inferior Singapore at auction were retired; 267 bags Assam ball and slab sold at 1s. to 1s. 3d. for ordinary foul to middling fair; Borneo is still scarce and wanted at 1s. 8d. per lb.

JAPAN WAX.—The market continues quiet, but holders are firm and maintain former prices; a few sales only have been effected at 72s. 6d. to 73s. 6d. per cwt. for good quality in block, the larger portion of the offers having been bought in.

MUSK.—A newly arrived parcel consisting of 33 caddies Tonquin Pod sold very well: fair selected pod, part damp (3s. higher) at 29s. 6d. to 35s. 6d.; rough and bally at 17s. to 18s. 6d.; very false packed at 2s. 6d. to 7s. 6d.; 4 tins fair grain realised 50s.

Digitized by Google

PEPPER.—Black has slightly improved, and several hundred bags Singapore have been disposed of at 5¼d. per lb.; also about 1,400 bags Penang, at 4 13-14d. to 4¾d. on the spot, and several parcels for arrival at the former figure; of 1,457 bags at auction, a portion was sold at 5¼d. White is rather quiet, although a moderate trade has been transacted privately at 6⅜d. per lb.; 930 bags Singapore at auction sold at 6⅜d. to 6½d. per lb.; and 173 bags Penang at 6⅜d. to 6½d. for fair rather dull.

PLUMBAGO.—The dulness recently prevailing continues, and a further decline has taken place; or 1,738 barrels Ceylon at public sale, one-third sold at 14s. for fair lump; 8s. to 9s. 3d. for middling chips; and 6s. 3d. to 7s. 6d. for middling to good dust.

PRESERVES.—Of 500 cases China Ginger, offered, 200 cases sold at 6½d., one lot at 6⅝d.

RHUBARB.—The market for China is quiet as usual at this time of the year, and previous valuations are barely obtained. Of 98 cases in auction, only half sold—fair fracture, but dull wormy, root, at 3s. 1d. to 3s. 5d.; rather rough, good colour, at 1s. 6d.; very wormy being withdrawn at 1s. 6d. per lb.

ROOTS.—Colombo is quiet; and of 100 packages brought to auction a few only sold at 38s. per cwt. Galangal continues inactive; there have been no public sales, and the private trade is very limited.

RATTANS.—No transactions are reported.

RICE.—Up to the 29th ult. there was an animated demand for all kinds, and large sales were effected, both on the spot and afloat, at an advance of 9d. on Bengal—which had previously been the most depressed—and of 3d. on soft grain kinds. The sales were as follow:—In auction, of 12,401 bags old Rangoon, 10,000 bags fair, at 9s. 6d.; 1,778 bags Necransie, low quality, at 7s. 9d.; 2,050 bags new white Bengal, fine pearly, 13s. 6d.; good, 12s. 6d. to 12s. 9d.; 700 bags old Ballam at 8s. 6d.; two lots 8s. to 8s. 3d., and 200 bags common Rangoon at 9s. Privately, 700 bags Ballam, at 9s. 6d.; 10,000 bags Rangoon, ordinary to fine, at 9s. to 10s. 6d.; 5,000 mats field Siam, at 8s. 3d., landed terms; and 8,000 mats garden do., at 8s. 6d., quay terms. Since the 29th the market for soft grain has presented a less active appearance, and in auction 4,090 bags white Bengal offered were bought in, fine new at 13s. 3d. to 13s. 6d., good 12s. 6d., middling 11s.; also 9,250 bags old Rangoon at 10s. 6d., but since the sale 1,400 bags good have been sold at 12s. 3d. In floating cargoes a considerable business has been done, and the following sales are reported:—Three cargoes Rangoon, the Adolph, 700 tons, off coast, at 9s. 9d., without guarantee; the Malta, 800 tons, ditto, at 9s. 9d., guaranteed; the Rothsay, 1,800 tons, May sailing, at 10s. Five Necransie, the Norge, 770 tons, April sailing, at 10s.; the Seaforth, 1,800 tons, April sailing, also at 10s.; Indien, 800 tons, at 10s. 3d., open charter, between Bordeaux and Copenhagen; the Koladine, 1,450 tons, March sailing, at 10s. 1½d.; and the Sapphire, 1,800 tons, price not reported. Two Bassein, the Napoleon, 1,500 tons, April sailing, at 9s. 10½d.; and the Carl XV., 520 tons, early April, at 10s. 1½d. One Siam, the George Croshaw, 950 tons field, in mats, arrived off coast at 8s., ex ship, or 8s. 6d. landed.

STICKLAC.—There is a small business doing privately at former prices.

SAPANWOOD.—The market is very dull; at the public sales 88 tons Manila and 14 tons Ceylon were offered and withdrawn; 17 tons Bangkok very good quality realised £7, and 74 tons other Siam common rough weather damaged and poor to very good £4 10s. to £8 per ton.

TAPIOCA—Meets with only limited inquiry; the auctions have embraced the following—746 bags Pearl half sold at 21s. to 22s. 6d. per cwt. for bullets and 23s. to 25s. good to fine small; 847 bags Singapore of which part sold at 2¼d. per lb. for fair bold; 191 bags Penang all retired.

TIN.—The market for Straits has been quiet throughout the interval, and prices are lower than those of last mail; the current quotations are £133 to £133 15s. on the spot, and £130 to £132 afloat. Banca is also 10s. lower, being quoted.

TURMERIC.—There is no China on offer; Java is dull at 16s. to 17s. 6d. per cwt.

VERMILION.—Of China 10 boxes were offered at auction and bought in at 3s. 3d. per lb., with 3s. bid.

SPICES.—Cassia Lignea: Prices are lower, there being sellers of unsorted for arrival at about 104s. to 105s. per cwt.; private transactions on the spot are of small consequence; of 602 boxes at auction, part direct and part indirect import, a few of the former only sold at 108s. per cwt. for good unsorted pile. Cloves: Steady; auctions have embraced 15 cases Amboyna, retired, and 3 cases Penang of good quality sold at 1s. 1½d. per lb. Mace: Prices are steady; 15 cases at auction mostly sold at 3s. to 3s. 2d. per lb., for good fair to good palish and reddish. Nutmegs: Firm; 7 cases Penang at auction sold, 74 to the lb., at 2s. 11d., 85's at 2s. 5d. 5 cases Padang were retired, 16 cases Dutch Limed 96 to lb. brought 2s.

SHELLS.—Mother-o'-Pearl: Although there is a good inquiry, no transactions are reported; the stock here is very small, and there are no advices of any parcels afloat. Other Shells: No business has transpired.

SAGO.—The market continues steady; 560 boxes 2,214 bags at auction were mostly sold at 17s. to 18s. 6d. per cwt. for middling to good small, 21s. to 22s. 6d. good medium, and 22s. 6d. to 23s. fair large. Flour: No change, but rather dull.

SOY.—There is still a dull tone apparent; of 205 casks China at the auctions 75 casks sold without reserve at 2s. 2d. to 2s. 4d. per gallon for medium quality; privately a few parcels good have realised 2s. 6d.

STAR ANISEEDS are firm and scarce; there are sellers at £5 10s., but no buyers at that figure; 27 cases were offered at public sale and withdrawn.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

TEA.

The tone of the market is quiet, the business being limited in extent; prices for good qualities are fairly steady, but for inferior grades, of which there is a large supply on offer, the rates are irregular, and in many cases lower. The agitation in Congress for a reduction of duty from 25 to 15 cents per lb. seriously interferes with business. The only sales reported are 3,300 half-chests Green, per Good Hope; 900 half-chests, per Harlaw; 750 half-chests, vessel not named; and 1,500 half-chests Oolongs, per Springfield.

The following are the current quotations:—Hyson; Common to fair 65c. to 75c.; superior to fine, 80c. to 95c.; extra fine to finest, $1.05 to $1.30. Young Hyson: Canton made, nominal; common to fair, 65c. to 75c.; superior to fine, 85c. to $1.10; extra fine to finest, $1.25 to $1.60. Gunpowder and Imperial: Canton made, nominal; common to fair, 75c. to 90c.; superior to fine, $1.05 to $1.30; extra fine to finest, $1.40 to $1.75. Hyson Skin and Twankay: Canton made, nominal; common to fair, 18c. to 63c.; superior to fine, 65c. to 68c.; extra fine to finest, 70c. to 75c. Uncoloured Japan: Common to fair, 73c. to 78c.; superior to fine, 80c. to 90c.; extra fine to finest, 95c. to $1.15. Oolong: Common to fair, 60c. to 70c.; superior to fine, 75c. to 95c.; extra fine to finest, $1.05 to $1.40. Souchong and Congou: Common to fair, 60c. to 70c.; superior to fine, 75c. to 90c.; extra fine to finest, $1 to $1.30.

COFFEE.—The market for Brazil exhibits no change; East India descriptions are still dull at former prices, viz.—Java 21½c. to 22c.; Singapore, 18c. to 19c.; Manila, 16c. to 17c.; Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19c. gold. The only sales have been 250 bags Native Ceylon at the current rates, and 1,160 mats Singapore, per George Green (sold before arrival), on private terms. The stock of Manila on the 1st June was estimated at 1,700 bags, against 6,769 bags on June 1, 1869; of Java (Government), at 850 bags, against 2,235 bags; of Java mats, 35,918, against 41,808 bags; of Ceylon, 9,157 bags, against 1,500 bags; of Singapore 1,000 bags, against nil.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 20c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2; Cassia, $1.25 gold.

FIRE CRACKERS.—The upward tendency continues being strengthened by the reduction of the stock to 7,000 boxes. Shortly after our last report sales were made of 5,500 boxes, Extra No. 1 at $3.25 to $3.40; and of 1,500 boxes on private terms; but subsequently 900 boxes realised $3.50 cash, and at this quotation the market closes with a firm tone.

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 4½c. gold (duty paid); stock small.

HEMP.—The market for Manila continues quiet, there having been no transactions; the nominal quotation is still 14c. to 14½c. gold. The stock of Manila on the 1st June was estimated at 11,613 bales, against 2,802 bales at the corresponding date of 1869, and 17,664 bales in 1868. The imports into the United States from the 1st January to the 31st May, 1870, were 51,472 bales, against 52,397 bales during the corresponding period of last year, and the quantity afloat on the 31st May was 45,074 bales, against 34,285 bales at the same date last year.

INDIGO.—The market is again without alteration, being quiet, but steady; the sales amount to about 30 cases, in small lots, at $1.20 to $1.30 currency.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $8 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is $1 to 2.25 currency (duty paid).

RICE.—There is less activity in the market, the trade buying only for immediate requirements: prices are, however, without change; the sales are 3,000 bags Rangoon for home consumption at $7 to 7.12½ currency, and 1,375 bags for export at $3 to 3.25 gold (in bond).

SPICES.—The business has been restricted, owing to the agitation with reference to the duties; the sales have been—60 cases Nutmegs at $1.10, and 800 bags Pepper at 26½c. to 27c. gold. Several invoices of Pepper, Nutmegs, &c., have arrived from Singapore, most of which were sold and reported before arrival.

TIN.—There is a fair business doing in Straits, and the recent advance is sustained; 750 slabs on the spot have realised 38c. gold, and 100 slabs on the spot, and 500 to arrive have been sold on private terms. Banca is offered on the spot at 43c. and afloat at 40c. (gold) without finding buyers.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE.—We are without sales of importance to record, importers not being disposed to press sales, and demanding extreme rates. Best Greens are held at 19c. and upwards; O. G. Java, 23c.; Ceylon, 21c.

CORDAGE.—Imports from Jan. 1 to June 1: 6,761 coils, 2,442 packages, 33 bales. We have no change to record; prices steady, say 18½c. to 20c. for San Francisco-laid Manila; Manila imports sell for less.

CHINA MATTING.—Imports from Jan. 1 to June 1: 77 bales, 3,406 rolls. In the absence of reported sales, former quotations are maintained.

RICE.—Imports from Jan. 1 to June 1: China, 5,863,492 lbs., 61,747 mats. The market for all descriptions continues unmoved; stocks are free. We quote China 6c. to 6½c.; extra No. 1, 6⅞c.

TEA.—Imports from Jan. 1 to June 1: China, 169,803 lbs., 1,824 packages; Japan, 448,000 lbs., 2,428 packages; China and Japan, 3,643 packages. There continues a good demand for Japans, at steady prices. In the absence of any considerable purchases we quote Japans, in lacquered boxes, 73c. to 85c.; the same in bulk, 60c. to 70c.; common Greens, 45c. to 50c.; Oolongs, 55c. to $1, the latter for "Comet;" extra choice do., $1 25c. in jobbing lots.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—June 13, at New York, from Shanghai and Singapore, Etha Rickmers; 14, from Foochow, Avon; from Padang, Auburn; 14, at Boston, from Manila, Peruvian; 16, at San Francisco, from Yokohama, Success; 17, at Boston, from Java, Herald.

DEPARTURES.—June 11, from San Francisco, for Hong Kong, Guiding Star.

LOADING.—At New York, for Batavia, Franklin; for Shanghai, Homer.

ABSTRACT OF THE REPORT OF THE BOARD OF CONTROL ON THE OPERATIONS OF THE BANK DURING 1869.

The business and connections of the Bank have been progressing satisfactorily, though the result of the Bank's operations shows a diminished amount of profit as compared with that of last year, the gross profit being *f.*588,981.91½, against *f.*741,215.91½ in 1868.

The commercial disasters of the last two years have made it very difficult in Java to employ funds in sound banking investments. The rate of discount has been generally very low, averaging 5 per cent., against 7½ per cent. in 1868, and the Bank's discount business therefore shows a less profit of nearly *f.*60,000. The adverse state of the exchange between Java and Europe has made the Bank's operations unsuccessful, instead of leaving a profit of some *f.*70,000, as in 1868. The loss of *f.*31,840.12½ with which this year's exchange account closes might have been less, had it not been found more than necessary to abandon the prevailing system in the Java exchange-market of buying bills without securities. According to the instructions from the Directors, the Bank's Agent at Batavia had to remit only credit-bills, document-bills, or bank-bills, and the price he had to pay for the same was of course less advantageous than would have been the case in buying bills not drawn under confirmed credits or not provided with the documents relating to the shipments against which they had been drawn.

On account of the Bank's exchange operations the year 1869 may be considered as a year of trial; in a pecuniary respect the profit has been none, but much has been done to bring the exchange business on a better and more solid footing, and the Directors feel confident that the time is not far off that the Bank will reap the healthy fruits of the measures they have taken.

The home demand for advances on Dutch Piece-goods exported to the East has been fast increasing, the amounts granted being:—

*f.*4,003,153.78 on exports to Java,
52,195.43 on exports to India.
117,300.56 on exports to China.
196,632.22 on exports to Japan.

Advances on shipments of produce from Java to Holland were only asked for on rather a limited scale; but on the contrary a considerable amount of produce was consigned by the Batavia agency to Holland for account of different parties, the sales effected in 1869 by the Directors consisting of 60,600 piculs sugar, 5,180 bags coffee, 8,577 chests tea; besides rattans, rice, tobacco, indigo, arrack, and spices. The value of the cargoes still afloat on 31st December amounts to *f.*900,000.

The Bank's agencies in Java receive deposits for fixed periods, the total amount of which was on 31st December *f.*1,037,250.61, against *f.*527,434.02 in 1868, and *f.*391,041.80 in 1867.

The most prominent features of the year 1869 have been the difficulties in which the Bank was involved by the failure of Morgan Melbourn and Co., and the stoppage of Von Hemert and Co., at Batavia. In both firms the Bank was interested for rather large amounts, not without the necessary securities, however, on account of which the Bank was involved in six different lawsuits. Already five of these lawsuits have been decided in favour of the Bank, and the Directors therefore have the satisfaction of stating that these two commercial disasters, which at one moment seemed to threaten in a very serious manner the interests of the Bank, will ultimately occasion a total loss not exceeding *f.*85,262.89, which sum has been written off from the profit and loss account of 1869.

After making provision for some other bad and doubtful debts, and for the general expenses of management in Holland and India, the profit and loss account shows a net profit of *f.*255,248.17½, of which a sum of *f.*252,000 will be divided amongst the shareholders, being *f.*10.50 per Share of *f.*250, or 4 1-5th per Cent., on the paid-up Capital of Six Millions, the remaining *f.*3,248.17½ to be carried forward to profit and loss new account.

LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT OF MEAT.—Amsterdam Exhibition, 1869. First Prize, being above the Gold Medal. Supplied to the British, French, Prussian, Russian, Italian, Dutch, and other Governments. Dr. Lancaster writes regarding Extract of Meat:—"But there is a difference in flavour, and here, as in all other kinds of food, it is the flavour that makes the quality." It is essentially on account of the fine meaty flavour, as distinguished from the burnt taste of other Extracts, that LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT defeated all Australian and other sorts at Paris, Havre, and Amsterdam, and is so universally preferred in all European markets.

One pint of fine-flavoured Beef-tea at 2½d. Most convenient and economic "stock."

CAUTION.—Require Baron Liebig's, the inventor's, signature on every jar, and ask distinctly for LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—GOOD DIGESTION.—With the weather alarmingly changeable and foul miasms penetrating to the very sources of life, the skin will become inactive, and the digestion impaired, unless corrected by suitable means. Holloway's Pills are universally acknowledged to be the safest, speediest, and best corrective of indigestion. Loss of appetite, acidity, flatulency, and nausea are a few of the inconveniences which are remedied with ease by these purifying Pills. They strike at the root of all abdominal ailments; they excite in the stomach a proper secretion of gastric juice, and regulate the action of the liver, promoting in that organ a copious supply of pure, wholesome bile, absolutely necessary for digestion. These Pills remove all distension and obstruction.

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vessels of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds, superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

The DRY DOCK (opened in March, 1859) admits two vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with a depth of water ranging to 15½ feet. A second DRY DOCK of larger dimensions will shortly be completed, and available for the heaviest Steamers.

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMON and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon street, London, E.C.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT, VIA SAN FRANCISCO.)

May 22.

The Great Republic takes no less than eighty first-class passengers for the United States and Europe, including Colonel Fane and a party from India. This route is greatly increasing in favour, and a fortnightly service is inevitable.

An attempt is to be made by Mr. Cook, the boat-builder here, to launch the Ocean Queen from her snug billet on the sands, on the West Coast. Mr. Sepner, North German Consul for Nee-e-gata, has just made a trip overland, and he describes it as being the most enjoyable he ever made. He was under the Mountain of Asapina when it broke out afresh, and the shock in that district was so severe as to throw him from one side of the room to the other where he was sleeping. Sir Harry and party are still away n the country.

I have just finished hay-making, the first in Japan; and although on a small scale, I am sure that it will soon be taken up by the natives. Coal seems to be arriving from several quarters, and some is reported as very good. You may depend upon Japan giving the English coal trade a tremendous blow. Heavy losses will be made in rice, oil, and beans this year. American flagship leaving for home after arrival of mail.

Mr. Simpson, the Postmaster, has been suspended, and proceeds to England to report to the G. P. O.

NAGASAKI.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT VIA SAN FRANCISCO).

May 14.

My last, dated 2nd inst., was sent via Hong Kong and Marseilles; since then our regatta has been the chief topic of public interest. The event took place on Saturday, the 7th inst., and as the weather proved very fine the residents thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Seven entries were made for the sailing race, with the following result:—

	H.	M.
1. Chicken	1	33
2. Pangoffin	1	50
3. Flirt	1	50½
4. Alida	—
5. Tunnag	—
6. Flying Dutchman	—

Moive did not complete the course.

The corvette Nitsin, built in Holland for the Prince of Hizen, went out for her trial trip on the 12th inst. preparatory to her being handed over to his officers. In addition to the Japanese, she had a large party of foreigners on board, which included the following Consuls:—F. P. Tombrink, Esq. (Netherlands), W. P. Mangum, Esq. (U.S.), Leon Drury, Esq. (H.I.F.M.), Jose Loureiro, Esq. (H.M.F.M.), A. J. Bauduin Esq. (of the Netherlands Trading Society). She was duly transferred to the Japanese on the afternoon of the 13th inst., previous to which the corvette Nitsin saluted the Japanese ensign with twenty-one guns, which was acknowledged by the Hizen battery saluting the Dutch flag with a like number of guns. After these compliments were finished the Hizen flag at the main and Japanese ensign at the peak were hoisted

The movements of war vessels have been as follows:—Dupleix, H.I.F.M., from Yokohama and Hiogo; Coetlogan, for Yokohama; Aspes (gunboat), from China; Hertha (North-German), from Shanghai; Grasshopper, in port.

It has been the source of great satisfaction to this community to learn that the Mail and Native Christian questions are to be brought to the notice of Parliament. It is quite time something was done to put an end to an arrangement which is likely to lead to serious results now that steamers come through the Suez Canal, as goods will arrive here before the shipping documents, in which case they will be landed and stored at the risk and expense of the consignees, who of course will know nothing about their arrival. Another evil is that they will be uninsured against the risk of fire, and then comes the question who will pay the loss if they are burnt? Will the Postal authorities? The mails of 11th and 25th March are not yet to hand; I have not had the pleasure of seeing the above in print myself.

Mysore (French barque) is loading for Bordeaux on private account. No vessel loading for London.—Exchange the same—nominal.—Nebus 425 and 427, at which rate dollars are wanted. In imports and exports the market for those sent to Europe is in the most wretched state it is possible to be in, and in fact a report may be made in three words—nothing whatever doing.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

The dates are down to the 19th May. No later mail had been received from London than the 25th March. Telegrams via Kiachta reached to the 26th April. The following summary is from the North China Herald of May 19:—

The meeting of rate-payers has been the great object of interest. The second day's debate arose chiefly out of the Budget. The usual taxes, estimated to yield a revenue of Tls. 193,000, were passed; it was resolved to levy land tax in future on Chinese owners of land within the limits of the foreign settlement; one-half per cent. was added to the house-tax, both native and foreign, to replace the revenue until lately derived by the Council from the sale of night-soil, but which the large property-owners have now taken into their own hands. The other municipal rates—police and lighting—were lumped with this, and a general rate of 6 per cent. on foreign and 8 per cent. on Chinese tenants, substituted for the several broken items. The construction of various new roads, and the extension of others, was resolved on. The land tax on roads, which has been hitherto paid by the owners of property who first ceded the land, is to be shifted to the shoulders of the Council. The Council were instructed to negotiate with a view to freeing the Soochow Creek Bridge to Chinese, as well as to foreigners; and various minor points were agreed to. The questions of bund frontage and of water supply were only casually touched on. It was explained that it was the intension to constitute the Municipal Medical Officer an Officer of Health, and to add Tls. 500 to his honoraria. It was also resolved to collect wharfage dues, in future, direct from the Chinese, instead of accepting the Taotai's commutation, as it was found that H.E. made this an excuse to collect the following extravagant squeeze on goods when delivered from foreign godowns to Chinese shopkeepers in the settlement:—Grey Shirtings, per bale of 50 pieces, Shanghai Tls. 2.31; White Shirtings, per case of 50 pieces, Tls. 2.43; T-Cloths, per bale of 50 pieces, Tls. 1.62; Drills, per bale of 30 pieces, Tls. 1.72; do. do. of 15 pieces, Tls. 1.05; Figured Orleans, per case of 50 pieces, Tls. 5.75; Camlets, per bale of 10 pieces, Tls. 4.14; Long-Ells, per bale of 20 pieces, Tls. 3; Medium Cloth, per bale of 6 pieces, Tls. 2.76; Chintz, per case of 50 pieces, Tls. 1.87. Mr. Dixwell has been elected Chairman, and Mr. Reid vice-Chairman of the new Council.

A public meeting of the French Municipal Council was held on the 16th, to discuss and decide on the Budget for the ensuing year. The total income is estimated at Tls. 88,292, and the outlay at Tls. 84,891; leaving a surplus, on the 31st March next, of Tls. 3,401. Only one ratepayer was present, so the proceedings was not of an excited nature. The principal features of the new Budget are, a small vote for the repairs of the Si-ka-way road; appropriations of Tls. 1,000 for the formation of a vaccine hospital, Tls. 2,000 for the erection of four iron tanks, each to contain 75,000 gallons of water, for the use of the Fire Brigade, of Tls. 6,000 for repairs to the Bund and the projected collection of a "Commercial Tax" from Chinese merchants residing within the concession who, otherwise, it is estimated, pay a proportion of taxes very incommensurate with their income.

We hear that Mr. Gardner, of H.M. Consular service, who has lately returned from England, goes to Chinkiang to relieve Mr. Stronach, who goes home on leave. Mr. Margary, now acting interpreter at Shanghai, goes to Tamsui to relieve Mr. McClatchie, who comes to take Mr. Margary's place at Shanghai. It is difficult to know what other motive this exchange can have, than a wish to defeat the Government efforts at economy, by needless expenditure of passage money. Mr. Baber has lately gone to Changchow, near Swatow, to open a Consulate at that port.

Mr. Wm. Gamble, late Superintendent of the American Presbyterian Mission Press at this place, has just returned from Japan, and reports the successful establishment at Nagasaki, for the native authorities, of a type-foundry, for the production of Japanese, Chinese, and English fonts. They have also eagerly adopted the electrotype process, and introduced foreign presses; and propose to issue as their first work Medhurst's English-Chinese Dictionary, with explanations in their native kana character.

A correspondent writes:—It is high time the P. and O. Company spoke out as to what rate of freight they intend charging on silk this season, for, surely, few will continue quietly to go on paying Tls. 11 per bale, now that the days of the monopoly are ended.

The weather at Hankow has been seasonable, with the usual amount of rain falling. Water level of the Yangtsze twenty feet two inches; the previous week it was a foot higher. The following outside steamers will load for Great Britain and the Continent—viz.: Agamemnon, for England; Dioned, for Odessa and Trieste; P. and O. steamer China, for England; also Erl King, Oberon, and United Service (Diamond Line), all via Suez Canal.

HONG KONG.

The dates are now down to the 26th May. The French mail of the 14th April arrived out on the 24th May, with telegrams to the 7th May. The following items are from the Overland China Mail of the 26th May:—

The Caractacus, Captain Murray, from Saigon for Yokohama, struck on the Paracels on the 9th May. The crew after considerable hardships from the Chinese landed at Macao.

The Slaney was lost near the Caractacus.

The small steamer Bay, Captain Hide, of ninety-eight tons, from Hong Kong to Manila, was lost on the coast of Hinnan; the crew reached Macao safely. Mr. Findlay, the owner, was unfortunately lost.

Efforts are being made to raise cargo from the sunken ship Dunmail; it is expected that there will be litigation to decide the liabilities of consignees, &c. Captain Thompson, of the Dunmail, has been tried, and his certificate suspended for six months. The sentence is looked on generally as a lenient one.

H. M. S. Donegal left for home, with time-expired officers and men, on the 24th May. The Ellenborough, with invalids, left for Portsmouth on 22nd.

The Colonial Surgeon's report is a very satisfactory statement of the health of the island.

The following account shows the average amount of bank notes in circulation in Hong Kong during the month ending 30th April, 1870:—

	Average Amount.	Specie in Reserve.
Oriental Corporation	$313,579	$104,527

Mr. J. C. Whyte having resigned the appointment of Acting Judge of the Court of Summary Jurisdiction, his Excellency has been pleased to appoint the Hon. Julian Pauncefote to act as Judge of that Court during the absence on leave of the Hon. H. J. Ball. It is also notified that M. du Chesne's appointment of M. Dillon to take charge of the French Consulate during the absence of the former gentleman is recognised provisionally and until further notice.

The application of Mr. de Long, the U. S. Minister to Japan, to his government for an establishment and retinue similar to, and on the same scale as, that of the British Legation, and the remarkable coincidence of the almost simultaneous recommendation of our Foreign Secretary that the service of our Foreign Legations should be reduced and assimilated to the American system, naturally gives rise to thoughts and ideas as to the comparative merit of the two systems; which has worked the best, which has been the most economical, and how far may each be improved by a judicious "dovetailing" of the other? At present neither party appear satisfied with their own.

Mr. Hart left Foochow on the 13th May, for Formosa, in his new steamer, the Long-Feng. This vessel is one of three that were built in London especially for the Chinese revenue service, and was formerly called the Papita. She is fifty-nine tons register, fitted with Dudgeon's engines, has twin screws, and steams twelve knots.

We are glad to announce the re-opening of the Agra Bank at Shanghai, under the management of Mr. Maccall. This Bank is now in as strong a position as it was during its best days; and with the lesson of caution derived from its misfortune, will no doubt run in future a prosperous career.

A most extraordinary rumour has gained great currency among the Chinese at Pekin, and is mentioned in two of the Northern papers. It is stated that Sir Rutherford Alcock is to succeed Mr. Burlingame as head of the Chinese Embassy.

Much attention, says the Daily Press, has been directed to the official correspondence recently published on the subject of the Special Fund, or Gambling revenue. The fact that Governor MacDonnell's application of this money is not sanctioned by Earl Granville, and consequently involves the Colony in a debt of $129,000, is severely animadverted on, and the feeling with regard to H.E.'s finance is one of complete dissatisfaction.

"LOSS OF THE SLANEY."

The following account of the loss of the gunboat Slaney is from Admiral Kellet to the Admiralty, and is more detailed than in the local papers :—

H.M.S. Ocean, at Hong Kong, May 25.

"Sir,—I deeply regret to inform you that I have received intelligence of the wreck of Her Majesty's gunboat Slaney, on the 9th inst., at the Paracel Islands, Drummond Island Reef, and of the loss of all her crew except nine persons.

"Those saved are :—

"Mr. C. Milton, gunner.

"John Douglas, ship's cook.

"Thomas Owen, quartermaster.

"A corporal of Marines, name not known.

"A seaman, name not known.

"Four Chinese.

"The following is a list of the officers and crew who perished in attempting to swim ashore from the wreck :—

"Lieutenant W. F. L. Ellwyn.

"Mr. Robert S. Evatt, navigating sub-lieutenant.

"Mr. William F. Ryall, assistant surgeon.

"Mr. James Young, engineer in charge.

"Mr. Daniel Wishart, engineer.

"Mr. John Smith, assistant-engineer, first class.

"Edward G. Wells, chief gunner's mate.

"William G. Court, ship's steward.

"Alexander Todd, boatswain's mate.

"Benjamin Pink, quartermaster.

"Evan Jones, leading stoker.

"Joseph Jones, sick berth attendant.

"William H. Burgess, A.B.

"George Annerean, Thomas Warren, and David Ward, stokers.

"William Boxell, Harry Roberts, Patrick Hosey, George Brice, William Gear, Henry Ellington, Francis Burrows, William Pepin, and John E. Ventries, ordinary seamen.

"Samuel Boston, private R.M.L.I.

"And sixteen others, whose names I have not yet been able to ascertain. A Chinese servant, who was saved by clinging to the top of the cooking galley, and who found his way to Hong Kong, gives the following account of this disaster :—

"The Slaney left Singapore on the 14th of April for Hong Kong, and had light winds and calms until the 4th of May, when a strong breeze sprung up, which rapidly freshened into a gale of great violence—indeed, it is described as a typhoon. On Thursday, the 5th of May, the Slaney lost three of her boats. On the following day she was dismasted, and lost her last remaining boat. On Saturday her sails were blown away. Sunday appears to have been without further disaster; but at one o'clock on Monday morning, the 9th inst., the ship struck on the Paracel Islands, the bow being high and dry on a detached reef, the stern in deep water, and a heavy sea washing over the decks. On Tuesday, the 10th, twenty-four persons attempted to swim to an island, and on the following day twenty others left the ship in the same way. Of all these, among whom were many good swimmers, only two reached the land. The remaining seven who were saved were taken off the wreck by fishermen's boats.

"The instant the news reached me (at noon on the 23rd inst.) I despatched the Salamis and Adventure to the scene of the wreck to bring away the survivors, as well as to afford assistance to the crew of the ship Caractacus, which went on shore quite close to the Slaney during the same storm. They have not yet returned, and I am therefore compelled to forward this imperfect account of the matter by the mail which leaves to-day. Further particulars shall be sent by the first possible opportunity.

"This sad event has cast the deepest gloom over the large squadron assembled here. The number of officers and men to return to England in the Donegal would have been completed by the arrival of the Slaney, and this circumstance has touched all hearts with intense sympathy with the relations and friends of the deceased. Lieutenant Ellwyn, who commanded the Slaney, was a most amiable, excellent officer, and a thorough sailor. There can be no doubt that everything was done to save the ship which skill and courage could achieve. The Slaney was in a high state of discipline, and her crew were remarkably steady, well-behaved men."

MR. HARGREAVES IN BANKRUPTCY.

CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA AND CHINA v. WILLIAM HARGREAVES, SHANGHAI.

Mr. Robinson appeared for the petitioners. There was no agent in Court for the bankrupt. Mr. Robinson said that the petitioning creditor's debt, the trading, and act of bankruptcy, were duly sworn to; and the Court made the order for adjudication.

With reference to the time to be fixed for the first meeting of creditors, the Judge said he had spoken to several merchants, and their opinion was that enough time should be allowed the creditors in England, where such existed, to prepare for that meeting. He therefore, would appoint Monday, the 3rd day of October next, for such meeting. Leave was given the petitioning creditor to insert the advertisement in the London Gazette as required by the Act.

JAVA.

BATAVIA.

The works for the construction of the railway in the Samarang principalities have been stopped, because the cash of the company was totally exhausted. The Governor-General, however, assisted by the India Council, has resolved to advance to the company another f.175,000, in order that the works might be continued.

You will remember that the last inspection voyage of the Governor-General cost f.100,000 more than the sum which was destined for it. The Insulinde now asserts that the Government has, according to the order of the Minister of the Colonial Department, pensioned four high functionaries, who bought such an enormous quantity of all sorts of things for the reception of Mr. Myer that, when selling the remainder, after the departure of the Governor-General, this produced about f.45,000. The Batavian Handlesblad thinks that the news is not well founded.

The English steamer Vine arrived at Samarang, and was offered £4 10s. per ton, that is f.103 per last, to bring a full cargo of coffee from there to Holland, via Suez Canal. The captain, however, did not accept the offer, and started for Singapore.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this opportunity reach to June 3. The London mail of April 22 arrived out on May 24 with telegrams to the 17th. The opening of the Legislative Council on the 23rd, noticed in our last issue, was the only event of the fortnight.

The British steamer Morning, Captain Jayne, from Glasgow, April 17, via the Suez Canal, arrived here on May 30, having made the passage in forty-three days. Captain Jayne reports that the Ocean Company's steamer Priam passed through the Canal ahead of the Morning, and after getting into the Red Sea, meeting a strong head wind, the Priam took the lead. She may consequently be looked for hourly.

Commercial Report.

(For dates see First Page.)

STRAITS, JAVA, AND CHINA IMPORTS.

HIOGO AND OSAKA, MAY 17*.—All branches of the Import trade had been in a state of unexampled depression during the month. In most articles of foreign import no demand whatever existed, even at the lower rates quoted, whilst at the same time Exchange had gone against holders. It was believed that the Government Trade Department, which was in full operation, was obtaining control to a great extent over the business, to the great detriment of foreign interests. Grey Shirtings continued in very moderate demand at quotations. Cotton Yarn was in no demand, with the exception of a slight inquiry for 16-24, which had not led to any business. T-Cloths had been placed to a small extent at the prices given. Victoria Lawns were still saleable at a slight reduction upon previous rates. Turkey Red Cloth and Black Velvets were again lower, and quite neglected. Taffachelas was out of season. Camlets were in limited demand. Crape Lastings had been placed to a small extent. Mousselines de Laine found buyers at irregular rates, showing a decline upon all but very favourite patterns. Black Cloth entirely neglected. A few sales of Blankets were reported. Prices in dols. (108 rios equal to 1 dol.):—Cotton Yarn: Nos. 16 to 24, per bale, 148.14 to 150.0.0; 28 to 32, 148.14 to 152.77; 38 to 42, 166.66 to 171.94. Cotton Piece Goods: G.E. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs. 38½ yds. 39. in. per piece, 2.54; 8½ to 8½ lbs. 2.88; 9 lbs. 44 in. 3.0.0 to 3.12; G. E. White Shirtings, 2.54 to 3.12.; T-Cloths, 6 to 7 lbs., 2.08; Handkerchiefs, assorted, per dozen, 0.55 to 0.70; Brocades and Spots, White, per piece, 2.65 to 2.77; Ditto, Dyed, 2.65 to 3.24; Chintz, assorted, 24 yds. 30 in., 1.85 to 3.24; Turkey Red, 2.54 to 3.24; Turkey Red Cambrics, 3 lbs., 2.65 to 2.77; Velvets, Black, 7.87 to 8.10; Victoria Lawns, 1.26; Camlets, SS, Scarlet, 14.85.

YOKOHAMA, MAY 22*—There had been no improvement in the demand, and some holders, desirous of reducing their stocks, had accepted till lower prices for Grey Shirtings and Cotton Yarn, especially the latter. Beyond the transactions in these goods there had been hardly anything done Cotton and Woollen manufactures. The Rice market had remained weak, and fresh arrivals, coupled with an anxiety on the part of some holders to force sales, had caused a further decline in prices. Quotations—G. E. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs. $2.50 to 2.55 per piece; ditto, 8¼ to 8½ lbs., $2.77½ to 2.85; ditto, 9 to 9¾ lbs., $3 to 3.10; G. E. White Shirtings, $2.55 to 2.85; T-Cloths, 6 to 7 lbs., $1.90 to 2.25; Brocades and Spots, White, $2.90 to 3; do., dyed, $3.75 to 4; Chintz, Assorted, $2 to 2.50; Handkerchiefs, $0.65 to 1.10 per dozen; Turkey Red Shirtings, $2.95 to 3.00 per piece; Cotton Yarn, No. 16 to 24, $48.0 to 48.50 per picul; ditto, No. 28 to 32, $48.0 to 48.50; ditto, No. 38 to 42, $52 to 53; Alpaca, 42 yards, $7 to 8 per piece; Camlets, S and BBB, $13.50 to 14.50; ditto, SS, $13 to 13.50; do., SSS, $9.50 to 10.50; Lead, $5.75 to 6.75 per picul; Iron, Nail Rod, $2.70 to 3.60; Bars, $2.60 to 3.35; Hoop, $2.90 to 3.90.

SHANGHAI.—Dulness still characterised the market, but the lower range of prices had induced transactions in sundry Cotton and Woollen fabrics, which previously had been difficult to move. Grey Shirtings: 8¼ lbs. maintained former quotations, best chops attracting most notice. For lighter and heavier cloths there had been little enquiry, and few sales at lower prices. White Shirtings: Natives had been principal sellers, and their forced sales had caused a decline. T-Cloths: The market continued very irregular, and holders were willing sellers. A stronger feeling had, however, been manifested towards the close, and it was hoped that this fabric had seen its lowest point. Drills and Jeans: The very low rates ruling had led to a fair trade in both fabrics. Buyers confined their attention almost entirely to the best chops of English manufacture. Sheetings: A marked advance in value had been established. There was little or no American on offer, and the supply of English was diminishing. A small parcel of the latter placed at Tls. 3.37½, and holders firm for Tls. 3-50 per piece and upwards. Fancy Cottons had been difficult of sale. Woollens, Long Ells Assorted: A large sale of ordinary chop effected at Tls. 5.50 per piece, clearance within three months from date of sale. For immediate delivery there had been little done; quotations, with the exception of H H Scarlet, resold by Chinese at Tls. 5.95 per piece, were unchanged. The market for other kinds of Woollen Goods, had shown no indication of improvement. Quotations (duty paid):—G.E. Grey Shirtings, 38½ yards 39 in., 7 lbs., Tls. 1.9.5 to 2.0.2 per piece; 8¼ to 8½ lbs., Tls. 2.2.7 to 2.3.1; 9 lbs., Tls. 2.3.8 to 2.4.5; G.E. White Shirtings, Tls. 1.9.5 to 2.6.0; American Drills, Tls. 3.5.5 to 3.7.0; Jeans, Tls. 2.6.5 to 2.7.0; English Drills, Tls. 3.3.0 to 3.4.0; Jeans, Tls. 2.2.0 to 2.3.0; Sheetings, Tls. 3.3.5 to 3.6.0; Dutch Drills, Tls. 3.1.0 to 3.2.0; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., ord., Tls. 1.3.8 to 1.4.5; 7 lbs., Tls. 1.5.5 to 1.6.5; 6 lbs., Mex., Tls. 1.6.0 to 1.6.3; 7 lbs., 1.6.8 to 1.8.0; X X., Tls. 2.4.0; Camlets (English), S S, Tls. 11.0.0 to 12.0.0; S S S, Tls. 9.5.0 to 10.2.0; Medium Broad and Habit Cloth, per yard, Tls. 0.9.0 to 1.5.0; Long Ells, scarlet, per piece, Tls. 5.7.0 to 6.0.0; assorted, Tls. 5.6.0 to 5.8.0. Iron: Nail Rod, per picul, Tls. 2.1.0 to 2.4.0; Lead, Tls. 4.4.0 to 4.5.0.

HANKOW.—Grey Shirtings: A fair inquiry had existed for 8¼ lbs., but holders had failed to establish any material advance; 7 lbs. lower; closing quotations—7 lbs., Tls. 2.01 to 2.03; 8¼ lbs., Tls. 2.26 to 2.31; and heavy goods, Tls. 2.70 to 2.90 per piece. T-Cloths: Best makes of 7 lbs. offering at Tls. 1.70 per piece led to a moderate business, but the market generally was extremely quiet; 8 lbs. sold at Tls. 2.02 to 2.07, but closed at Tls. 2.00 to 2.05 per piece. Drills: In demand, but prices lower, holders anxious to effect sales. Dutch makes quoted Tls. 3.20 to 3.35; English, Tls. 3.40 to 3.55; American, Tls. 3.70 to 3.80 per piece. Fancy and Dyed Cottons are out of season; quotations nominal. Camlets: Sales small, but little inquiry. Lastings: Quotations nominal. Long Ells: Fair sales reported at low rates. Spanish Stripes: No inquiry.

FOOCHOW.—The following transactions are reported:—2,400 pieces 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings, at $2.90 to 3.12½ per piece; 1,850 pieces 7 lbs. T-Cloth, at $2.40 to 2.65 per piece; 1,000 pieces 6 lbs. T-Cloth, at $2.10 per piece; 150 piculs Sandalwood, at $5 per picul; 500 piculs Beancake, at $1.45 per picul.

HONG KONG.—The following is from Messrs. Oliphant and Co.'s Circular:—Cotton Yarns: Notwithstanding the reduced position of stocks of Nos. 16 to 24 sales to "arrive" have continued to be made, and latterly at a decline of $1.50 per bale. Of these counts Bombay Yarns have been chiefly taken, and at steady rates, whilst English descriptions have been refused excepting at the decline noted. This is mainly accounted for by the present satisfactory make of the Indian Yarns, which, with the comparatively lower figures at which they are offered, make them close rivals of English spinnings. Nos. 28 to 32 are now less easily placed, and a reduction from former prices of $2.50 per bale is necessary to bring about transactions. No change in values of Nos. 38 to 42 can be quoted, but these numbers are slow of sale as demand has still further fallen off. Piece Goods: Few changes are noticeable, and the transactions of the fortnight are again small and unsatisfactory. Supplies of 7 and 8.4lb. Grey Shirtings are still very limited, but the absence of arrivals has had no material effect upon the market, as the small wants existing have been pretty generally filled by purchases "to arrive;" a better feeling may be noted, however, for 8.4 lb. goods at the close. White Shirtings continue slow of sale, though no decline in prices is prices is quoted. Quotations for all Drills have again to be reduced, and a fall of 10 cents is now reported. The only transaction during the fortnight has been the sale of a small lot of Dutch, placed at $4.40 per piece. There is still no demand privately, and some parties are making efforts to quit their goods at public sale, considerable parcels of Dutch manufacture having been reported for disposition by public auction, at which very low rates are expected to be realised. Values of all weights of T-Cloths are unaltered, and beyond a slight enquiry for 7lb. Mexicans at steady rates there is little or no demand: 8lb. goods are particularly dull. Brocades and spotted shirtings are still in small stock, and some demand exists at last figures. Turkey Reds and Chintzes are quiet and neglected. Woollens: The market is very dull, and sales by importers are exceptional. Assorted Long Ells, Spanish Stripes and Lastings show a decline in value, whilst all other goods are neglected. Metals: The smaller sizes of Nail-rod Iron are in request, but owing to the high figures demanded by holders little business has resulted. Bar Iron is dearer and easier of sale. Hoop shows little alteration and no transactions are reported. Wire exhibits an improvement, and Steel is wanted at rather better prices for the Northern markets. Lead continues dull and is unsaleable at the moment. Tin is steady. Tin Plates are in excessive supply, and are weaker in value. English Quicksilver is somewhat firmer, whilst American is unchanged. Coal: Arrivals have been, 1,177 tons English, 922 tons Cardiff, and 450 tons Anthracite. Sales have been 1,177 tons English at $7.50, 740 tons Cardiff at $8.50, and 1,000 tons Anthracite, ex Godown, at $7 per ton. Quotations: Cotton, Yarn Nos. 16 to 24 $135 to 140 per bale; 28 to 32 $144 to 147.50; 38 to 42. $165 to 170. Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs., $2.55 to 2.60 per piece; 8.4 lbs., $2.87½ to 2.90; 9.12 to 10 lbs., $3.50 to 3.80. White Shirtings: $2.35 to 3; fine, $3.25 to 5.50. T-Cloths: 6 lbs., $1.85 to 2.05; 7 lbs., $2.05 to 2.40; 8 to 8.4 oz., $2.55 to 2.70.

PENANG.—Grey Shirtings, 6 lbs., sales to arrive at $42 and 42½ per corge; 7 lbs., sales for delivery at $51 and $52; and of 8¼ lbs. at $61½ and $60½ per corge; in 45 inch no business. Long Cloths, not moved; quotations nominal. Madapollams sold to arrive at $21 and 21½ per corge for 3 lbs.; in other weights no business. T-Cloths, sales of 6 lbs. at $38½, of 7 lbs. at prices ranging from $43 to 49½ per corge, according to quality. White Shirtings: Fine qualities continued difficult of sale; lower qualities in better request, with light stocks. White Cambrics: More inquirers for lower qualities; Medium disposed of at $26½ and 27; Nos. 15/16 at $31¾ and 32 per corge; in other plain goods no transactions. Dyed Goods of all kinds very dull. Prints: White Ground Assorted, $53 and 54; Furnitures, $56; Siam Chowls, $12½, and Kling Dresses, $10½ per corge. Yarn had decreased in price; business small; Grey Mule, No. 30, $134; No. 40, $143½ per bale. Turkey Red: Sales of No. 44 at $144, of Nos. 20/24 at $138½ per bale; of Green, No. 40, at $81 per bale; beyond these no transactions. Metals: Transactions in Pig Lead at $5.80 and 6 per picul, and Sheet Lead, at $6½.

SINGAPORE.—We extract the following from Messrs. Boustead's Circular:—There has been a fair demand for most descriptions of Grey Goods, but owing to rather large arrivals, and further supplies expected daily via Suez Canal, importers have been anxious to realise, and prices generally are rather lower. White Goods show but little alteration. 39-inch Grey Shirtings: 6 lb. placed at $2.07½ to 2.12½; 7 lb. sold at $2.45, and 8¼ lb. at $3 down to $2.95, at which latter rate they also sold "to arrive." 45-inch continue very dull, at $3.25 for 9 lbs. 36-inch White Shirtings: Common descriptions saleable, but at lower rates; fine qualities move only at very low prices. 45-inch: Small sales at $3.80 to 3.85. 45-inch White Cambrics: 24's in full supply, transactions at $19¾ to 20½, according to quality; 15's and 16's placed at $31 to 31½, other descriptions in very small inquiry. 36-inch White Spots sold at $2.92½ to 2.95. 30-inch White Maddapollams exceedingly dull, and only nominally worth $21 per corge. 33-inch Imitation Irish Linens placed at $2.10 to 2.12½. 32-inch Grey T-Cloths: Fair sales at the following rates:—4 lb. $1.32½ to $1.37½; 4¼ lb. $1.45; 5 lb. $1.55/57½; 6 lb. $1.82½/85; 7 lb. $2.05/07½. 32-inch Grey Maddapollams: Sales of 2¾ lb. at $20⅜ to 20½; 3 lb. $21½ to 22. 30 inch Grey Drills: 30 yards 9¼ lb. Dutch, saleable at $57½ to 60 per corge, heavy weights of Dutch and English in very limited inquiry, and not worth more than $85 to 86 per corge. Grey Yarn: 18/24s placed at $107½ to 110, demand small even at these rates; of 30s a small sale reported at $134; 40s saleable to a fair extent at $137½ to 140 per bale. Coloured Yarns: Turkey Red 10 lb., worth $144 to 145; 12 lb. $152½ to 155; German Dye $130 to 143; Imperial Red $71½, Light Green 82. 32-inch Turkey Red Cambrics in very small enquiry: sales of 2 lb. 4 oz. reported $2.10 to 2.12½; of 2 lb. 8 oz. $2.27½. Woollens: Spanish Stripes placed 77½ cents per yard; Scarlet Long Ells 12 lb. at $7¾, other descriptions are in hardly any demand. Metals more active, but prices lower.

STRAITS, JAVA, CHINA, AND JAPAN EXPORTS.

TEA.

HIOGO AND OSAKA, MAY 17.—A fair business had been done. Teamen had shown more disposition to realise, and settlements to the extent of 2,000 piculs had been made at easier rates. About 800 piculs had also gone forward to Yokohama on Native account. The stock was reduced to a few parcels of common leaf, which were held for extreme rates. Musters of small parcels of the new crop had been shown. The quality of the leaf seemed good, but it was difficult to give any opinion till the bulk came to hand. Arrivals: About 2,300 piculs. Stocks estimated at 1,000 piculs. The Edward Herbert was on the berth for New York, partially loaded. Quotations: Common, Rios 15 to 19 per picul; good common, Rios 20 to 24 per picul; medium, Rios 26 to 33 per picul; good medium, Rios 34 to 38 per picul; fine, Rios 39 to 44 per picul; finest and choice, Rios 45 upwards per picul.

YOKOHAMA, MAY 22.*—Business had been very limited, not more than 500 piculs having been settled, making settlements since previous American mail about 1,600 piculs only. Prices had ruled slightly lower. Supplies almost entirely from Kobe had continued to come forward freely, and stocks were unusually large for this period of the season. Samples of the new season's Tea had been shown and some small settlements made; appearances generally were favourable both for the quantity and quality of the new crop. Quotations: Common, $22 to $24 per picul, nominal; good common, $22 to $27; medium, $29 to $31; good medium, $33 to $35; fine, $36 to $38; finest and choice, nominal.

SHANGHAI.—There had been no business during the week.

HANKOW.—Advices from the producing districts report the opening of the market for new leaf in Oopack, first musters being expected here about May 20; the weather had been very favourable, and the quality was said to be superior to last season's; the crop was generally acknowledged to be unusually abundant.

KIUKIANG.—Black Teas: Prices of the new crop were said to range from Tls. 20 to 28 (laid down in Kiukiang) in the Ninchow district. Chest musters were to hand, and Teas in bulk were expected in a week.

FOOCHOW.—The first chop of Oolong Tea arrived here on the 10th May, and the first chop of Congou on the 18th, total arrivals being estimated at about 3,800 chests Kien-Ning, Soey-Kut, and Ching-Wo Teas, and 10,000 half-chests of Pehling, but as yet only musters of two chops shown, so that nothing could be said regarding the quality of the crop. Large arrivals were expected within a few days. The steamer Achilles and ship Thermopylæ were in port waiting for new teas.

CANTON.—Business had been commenced in the new teas by the settlement (by two firms acting in concert) of 12,000 boxes of Scented Caper, on a basis of Tls. 24 for fine teas. Particulars were withheld until after the departure of the present mail, but, quality considered, the above settlements compared unfavourably with last season's opening rates.

SILK.

HIOGO AND OSAKA, MAY 17*.—There had been a good demand during the month, and, considering the late period of the season, a large business had been done, settlements being estimated at 290 bales of 80 catties. Prices had experienced but little alteration. The high rates ruling at Yokohama had attracted Silk from this port, shipments on native account having been made to the extent of about 300 bales of 55 to 60 catties. Stocks in Kioto and Osaka were reported to be much reduced. Quotations (laid down in London at exchange 4s. 6¼d.):—Idah, fine, 31s. 6¼d. to 32s. 10d. per picul; medium, 28s. 5d. to 30s. 2d.; Sodal, medium, 26s. 5d. to 27s. 3d.; Itchisen, fine, 26s. 5d. to 27s. 3d.; medium, 24s. 8d. to 25s. 10d.; common, 21s. 6d. to 23s. 8d.; Oshu, Hamatki, best, 26s. 5d. to 27s. 8d.; medium and common, 24s. 8d. to 25s. 10d.

YOKOHAMA, MAY 22.*—There is little change to report in the state of the market; business had been going on steadily at about previous prices. Settlements only amounted to about 300 bales, as the inferiority and mixed quality of parcels on offer had rendered purchasing difficult. Supplies had been moderate, and from Kobe to a fair extent, consisting for the most part of coarse Oshus and other Taysaam sorts. Unsold stock 700 bales. Quotations (laid down in London at exchange 4s. 6¾d.):—Mybash and Sinchu Hanks: Extra, 37s. 8d.; Best, 35s. to 36s. 6d.; Medium, 30s. 8d. to 33s. 5d.; Inferior, 26s. 10d. to 29s. 9d. Oshu: Extra, 38s. 5d. to 39s. 7d.; Best, 34s. 7d. to 36s. 6d.; Medium, 31s. 10d. to 34s. 1d.; Inferior, 26s. 10d. to 30s. 8d.; Coshu: Best, 29s. 7d. to 31s. 1d.; Medium, 26s. 10d. to 28s. 5d.; Inferior, 24s. 2d. to 26s. 6d.; Sodai: Best, 30s. 8d. to 33s.; Medium, 28s. 9d. to 30s. 4d. Etchesen: Best, 28s. 9d. to 30s. 8d.; Medium, 26s. 10d. to 28s. 9d.; Inferior, 24s. 2d. to 26s. 6d. Mashta: Best, 26s. 10d. to 28s. 9d.; Inferior, 24s. 2d. to 26s. 6d.

SHANGHAI.—Transactions have been irregular, and on so limited a scale (being principally in barter for imports), that we withdraw quotations until the new season has been opened. The weather has continued most favourable, and reports from the interior point to a larger available yield than that of the past season, as although the proportion of eggs hatched has been less, they have been more successfully reared, and the cocoons so far are much larger; a great deal, however, depends on the result of the second crop, which if equally successful may swell the yield up to fully 45,000 bales for export, although about 43,000 bales is the general estimate at present. From small musters reeled in the Linhoo, Tsatlee, and Hainan districts, the quality is reported to be very good, and the season being early, a few hundred bales are expected down in time for the next English mail of the 3rd June.

JAVA AND STRAITS PRODUCE.

BATAVIA.—Arrack: Sales at f.77,50 to f.80 per leaguer. Cloves: f.25 per picul, dull. Coffee, Java: None in the market. Cubebs: f.14.50 to f.16 per picul. None in the market. Padang: f.8 to f.9.25 per picul. Sales. Sapan Wood: Manila in bond, f.4.75 to f.5. Small supplies. Java: f.2.50 to f.3 per picul, sales. Sugar: No. 14 and lower f.14.25 to f.14.50 per picul, sales. Tin, Billiton: An auction of 6,000 piculs announced for June 3.

SINGAPORE.—Malacca Tin: About 2,000 piculs taken for America at $31½ to 31; no demand for Europe. Gambier advanced, owing to a further decline in freights; dealers asking $3.17½; purchases to extent of 1,000 tons; prices ranging from $3.02½ to 3.15. Black Pepper in less demand, and declined to $8, but since advanced to $8.10. White Pepper in bare supply at $11.40 to 585. Sago Flour: An arrival of 1,300 piculs Sarawak brought $2.45; 1,100 piculs Borneo sold at $2.55. Pearl Sago: Large contracts at $2.97½ to 3.10. Tapioca in improved demand; sales of Flake and Pearl at $4¼. Buffalo Hides in more inquiry and firmer; worth $10½ to 10¾. Gum Damar: An arrival of 90 boxes placed at $12. Rattans: Arrivals of good quality taken at $5 to 6, and Coti at $4. India-rubber: 120 piculs taken at $44. Gutta-percha: Sales of good quality at $100 to 110. Cubebs dull at $6. Coffee: No supplies on the market; Bontyne worth $12¾ to 13. Nutmegs: Small sales at $46. Mace: A small sale of poor quality at $40.

PENANG.—The Produce market had been only moderately supplied with the most staple articles of export. Tin opened at $30 per picul, at which rate only a very small quantity was secured. The price then rose to $31, but had since declined to $30.50 per picul, the closing price. Moderate purchases of Black Pepper; West Coast, to arrive, $8.10; Acheen, $8 to 8.05; Edie, $8.02½ per picul. White Pepper: Scarce; mixed quality, $11.40 per picul; No. 1, $12. Gutta-percha: $90 per picul. India-rubber has slightly advanced, arrivals taken at $42 and 42½ per picul. Horns and Hides remained at about former quotations. Mace declined: No. 1, $79 for good quality.

REPORTS AND CASUALTIES.

The Blackadder, London to Shanghai, put into Cape of Good Hope dismasted.

MANILA.

The steamer Mars, which vessel sailed for Hong Kong on the 12th May, was compelled by the state of the weather to take shelter in the port of Mariveles.

The steamer Prim, for Hong Kong and Amoy on the 11th, came in again on the following day, and without anchoring went away again, the cause remaining unknown which may have brought her back.

In the evening of the 5th a severe typhoon was experienced at Ilo Ilo. The wind commenced blowing from the N.W., and veering round to the East, it blew from that quarter with great fury, and coming round to the S.E. it ended there. The Spanish schooners Nueva Vicenta, Petrona, and Nueva Consolacion, were wrecked on the South coast, besides many small craft having to lament some loss of life. The Spanish barque Maria del Rosario, in her return voyage from Singapore, experienced on the 7th another severe typhoon, in lat. 12 deg. N. The wind began to blow from the N.N.W., veering to the West, from which quarter it blew furiously, soon moderating when it came to the south. The barometer fell down to 29·12. The greatest strength of the wind was from 4 P.M. of the same day.

COMMERCIAL POSTSCRIPT.

We understand that the tea importers have agreed to abandon the resolution abolishing the 1 lb. draft, but to adhere to the other resolution in reference to the adoption of Customs' weights and the three months' prompt. A meeting of the committee was held to-day, confirming the same, and to-morrow the wholesale dealers hold a meeting to consider this decision. If we may judge from the tone of the organs of the dealers, we may conclude that the matter will now be settled.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Bangalore, from Southampton on the 9th inst., was in gold, to Madras, £107; in silver, to Penang, £27,255; to Singapore, £55,000; to Hong Kong, £22,630; total in gold, £107; in silver, £104,885.

A special telegram from Shanghai states that the P. and O. steamer China will not load at Hankow for London.

THE ONE POUND DRAFT QUESTION.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—Might I ask you, as the representative of the China merchants, for space to reply to an article against them that has appeared in the last issue of the dealers' journal, the Produce Markets Review?

I would not have troubled you but for the unqualified partiality of the production in question, and I cannot refrain from saying that had the author reflected a little more before he penned his remarks that many of them would not have been published; but he appears so convinced that nobody is acquainted with the details of the tea trade but the dealers, that he instantly rushes into print to criticise, denounce and threaten.

The dispute on the tare and draft matter is the chief burden of the song of the editor of the Review, and weaker arguments than the trade use in their defence I could not imagine. They claim this super tare and draft (1) because it has been a custom of the trade hitherto, (2) to cover, as they say, the risk of loss in retailing the chest. What risk is there? Did any dealer, retailer or householder, ever break into a chest of tea but he found, with very rare exceptions, two or three pounds over what he paid for? And yet the merchant is so monstrously wicked for objecting to lose two per cent. because he has been such a goose so long!

I will now dwell briefly on rather a thoughtless observation of Mr. Editor, who says, "for there is no doubt that there are many intermediate profits before the dealers get their tea." Had he said before the consumer gets his tea there would have been sense in it; but of all the unnecessary increase of cost to the consumer is that which is absorbed by the wholesale dealers, and yet they are the most dissatisfied class connected with the product.

And now for the awful threat of this combination. It is news to me that the dealers are as extensive or opulent a class as those who do or who can import tea. Mr. Editor evidently thinks that tea merchants are confined to London; perhaps he is not aware that Lancashire, and Yorkshire even, harbour some of these terrible ogres; and I wonder which party would find it the most expensive—the dealers to open establishments, even if they could find the accommodation they imagine, in extravagant China, or for the merchants to ignore them in quitting their imports into Great Britain, for "there are more ways of choking a dog than with the thick end of a jam dumpling;" besides, I feel certain there is precedent sufficient of the dealers having tried merchanting, and I am equally certain that those will think twice before they do it again; and, further, Mr. Editor fails to convince me that stocks are so opposed to the merchants' position. I think he has forgotten to deduct a very large percentage that for years has not, and never will, appear on the market.

I am glad, in conclusion, to be able to agree with some remarks in the article I am answering, namely, those which refer to the dealer being excluded from bidding at the auctions, and paying half per cent. to the merchants' broker; and if the dealers will persist in opposing both these measures, I am certain they will have the cordial co-operation of every importer. The brokers argue that if such a rule were established, that they could not both buy and sell, there would be some cases of extreme hardship; but I would remind them that no laws are made that do not injure some one, but it is the general benefit which is studied, and I am certain that brokers would lose fewer constituents if they had not the temptation of serving two masters. I apologise for the length of my remarks, and remain, Sir, very respectfully, yours, &c.,

A MERCHANT.

HOMEWARD PASSENGERS.—Amongst the passengers from China by the P. and O. steamer due at Southampton on the 16th inst. are Captain C. S. Stanhope, late H.M.S. Ocean, appointed as private secretary to Mr. Childers; Captain Trollope, late Zebra, promoted; and Mr. John E. Cooke, late acting Paymaster in charge of Shanghai Naval-yard, permitted to return on leave after five years' foreign service.

MR. E. R. MICHELL.—We regret to record the death of Mr. Michell, who landed at Hong Kong in its early days with the then Major Caine. In 1843 he entered as clerk in the Harbour-master's office, under Captain Pedder, and by attention and ability worked himself gradually up to the post of Harbour-master and Marine Magistrate. Mr. Michell has for some time enjoyed a pension from the Hong Kong Government.

CHINESE LABOUR.—The Chattanooga Times states that on the 17th of June Messrs. Koopmanschap telegraphed to the superintendent in charge of the construction of the Alabama and Chattanooga Railway—"Can deliver in thirty days at Chattanooga 1,000 or 2000 good Chinese labourers for sixty dollars per head. Wages sixteen dollars per month and board. Free passage back." The superintendent replied—"We will take 1,500 able-bodied Chinese labourers at once."

THE REPORTED MASSACRE AT PEKIN.—The Official Journal of Paris says:—"The bad news from China, which has come by way of London, is of an entirely unofficial character. The Duc de Gramont has hastened to obtain intelligence by the shortest route, the Russian telegraph, and has received a reply from St. Petersburg, according to which the Russian Government had received no advice of the alleged massacre." The Duc de Gramont, on being questioned on the subject, confirmed the above.

THE ITALIAN ISLAND IN THE RED SEA.—A telegram from Cairo, July 9, says:—"Egyptian troops have disembarked at Ashab-bay, the Italian territory in the Red Sea, and, after a fight with the natives, tore down the Italian flag and took possession of the territory. The Egyptian steamer Khastonne has left Suez for Massowah on a secret mission.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite. The Civil Service Gazette remarks.—"The singular success which Mr. Epps has attained by his homœopathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any experimentalist. By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in tin-lined packets labelled—JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemists, London.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

THE "BOMBAY" AND THE "ONEIDA."

(5th.) Mr. HANBURY-TRACY called attention to the correspondence relating to the collision between the Bombay and the United States ship Oneida, and moved—"That, in the opinion of this House, there is nothing in the evidence taken by the Naval Court of Inquiry, or in the correspondence which has been laid before Parliament, to justify the severe reprimand administered by the Board of Trade to Captain Eyre, and that further inquiry into his conduct ought to be made." He said that no one in approaching this subject could do so without feeling the deepest sympathy with those mourning people who had suffered by this sad calamity; and, for his own part, whatever might be the result of this discussion, he hoped the expression of regret might be some mitigation to the sorrows of those who were suffering from the loss of friends and relatives. He was well aware that in America and in this country a strong feeling existed against Captain Eyre, and he thought that a great stigma had been cast upon him, but which was without foundation. The hon. gentleman, after going into details at some length in reference to the collision of the Bombay and the Oneida, contended that no blame attached to Captain Eyre, although his certificate had been suspended for six months. He was of opinion that ninety-nine men out of a hundred would have done the same as Captain Eyre had done, and Sir H. Keppel, who had examined into the matter and had written to him (Mr. Hanbury-Tracey), said that in his opinion the conduct of Captain Eyre under the circumstances was free from blame, and that had he been in the same position he would have acted as Captain Eyre had done. In 1860 strong evidence had been given in favour of taking away the jurisdiction of the Board of Trade. The reprimand of the Board was far too severe to have been inflicted without the clearest evidence. It was of a character which, if any foundation existed for it, would have justified an indictment for manslaughter. It was neither right, fair, nor just, and he had been advised that Captain Eyre could recover against the Board of Trade in an action for libel. He had shown that Captain Eyre was so harshly treated by the Court of Inquiry, as to have justified the Board of Trade in reopening the inquiry; and that a charge had been made against Captain Eyre which amounted to grave miscarriage of justice. In fact, he had been sacrificed to public feeling in America. The hon. member concluded by moving his motion.

The following is Sir H. Keppel's letter, referred to by Mr. Hanbury-Tracy:—"There has never been any question as to the collision between the Oneida and the Bombay being entirely the fault of the former. With regard to the subsequent conduct of the captain of the Bombay, I can assure you that I have carefully gone into the evidence; I have, moreover, examined the track chart at the Peninsular and Oriental's Company's office in the City, as well as personally questioned Captain Eyre, and I am decidedly of opinion that his conduct afterwards, under the peculiar and difficult circumstances in which he was placed, was free from blame. The evidence as to the duties performed by the chief officer is conclusive, to my mind, that the engines must have been stopped fully ten minutes, more than ample time for any ship, especially a man-of-war, to make signals by rockets or blue-lights, should she wish to communicate. Captain Eyre assured me that after he had acceded to the pilot's request to proceed, he himself took up a position on the bridge and, facing aft, never, with his glasses in his hand, took his eyes off the spot where the vessel he had been in contact with would have been had she not proceeded, as he last saw her, under sail and steam; and I am satisfied no better look out could have been kept than that he performed himself, while the pilot looked out for his ship, which he naturally believed had received the greater injury, her having sprung a leak being reported to him. The shock, too, of the collision was so little felt on board that I knew a lady who thought so little of it that she continued her game at Bézique with which she was occupied at the time. I think that had I been in Captain Eyre's position, with mails and passengers on board, I should have acted as he did. Further inquiry will, I trust, prove that Captain Eyre has been already hardly dealt with."

Sir J. ELPHINSTONE, after hearing all that had been said on the matter, could not make out where the Oneida had been struck. He did not know where the "midsheets" were. The hon. member, with a profusion of nautical terms, gave his version of the collision, which, he said, had been occasioned by the American midshipman in charge of the Oneida putting his helm astarboard instead of aport. Captain Eyre had done everything possible both to avoid the collision and afterwards, and if this had not been a Yankee man-of-war they would never have heard anything more about it. (Oh.) If he had been Captain Eyre, he should have done just as Captain Eyre did; and the conduct of the Board of Trade in censuring him would rise up in judgment against them, and, if the hon. gentleman divided on the question, he should support him.

Mr. GLADSTONE regretted that the phrase "Yankee man-of-war" had been used by the hon. member of Portsmouth. It tended to show the temper which had been imported into the debate.

Sir J. ELPHINSTONE would withdraw the word "Yankee," and say "an American man-of-war."

Mr. GLADSTONE: The statement at all events amounted to a distinct charge against the members of the Court at Yokohama, and it accused them of giving their decision not as judges upon the evidence, but because they were dealing with the case of an American man-of-war. He (Mr. Gladstone) lamented that the subject had been brought before the House at all. The mere fact of omission to render assistance in a case of danger at sea was by the Merchant Shipping Act of this country a statutable offence, and the enforcement of the law with respect to that was provided by the appointment of a court and an appeal to the Board of Trade. Under the circumstances of this case it would have been much wiser on the part of Captain Eyre's friends to have trusted to the gentle and gradual action of public opinion, than to have provoked a discussion in that House which had only tended to aggravate the matter.

After some further discussion, the motion was withdrawn.

THE CHINA CONVENTION.

(7th.) Mr. OTWAY, stated, in reply to Mr. MAGNIAC, that it was not the intention of the Government to recommend Her Majesty to ratify the Convention recently concluded by Sir R. Alcock. A communication would be made by way of answer to the memorial of the merchants without delay, by the Secretary of State, and that communication would state the reasons which had induced the Government to come to the decision he had announced.

RUMOURED MASSACRE AT PEKING.

(7th.) On the telegrams from China Mr. OTWAY said: No confirmation of the rumoured massacre of the French Chargé d'Affaires and other Europeans at Peking had been received at the Foreign-office, and the Government were of opinion that Mr. Wade, our representative in that city, would not have hesitated to despatch a courier with information of so grave an occurrence. The rumour was generally believed in Paris, but the Government hoped it would turn out to be without foundation. Mr. MAGNIAC said the massacre had taken place at Tientsin, and not at Peking. Mr. OTWAY said one account said the king and the other Tientsin, and one gentleman was named who was very unlikely to be at Tientsin at this season of the year.

THE "BOMBAY" AND "ONEIDA."

THE discussion to be found in our Parliamentary intelligence, brought on by Mr. HANBURY-TRACY, has not resulted in a more satisfactory conclusion of this vexata quæstio. It is one of those cases that no amount of discussion can clear up. Both landsmen and sailors—including Admirals of high standing—take different views of the matter, and we cannot admire the discretion of Mr. TRACY or Sir JAMES ELPHINSTONE in the debate. It was high time that Mr. GLADSTONE should dissent from the disrespectful language used on the occasion. The truth is that the members who spoke, as is generally the case in such far off matters, were but little acquainted with the subject. We have already expressed our opinion that the decision of the Court at Yokohama more than met any delinquency of Captain EYRE, and that the Board of Trade had no right to make such acrimonious additions to the same. To our minds the evidence taken at the Court clearly proved that no amount of stopping and waiting would have availed to save the crew of the Oneida. How could Captain EYRE wait to know if the Oneida wanted assistance when she was —assisted no doubt by the prevailing fog—out of sight when the Bombay stopped, and not a sound or indication to be heard from her? The Standard on the matter says:—

The debate on the collision between the Bombay and the Oneida ended in a sort of drawn battle. In the result the Board has escaped censure and Captain Eyre has been exonerated from severe animadversion. The department of which Mr. Bright is the nominal head has avoided formal reproof for meddling with matters beyond its province, and the late commander of the Bombay has been absolved from an imputation to which no honourable man could tamely submit. We do not know that either party to this controversy can find very much fault with the other. Writing after the event, we believe that the errors chargeable upon each are errors of judgment only, and that those errors ought mainly to be attributed to the lack of accurate information, or the influence of excited but still praiseworthy feelings. No one who knows anything about the tone of professional morale in the higher ranks of the mercantile marine will suspect that an officer of Captain Eyre's standing would willingly fail to do all that, by the most strained construction, could be brought within his duty, and only the most inveterate and uncharitable of antagonists would believe otherwise.

The Daily Telegraph says:—

What Captain Eyre has gained through the debate is a virtual admission that the language used by the Board of Trade was unnecessarily severe, and went beyond the evidence; what he has failed to obtain is an acknowledgment that the original sentence passed at Yokohama was too severe. He stands absolved from the charge of deliberate inhumanity, but not from that of having committed an error of judgment—an error which, though momentary, as stated by Mr. Gladstone, is nevertheless one which the "public interests of mankind and of navigating nations" require to be treated with severity. We believe that public opinion in this country will, in the main, approve of the decision thus pronounced; and that, when "naturally excited feeling in the United States have cooled down to a stage at which reason can be heard, the view there entertained will not differ greatly from our own. Yet it is much to be regretted that national feeling should have been aroused at all on such a topic; but the very violence of the passion displayed renders the task of correcting the excess on either side all the easier.

By a vote in the Senate at Washington of thirty-one votes to seventeen, Chinese are debarred from the privilege of citizenship. This does not accord with the spirit of the Burlingame school. One hundred and fifty Chinamen have arrived at New York in search of employment. The Trade Unions are getting alarmed at this Celestial invasion, and if the movement gets much larger the opposition of the white labouring class to it may assume a very threatening form.

OVERLAND BETWEEN INDIA AND CHINA.

AN interesting report has recently been issued by Mr. COOPER with reference to his journeys undertaken for the purpose of ascertaining the best way of opening a line of communication between India, Thibet, and China. The principal features of this report were embodied in the address of the author to a conference which lately assembled at the Society of Arts to discuss the subject. It will be noticed that Mr. COOPER pronounces strongly against the route through Munipore and Northern Burmah, partially explored some time since by Captain SLADEN, and declares it to be utterly impracticable for commercial intercourse. This only confirms what we have written from time to time, and is another argument in favour of the route advocated by Captain SPRYE, namely, that which leads direct from Rangoon to the south-western frontier of China. We trust that the Indian Government may, therefore, be now induced to abandon the opposition it has hitherto shown to this route. From the personal knowledge Mr. COOPER acquired of the countries through which he travelled and of their peoples, it seems clear that regular commerce between England and the West of China cannot be established by either the Brahmapootra and Sudiya route to Bathang, or that of the Irrawaddy and Bhamo route to Talifoo. And, though Captain SLADEN is said to entertain a different opinion, the non-publication by the Government of India of his official report would imply that it discloses difficulties and objections—either of a physical, political, or military character—connected with the KING and Government of Burmah, his rebel Khakyen mountain subjects, the Chinese Shans east of them, the more eastern Chinese Panthay rebels around Talifoo, or the Imperial Government of China, such as it would not be discreet in the Government of India to make public. Under these circumstances, and as the extreme point Captain SLADEN was able to reach—Momien, 120 miles N.E of Bhamo—was found to be 7,000 feet above the sea level, we cannot but wonder that the survey Lord CRANBORNE ordered when Secretary of State for India of Captain SPRYE's more southern and shorter route, from Rangoon to Kiang-Hung, has not been resumed, and this in the manner so long prayed for by our Chambers of Commerce—namely, under the direction of an able and impartial railway engineer of this country, wholly unconnected with the Indian services. Lord CRANBORNE, when Secretary of State for India, did not order this line to be surveyed without having first corresponded with the then Viceroy of India, and fully refuted his objections to the measure. In addition to this, he conferred with a previous Secretary of State for India—Lord STANLEY—at the time Foreign Minister, who had also well considered the proposition; and Lord STANLEY fully concurred with his India-office successor in the propriety of having the Kiang-Hung line surveyed, which he described as a "wise and useful step, the "possible advantages of which were great, the risk of pro- "voking hostility nothing serious, and the cost insignificant, "considering the magnitude of the interests involved," &c. We will hope, therefore, that the present liberal holder of the Seals of the India-office will not permit the industrial classes of the kingdom to be longer excluded from such a market as the West of China offers for the extension of commerce, if this short and practicable way to it be opened up. We fully agree with Mr. COOPER that China is quite large and populous enough to be commercially entered by our merchants at many different points, free from interior competition. The following is a summary of the proceedings at the Conference to which we have alluded :—

The CHAIRMAN, in introducing Mr. Cooper, who has lately returned from his travels in Western China, Eastern Thibet, and Assam, congratulated the meeting on the privilege of having a gentleman present who, from personal observation, could tell them something of the trade routes between India and China, and Assam and Eastern Thibet.

Mr. COOPER, in addressing the meeting, said that before speaking of these routes he would like to explain the objects he had in view during his pioneering journeys from Shanghai towards India, and from Assam towards Bathang, in Eastern Thibet. His first journey was undertaken for the purpose of finding a line of communication between India and China, and he had ascertained beyond doubt that such a line existed; yet he had been obliged to return with the conviction that this route would never enable the millions of China and India to enter into commercial intercourse with each other. His second journey was not for the purpose of exploring the route from Assam to China, but rather to open a route from Assam into Eastern Thibet, by which the tea planters of the Assam Valley might send their tea to a profitable market. With regard to trade between India and China, via the Yangtsze and Bramapootra Rivers, he saw but little likelihood of its ever being established. The distance overland from the most eastern navigable point of the Bramapootra to the most western of the Yangtsze was too great, while communication could only be maintained during four months of the year. Opposed to this was, also, the Hankow market, from which the province of Szchuen could be supplied with piece goods via the Upper Yangtsze. As to the route from Calcutta to Eastern Thibet, via the Bramapootra, Mr. COOPER thought too much attention could not be bestowed upon it. The Chinese at present sent some six or eight million pounds of brick tea from Western Szchuen into Thibet by a land carriage of more than four hundred miles. It would therefore be seen that if the tea planters of Assam could send their tea into Thibet at a point only ten days' journey from the furthest navigable point of the Bramapootra they would cut the Chinese entirely out of the market; but that, while this trade would undoubtedly be a source of great wealth to India, to this extent only could she ever hope to benefit by trade in that part of Asia. Another route (which he had not travelled) was advocated as affording a probability of commercial intercourse between India and China, and that was the route through Munipore and northern Burmah, crossing the Irrawaddy at Bhamo, and thence to Talifoo in Yunnan. It appeared to him that this route had no chance whatever of developing commerce between the two empires. In the first place it would pass through the north of the King of Burmah's country, and in the next place trade could never cross a great water highway like the Irrawaddy, having for its trade gorge the town of Rangoon. Though part of this route had lately been explored by Captain Sladen, Mr. COOPER had not traversed any portion of it, but he had been in the north-west of Yunnan, and, from what he could see, the trade, likely to arise, even should the route be opened, had been overestimated by the merchants of Rangoon; and, though he was of this opinion, he also thought that with the opening of the route birth might be given to a considerable trade between Rangoon and Yunnan and the western part of the province Kwei-chew, but not with Szchuen, the trade of which belonged to the eastern seaboard of China. In saying this he was glad of the opportunity to state in public that there could be no grounds for jealousy between the British merchants in China and those of Burmah. There was ample room in China for all. But many difficulties stood in the way of a successful opening of the Bhamo and Tali route. The Khakyans and Chinese Shans were to be quieted; and it appeared to him that unless Burmah proper is annexed, the only person likely to benefit by this trade would be the King of that country. This was, however, a difficulty which he hoped would be overcome by other means if possible, as he looked on every piece of annexation by the Indian Government in the future as so much of her strength sacrificed. He could not, however, be silent on the other point of extreme which the Government were apparently inclined to adopt, which seemed to be the destruction of commercial interests when opposed to the peace-at-any-price policy which Government holds in such high esteem. Nothing could be more dangerous than allowing the Chinese to evade the letter of our treaty, or to allow the Burmese Government and mountain tribes like those met by Captain Sladen to stop or interfere with legitimate Government undertakings. It might keep peace for a time, but might ultimately compel us, for the sake of the British name, to shed much blood and incur great expense. He thought, therefore, that when Government once undertook a project they should carry it out honourably but firmly, and show to the Eastern peoples that, while annexation is not contemplated, free and unmolested commercial intercourse is desired, and that violence and murder will be promptly punished. Trade routes should be explored, too, by private enterprise, and not by Government officers, whose instructions are generally of such a nature that they carry with them a great weight of political responsibility, and are obliged to proceed by purchasing their way through countries at a cost that very seriously impedes the progress of commercial efforts following in their footsteps. Only one thing remained for him to say before closing his address, and that was on the subject of roads beyond our Indian and Burmah frontiers. He thought that our object should rather be to make India a great commercial centre, to which the people of Asia should flock to satisfy their wants; and not to make her a mere transit station, and her merchants carriers of goods and road makers for peoples who can just as easily come to her by their own present roads as by any we could make through the Himalayas. Mules and yaks must be the means of carriage through those mountains. It would, therefore, be better to establish trading posts on our frontiers, and let the people come to us during the season when the melting of the snows annually permits them to traverse their mountain passes.

In the discussion which followed, Dr. CAMPBELL referred to the desire of the Thibetans and Yarkandis to trade with us, and thought where we could get permission from the proper authorities to make roads through their country, good roads should be made by us. He asked Mr. Cooper what operated in stopping him from reaching India from China; whether it was the jealousy of the Chinese or Thibetans. Mr. COOPER replied that, the fear entertained by the Chinese of the loss of their tea trade with Thibet, and Lama fear for the religion of their country, were the interests that stood in the way of his reaching India from China.

Mr. CASSELLS said the Russian market had been referred to as likely sooner or later to enter into competition with India in Central Asia. Some years ago, when he was in Bombay, the Indian Government obtained a number of patterns of goods which the Russians had been sending into the market for Central Asia, and on these patterns being sent home as samples, it was a curious fact that they turned out to have been made in Glasgow. He asked Mr. Cooper for his opinion as to Captain Sprye's route. Mr. COOPER replied that he had neither traversed nor, indeed, studied it. But if this route led to Yunnan direct from our port of Rangoon across our own possessions in Burmah, it was decidedly worthy of as much attention as the Bhamo and Talifoo route.

Mr. SAUNDERS addressed the meeting at some length, urging the necessity of Government removing the political hindrances, which he had no doubt was one of the principal causes of Mr. Cooper's having failed to reach India from China, and Thibet from Assam.

Captain SPRYE being present, the CHAIRMAN asked him to favour the meeting with some remarks on his route. That gentleman said he had not come to speak of that route, but to hear Mr. Cooper describe the more northern ones he had so perseveringly and enduringly explored to the furthest limits it had been possible for him to make way. He had great pleasure, however, in stating that the route which, after the most full inquiries about all others, he had felt it right to select and advocate in the interests of the manufacturers and merchants of the United Kingdom generally—viz., the short direct land route from Rangoon to the Meikong or Upper Cambodia River, in the Burmese Shan State of Kiang-Hung, on the south-west frontier of China—was in no respect abandoned by its home commercial approvers. On the contrary, the whole of the information that was permitted to ooze out from time to time of the result of the efforts of the Government of India to open longer, more difficult, and less promising routes, could not but confirm the reflecting and disinterested manufacturing and mercantile bodies of the kingdom, that whatever local dry season trade might in time be established by the circuitous Irrawaddy and Bhamo route to Talifoo, or by the Bramapootra and Upper Assam route to Bathang, trade worthy of the name of commerce could only be carried on continuously the year through between the United Kingdom, the Burmese Shan States, and South-West of China, by the route and the means so long recommended by the Chambers of Commerce of the kingdom to the favourable consideration of Her Majesty's and the Indian Governments —viz., the most direct practical land route north-east from Rangoon. Captain Sprye observed that in the present age the shortest routes for commerce, by both sea and land, were all essential to commercial success; and showed that the Kiang-Hung route had received the warm approval in various ways of the late and present Chief Commissioner of British Burmah, the late Deputy Commissioner O'Riley, Assistant Commissioners Richardson and M'Leod, of Captain J. M. Williams, and others of long service and travel in British Burmah and the adjacent countries. He showed that Chief Commissioner Phayre had repeatedly, so long back as 1862-63, urged the Government of India, officially, to permit it to be surveyed; and had expressed to him (Captain Sprye) the hope of ultimate success, if the home commercial public continued to press it earnestly on the home authorities. Further, that in 1865, Captain J. M. Williams, many years Public Works Officer in British Burmah, had very strongly recommended the route to the then Secretary of State for India, in an official memorandum which was laid before Parliament. In contrast with which Captain Sprye forcibly commented on the fact that from his first reading a paper on the subject to the Royal Geographical Society in 1860, his views and recommendations, and the wishes of the home commercial community, had been opposed only by Government officials in Calcutta and in London, none of whom had ever been in British Burmah or Burmah proper. He remarked that those officials, having consequently based their opposition on misinformation, misconception, or erroneous policy, had greatly misrepresented the direct land route, even in official documents as well as in Eastern and home journals. As one of many instances of this, he stated that after the first half—250 miles—of the direct land route had been, under the orders of Lord Cranborne, satisfactorily surveyed, and the completion of the survey to Kiang-Hung had been recommended by the present Chief Commissioner, the late Viceroy of India and his Council—under misguidance, of course—sent home a despatch, in 1868, representing that "there remained still 1,230 miles of the route to survey in unknown and wild foreign countries, besides alternative lines;" whereas there only remained about 280 miles, for the survey of which the survey party was at the time fully organised, with the cordial concurrence and co-operation of the King of Burmah; and that, of a considerable portion of that 280 miles the Government of India had long possessed full information in official reports and itineraries of officers who had traversed it, under their orders. Captain Sprye further pointed out that the happy completion of the Suez Canal rendered the opening of the direct land route from Rangoon to the West of China, of tenfold importance to the manufacturing and mercantile classes of the United Kingdom; inasmuch as goods would be able to be delivered by it in China within thirty-five days from their leaving British ports, and the many rich products of Western China would be there received in return in a similar short period. By the Canal, Rangoon is only 7,834 miles from England, thirty-two days' fair steaming; and the Kiang-Hung frontier of China being 580 miles from Rangoon (the half of which has been satisfactorily surveyed), goods would be carried across on a tramway, even at the slow rate of but twelve miles an hour, in forty-eight hours, making thirty-five days only from England to China. He (Captain Sprye) continued to consider this an Indian and Imperial benefit, all worthy of prompt realisation, and he deeply regretted the many years it had been already advocated in vain. During this lost period, under the patronage of enlightened and far-seeing rulers, those much greater, more difficult, and most costly undertakings, the Suez Canal and the Atlantic and Pacific Railway have been completed and brought into working order, to promote and accelerate the future commerce of France and the United States with the Empire of China and its surroundings.

Mr. HYDE CLARKE, in his closing speech, remarked on the importance of the questions that had been discussed, and complimented Mr. Cooper on the able and persevering manner in which he had penetrated so adventurously into unexplored parts of Eastern Asia. He dwelt on the very great interest England had, in these days of general peace and competition for the trade of the world, in the establishment of commerce by every route that could be peacefully opened for it with both Central Asia and Western China; and, with hearty commendation of those individuals who devoted themselves as pioneers to these objects, often to undergo not only personal labour and privations with expenditure of their private means, but also public neglect for awhile, he concluded by proposing a vote of thanks to Mr. Cooper for his address, a motion which was most cordially carried.

THE FRENCH MASSACRE.

THE attack on the missionary party in the vicinity of Tientsin, in which Mr. WILLIAMSON was murdered, has now been succeeded by a more determined onslaught against Christianity. According to a telegram by Grant's line, via Kiachta, received on the 5th inst., it appears that a riot occurred at Peking, and that a mob attacked and fired the Roman Catholic Cathedral, murdered all the priests and Sisters of Mercy to be found in the neighbourhood, and then retired. The persons murdered are French subjects, and for the general good of foreign relations with China at this moment it is well that it has fallen to the lot of France to avenge this atrocity. The Under-Secretary, in reply to Mr. MAGNIAC, stated that no information had reached the Foreign-office on the subject, and they very much doubted the report. It is certainly singular that the French Government has no special telegram, and the Russian Government says nothing on the subject. Our press are backward in their comments; only the Post talks of satisfaction for the outrage.

THE project of raising a subscription for the relief of the unfortunate sufferers by the collision of the Oneida and Bombay has been revived. Sir JOHN LUBBOCK is the treasurer, and his firm will act as receivers. The appeal says:—"The deep regret and heartfelt sympathy for the victims of this untoward disaster, which has found such prompt and general expression, leaves no room to doubt that the British public are anxious to unite with the American people in regarding it in the light of a common calamity. The legacy of international goodwill left by Mr. PEABODY to this country and his own has added a fresh motive to the natural wish that the English community should be permitted to participate in alleviating the material distress of the families so suddenly bereaved by this providential visitation."

OUR correspondent at Yokohama records another incident illustrative of the progress of the Japanese Government. The Commercial Department, which was formed for the purpose of carrying out more effectually all matters connected with foreign trade—has decided on establishing a line of postal steamers between Yokohama, Hiogo, and Nagasaki, and for this purpose have purchased the steamers Nymph and Sakana. This is certainly progress; for at the present moment our own postal arrangements do not include the service to Nagasaki, and the mails from England frequently lie weeks at Shanghai en route. The postal authorities here say they cannot give any aid in the matter. While we meet with so much opposition from the Chinese, it is refreshing to experience such enlightened views among the Japanese.

THE Council of Administration has published a notice to the effect that the income of the Suez Canal has not been sufficient to allow of the payment of the coupons which fell due on the first day of the present month, and that consequently the payment of the coupons, both of the shares in circulation and of the "delegations" representing the 176,602 shares of the Egyptian Government, is adjourned, but will take precedence of all future distribution of dividends. We are sorry for the necessity for this announcement, and hope that the traffic through the Canal will grow rapidly and allow the payment of fair dividends. A telegram from Ismailia announces the satisfactory transit of the Sarthe, one of the French troopships, drawing 6·30 metres, equal to 20¾ English feet.

BY the last mail from Colombo we learn that it is rumoured that the Imperial Government propose to take an important part in the Galle harbour improvements, and by a larger outlay to make them more complete. We are sorry to find, however, that the impression is incorrect.

THE appointment of Earl GRANVILLE to succeed the Earl of CLARENDON as Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs is of considerable interest to our readers, more especially as his Lordship assumes the office at a time when our relations with China are in a pending and unsatisfactory condition. The ratification of the Convention of Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK has been suspended by the action of the merchants, and the issue between the mercantile bodies and the Government was only set at rest on Thursday last. This confirms the announcement we made nearly two months since, that the Convention would not be ratified.

Monetary and Commercial.

The subjoined is a copy of a despatch from Her Majesty's Minister (Sir H. S. Parkes, K.C.B.) at Japan, forwarded to the secretary of Lloyd's by the Foreign-office, respecting the loss of the British ship St. Dunstan, and the kind treatment the survivors of her crew received from the hands of the Japanese authorities:—

"Yokohama, May 2.

"My Lord,—I have the honour to report another instance in which the Japanese have treated with marked humanity and kindness the crew of a wrecked British vessel. During the night of the 31st March the British ship St Dunstan, bound from Glasgow to Yokohama, struck on the southernmost point of the promontory which forms the eastern side of the Bay of Yedo, and shortly afterwards became a wreck. The Japanese authorities gave me notice of the occurrence in the enclosed despatch, and they at the same time took measures for forwarding to Yokohama the shipwrecked crew. Having communicated this despatch to Her Majesty's Consul, he has informed me in the accompanying report that the master of the St. Dunstan speaks in high terms of the officials and people of the place where the wreck occurred. The latter fed and lodged him and his crew, while the former rendered him all the assistance in their power in saving such portion of the cargo as could be collected from the wreck. A naval court, which sat on the 26th ult., attributed the wreck to imprudent conduct on the part of the master of the St. Dunstan, and, in view of the loss of life, as well as vessel and cargo, the court suspended his certificate for six months.—I have the honour, &c., "H. S. PARKES.

"The Right Hon. the Earl of Clarendon, &c."

The tenders for £400,000 in bills on India were as follows:—To Calcutta, £297,500; to Bombay, £100,000; and to Madras, £2,500. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10$\frac{1}{2}$d., and tenders on all the presidencies at 1s. 10$\frac{1}{2}$d. will receive about 50 per cent. These results show an increase in the demand for means of remittance to the East.

At the meeting of the Joint-Stock Discount Company (Limited), called by order of the Master of the Rolls at the request of the shareholders, it was proposed to take the liquidation out of the Court of Chancery, and to continue it under the management of certain of the shareholders, to be elected by the meeting. After a great deal of discussion, a poll was demanded, which is to be taken on the 12th inst., and the meeting was thereupon adjourned till the 13th.

Warrants for interest on the paid-up capital, at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, have been sent to the shareholders of the China Submarine Telegraph Company (Limited).

The interest due on the 15th inst., on the bonds of the Netherlands India Railway Company, has been announced, payable at Messrs. Horstman and Co., London agents.

By a telegram from Aden we learn that the Emma Ash, from Colombo to London, had arrived there short of fuel, so that, against a cheap passage, interruptions of this sort must be considered against the higher rates and security of the P. and O. and Messageries.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

There is no established change for the better in the market, occasional symptoms of improvement being but short lived; the public sales have been considerably smaller than for some time past, yet there is no return of confidence on the part of buyers, the extremely low scale of prices established last month continuing to rule. Business by private sale has become still more contracted, as, in addition to the impediment caused by the still unsettled dispute with the importers, dealers are, as usual at this season of the year, chiefly engaged in stock-taking. Public sales were held on the 5th and 6th inst., comprising 17,486 packages, of which about 11,000 packages were sold, all without reserve. Four breaks of Pakling Congou in boxes brought 1s. 6$\frac{1}{2}$d. to 1s. 6$\frac{3}{4}$d. per lb. About 1,000 boxes new-make Congou, with all faults, sold at 11$\frac{3}{4}$d. to 1s. per lb., and several parcels of red-leaf siftings, with all faults, at 4$\frac{1}{2}$d. to 5$\frac{1}{4}$d. per lb., prices being slightly lower. Common to good common red-leaf Congou brought 11d. per lb., and ~~some parcels "with all faults" 10d. to 10$\frac{1}{2}$d.~~ per lb., showing no alteration on current rates. Very common spurious Shanghai packed Congou sold at 3$\frac{1}{4}$d. to 3$\frac{1}{2}$d. per lb., being again lower. Pingsuey Green Teas sold somewhat irregularly, but generally at former rates.

With regard to the present low range of prices Messrs. Huth and Co.'s Circular remarks:—We have reached about the extent of thefall, to which our reports for a long time back had steadily pointed. It can hardly be expected that the new shipments from China will be hurried off at the quick rate of the previous two or three years. If this prove true, our stocks must gradually work smaller, allowing room for the good common qualities of Congou at last to recover themselves to some extent. As to any important improvement there is nothing at present that could justify the looking forward to it. Our stocks are much too large yet.

SILK.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co. report:—The market continues very quiet, with rather easier prices for good Silk, and a more sensible decline for common and undesirable sorts; the season of the year is the main cause of this inaction, but an additional motive has occurred in the recent strike among the artizans at Lyons, which has caused a check to business in that city, and a consequent cessation of many orders which might otherwise have helped business on this market. China Silk shows more firmness than any other description, and some recent sales at 31s. and 29s. for best chop 3's and 4's form existing quotations; all Tsatlees are very scarce, and likely to become more and more so until the new Silk begins to arrive about the 6th or 8th August; best Taysaams are wanted, but it is difficult to find such, while for ordinary Chin Cum sorts, of which there is now a large supply, buyers will not pay over 20s. Hainins continue neglected, and difficult of sale at 25s. 6d. for No. 2 Fatmow, while for lower grades of outside chops there is no demand whatever. Japan and Bengal Silk are both greatly neglected, especially the medium and common sorts. Canton Silk with its large stock meets with a small occasional business, but buyers generally want Tsatlee reel of fair ordinary quality at 20s., a price which holders do not show much disposition to accept. Loong Kongs and other descriptions are not in demand, and although importers are very current sellers business does not follow. The deliveries of Silk last month were good, unusually so for the period of the year, and mark a healthy rate of consumption.

COFFEE.

There is a further improvement in the market for Ceylon, and for the considerable quantities offered at the public sales there has been a brisk demand at 1s. to 2s. advance for coloury sorts, the value of which was above 66s., the other kinds being about 6d. higher. Native Ceylon has also realised improved prices. The latest rates paid have been:—Plantation, triage and ordinary, 43s. to 56s.; small grey and dull, 58s. to 59s. 6d.; low middling to middling do., 59s. 6d. to 65s.; middling coloury, 66s. to 72s. 6d.; good to fine middling, 73s. to 82s.; good to superior bold bright, 82s. 6d. to 91s.; peaberry, 75s. to 82s.; Native, small, 45s.; small good ordinary greenish, 48s. 6d.; fine ordinary, 51s. 6d. to 52s.; bold, 53s. In other East India kinds there have been few transactions; 470 bags Singapore sold, fair pale at 47s. 6d. to 48s. 6d., good at 52s. 6d.

SUGAR.

There has been an improvement in the market, the recent decline has been recovered, and although no great activity is exhibited there is yet a fair demand at firm prices, and in some instances at a slight advance. Among other kinds the common qualities of Manila are somewhat higher. The sales have been 2,000 bags clayed Manila (duty 4s. 9d.) at 24s. to 24s. 6d., 15,000 bags unclayed Zebu at 20s., and 350 baskets fine strong Java (duty 5s. 3d. to 6s.) at 35s. 6d. to 37s. 6d. per cwt. 400 baskets dark Penang sold at 18s. 3d., and 4,000 bags unclayed Zebu at 20s., repacked 19s. 6d.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—There is no change to report, the market for Ceylon being quiet at last quoted rates, viz., 38s. 6d. to 38s. 9d. per cwt.

COIR GOODS.—At the last public sales a comparatively moderate quantity of Yarn was offered, and for good to fine qualities above the worth of £30 per ton sold at steady rates, but below that value, especially the lower kinds, sales were reluctantly effected and prices still have a weakening tendency. Common qualities of Fibre were neglected and were mostly withdrawn; the desirable descriptions of Rope sold on steady terms. The sales included 27 bales Ceylon Yarn, fine to superior £44 10s. to £60, 123 tons ditto in dholls, very common coarse to fair common £17 15s. to £21, good common to medium £21 10s. to £25 5s., good medium £26 to £27, fine £32 to £33 15s.; 5,000 ballots Ceylon Fibre, low coarse £10 5s. to £12 10s., good to fine £24 to £28 15s. 189 coils Ceylon Rope were withdrawn.

CHINA MATTING.—An offer 550 rolls was chiefly withdrawn, only a few lots 4/4 fancy being sold at 21s. 6d. to 27s.

CUTCH.—The market is still quiet, but slightly higher prices have been realised, 200 boxes fine Pegue on the spot being sold at 22s. 3d., and about 30 tons afloat at the same price.

CAMPHOR.—504 cases fair China sold at 77s. 6d. to 78s. 6d., 60 cases Japan being bought in at 87s.

CANES.—Rattans: The sales have been 10,514 bundles at the following prices: Singapore 4s. 2d., Penang 3s. 9d. to 3s. 11d., a few lots 2s. 8d. to 2s. 10d., Batavia 3s. 2d. to 3s. 7d., mouldy and sea-damaged 3s. 5d. to 4s.; 90 bundles ground were withdrawn. Other Canes: Of 226,975 Tonking offered 83,000 sold at ¼d. to ⅜d., 17,775 Partridge sold at 2¼d. to 3½d. Of 79,189 Malacca offered a few lots sea-damaged sold at ⅜d., 159,786 Borneo were withdrawn, except a few lots country-damaged which sold at 5d. to 5¼d., 19,286 Dragon chiefly sold at ¼d. to 4¼d., 21,800 Rajah were withdrawn, 11,000 Penang Lawyers sold at 1⅜d. Of 20,615 sticks 5,700 sold at 1d. to 2d., 112 bundles Bamboo sold at ⅜d.

GAMBIER.—There has been no business, all offers having been bought in at 16s. to 16s. 6d. for bales, and 19s. 6d. for cubes.

HEMP.—There have been no transactions in Manila.

JAPAN WAX.—134 cases saucers sold—fine, 73s. to 73s. 6d.; good, 71s. 6d. to 72s. 6d.; good middling, 68s. 6d. to 69s.

PEPPER.—Black: Former prices are maintained, sales of Penang on the spot being reported at 4⅞d. cash, and short prompt afloat at 4¾d. Singapore realises 5⅛d.; of 1,235 bags Batavia offered at auction, about half sold at 4⅞d. to 5d. per lb. White: No business has been done.

PLUMBAGO.—The market is still dull. Of 328 barrels Ceylon offered two-thirds sold; good lump rather small at 17s., middling at 14s. to 14s. 3d., chips at 11s., fair dust at 7s.; one lot better quality, at 8s. 3d.

PRESERVES.—An offer of 175 cases China Ginger was bought in at 7d.

RICE.—The tone of the market has become more decidedly quiet; there have been no sales on the spot, and the business afloat has been very limited. In auction 747 bags old Rangoon were bought in at 9s. 6d., 1,077 bags Java at 13s., and 90 bags Siam at 8s. 3d. The arrived cargo of 1,000 tons Moulmein, per Blackwall, has been sold at 10s. 1½d. ex ship.

SPICES.—Cassia Lignea: There have been no transactions, an offer of 20 cases being bought in at £5 10s. Cinnamon: Of 338 bales Ceylon offered, only about 100 bales sold—good first, 3s. 3d.; middling, 2s. 8d.; medium second sort, 2s. 5d. to 2s. 11d.; low medium, 2s. 1d.; ordinary to medium third, 1s. 9d. to 2s. 4d.; good fourth, 1s. 9d. to 2s.; the remainder being bought in—good to superior first, 3s. 3d. to 3s. 7d.; second and third, 3s. to 3s. 2d.; low spurious, 4½d. to 6d.; since the sale 65 bales of the latter have been sold at about 3½d. Cinnamon Chips: 582 bags Ceylon sold at steady rates—low coarse bark, 2d. to 2¼d.; low middling, 3d. to 3¼d.; middling to fair, 4¼d. to 5¼d. Nutmegs: 20 cases Penang sold—80's at 2s. 7d. to 2s. 8d., 103's at 2s. 1d; 9 cases Java were bought in, 102's at 2s. 2d. Mace: 7 cases middling Penang offered were bought in at 3s. 3d.; 40 cases ordinary Java sold at 2s. 9d. to 2s. 11d., chiefly at 2s. 10d.

SAGO.—A good supply offered by auction met a fair demand at steady rates, 500 boxes good small sold at 18s. to 18s. 6d., of 1,685 bags about 620 bags sold, fair to good at 17s. to 17s. 6d., medium and large being bought in at 22s. 6d. to 23s. Flour: 200 bags Singapore were bought in at 14s.

TAPIOCA.—Of 448 bags Singapore offered 96 bags fine Rio kind sold at 2½d., the remainder Malacca sort being bought in at 2d.

TIN.—The demand for Straits continues limited and prices have further declined; the latest sale has been at £131 10s. cash, showing a fall of £2 to £2 5s. on last mail's rates, but there do not appear to be any further sellers at that price. Of Banca 500 slabs have been sold at £129, and 100 slabs Billiton have realised £132 per ton.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

TEA.

The quiet tone continues, there being no demand, except for small lots sufficient to supply the requirements of the trade. There is still a large supply on offer, and prices continue irregular, with a downward tendency. The non-settlement of the Tariff question still tends to restrict transactions, and from present appearance it would seem that nothing will be done with regard to Tea during the present session of Congress. The only sales reported are 2,950 half-chests Green, per Etha Rickmers; 1,100 do., per Sarah Nicholson; 500 do., per City of Perth; and 1,057 do. Oolong, per Margarita.

The following are the current quotations:—Hyson; Common to fair 65c. to 75c.; superior to fine, 80c. to 95c.; extra fine to finest, $1.05 to $1.30. Young Hyson: Canton made, nominal; common to fair, 65c. to 75c.; superior to fine, 85c. to $1.10; extra fine to finest, $1.25 to $1.60. Gunpowder and Imperial: Canton made, nominal; common to fair, 75c. to 90c.; superior to fine, $1.05 to $1.30; extra fine to finest, $1.40 to $1.75. Hyson Skin and Twankay: Canton made, nominal; common to fair, 18c. to 63c.; superior to fine, 65c. to 68c.; extra fine to finest, 70c. to 75c. Uncoloured Japan: Common to fair, 73c. to 78c.; superior to fine, 80c. to 90c.; extra fine to finest, 95c. to $1.15. Oolong: Common to fair, 60c. to 70c.; superior to fine, 75c. to 95c.; extra fine to finest, $1.05 to $1.40. Souchong and Congou: Common to fair, 60c. to 70c.; superior to fine, 75c. to 90c.; extra fine to finest, $1 to $1.30.

COFFEE.—The market for all kinds is extremely dull, and scarcely any transactions have been effected. This is usually a dull season, but the quietude is intensified by the proposed reduction of duty to 3 cents per lb., and by the detention of more than half the stock at quarantine, by which the trade is greatly embarrassed. The annoyance and expense caused by the unnecessary delay of Coffee and other goods at quarantine during the summer season have roused a spirit of indignation on the part of the merchants, and cargoes bound here are diverted to other ports, where the restrictions and outlays are less onerous. The business in East India has been confined to some small sales of Java at the current rates, which rule as follow:—Java, 20c. to 22c.; Singapore, 18c. to 19c.; Manila, 16c. to 17c.; Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19c. gold. The only sales have been 250 bags Native Ceylon at the current rates, and 1,160 mats Singapore, per George Green (sold before arrival), on private terms. The stock of Manila on the 1st June was estimated at 1,700 bags, against 6,769 bags on June 1, 1869; of Java (Government), at 850 bags, against 2,235 bags; of Java mats, 35,918, against 41,808 bags; of Ceylon, 9,157 bags, against 1,500 bags; of Singapore 1,000 bags, against nil.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 18c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2; Cassia, $1.25 gold.

FIRE CRACKERS.—The recent activity has given place to a dull tone, and prices are gradually receding from the high range lately current. Sales have been made of 550 boxes, Extra No. 1 at $3.30 to 3.35; and 750 do. at a private price, the market closing quiet at $3.30.

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 3¾c. gold (duty paid); stock, 7,000 bales.

GUNNY CLOTH.—We notice the sale of 100 bales Borneo at 32c.

HEMP.—The market for Manila continues dull, and prices exhibit a downward tendency; although the nominal quotation is still 14c. gold, small transactions have been effected at 13¾c., and at the close business could only be done at a further decline. The expectation of the early arrival of the Belvidere with a large supply tends to depress the tone of the market. The stock of Manila on the 1st June was estimated at 11,613 bales, against 2,802 bales at the corresponding date of 1869, and 17,664 bales in 1868. The imports into the United States from the 1st January to the 31st May, 1870, were 51,472 bales, against 52,397 bales during the corresponding period of last year, and the quantity afloat on the 31st May was 45,074 bales, against 34,285 bales at the same date last year.

INDIGO.—A recent large importation of Manila—420 cases—has been sold upon private terms. The general enquiry is inactive, and the only sale reported is of 10 cases at $1.12 to $1.30 currency, showing a slight decline.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $8 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is $1 to $1.75 currency (duty paid).

RICE.—There is a fair demand for Rangoon at previous rates, and sales are reported of 2,700 bags for home consumption at $7 to 7.12½ currency, and 3,300 bags for export at $3 to 3.25 gold (in bond).

SPICES.—Pepper has been in request at firm prices, but otherwise the market is quiet, though steady at the rates previously current. Sales have been made of 1,500 bags Singapore Pepper at 27 cents.; 300 do. Sumatra, 26½; 50 to 60 cases Nutmegs, $1.10; 40 to 50 do. Mace, $1.22½ to 1,30; 300 bales Cassia, 47c.; 150 do. Cloves, 25¾ to 26; and a small quantity Wild Cinnamon, 45 to 46 (all gold).

TIN.—Straits is in fair enquiry, and being in somewhat short supply, the quotation is firmly maintained at 38c. gold; the sales have been about 250 pigs and 100 slabs on the spot, which realised the above figure, and 750 pigs afloat on private terms. Banca is in less demand, and the price has declined, the sales being about 100 slabs at 39½c. (gold).

CASUALTIES.

Advices from Mauritius, dated June 2, state that the Marie Louise Antoinette (Dutch brq.), from Samarang to Holland, with coffee and sugar, put in there May 10, making sixteen inches of water per hour, having experienced very heavy weather, April 19, 11 S., 96 E., during which she split yards.

The Success, Kirkby, which arrived at San Francisco from Yokohama June 16, carried away jibboon in a heavy north-east gale, which lasted during the first two days after leaving the latter port.

MISCELLANEOUS.

At MALTA.—June 27, Gambia (str.), Borroughs, from London for Colombo, &c. (via Suez Canal); 24, Waverley (str.), Boysen, from Liverpool, and left for Singapore and Yokohama, via Suez Canal.

At PORT SAID.—June 18, Argyle (str.), Orr, from the Clyde, and left 19 for Singapore. Advices from Ismailia, dated June 30, state that the Collingwood (str.), from Liverpool for Colombo, &c., and the Waverley (str.), from London and Liverpool, for Japan, had passed that place some time between the 25th and 30th.

At MAURITIUS.—May 8, Melrose, Bell, from Bangkok; 16, Maria Louisa Antoinette, Muysson, from Samarang; 24, Mary Ann, Kerr, from Singapore; 26, Star of the Mersey, Thomas, from Colombo; 10, Hecuba, Walker, sailed for Colombo; Meridien, Andoire, sailed for Galle; 21, W. A. Farnsworth, Howes, sailed for Batavia.

The Rear-Admiral commanding the Sea Forces, and Chief of the Marine Department in Netherlands India, writes from Batavia, under date of March 23, to inform those concerned that a reef, hitherto unknown, has been discovered by the Commander of the Government steamer Hertog Bernard, to the east of the Choondoong Islands, in the Lampan Bay. The bearings from the reef are—the W.S. point of East Choondoong E., west at the distance of one-eight of a German geographical mile. It has an area of about 200 square ells, and the soundings taken showed only six feet.

Besides the vessels for the China trade specially reported in our columns, the Clyde produced in June twenty vessels for the Mediterranean, South American, African, American, and home trades. The total tonnage launched for six months being 88,685, against 100,286 tons in 1869

The P. and O. Company's new steamer Australia, which has just arrived at Southampton from the builder's yard, is intended to make one trip to Alexandria, and will then proceed to the Indian side, via the Suez Canal.

LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT OF MEAT.—Amsterdam Exhibition, 1869. First Prize, being above the Gold Medal. Supplied to the British, French, Prussian, Russian, Italian, Dutch, and other Governments. Dr. Lancaster writes regarding Extract of Meat:—"But there is a difference in flavour, and here, as in all other kinds of food, it is the flavour that makes the quality." It is essentially on account of the fine meaty flavour, as distinguished from the burnt taste of other Extracts, that LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT defeated all Australian and other sorts at Paris, Havre, and Amsterdam, and is so universally preferred in all European markets.

One pint of fine-flavoured Beef-tea at 2½d. Most convenient and economic "stock."

CAUTION.—Require Baron Liebig's, the inventor's, signature on every jar, and ask distinctly for LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Bilious affections, induced by atmospheric changes, or too liberal diet, should be checked at once, or serious consequences may ensue. When any one finds his ideas less clear than usual, his eyesight dimmed, and his head dizzy, which indispose him for all exertion—physical or mental—he may be quite sure that he is in need of some cooling and purifying medicine. Let him send at once for a box of Holloway's Pills, which will free him from his sufferings, and speedily renew his usual healthful feelings. If the bowels should be irritable, Holloway's Ointment should be rubbed over the stomach and liver every night and morning. It will wonderfully augment the corrective powers of the Pills.

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vessels of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds, superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

The DRY DOCK (opened in March, 1859) admits two vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with a depth of water ranging to 15½ feet. A second DRY DOCK of larger dimensions will shortly be completed, and available for the heaviest Steamers.

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMON and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon street, London, E.C.

COMMERCIAL POSTSCRIPT.

—o—

In another column we have noticed the result of the meeting of the dealers. The importers having withdrawn their resolution abolishing the one pound draft, have signed a fresh undertaking that the resolutions in regard to the Customs scale of weights and the three months prompt shall be adhered to. The dealers are still negotiating, but it is quite expected that they will yield these points.

The steamer Erl King, with the first cargo of new teas from Hankow, arrived at Suez on the 17th, and may be expected here in a fortnight. She passes through the Canal without delay.

The str. Diomed may be shortly expected, her destination having been changed from Odessa to London.

CHINA.

(RECEIVED VIA GALLE, JULY 14.)

BOMBAY, JULY 13.—Advices received from Nanking state that serious tumults have occurred there in consequence of the kidnapping of children, in which foreigners were believed to be implicated. Several Chinese were tortured, and confessed that the foreigners were implicated. An attack by the mob on the French missionaries was hourly expected. The excitement was spreading, and at the instigation of Consul Medhurst Her Majesty's gunboat Dove proceeds to Nanking to afford protection.

GALLE, JULY 12.—The China mail, which has just arrived here, brings no news of the alleged massacre at Peking. A Hong Kong journal announces disturbances at Nanking, but the missionaries escaped and order was restored.

(RECEIVED VIA KIACHTA, JULY 13.)

TIENTSIN, JUNE 27.—Gunboat Opossum arrived. Europeans more secure; Protestant chapels destroyed; converts being killed; missionaries and other foreigners all safe; missionaries supposed to put out children's eyes and to put them to death. Gunboats Dove and Scorpion coming up, anticipating missionary troubles.

SHANGHAI, JUNE 22.—Silk: Market quiet; No. 3 Tsatlee, 32s. 6d.; Red Peacock, 25s.; stock, 600 bales. HONG KONG IN 1870.

THE following account of the present condition of Hong Kong is from the pen of a correspondent who knew the place from the time Sir HENRY POTTINGER landed on it as a roadless fishing village in 1842. The marvellous progress of the place is one of the most striking examples of the energy and pluck of the Anglo-Saxon. Even the far-famed San Francisco and its wonderful development—considering the difference of climate—does not equal the rise of Hong Kong since its occupation by the English. Our correspondent has been absent from the place in other parts of China, but during the whole period of thirty years has had an almost uninterrupted residence in Hong Kong and ports in China, and is the only man who exceeds the late DOUGLAS LAPRAIK in length of residence. He says:—

Returning to the south of China after an absence at the north of over seven years, I find a good many changes both in Hong Kong and Canton, pointedly among public works in the colony being the Praya, the public gardens, new roads in the upper part of town, the planting of numerous trees, the erection of a capacious gaol and police station, telegraph wires over the hills and around the north and west fronts of the island, a Sailors' Home, several terraces of barracks in the Military Cantonment, a new Seamans' Hospital, &c.; while outside the town we have to notice the water works, a huge gaol at Stone-cutters' island, and some police and military buildings at Kowloon. Among establishments created by private enterprise, prominent of buildings are the City Hall, Freemason's Lodge, and Union Chapel, the Gas Works, a foundry, another patent slip, sugar refinery, spirit distillery, another dock at Aberdeen and one at Kowloon, the plunging baths and several club houses (Portuguese, German, and another English, the latter being in the Hong Kong Hotel), hardly a foot of ground between what was Pedder's Hill and Tapingshaw being left unimproved, some of the residences being so interlaced with others that (Judge Small's house to wit) it is hard to find entrances. As some remarks on each of the places here mentioned may be of interest, I give you my jottings on them, and further on will offer an observation or two on the changed political and social aspect of the place.

THE PRAYA.

Excepting the space between the Parade-ground on the west and the Military Hospital on the east, a sea line of about a thousand yards, this noble road extends from East Point (Jardine, Matheson, and Co.) to Navy Bay; and though on Sir John Bowring starting the scheme of its construction he met with very general opposition (by encroaching on what merchants had come to consider the "vested right" of privacy), there can now be no denying that the work is a grand public benefit, an ornament to the city, and most useful for police and military purposes—the spectacle of large steamers of the P. and O. and other companies loading at wharves, springing from the roadway, being facts which in Hong Kong's earlier days people were disposed to doubt could ever be accomplished.

PUBLIC GARDENS.

These are situated directly in the rear of Government House, and extend up the hill to the immediate front of the Old Albany, bounded on the west by the grounds formerly held by Mr. Shelley (Michel Grove), and thence east as far down the hill as the road up will allow. Cut and arranged in terraces, with a fountain in the centre, and prettily bestrewn with peculiarly shaped fir and other trees and shrubs, the picture is really beautiful, and there are covered pavilions and music stands, where the garrison band discourses enchantingly of fine evenings, and stone seats here and there, and croquet lawns, and various appliances for wiling life away in this trying clime; Parsees and Moormen, Amahs and young children being the visitors who most predominate about the time when the sun goes low in the west, and open air exercise or recline is the order of the going after the business of the day; and there are native policemen about to keep peace and order, and, for aught I know, there may be a gardener with a catalogue of the flowers and plants to show to visitors, but I did not see such a man.

UPPER ROADS.

Hong Kong, since the days of the construction of the Queen's road, in the first year of our occupation, has never been happy in the possession of a surveyor capable of designing a good ascent, the consequence being that instead of getting to the upper part of Victoria proper by a carriage-way, parties have either to walk, ride horseback, or use chairs. In speaking of the new upper roads as public works, therefore, I have little to say in praise; nor will they ever be praiseworthy till a design is perpetrated by which carriages can travel on an easy and safe gradient. This might be by starting from the level of the cathedral eastward over the Nullah, and so up on the side of the gorge till the Nullah might be crossed again at a height above the sea, which would make it easy to run down to rear of Navy Bay, and so back Without such a work as this the city of Victoria is defective.

TREES.

Although there is a good deal of shrubbery on some sides of the mountains, and notably in Ningnei Chaoz valley and on the south of the island, I was not prepared to find that the soil on the north face was so genial to the production of trees, and was surprised at the growth, within the last ten years, of huge banians on roads entirely composed of what geologists designate decayed granite. The road between the gap and the foot of Hospital Hill, to wit, was solely formed of the materials excavated at the cutting mentioned—dry gritty sand, without the shadow of what might be taken for nourishment in its nature; yet this road is as pretty a bit of foliage as can be imagined. Old residents like myself can hardly believe their eyes, so wonderfully is Hong Kong in this respect improved for the better. That huge, arid, baulder again, y'clept Government-hill, from the level of the Colonial-office up, is a thick wood, interlaced with lovepaths, cool to the pedestrian in the hottest day. In time Sir Richard MacDonnell says he will have the whole north front covered with groves; and though with so much verdure mosquitos will become more plentiful, and the warble of sparrows at day-light barely endurable, the effect in rendering the atmosphere more beneficial to the human frame can hardly be over estimated. In time the colony will safely bear the title "Sanitarium of the East."

THE GAOL.

When the "lock up," a stone building of twenty-five feet by twenty was constructed in the early part of 1841 (the first substantial public erection on the island), the builder will hardly have foreseen that where he laid the foundation of a prison there it would remain, and that from so small a stem such a large tree would grow. The selection of a locality with all the objection that has been made on the score of its being so high up the hill was a wise one, for it is the very centre of the town, and in the event of local riot could only be reached after a long traverse of streets (above, below, and on each side), which could be easily barricaded. The old gaol buildings—that is, those in which so many cruelties and so much misgovernment were perpetrated during the reigns of the Governors Robinson and Bowring—have altogether disappeared, their site being covered by a range of tall buildings forming the Central Police Station and Police Parade Ground, the gaol itself rising in the rear on what was the site of the old Debtors' Gaol and yard under Chancery-lane, three stories in height, and extending from Arbuthnot-road on the east to Old Bailey-street on the west; it is a magnificent pile, and large enough to contain some 500 prisoners. It is hardly finished yet—that is to say, quarters for the Governor are only now in progress, though these will not take long to complete, and then Victoria Gaol will take rank with any establishment of its kind out of Europe. To a visitor, that which first attracts attention is the exceeding cleanliness of the place—water being so laid that it can be drawn at distances of but a few feet apart in any quarter. To describe the interior fully would require considerable time, and it must suffice to say that, as in well-appointed gaols and houses of correction at home, there are hot and cold baths for prisoners to be immersed in directly they are admitted, clothes, washing-rooms, tailors' rooms, sick bays, lavatories, cooking-houses, carpenters' shops, and all the necessaries to safe and healthful keeping of the inmates, the whole being under the governorship of Mr. Douglas, a gentleman who has had over a score of years' experience in prisons in England and Bermuda. That Mr. Douglas is a humane and shrewd man, well qualified for his post, must be evident to all who have an opportunity of conversing with him; and it is to his foresight and advice, no doubt, that much of the good which the place can boast is due. Among other things touching the discipline pursued I learnt that there is no silent system practised, and no treadmill work, though there is something like the latter for some of the hard-labour men, in the shape of grinding at a wheel forcing water. Hard labour for Europeans consists in working on the roads, and must be hard, indeed, in hot weather. Female prisoners are kept under the matronship of a Macao Portuguese on a ground floor in a building apart from the men's gaol; they do nothing but idle about. The debtors' gaol is also separate from the main building. The dietary is improved for the European convicts, who now get ¾ lb. of meat per day, free of bone (before they only had ½ pound). On dit, the surgeon attendant has lost some of the brusqueness (cruelty?) he exhibited of old.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

SILK SUPPLY.

(July 11th.) Mr. CHADWICK asked the Under Secretary of State for India if he was aware that the Khedive of Egypt, on the suggestion of the Silk Supply Association, had determined to promote the production of silk in Egypt on an extensive scale, and had appointed Mr. Ankatel to superintend an establishment for that purpose; and what steps had been taken by the Government of India to encourage and increase the production of silk, thereby reviving an ancient industry over a large portion of India, where the mulberry tree is indigenous, and affording employment for the people.

Mr. G. DUFF thanked his hon. friend for having called his attention to the subject: but he was unable to reply to the first question. With regard to the second question, on the formation of the Silk Supply Association, in the spring of last year the Secretary of State in Council opened a correspondence with the Governor-General of India and the Governors of Madras and Bombay. The Governor-General wrote to the Secretary of State in Council to state that the Government of India fully appreciated the important object for which the Association was formed, and that he would support it as much as possible. Neither the Madras Government nor the Government of Bombay had formally approved of the project, but there was every reason to believe that they cordially assented to the project. Nearly £500 had been set apart for the propagation of the silkworm in the provinces of Berar and Candeish; and he believed that there was a general desire to promote the growth of silk in India.

THE "CHIEFTAIN."

(14th.) Mr. OTWAY, in reply to Alderman LUSK, said the Chieftain was sold to Messrs. Robertson, who at the time of the purchase asked that they might also be allowed to buy her armament, and the fact becoming known at the Foreign-office representations were made, and the armament was not sold with the vessel. Shortly afterwards information was received at the Foreign-office that the vessel was proceeding down the river armed, and it was thought proper to make inquiry respecting the character and destination of an armed vessel leaving this country when she again touched at an English port. Therefore, upon the arrival of the vessel at Plymouth inquiry was made as to her destination and character, and when it was found that one of the partners of the firm owning the vessel was on board her inquiry immediately ceased. No doubt these proceedings might have occasioned some inconvenience, but there was no unnecessary detention; and the inconvenience, such as it was, might have been obviated if the parties who purchased and despatched this armed vessel had communicated with the Foreign-office and had made known the country for which she was destined. It would be obviously impossible to carry out the neutrality laws of this country if armed vessels belonging to private persons were to be permitted to leave the country without inquiry as to their character and destination. In answer to a further question by Mr. Alderman LUSK, Mr. OTWAY said the Government were informed that a portion of the cargo consisted of Armstrong guns, and that seemed to form an additional reason for looking closely after her.

LEGAL AND CRIMINAL.

JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.—JULY 7.

(Present—LORD CAIRNS, SIR W. ERLE, SIR J. COLVILLE, AND SIR L. PEEL.)

LYALL V. JARDINE AND OTHERS.

Counsel: For the appellant, Mr. Serjeant Sargood and Mr. Lord; for the respondents, Still and Maclean, Mr. de Gex, Q.C., and Mr. Holl; for petitioning creditors, Sir Roundell Palmer, Q.C., and Mr. Watkin Williams; and for official assignee, Mr. J. D. Bell and Mr. B. M. Smith.

This appeal, which arose out of the bankruptcy of Messrs. Lyall, Still, and Co., of Hong Kong, was preferred, by special leave of Her Majesty in Council, against an order made by the Supreme Court of Hong Kong on the 23rd May, 1867, whereby the appellant, George Lyall, was adjudicated bankrupt, together with his co-partners, the respondents, Charles Frederick Still and George Francis Maclean. Mr. Lyall sought by his appeal to set aside the adjudication, so far as he was concerned, on the ground that the Supreme Court had no jurisdiction to adjudicate him bankrupt, there being no sufficient Act of Bankruptcy against him; and he alleged that the Supreme Court would have dismissed the petition for adjudication in Hong Kong, or annulled the adjudication as against him, if it had been made aware, within the time limited for showing cause against the adjudication, that the appellant had, on the 18th of April, 1867, been adjudicated bankrupt by the Court of Bankruptcy in London, and was at that time still subject to the jurisdiction of that Court. Sir Roundell Palmer, on behalf of Messrs. Jardine and Co., the petitioning creditors, took a preliminary objection to the hearing of the appeal, on the ground that no application had been made by the appellant to the Supreme Court to annul the adjudication, and that it was the invariable practice of the Judicial Committee to refuse to hear an appeal when no application had been made to the Court below. The Committee assented to this proposition, but said they would hear the facts of the case, as there might be some special reason for deviating from the common practice.

In order to understand the judgment of the Committee it will be necessary to give the facts which appeared upon the proceedings, and were adverted to in the course of the somewhat lengthy arguments which occupied the Committee nearly the whole day. Messrs. Lyall, Still, and Co. carried on business in London and China in and prior to 1867, under the style or firm of "Lyall, Still, and Co." in China, and "George Lyall and C. F. Still" in London. The firm having fallen into insuperable difficulties, it was thought advisable that they should be made bankrupts in Hong Kong. With that view the appellant sent a power of attorney, dated the 11th Feb., 1867, to his co-partner, C. F. Still, in Hong Kong, appointing him his attorney, for the purpose of enabling him, amongst other things, to sign or file any declaration or petition in insolvency or bankruptcy, and to do all other necessary acts for winding up the affairs of the firm. This power of attorney arrived in Hong Kong early in April, 1867, and on the 18th of that month a petition, dated the 13th, signed by or on behalf of all the partners, was presented to the Supreme Court, stating the fact of the insolvency of the firm, and praying an adjudication in bankruptcy. This petition, although not further acted on, was, under Section 16 of the Colonial Bankruptcy Ordinance, an act of bankruptcy. On the 2nd of May the appellant (by his attorney, C. F. Still), and C. F. Still and G. F. Maclean, by deed of that date, assigned unto Robert Lyall all their effects, real and personal, to be administered for the benefit of their creditors, in like manner as if they had been adjudicated bankrupts. This also was an act of bankruptcy. On the 21st May, Jardine, Matheson, and Co. filed a petition, as creditors of Lyall, Still, and Co., in the Supreme Court of Hong Kong, praying an adjudication in bankruptcy against them, and on the 23rd of May the petition came on for hearing. At the hearing Mr. Pollard appeared for the appellant, and informed the Court that he had been instructed by him under a power of attorney, produced and filed in Court, to appear and request that the adjudication might then be made without sending to England, or service on him or on his behalf (which service was required by Section 10 of the Colonial Ordinance), and he submitted to and admitted that he had been then properly adjudicated bankrupt, and to abide by and not question such adjudication, and to submit in all things, as bankrupt, to the authority of the Court. Thereupon the Chief Justice, not without difficulty, made the order of adjudication, qualifying it by a statement that he made the adjudication because all the creditors to any amount, and the bankrupts, concurred and asked it; that the case was not to be taken as a precedent, but that he acted under the specialities of that particular case. Upon the faith of this adjudication being good, the official assignee realised the assets and did other irremediable acts. It appeared by a statement in the appellant's case that he had notice of this adjudication on the 8th of July, 1867. By Section 182 of the Colonial Bankruptcy ordinance it is provided that if the bankrupt should not, if he were within the colony at the date of the adjudication, within two calendar months after the advertisement of the bankruptcy in the Hong Kong Government Gazette, or, if he were elsewhere, within twelve months after such advertisement, have commenced an action, suit or other proceeding to dispute or annul the petition for adjudication, and should not have prosecuted the same with due diligence and with effect, the Gazette was to be conclusive evidence of the goodness of the adjudication. On the 18th of April, being the same day on which the petition was filed at Hong Kong, an adjudication in bankruptcy against the appellant alone was made in the Bankruptcy Court of London, upon the petition of a friendly creditor, the act of bankruptcy upon which it was based being a declaration of insolvency, made on the 18th of April, by the appellant. The effect of the English bankruptcy was to revoke the appellant's power of attorney, either wholly, as the appellant contended, so as to render all acts done under it, including what, if operative, would have been good acts of bankruptcy, absolutely void; or only so far as it affected to pass property, as the respondents contended, leaving it operative for other purposes. The appellant appears to have been advised that upon the authority of the case of Carter v. Dimmock, 4. House of Lords cases 837, the Chief Justice was functus officio, after advertisement of adjudication in the Hong Kong Gazette, and that any proceeding under Section 182 (by analogy to the practice in England under the English Bankruptcy Act), must be by way of appeal, and consequently he did not make any application to the Supreme Court to supersede the bankruptcy; but on the 12th of May, 1868, being just within the twelve months limited by the above section, and ten months after he had notice of the adjudication, he presented his petition to Her Majesty in Council for leave to appeal. In this petition, which is commented on with some severity in the judgment, no mention was made of the power of attorney, declaration of insolvency, or deed of assignment, and the petition was grounded on the assumption that the appellant had not had notice in time to enable him to show cause against the adjudication in Hong Kong, and was without remedy except by appeal to the Privy Council.

The arguments were very complicated and technical, but the principal legal points of public interest were—First, whether the English bankruptcy revoked the power of attorney so far as the bankrupt's personal status was concerned; it was admitted on all hands that it revoked it as to property. The committee appeared to lean to the view that the power was not wholly revoked, but in the course which the case took it became unnecessary to decide the point. And secondly, whether under Section 182 of the Colonial Ordinance the question in dispute could be again brought before the Chief Justice for rehearing; or whether upon the true construction of that clause, with the light of a similar clause in the English Bankruptcy Act, and the decisions upon that Act, an appeal was necessary. It seems that Section 233 of the English Act is almost identical with Section 182 of the Colonial Ordinance, and in Carter v. Dimmock it was held that under this section, although the bankrupt might not have shown cause within the time limited by Section 104, he might dispute it by appeal to the Lords Justices within the time prescribed by Section 82 of the English Act; but that he could not present a petition to the Commissioner who was functus officio when he had made the order for the insertion of the advertisement. It was argued for the appellant that, by analogy, the Judicial Committee, as regarded a Colonial adjudication, was the same as the Lords Justices in respect of an English adjudication, and that, therefore, the Colonial judge was functus officio from the time of the insertion of the advertisement in the Hong Kong Gazette. On the other side it was contended that the Lords Justices were creatures of statute, and there was no analogy between them and the Queen in Council, who by this appeal was asked to act as a Court of first instance in Bankruptcy—rehearing the case on evidence not before the Court below; and with regard to the case of Carter v. Dimmock, if otherwise applicable to the present case, which was denied, it was distinguishable from the present in the fact that there a rehearing was sought on precisely the same facts as the original hearing, while in the present case additional facts existed which could not have been presented to the Colonial judge in the first instance, and which ought to have been submitted to him before bringing an appeal to the Privy Council.

Lord Cairns, on behalf of the committee, delivered the following judgment :—

Their lordships have in the first instance to advert to the circumstances under which the leave to appeal was granted in this case. Nothing can be more important, than that it should be understood that those who come before this committee upon an ex parte application for leave to appeal should consider it their absolute duty to state in the fullest and frankest way every circumstance connected with the history of the case which possibly can have any bearing on the leave for which they ask. Now their lordships do not mean to attribute either to the appellant, Mr. Lyall, or to his advisers, any intentional disregard of this duty, or any wish in the petition which they presented in the year 1868 to suppress any fact which they might have thought material; but, unfortunately, the petition is one which, when looked at cannot be described otherwise than as a petition which was calculated to mislead the tribunal before whom it was heard. It states in substance, that the appellant, Mr. Lyall, had been adjudicated a bankrupt in London, on the 18th April, 1867. It does not suggest that that had been done, either on his own application, or upon an act committed by him, with a view to have the application made by a friendly creditor. It then proceeds to state that, while he was thus in England adjudicated a bankrupt on the 21st May, 1867, creditors of his firm in Hong Kong had filed a petition in the Court of that colony for the purpose of making the firm bankrupts, and that on that petition they had been adjudicated bankrupts. He does not state that there had been any declaration of insolvency filed by the firm with a view to their bankruptcy in the colony, or that there had been any conveyance or assignment of their property executed by the partners abroad, and by one of them as attorney for himself, with a view to bring about an adjudication in bankruptcy. It is treated as an adverse proceeding in the colony, just as the proceeding in bankruptcy in London is treated as an adverse proceeding against Mr. Lyall. It then proceeds to state that "during the time of these bankruptcy proceedings in the colony, and from thenceforward, Mr. Lyall had been residing in England, had no notice of the adjudication, and was thereby rendered unable to show cause against the validity of the same within the time limited by and pursuant to the provisions of the Bankruptcy Ordinance, 1864." It does not state that under the professed authority of the same power of attorney consent had been given in the colony to expediting and making perfect, as far as consent could do it, the proceedings in bankruptcy, but it treats the whole of those proceedings as proceedings which Mr. Lyall would in every way have opposed and objected to had it been in his power. It assumes, rather than expressly states, that he had come before this tribunal at the earliest moment, for the purpose of protecting rights which had been infringed, and it does not state, what now appears to have been the case, that upon the 8th July, 1867, Mr. Lyall, who must have known before of the power of attorney which he had given, had become aware that that power had been acted on, and that those proceedings in bankruptcy in the colony had taken place; and that from the 8th July, 1867, when he had this knowledge, until the 12th May, 1868, a period of about ten months, he had remained quiescent, and had taken no step, either in the colony or here, for the purpose of disputing the proceedings in bankruptcy under those circumstances, upon statements so eminently insufficient to put this tribunal in possession of a knowledge of all that had occurred, and aided, no doubt, by the view which seems to have been entertained by the advisers of Mr. Lyall, which do doubt was pressed upon their lordships, that after the shorter period of a few weeks mentioned in the bankruptcy ordinance, there was no remedy in the colony, and the only remedy could be here, their lordships granted the leave to appeal. Now, stopping at this part of the case, their lordships cannot but think that if the whole facts which I have endeavoured to state had been made known to their lordships upon the face of this petition, they would have felt themselves unable, under the circumstances, to have granted the leave to appeal which was granted. Passing, however, from that, their lordships have next to consider whether, this leave having been granted, the appeal is one which they properly can entertain. Now the appellant is obliged to come here virtually confessing at the outset that if he is limited to the materials which were before the judge in the colony at the time that this adjudication was made, and if he is not allowed to import into the case the other facts with regard to the London bankruptcy and its bearing upon what was done in the colony, he is unable to sustain his appeal, and is unable to deny that the proceedings in the colony were regular. In that view of the case they clearly would be regular. There was an assignment by the three partners of all their property, an assignment executed by two and by one of the two as attorney for the third under a deed which clearly authorised him to execute that assignment. There was, therefore, an act of bankruptcy, there was a trading, there were all the requisites proper to found a bankruptcy, and there was a proper adjudication upon those requisites, and upon those materials there would be nothing to argue. Admitting that on the materials before the judge the order was proper, the appellant has to contend that this tribunal should look at the other facts which had occurred at the time, although they were not known to the judge—viz., the English bankruptcy and its bearing upon the colonial proceedings, and he has to contend that, looking to the whole of those facts, the order is one which ought not to be supported. Now, their lordships desire to intimate their opinion with great distinctness that that is not a purpose for which this tribunal can be resorted to. This is an appellate tribunal—an appellate tribunal, no doubt, which possesses large power in proper cases, as to admitting evidence or supplementing points in the case which upon hearing and argument may appear in justice to be required; but this is certainly not a tribunal advising Her Majesty, to which resort can be made by those who are obliged at the outset to confess that they have no case for appeal, as the matter stood before the judge who heard the case in the colony, and that their only ground for appeal is the introduction of other matters which were in no way before the judge of primary instance. Their lordships further think that there is nothing whatever in the construction of the 182nd section of the Hong Kong Bankruptcy Ordinance which would prevent, but that there is everything which would empower the present appellant, if he were prepared to bring before the judge in the colony further evidence leading to a different conclusion from that to which the judge arrived in adjudicating in the first instance to have gone to the judge in Hong Kong, to have brought those further questions before him, to have taken his decision by way of rehearing upon this new matter upon the whole of the case, and then would have been the time, if the appellant had been dissatisfied with the decision of the Court, to appeal to Her Majesty in Council. I may observe that the case of Carter v. Dimmock, decided in the House of Lords, which was referred to in argument, does not appear to their lordships to have any contrary bearing to the conclusion at which they have arrived. In that case it appeared that the bankrupt, having abstained from showing cause against the adjudication, although he was in the country and might have done so within the shorter time appointed by the English statute, afterwards applied to the commissioner in London within the twelve months, not upon any new materials but simply for the purpose of disputing the propriety of the adjudication upon the materials upon which it was made, and against which he might have shown cause in a limited time. The House of Lords held that that was a course which was not open to him, and Lord Cranworth in announcing the decision of the House of Lords states expressly that it was only playing with words to treat that proceeding as anything but an appeal, that the second application to the commissioner without any change of the materials upon which it was to be supported was simply appealing to the commissioner from his own order, and upon the same materials Lord Cranworth said that in the proper construction of the English Act that course was the course which ought to have been taken in the Court of Appeal, namely, before the Lords Justices, and could not be taken before the commissioner. Their lordships, therefore, upon this ground alone would feel themselves unable to entertain this appeal, and this observation is sufficient for the disposal of the appeal. Their lordships, however, are bound to add that, although they do not propose to travel out of their proper functions and to decide as a court of first instance upon the merits of this case, which never was brought before the judge at Hong Kong, their lordships wish to add that they have not been satisfied by any argument which they have heard that if this matter had been brought with these new materials before the judge in the Court at Hong Kong it would have been the duty of that judge to have superseded or annulled the bankruptcy. There appears to have been a petitioning-creditor's debt, constituted, if not by the assignment made subsequent to the London bankruptcy, yet by the declaration of insolvency filed by the two partners upon the spot, and signed by them on behalf of their absent partner as well as of themselves, and that was at the time when there had been despatched to one of these partners a power of attorney, which clearly gave him authority to file a declaration of that kind. Their lordships are not satisfied that the circumstance that before the proceedings in bankruptcy were taken in the colony there had been a London bankruptcy of Mr. Lyall alone would have prevented, or ought properly to have prevented, the adjudication against the firm in the colony. It might give rise to questions between the assignees under the two bankruptcies as to what were their relative rights of property, but their lordships are by no means satisfied that it would not be altogether regular, after a separate bankruptcy against one of the partners in England, to have a joint bankruptcy against the firm upon proper materials in the colony, leaving it of course open to the English assignee to make any application as to the conduct of that bankruptcy or the rights under it which he might be advised to make; but they are not satisfied that it would be in the mouth of Mr. Lyall, especially after the power of attorney which he executed, after the appearance made on his behalf under that power in the Court by counsel, after the consent given on his behalf under that power to the completion of the proceedings in bankruptcy in the colony, in any way to quarrel with what had been done by those proceedings. Upon the whole, their lordships are clearly of opinion that it is their duty to advise Her Majesty that this appeal should be dismissed with costs, to be paid to the various respondents.

Agents for the appellant, Messrs. Lawrance, Plews, and Co.; agent for respondents, Still and Maclean, Mr. Ambrose Parsons; for petitioning creditors, Messrs. Freshfields; for official assignee, Messrs. Bailey, Shaw, and Co.

THE FRENCH IN JAPAN.

The following is the substance of an article which appeared in Le Monde. It is signed Leon Pages :—

The Minister of Marine has asked for and obtained a grant of 290,000 francs for the French naval station in Japan, and it has also been determined to reinforce that station, in view of the serious religious persecutions and internal dissensions in that Empire. In the debate which took place on the vote, M. Chesnelong declared that the persecution of native Christians was in defiance of rights the most sacred, and he hoped that the Powers of Europe and America would concert some measure to put an end by their representation to these extravagant atrocities. He further added that the dignity of France, as well as prudence, pointed to a further reinforcement of the naval station in that part of the world. Since this debate took place, it has been decided to increase the naval forces in Japanese waters.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, July 12.

The unexpected candidature of Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen for the vacant throne of Spain, that has aroused the susceptibilities and dormant jealousy of the French towards Prussia, did not fail to make a profound sensation in this country, and has given another proof of Count Bismark's sagacity in steadily refusing to listen for a moment to the proposals made by the economical members of the German Parliament, who wanted to cut down the Army Estimates last session, on the ground that there was no cause to fear hostilities with France, or any chance of an European war. Germany was taken by surprise quite as much as France; and though the intelligence had the effect of depreciating the value of all Government securities in the Stock Exchange at Berlin, Frankfort, and here, the fall has not been near so great as at Paris. Whilst the French newspapers are endeavouring to out-Herod each other in stirring up the angry feelings of their fellow-countrymen, and are full to overflowing with expressions of hatred and jealousy towards Prussia, the German press holds a calm and dignified language, pointing out that if the French are determined to provoke a war on a question that is no concern of theirs, but rather solely of the Spanish nation, Germany will certainly not refuse to take up the glove; but they expect that this uncalled-for ebullition of feeling on the part of their excitable neighbours will soon blow over, and they will then cool down and take a matter-of-fact view of the case, and perceive that Germany has given no cause for a quarrel.

Two legislative enactments of considerable importance came into operation on the 1st inst. The abolition of the navigation dues on the river Elbe, so often promised and never fulfilled, has now at length become un fait accompli, and for the whole course of that noble river, from its source in the mountains of Bohemia till it falls into the North Sea—a distance of more than 1,000 miles—the navigation is perfectly free. The other measure is the alteration of the age at which all Germans of both sexes obtain their majority, which now takes place on the completion of their eighteenth year. In connection with this subject is the abolition of the compulsory requirement for females to have a curator or guardian, without whose consent and signature no legal document was binding.

Among the many changes that have become necessary in consequence of the introduction of the new metrical decimal system is another system of denominations for the calibre of artillery guns. It is now settled that they are in future to be characterised by their width of bore and no longer by the weight of their balls. Thus the four-pounder is to be called an eight centimetre gun, a six-pounder a 9 centim., a twelve-pounder a 12 centim., a twenty four-pounder a 15 centim., a seventy-two-pounder a 21 centim., and a ninety-six-pounder a 24 centimetre. Siege guns and pieces of ordinance for fortresses are to be short and rifled, with a diameter of 15 centimetres' bore. The War-office at Berlin is busily engaged in the work engendered by these changes, as fresh tables of dimensions have to be calculated and drawn up, the range of guns at different elevations and with different charges of gunpowder to be altered, plans of fortresses and other military works to be made to the new scale, and modifications introduced in the division of measuring instruments. This change extends into numerous ramifications, some of which will be accompanied with considerable difficulties; for instance, it will become necessary to teach the soldiers to estimate heights and distances by metres instead of paces, and many of the instruments and apparatus now in use will have to be altered, or fresh ones made at a considerable outlay of money; and it will no doubt be a long time before the general public will have got over the inconvenience and mistakes that are sure to be made in the period of transition and especially at first, till by degrees they shall have become accustomed to the new order of things in domestic affairs and every-day family life.

The Zoological Society of this city acknowledges, in the local press, the receipt of many valuable presents of animals from different parts of the globe, among which are the following:—A porcupine (Hystrix Javanicus) and a Rasse (Viverra Indica) from Herr Steudemann in Sourabaya; a red-headed Cockatoo (Cacatua Moluccensis) from Mr. Consul F. A. Luhdorf; a Ptilinopus Fasciatus from the South Sea Islands, by Messrs. J. C. Godeffroy and Son; sixteen Trichogramoptila punctularia, and an Urolonchа punctularia from India, by Rear-Admiral Kuhn; a Lauri (Stenops tardigradus) from the Molucca Islands, by Herr J. Unger of Singapore; several Globicera Aceanica from the South Sea Islands, by Messrs. J. C. Godeffroy and Son; Herpestes Javanicus from Java, by Captain B. Jacobsen; Paradoxurus Musanga from India, by Herr C. von Pflugk; a ringdove (Caloenus Nicobarica) from Manila, by Captain Schmidt; four Malacca pigeons (Geopelia Striata) by Miss Wilkens; two dwarf Zeboos (Bos Indicus) from Calcutta, by Herr C. Reinhold; a Chinese owl from Herr J. Mencke of Hong Kong; and four streaked earth pigeons (Geopelia Striata) from Herr Ernst Petersen of Java.

In a former letter I mentioned that Count Beust had had the misfortune to lose his eldest son, who was serving on board the Austrian Frigate Donau; further accounts confirm the sad event, and add that he poisoned himself by taking oxalic acid on the 26th of April, when the frigate was at Honolulu, in the Havaii Islands, lingering till the 29th, when he expired, notwithstanding the antidotes administered to him by the naval surgeon on board.

The ex-King George of Hanover has left Hietzing for the summer, and gone to a little bathing place called Gmunden; but he appears to have made up his mind to reside permanently at Vienna, and for that purpose has purchased the beautiful little villa in the street called the Renweg, built by the late Prince Metternich, and surrounded by large gardens. Over the entrance gate are the words Parva Domus, magna dies. The purchase money was 1,000,000 florins, and as the house is really very small and does not contain anything like the accommodation for the regal state in which he has been hitherto living in the palace of his cousin, the Duke of Brunswick, at Hiezing (which is one of the many suburbs of Vienna), it is to be inferred that he intends to reduce his expenditure by discharging a number of his aides-de-camp, ministers, equerries, and other adjuncts of the paraphernalia of a real regal Court, which he brought with him from Hanover in consequence of the events of 1866.

COMMERCIAL.

The political crisis has had a depressing influence on many articles of produce, but the tea market remains unaltered, and a fair amount of business has been done; among the sales were 2452/4 and 615/8 chests Congou, 476/8 do. Souchong, and 127/8 do. Hayson, all by private contract. By public auction 560 chests Congou and Souchong of the late arrivals realised good prices, though more or less sea-damaged. Cassia lignea continues in favour, and commands an easy sale at 11 schillings banco. There is also more demand for Pepper, Singapore realising 5¼ to 5¾ schillings banco. Of Penang the market is quite denuded. Nothing has been done in Spelter; the nominal price is 12 1/8 marks banco per centner.

ROTTERDAM, July 13.

A law suit of much interest to Japan merchants is now pending before the Amsterdam Court. A certain house in the capital handed to another house, established in the same town, bills of lading and invoices of an important shipment of goods, shipped to Shanghai and destined for sale at Decima at stipulated prices. The last-named house guaranteed the value of the goods and the solvency of the Japan house. The merchandise, however, remains yet unsold, and consequently the Japan firm has summoned the Amsterdam house to pay the advances made for the payment of the duties, insurance premiums, storage, &c. The first-named house in Amsterdam maintains that it had nothing to do with the Japan house, because it consigned to a firm in Amsterdam. The Court has not yet given a decision—the arguments upon this intricate question being very prolix. The Japan house is represented by Mr. Th. A. de Haas Az, and the Amsterdam house by Mr. Levy.

The topic of the day is the question whether Mr. Myer will be recalled from Java or no. You will remember that the local paper, the Amersfoortsche Courant, spread a rumour some days ago that the Governor-General would repatriate, and notwithstanding that the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant called the assertion "tattle," there are some influential papers which confirm the news. The Friesche Courant asserts that his successor will be Mr. Loudon, a former Minister of the Colonial Department and now Royal Commissary in the province of South Holland. Of course I give these rumours for what they are worth; it is impossible to ascertain whether they are well founded.

The last Java Bode brought the surprising news that the East India Railway Company had not only stopped working, but that the advance made by the Government of f.175,000 for the construction of the line in the Samarang Principalities could not prevent the company becoming bankrupt. This news, however, proved to be incorrect, and Het Vaterland says that it is not at all improbable that the Batavia papers will be prosecuted for calumniating the company, which has taken such measures as will provide for the completion of all the necessary works.

After a prolonged period of buoyancy, resulting in large gains to the holders of almost every description of stock, public securities and trade generally are now suffering great depression, consequent upon the present state of European politics. The abundance of money forms, however, the chief, and certainly a very powerful, set-off against the political influences which will probably continue to weigh upon the markets for some time to come, even though the Prince of Hohenzollern has declined to accept the candidature of the Spanish Throne.

The well-known Mr. Joosten has published an important pamphlet upon the sugar-culture in Java. Like Mr. Woudrichem van Vliet, he disapproves of the Bill carried by the Second Chamber, and gives a draft of his own. Of course he wishes that the Lords may outvote the Bill. The Liberal papers, however, urge the acceptance of the measure on the ground that should it be defeated it is most improbable that we should obtain in its place any better regulation of the culture.

H.M. steamer Argus lies ready to sail from Hellevoetsluis for Java. The vessel, which is now provided with steam power, will start on the 17th, and will take the route via the Suez Canal. H.M.'s clipper Jason left Brouwershaven last Sunday, bound for Batavia. Amongst the officers on board are Messrs. G. C. C. Thierens, B. M. van der Weide, and W. C. Bohtlingh, who declined to proceed in the Argus on the ground that that ship was unseaworthy.

The members of the First Chamber of the States-General met yesterday for the despatch of business. In a few days they will deal with several Bills carried by the Second Chamber.

At a recent meeting of shareholders of the Dutch Trading Company Mr. A. F. Insinger was elected as commissary, and Mr. G. H de Marenz Oyens as commissary-substitute.

It is said that the loan of f.500,000 in behalf of the ironworks of Messrs. Paul van Vlissingen and Dudok van Heel is entirely subscribed.

His Majesty has conferred the knighthood of the Netherlands Lion on Jhr. Mr. F. P. van der Hoeven, Minister-Resident in Japan.

I hear that the examination "A" for Indian functionaries will be abolished in a short time.

ROTTERDAM, July 15.

Two Ministerial councils were held yesterday. The Minister for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Roest Van Limberg, has resigned and will be replaced by Mr. Thorbecke. The Continental situation is regarded as highly critical; the army is to be mobilised, and the soldiers of the Contingent of 1869, who were to leave to-day on unlimited furlough, will remain provisionally with their regiments.

COMMERCIAL.

COFFEE.—The tone of the market is very healthy, and for some parcels a considerable advance has been paid. Lots out of the last sale are very scarce. The transactions include—1,869 b. Java, ex Evanell and Henri Joseph; 2,290 b. Macassar, ex Hellevoetsluis, at 31c.; 595 b. Java, ex Noach III., at 34½c.; 2,043 b. Macassar, 870 b. Java, 500 b. Java, ex Almo; 600 b. Padang, ex St. Jan, at 37½c. to 47c.; 500 b. Java, ex India Packet; 334 b. do. ex Evanell; 1,800 b. Macassar, ex Hellevoetsluis, at 31½c. to 33c.; 1,544 b. Macassar, ex India Packet, at 32c. to 33c.; 513 b. Macassar, ex Batavia. About 5,000 b. Java and Macassar, ex several ships, sold in private auction at 19c. to 34c.

RAW SUGAR.—The Trading Company will offer on the 21st instant 52.300 mats Java Sugar, which are valued as follows:—5, at f.25; 6, f.27; 7, f.26½; 8, f 28½; 9, f 30½; 10, f.30½; 11, f.32½; 12, f.33½; 13, f.34½; 14, f.35; 15, f.35; 16, f.35½; 17, f.36; 18. f.36½; 19, f.36¾; 20, f.37. The market is very firm, but inactive, no parcels being offered. The stock in bond was, on the 15th, 51,289,402 kilo.

RICE.—Since the weather changed there is a complete standstill in business.

SPICES.—Spices remain very firm; an important business has been done for export. The actual quotation is—No. 1, 125c. to 126c.; No. 2, 119c. to 120c. Mace: The stock is almost exhausted, so that nothing is offered; for one lot D 205c. was paid.

JAVA TOBACCO.—Several parcels sold by private tender, viz.: 1,000 b. PK/Blitar, ex Sindbad, 483 b. do., ex County of Elgin, 325 b. Blitar, ex Cornelia, 131 b. VG, ex Utrecht, 341 b. Java JHW; in a few days important quantities will be offered here and at Amsterdam in private auction. Samples have arrived per mail from several floating parcels per Rembang. The quality of these is very good, but no transactions are reported.

MANILA CIGARS.—About 750,000 ps.' Cortados, 1869, were sold to one house. The stock in first hands is nearly exhausted.

INDIGO.—Lower prices have directed somewhat more attention to this article, but no transactions of importance have taken place.

TIN is dull, without transactions. For a few lots Banca f.78½ was paid. Billiton is nominally quoted f.76¾.

ARRACK.—75 casks, ex Johan, changed hands.

Kernhoven, J. van den Brock, J. de Pauly, Mrs. Maclean and family, Mrs. Schmidt and family, Mrs. Hamel and family, Miss Kleyn.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.—For Java: per Kennemerland, Mrs. J. M. Bruyn, Machielse, and children, Messrs. A. D. J. de Man, S. van Slooten, H. Steinau.

THE OPIUM TRADE.

A Calcutta correspondent writes on this subject as follows:—

From all the accounts we receive here it appears to be tolerably certain that Sir Rutherford Alcock's commercial engagements with the Chinese Government will not be ratified at home. So far as India is concerned, this is a result to be desired. Even without his untoward assistance there is very palpable danger impending over the opium revenue of this country. What the real aim of the Chinese Government is I do not profess to be able to decide. Their avowed intention to foster the cultivation of opium at home until the Indian trade is destroyed, and then to strangle their own, by this means of enforcing total abstinence, may be what they sincerely intend, but I take leave to doubt it. It is, I suspect, but a wily mode of holding a candle to the devil, and of securing, on grounds of the loftiest morality, the fullest profits derivable from immorality. Admitting, however, that the Chinese Government is really sincere in its aim, I question very much much whether it is attainable. During the proposed process the Chinese revenues would reap an enormous harvest, ever increasing as the Indian trade failed; and when the first act was completed and China grew all her own opium, it is at least open to doubt whether the then Government would retain a sufficiency of its pristine virtue to cut itself off from a source of wealth which, by that time, it would have come to look upon as an all-important element of the finance of the country. Moreover, as, on the removal of all restriction on its consumption, the national taste the use of the drug. But be this as it may, the fact remains that the for opium, already so strong, would have been vastly stimulated, it is, to say the least, problematical whether the people would or could forego cultivation of opium in China is already very great, and is rapidly increasing, and that the drug locally produced is not far inferior to Indian opium, and can of course be sold at a cheaper rate. With this local recognition of opium, the old argument as to the immorality of the Indian trade disappears. It will be necessary, therefore, for the Indian Government henceforward to fight China in her own markets, and while raising the largest revenue from opium attainable, to keep the price at which it can be sold in China so low as to prevent competition from other quarters, and if possible to undersell the Chinese growers themselves. The mode of attaining this end was indicated some few years since by Sir Cecil Beadon, perhaps the highest authority on this subject that India has had, and that is to very greatly increase the cultivation of opium in Bengal, and to sell a larger amount at a lower price in China. Hitherto we have been able to command the market, but in a very short time the Chinaman would accustom himself to the inferior drug procurable on the spot, and the sale of the highly flavoured and costly Indian opium would be confined to a few rich connoisseurs. The Indian Government are fully awake to the great importance of this question, and their action will, I have reason to think, follow the course suggested by Sir C. Beadon. To extend the cultivation of the poppy in Bengal it will be necessary to give the cultivators a higher price for their produce and also to extend its growth to other parts of India, to Rohilcund, the Punjaub, and perhaps, though the idea is heretical, to Bombay, to the exclusion to a certain extent of Malwa opium. The alternative plan is, abandoning the monopoly of cultivation and manufacture, which is the Bengal system, and introducing the Bombay system, which levies a heavy transit duty on the opium manufactured by private enterprise in Malwa. I am, however, distinctly of opinion that the Bengal system, securing the monopoly of the direct purchase, preparation, and sale of the drug, should be maintained. Practically, the Government derive something like £90 a chest more from Bengal opium than is derived under the Bombay, or "pass" system, from Malwa opium. Of course, a heavier duty might be imposed on Malwa opium, but this would certainly at first check production, and a reduced supply now means an increased production in China—a consummation religiously to be avoided. I have, therefore, little doubt that, sooner or later—the former for choice—the Indian Government will adopt Sir C. Beadon's view, and that they will, in furtherance of their real interest, stimulate the cultivation of opium by the payment of a higher price to the cultivator, and, as a consequence, extend the area over which it is produced. The enhanced price of, say, one shilling in the pound, would be all important to the cultivator, while the difference it would make to the Government would be insignificant.

THE FRENCH MINISTER AT PEKING.

Our Paris correspondent writes:—"Only yesterday we knew for certain that the resignation of the Comte de Lallemand was absolute, and that M. Geoffroy, sub-director of American and Indo-Chinese Affairs under the Minister, had been appointed his successor. The Government has been severely blamed for leaving the Embassy at Peking for two years with no one at its head but the unfortunate Comte de Rochechouart, who is called a simple Attaché of the second class; but this designation can scarcely be correct, as he has seen a good deal of service in Persia and China; his real standing was probably second Secretary of Legation. This makes, however, but little difference. The French Government cannot be held blameless for leaving the Embassy at Peking in such a condition, and the Governments of England and Russia must share the blame. Neither of the three have had a responsible Minister there for some time, though the absence of our representative is of the shortest duration, and the weakness of any of the Embassies of the great Powers has its effect on the attitude of the Chinese, and endangers all the rest."

OUR POLICY IN CHINA.

A letter from Shanghai in the Standard says:—"Another great feature of the present Government's patent mode of treating China is the meek, Christian, non resistance principle. They say—Dear children in China, if you get killed any time, do not cry out angrily or lose your tempers, but wait a few months till we have officially laid the matter before the Peking authorities, and all will be well. Let me give one piece of advice to Her Majesty's Government if they mean to carry out this policy. Let them station as many gunboats in China waters as they like, but on no account trust them with powder and shot. When an Englishman, with these dangerous remedies handy, sees his countrymen massacred or his flag insulted, his first impulse (to which he, perhaps, too often gives way) is certainly not to write a letter to Peking, but to adopt other modes of action first and write afterwards. Moreover, even without a gunboat, now that it is openly proclaimed by our paternal Government that they will not protect us, it has struck many members of the community that it is not impossible we may protect ourselves. At this moment there are more six-shooters in this settlement than there are European individual to wield them. Altogether I fancy the Foreign-office can carry out its policy nicely on a map of China at home, but scarcely so well in the real live China amongst real live bodies of Europeans and Americans, who are not going practically to allow themselves to be experimented on by theorists, who are necessarily ignorant of the true state of the case."

THE FRENCH MASSACRE.

Our Paris correspondent furnishes us with the following:—

The papers here add to the massacre of all those mentioned in the London despatches that of the whole of the French resident, or present at the time, in Peking, but no authority for this terrible addition to the calamity is given, and it looks like the offspring of that mischievous practice of writing too glibly about serious matters which ruins the credit of French journalism. The tone of feeling respecting the subject will be understood by the following extracts from the Gaulois:—"Here we have the fruit of the treaties obtained at the cost of so many sacrifices. The news did not obtain full credit last night, but those who were in communication with the members of the French Embassy at Peking believe it fully; they know that our countrymen were the object of constant hostility on the part of the Chinese, who have many times threatened them with death, and they regard the massacre announced in the London papers as the natural consequence of this hostility and these menaces."

The unfortunate Comte Julien de Rochechouart belonged to one of the oldest families in France; its armorial bearings are a wavy sea, with the curious motto, "Before the dry earth appeared, the Rochechouart bore the waves." He won a reputation for bravery by bearding a Persian general at the head of his men for some insult to the Count's attendants, and the Shah took the affair fortunately in good part, laughing at his officer's discomfiture. He brought a Persian servant home with him, and the following saying, attributed to the Count, has a diplomatic ring:—"My man cannot speak a word of French, which is very convenient; he knows all my friends, and he cannot chatter to others." In China he had often been exposed to personal danger, and he trusted little the intentions of the Chinese; but he believed that his precaution and his knowledge of the habits of the country secured him from being surprised. The subject is expected to be mentioned in the Corps Législatif this afternoon; I shall not get any account of this in time for post, but the telegraph will doubtless carry you the main facts.

CONSULAR "EXTRAS."—A letter in The Times, on the subject of "allowances" to British Consuls and the absence of any check upon their expenditure, has called forth the following reply from "Olim Auditor":—To show how sharply Consular accounts are overhauled at Somerset-house, let me give the following amusing extract from official records:—"Query from the Audit-office, Somerset-house, on Consular (China) accounts. Item.—'June quarter, D 11, includes boat hire to "Wageola" with Chinese in search of stolen singing birds; 64 cents.' Remark.—'The service for which this boat hire was paid appears to be of an unusual character; the authority of Her Majesty's Minister for the charge is therefore requested. In the meantime 2s. 8d. will be provisionally disallowed.'" Answer by the Consul (at Newchwang, China):—"The service is one of a very common kind. One of the chief duties of Her Majesty's Consuls in China, as judges and magistrates, is to do justice to Chinese complainants against British subjects. When a Chinese indicates a British vessel as containing property stolen from him, a person from the Consulate (usually the constable) is sent to search for it, and the Consul is not allowed to abstain from this duty because the property may be able to sing. Were Consuls to do so, it is probable that singing bipeds without feathers, and of the feminine gender, would be carried off to British ships. The authority of Her Majesty's Minister, received yesterday, from Peking, is enclosed herewith."

IF M. Garnier's narrative of the French Cambodian expedition to Western China, of which he formed part, is to be deemed correct, the taste for opium, which in most countries is confined to the human species alone, has in the parts of China where the poppy is grown, been communicated also to the lower animals. According to his account horses and pigs in Western China run wild at the sight of poppy fields, and such a mastery does the taste for the weed gain over them that horses which have been accustomed to feed upon the poppy pine and die if deprived of their favourite food. Pigs fatten quickly when fed upon the same plant, but when so fattened must be immediately slaughtered. Rats also, by long habit, become slaves to the effects of the drug, a curious fatal instance of which is mentioned by M. Garnier. At a town in the province of Yunnan, where there was established a large opium manufactory, rats used to come regularly in great numbers to inhale the fumes from the coppers, and eventually became so dependent on the stimulant for existence that after the destruction of the factory at the taking of the town by the Panthays, thousands of them were found dead around the ruined factory to which they had resorted to inhale their accustomed intoxicating fumes. To the credit of bees, it should be stated that, according to M. Garnier, they alone of the animal world have a horror of the poppy, and desert entirely those districts in which it is grown.

Dr. ADAMS, late of H.M.S. Actæon, has published a very interesting account of his researches as a naturalist at Rio, the Cape, China, and Japan, under the title of Travels of a Naturalist in Japan, &c. Our traveller ascended the Great Wall of China where it ends in the waters of the Gulf of Lian-tung; but it seems to have made less impression upon him than did an "immense Rhizostoma," "three feet across the disc," which, being stranded on the shore of that same gulf, was mercilessly sliced up for chow-chow by the matter-of-fact Chinese, who would eat a specimen of the Dodo itself if they could light upon it. From Vladimir Bay to Niphon, Dr. Adams had good success in chasing the "small deer" he most loved to pursue. He does not enumerate the additions he made to the recorded stores of former successful explorers; but no doubt they were not a few. Such an observer, however, would not fail to note some curious traits in the habits of the creatures he loved to watch. One such observation he makes of the nut-hatch of Japan, which, when he substituted for its usual soft food the hard hazel-nut, placed this novel pabulum in his water-glass, "evidently with a notion that it would in time become softer."

A CORRESPONDENCE has been published between the Governor of Ceylon and the Colonial Secretary relative to the preparation of a catalogue of the Pali, Singhalese, and Sanskrit MSS. of the Buddhist monasteries and other libraries in Ceylon. The correspondence is enriched by a long letter from Professor Max Muller, who cordially approves of the Government intention in the matter, and offers some valuable suggestions. He wishes the collectors to bring together a complete set of the canonical books of the Buddhists with their commentaries, whether in Pali or Singhalese; and observes that it would not cost much to have the whole of the existing Pali literature of Ceylon transcribed and deposited in a safe place. Whatever may be the intrinsic value of ancient Indian literature, he remarks, it is at least older than that of Italy and Greece, if not of every country in the world; and he hopes that nothing will now interfere with the intention of the Indian Government to collect and preserve Sanskrit MSS.

A COSTLY SWORD.—The manufacture of a presentation sword for the Sultan Morhammod of Borneo has been entrusted to Mr. J. W. Benson, and has just been completed. It is a very fine specimen of goldsmith's work. The scabbard is of fine gold, richly chased, enamelled and jewelled with carbuncles and emeralds. A finely modelled crocodile forms the chape, and the centre panel bears the name of the Sultan, with the following inscription:—"Adil Chalifot-oelmoeminin van Koeti," and the other panels are elaborately chased with emblems of the country. The hilt is also of gold, jewelled with carbuncles and emeralds, with green enamelled wreath, a well-modelled tiger forming the guard. In the centre of the belt is a badge with the crest of the Sultan executed in crystal, surrounded with enamel and jewels. The alue of the weapon and its appendages is 700 guineas.

THE Gaulois announces the successful completion of one of those undertakings which recall the surprising labours of the Benedictines of old. Monseigneur Perny, Vicar Apostolic in the Celestial Empire has just presented the Emperor with the first volume of a French and Chinese Dictionary. This is a wonderful monument of linguistic skill and of conquered difficulties. The intellectual exertion alone was enough to make the stoutest heart quail; but the author had also to overcome mechanical difficulties that were nearly insuperable. He had to form moulds for the 80,000 characters comprising the Chinese language, to run the type, and to set up the work with his own hand. And all this in a little cell at the establishment for foreign missions.

Mr. R. SWINHOE has communicated to the Geological Society a catalogue of the mammals of South China and Formosa, with notes upon the various species that he had observed during his numerous travels in those countries; a second communication from Mr. R. Swinhoe contained a list of birds collected by Mr. C. Collingwood during a cruise in the seas of China and Japan, with notes by the collector. The collection was stated to embrace examples of thirty-three species, amongst which were several of rare occurrence.

WITH respect to some Prussian medical men who are about to be sent to Japan, the North German Correspondent learns that Dr. Müller, of the 48th Infantry regiment, is likely to be nominated to the post of chief of the medical mission, and that consequently the direction of the medical school at Yedo will be entrusted to him. Dr. Müller was engaged in a similar way with brilliant success on the island of Hayti from 1856 to 1867. From among many candidates he has chosen Dr. Hoffmann, an assistant physician in the navy, as second physician.

THE stream to the Far East by way of the Far West increases. Every year the inquiries at the clubs as to American travel are more numerous, and Messrs. Longmans and Co. have just published a book calculated to answer this end—Westward by Rail, by W. F. Rae; and Messrs. Low and Co. publish two similar books, one styled The Hear of the Continent, by Mr. Ludlow, the other Reminiscences of America, by two Englishmen.

THE American Senate has rejected an amendment to the naturalisation laws, by which the Chinese would have been admitted to the rights of citizenship. It was urged that were this to take place the institutions of the country would be endangered, and a conflict of races would ensue.

The Dutch screw-steamer Prins Hendrik der Nederlanden, Captain Meyer, a new iron vessel built for the Billiton Company of Java, after receiving a full cargo of coal at Falmouth, has sailed for Batavia, via the Suez Canal.

NOTICE has been given to ask the Government under what circumstances the Chieftain, belonging to Messrs. Robertson and Co., which cleared for Japan, was stopped and examined at Plymouth.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

MARRIAGES.

HOLDERNESS—REYNOLDS.—On the 14th July, at the parish church, Hetton-le-Hole Durham, by the Rev. J. S. Nichol, rector, uncle of the bride, assisted by the Rev. J. Crolsdale, vicar of East Rainton, the Rev. Harry Hardwicke Holderness, curate of Dalton-le-Dale, Durham, youngest son of the late William Holderness, Esq., of Batticoloa, Ceylon to Mary Currie, youngest daughter of the late Rev. J. J. Reynolds, for many years Secretary of the Jews' Society. No cards.

DEATHS.

GILMAN—On the 7th July, at Tunbridge Wells, William Anthony Gilman, Esq., for forty-five years in the Bank of England.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite. The Civil Service Gazette remarks.—"The singular success which Mr. Epps has attained by his homœopathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any experimentalist. By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in tin-lined packets labelled—JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemists, London.

SIR RUTHERFORD ALCOCK'S CONVENTION.

WE have no wish to make too much of a victory, but we cannot avoid an expression of satisfaction that the late Convention with China has been buried without the honours of ratification. The objection to it was not so much that it was utterly uncalled for, nor that it showed a friendly feeling towards the Chinese—it was commonly said to be all Heart—nor was it that it unnecessarily relieved the Chinese from certain of their obligations, but it was in great measure that it imposed obligations on us irksome and distasteful. The hostility to the colony of Hong Kong that cropped up throughout it, was so manifest that nothing but something akin to a corresponding feeling could have ensured it a day's consideration in Downing-street. The blow struck at the commerce of the south of China was levelled really at the British colony, and the ridiculous proposal of a Chinese Consul was nothing more than an attempt at a clumsy insult. But we must, as a duty, draw attention to a serious offence committed in the composition of this Convention—in fact, a dangerous violation of the rules of official courtesy and political honesty. There are some gentlemen in the House of Commons who are interested in this matter and understand it, and we regret that no one has asked for the correspondence, if any, between the British Minister and the Viceroy of INDIA on the opium clauses of the Convention, or with the Hong Kong Government on the points that affected the British settlement. Reason tells us that no such communications were made, and that the Minister at Peking deliberately took it upon himself to derange the finances of India without consulting the guardians thereof, and by damaging Hong Kong to gratify the malevolence latent but long felt towards that settlement. Should negotiations be resumed, we trust that the new Secretary of State for the Colonies will act for himself independently and energetically; we do hope that Lord KIMBERLEY will give no ear to the persistent foes of Hong Kong, but loyally insist that the colony be loyally treated. The memorial from the Hong Kong community, sent home some months back (one of the most admirable documents that we have received from the East) is well worthy of Lord KIMBERLEY'S perusal and consideration. To what is therein urged we have little to add, but we may point out that Article XXI. of the old Treaty, to which Mr. MERCER recently called attention, will require revision, and we see that the police authorities of the Colony are at last becoming alive to the inconveniences of that unequal stipulation. There must be mutual rendition of criminals. And yet one other word for his Lordship the new Secretary of State. There must be no more ungenerous grasping at the Colonial Revenues. Our last advices tell us that owing either to a fixed and stubborn purpose on the part of the Colonial-office, or to some misunderstanding of their views on the part of the Governor—it matters not which—the Colony now finds itself with a debt of one hundred and twenty-nine thousand dollars. This should not be. Had the British Government of 1843 intended — but we will not finish the sentence—the founders of the Colony proposed to make it an example to barbarism, an outpost of civilisation, and never contemplated the unworthy treatment it has received.

THE TIENTSIN MASSACRE.

BY the latest telegram, which we publish in another column, it will be seen that further riots and attacks have taken place, extending now to Protestant missions, whereas the previous outrages were strictly confined to the French Roman Catholics. Simultaneously we have reports from Nanking of a revival of the feeling against European missionaries which broke out last year, owing to absurd rumours that the missionaries were connected and implicated in kidnapping little children. Mr. Consul MEDHURST, we are glad to see, has not been afraid to send up to the scene the "inevitable gun boat," and for the moment he certainly could not have had the fear of the Foreign-office before his eyes. Be that as it may, Mr. MEDHURST deserves great credit for at once adopting prompt measures, calculated to bring the local authorities to an immediate sense of their duty, and not to "await orders from Peking," by which time every European would probably be massacred. It is clear now that, owing to the war with Prussia, we cannot expect France to undertake the immediate correction of the Chinese for the murder of French subjects, and it is the more important that our officials be up and ready to correct or avert any injury or insult to English subjects.

A NEW ROUTE TO CHINA.

Under this title the Illustrated Gazette of Leipsig treats its readers to a dish of nonsense about England. The wonderfully clever author of the article says that the route to the east of China is rendered dangerous by the typhoon; "More than one vessel has been lost there," which is doubtless true, and "the corsairs who devastate these countries augment the danger." "Another route besides this and that by Kiachta had become an absolute necessity, and the English believe they have found it." We are then treated with an account of the exploration of the Irrawaddi, the towns and the tribes on its banks being most ingeniously but rather puzzlingly spelt. We are told of the rich presents sent by Queen Victoria to the Emperor Soliman, who returned still more magnificent ones, and "promised to send an ambassador by Bhamo to Rangoon to open commerce with the English." Finally, we have the little bit of sting for which only this tale was evidently set forth. "There is no doubt that the new route would save time as compared with the old; there is nothing to fear but from a political point of view. Will the King of Burmah maintain this transit through his country for the advantage of a nation which has already taken several provinces of his Empire? The independence of the new State of Talé is not yet recognised by the Chinese. Engiand will be forced again to aggrandise herself; she will take all Burmah, of which she already possesses half, and thus will become the neighbour of China. Nothing easier, then, than to find cause for war with that country: it is easy to see who will be the winner." The Leipsig print would only cause a smile were it not for the fact that such comments as these are the natural result of the ignorance and heedless assertions of some of our own countrymen, who seem to delight in fouling the nest from which they have emerged well feathered.

Literature, &c.

Poeseos Sinicæ Commentarii. The Poetry of the Chinese. By Sir John Francis Davis, Bart., K.C.B. (New and Augmented Edition.) London: Asher and Co., and James Summers, 3, George-yard, Lombard-street.

This learned essay on Chinese poetry is the only work on the subject in our language. The subject is doubtless not very attractive, but the manner in which it has here been handled renders it far from uninteresting. Instead of a quantity of uninviting formulæ and tables of meters, &c., although the various kinds of verse existing among the Chinese are explained, the book abounds with pretty extracts from the native authors, accompanied by the original characters from beautiful blocks cut in China some forty years ago, and which, when they appeared in the first edition, led Lord Palmerston to assume (in his pleasant style) that it was "a work on Entomology."

But, joking apart, there seems to be more in Chinese poetry than has been "dreamt of in our philosophy," and those who can spare a leisure hour will find the matter very clearly explained by a scholar of classical tastes in this essay.

The Chinese are undoubtedly fond of verse in every shape and form. The first great object in their education being to learn the curious characters of their language, they have been provided with metrical verses in great variety, as well as numerous verses containing historical facts, ethical dogmas, and enumerations of objects to be committed to memory by the young. These are frequently in a trimeter. The oldest poetical work in China has four syllables as the measure in general, but its verse varies from three to seven and eight. This was the earliest and rudest form of poetry—sometimes there was rhyme, sometimes none. But Chinese poetry has improved in harmony since that time, and in the poems of the T'ang dynasty a vast improvement is discernible.

In the lines of five and seven words there is a regular Cæsural pause after the second or fourth syllable, corresponding in some degree to the pause in French Alexandrine, and also in the Latin hexameter. Parallelism is an interesting feature in the construction of Chinese verse; it presents a striking similarity with the Hebrew in this respect. This subject is ably explained by our author who illustrates it with examples.

Sir John Davis has added the pretty ballad on Tea-picking, which Mr. W. T. Mercer has versified and published recently in a volume of poems entitled "Under the Peak."

A curious poem on London, by a Chinese who visited England n 1813, is worthy of persual.

Monetary and Commercial.

With reference to the tea draft question a meeting of the wholesale dealers was held on the 12th inst. at the Commercial Sale Room, Mincing-lane, upwards of sixty of the leading firms being present or represented. Mr. Edwards presided, and read a letter from the chairman of the Importers' Committee, withdrawing their resolution of the 23rd of May, which abolished the 1 lb. draft on teas, but adhering to the other proposed changes in the conditions of sale. The meeting unanimously decided that these changes would not be acceptable to the trade. A resolution, moved by Mr. F. Peek, and seconded by Mr. Salmon, of Moffatt and Co.'s, was carried unanimously, to the effect that a sub-committee of wholesale dealers be appointed to meet the importers, with full powers to settle the various points in dispute, and, if possible, put an end to the controversy.

The half-yearly meeting of the proprietors of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China is called for the 15th of November.

At the meeting of the Ceylon Company (Limited), held on the 13th inst., the resolution recently passed in favour of certain alterations in the articles of association was confirmed.

The Danish frigate Tordenskjold, with a portion of the China and Japan cable of the Great Northern Telegraph Company on board, arrived at Malta on the 6th instant.

A ninth dividend of 1s. in the pound (making 14s. in the pound paid) is now payable to the creditors of the Oriental Commercial Bank (Limited), at the offices of Messrs. Cooper Brothers and Co.

The annual meeting of the British Indian Tea Company (Limited) will be held on the 28th inst.

A petition for winding up the Mont Cenis Railway Company (Limited) is to be heard before Vice-Chancellor Malins on the 22nd inst.

BULLION AND SPECIE.

The following is from Messrs. Pixley, Abell, Langley and Blake's Circular:—

GOLD.—The following are the arrivals since our last:—The Pennsylvania, from New York, £18,000; Hansa, from New York, £77,000; Donau, from New York, £18,200; Lady Jocelyn, from Melbourne, £19,500; Elbe, from West Indies, £29,500; P. and O. steamer Nyanza (overland from Melbourne), £447,500. 300,000 sovereigns have been withdrawn from the Bank for Buenos Ayres, and £40,000, per Good Hope, for the Cape. £157,000 in bars have been purchased by the Bank, and there being at present no Export demand for Gold, it is probable that further larger amounts may be sent in.

SILVER.—There has been no demand for the East, but some enquiry for Holland, all amounts on the market being taken at 60⅝d. per oz. standard. The Elbe, from the West Indies, brought £129,760; the Nestorian, from Quebec, brought £22,800; the Hansa, from New York, brought £20,000. The market is this day firm at the above quotation.

MEXICAN DOLLARS have been sold during the last week at 59⅜d. per oz., but the price is this day 59½d. per oz. A considerable amount is reported to be on the way from Mexico; these, it is stated, may probably be expected towards the end of the month. The Elbe, from the West Indies, brought £20,000. The Bangalore, on the 9th inst., took £27,255 for Penang, £55,000 for Singapore, and £22,630 for Hong Kong.

Exchange on India for Banks Drafts at sixty days' sight is 1s. 10⅞d. to 1s. 11¼d. per Rupee. India Government Loan Notes are without alteration. We quote Four per Cents. 92½ to 93; Five per Cents. 102 to 103; and Five and a Half per Cents. 109½ to 110.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

No material improvement can be quoted in the market which is without change since the date of our last report. There has been some inquiry for the fair qualities of Congou, and prices for these kinds are slightly firmer. The question as to abolition of the draft allowance still acts prejudicially against business. There have been no public sales.

Red-leaf Congous: Siftings and broken-leaf kinds have sold at fully former rates. Fair to good common are in a rather better position. Fair to good flavoury kinds have been more inquired for, but sales are small. Good to fine Kaisows are as last quoted; of finest there are few on offer. Paklin kinds are unchanged. Black-leaf kinds: The lower qualities have been saleable at the decline quoted in our last. Common kinds have also been taken at fully former rates. Good common have met with more inquiry, and the fair qualities have been saleable at 1s. to 1s. 1½d. In good to fine no change has taken place, and of finest the market is very bare. In Amoy kinds no business has been done. New-make Canton kinds are unchanged. Oolongs are unaltered; a few of old import, fair quality, sold at 1s. 1½d. Souchongs are difficult of sale. Scented Teas: Fair common Capers and Orange Pekoes have been in improved demand, and a few sales have been made at better prices. Good to fine Canton Capers are in demand at previous rates. Foochow Capers show no change. Canton Orange Pekoes, of fair to good quality, are still difficult to move at our low quotations. Foochow kinds of common to fair quality are neglected, and for good to fine the demand is limited. Uncoloured Japans are as before. Green Teas: Our market continues much depressed. The common to medium descriptions have been sold at very low rates. Finer grades are scarce, and therefore better supported. Canton-made kinds are unchanged.

The following is from Messrs. Shepard, Harrison, and Rehden's Circular:—The pressure to sell has subsided, but there have been ample supplies available to meet the limited demand which usually sets in at this time of the year. Prices for all kinds Congou may be advised as firmer, but without any general advance being so far paid. In reference to the 1 lb. draft question, numerous meetings have been held, without, however, arriving at a satisfactory settlement, and we understand the concessions importers are willing to make have not been received in the same spirit by the trade, who are content to adhere to the existing custom. Latest telegrams from Hong Kong extend to June 23, and advise active business at Hankow, but at Shanghai and Foochow the markets had not opened, and prospects looked favourable for moderate prices for Teas from Foochow. The shipments to date reach 8,000,000 lbs. From Canton, the Taiping, reported to have sailed with the new Scenteds.

BLACK.—The various grades of red leaf call for no detailed remarks, except that good flavoury kinds at 11d. to 1s. per lb. have been in more demand the past week, at a shade better prices. Imitation Kaisow, made from Tayshan leaf, has sold at 1s. to 1s. 2d. per pound for medium quality, strong malty burnt. Black leaf, ordinary to good common, at 9½d. to 11½d. per lb., has been in some request; preferable to medium kinds rule at 1s. to 1s. 2d. per lb.; of other grades supplies are well nigh exhausted. Souchong, which still rules at a very moderate standard, has attracted some attention, and led to more extended transactions. Oolong: No change. Scented Teas.—Canton Orange Pekoe: There is nothing new to advise; the bulk of this class offering consists of low common to fair quality at 7d. to 11d. per lb. Caper: There has been more inquiry at the low range current, but few transactions have taken place, importers declining business at prices offered. Foochow Orange Pekoe: Without change.

GREEN.—The extreme low prices for Nos. 3 and 4 Young Hyson has brought about speculation, and several parcels have changed hands at a slight advance; all other classes have continued difficult of sale, except finest grades of Ping Suey and Moyune.

SILK.

The apprehensions which are entertained of a war on the Continent has completely checked business, and the quotations must be considered almost, if not altogether nominal. Deliveries 1st to 13th inst. inclusive:—China, 1,314 bales; Japan, 242 bales; total, 1,556 bales.

COFFEE.

The present gloomy state of affairs on the Continent has exercised a depressing effect upon the market, and the public sales of Plantation Ceylon have gone off flatly, at prices showing an irregular decline of 1s. to 3s. per cwt., and in some instances rather more, the greater depression being for coloury kinds. The latest prices paid have been—Triage 47s. to 55s.; small grey to coloury, 56s. 6d. to 64s. 6d.; low middling 60s. to 68s. 6d.; middling, 64s. to 70s.; good middling, 72s. to 74s.; fine middling to good bold, 76s. 6d. to 80s. 6d.; peaberry, 76s. to 80s. In Native Ceylon and other East India there have been no transactions. The shipments of Plantation Ceylon so far exceed those in the corresponding period last year that a previous decrease of 700 tons in the total is superseded by an increase of 2,682 tons, but as Native still shows a falling off of nearly 3,900 tons, there is a decrease of 1,200 tons in the total of both sorts.

SUGAR.

The market exhibits a quieter tone than when we last reported, but prices continue to be firmly sustained. The following have been the sales during the week:—Penang, of 909 bags offered one-third sold, yellow (duty 5s. 3d.) at 29s. 6d. to 30s., low soft yellow at 27s. 6d, the remainder being bought in, white at 32s. to 33s., brown at 26s. to 28s. Java: Of 397 bags offered (duty 5s. 3d.) 109 bags sold at 32s.; 621 baskets (duty 4s. 9d.) were bought in at 26s. to 29s., but were subsequently sold at 23s. to 24s. A landed cargo 17,800 bags low brown Stroop Sugar (duty 4s.) sold at 18s., including washed. Manila, China, and Siam: No sales. The week's landings, which include 1,500 tons Manila, are moderate, but nevertheless exceed last year's by fully 1,500 tons, and although the stock is not greater than last week, the surplus is increased to nearly 17,000 tons.

CHINA MATTING.—In auction of 1,095 rolls per Dudbrook, chiefly bought in, 4/4 check at 28s., 4/4 white at 25s., only 300 rolls being sold, 4/4 white at 19s. 6d. to 20s., sea damaged first class 4/4 check at 20s. to 20s. 6d. Of 1,123 rolls finest contract matting from New York offered 150 rolls sold, 4/4 white at 27s., 4/4 red check at 30s., 6/4 ditto at 41s. per roll.

COIR GOODS.—At the last sales comparatively small quantities were offered; Yarn was taken off at last sales' rates. Fine qualities of Fibre sold more readily at some advance, but common sorts were again lower. There were no sales of Ceylon.

CHINA GRASS.—An offer of five bales was bought in at £70.

CUTCH.—The market is still quiet, and prices have given way; shortly after our last report 1,000 boxes fine Pegue at auction (Pagoda mark) sold at 22s. a few lots at 22s. 6d.; but since then there have been no sales, 1,000 boxes fine Pegue and 1,360 boxes from Penang being bought in at 22s. per cwt. Privately retail sales of Pegue are effected at 22s. 3d., but for important quantities not more than 22s. is obtainable.

CAMPHOR.—There are no transactions to report either in China or Japan descriptions.

COCOA NUT OIL.—There is no change to report, the market for Ceylon being quiet at last quoted rates, viz., 38s. 6d. to 38s. 9d. per cwt.

EBONY.—Of an offer of 164 logs (53 tons); Ceylon 80 logs (33 tons), sold at £10 15s.

GUMS.—Copal: 168 cases Manila sold at 30s. to 31s. Damar: 10 cases good Batavian sold at 70s; of 7,586 bags dust 4,000 bags sold at 15s. to 17s., chiefly at 16s. to 16s. 6d., blocky at 10s. to 10s. 6d.; 10 cases Singapore were offered and withdrawn.

GUTTA-PERCHA.—30 baskets and 19 bags Singapore were offered and bought in at 2s. per lb.

GAMBIER.—There have been no transactions effected.

HEMP.—There is but limited inquiry for Manila, and prices are lower; 1,091 bales in public sale met few offers, and were bought in, Boluzan at £56, fair at £53 to £53 10s., fine white at £66, except 150 bales sea-damaged, which sold at £50 to £55 10s., for third to first-class, and small lots of sound white at £60 15s. to £62 5s.

HIDES.—At the last sales there was rather more demand for East India Hides at the sales to-day, and over three-fourths of the quantity offered found buyers, the greater part of which were taken by the home trade. The bulk of those sold realised last sale prices to ¼d. per lb. decline, and the cleanest and best sorts met with the most competition. 8,269 Singapore and Penang Cow Hides offered, 5,161 sold—Extra heavy, 6d. to 6½d.; third small 6d.; thirds 6¼d; fourths 4½d. per lb. 2,909 Ceylon Hides offered, 588 sold—Heavy and extra heavy 5½d. per lb. 5,231 Singapore and Penang Buffalo Hides offered, 1,456 sold—Slaughtered, best 6⅜d.; seconds 5⅜d.; common to fair, best 4⅝d to 5¼d.; seconds 4¼d. to 5⅛d.; light 5¼d. per lb. 456 Siam Buffalo Hides offered, none sold.

INDIA-RUBBER.—There is little demand; 56 baskets Borneo were offered at auction, and bought in at 1s. 10d. per lb.

JAPAN WAX.—Prices have declined; 118 cases saucers sold—middling to good middling, at 65s. 6d. to 68s.; common mixed, at 57s.

PLUMBAGO.—A slight improvement in the demand has taken place. Of 420 barrels Ceylon offered, 131 barrels sold—common lump, at 12s.; chips, at 6s. to 9s.; fine dust, at 8s.; medium, at 5s. to 6s.; the remainder being bought in—good lump, at 17s. 6d. to 18s. 6d.; medium, at 15s.; ordinary, at 10s.

PEPPER.—Black: There is no inquiry, and no attempts being made to force business, there are no transactions to report; an offer of 207 bags Singapore was bought in at 5¼d. per lb. White: Prices are slightly lower; at auction 489 bags Singapore met a moderate demand, and 350 bags sold at 6⅛d.; 45 bags Penang salvage, ex Benvenue sold at 5⅜d. to 5½d.

RICE.—The market since our last report has continued to exhibit a dull tone; there have been no sales on the spot, and only two of floating cargoes, viz., 860 tons Rangoon per G. K. von Hoogendorf arrived off coast, sold for the Continent, terms are not reported, but supposed at 9s. 10½d.; and 800 tons field Siam in bags, per Emerald, at 8s. 4½d. landed.

RATTANS.—At auction, 4,056 bundles Penang sold, sound at 3s. 8d., mouldy at 3s. 4d. to 3s. 5d., first and second class sea and sugar damaged at 3s. 1d. to 3s. 3d.

SPICES.—Cassia Lignea: 100 cases unsorted sold at 103s. to 105s., being a further decline. Cassia Vera: 84 packages slightly mouldy, Padang of good quality sold at 77s. to 78s. Cinnamon: Of 122 bales Ceylon offered 84 bales, low spurious sort, sold at 3d. to 3½d., one lot 4¾d., the remainder common being bought in at 1s. to 1s. 6d. Cinnamon Chips: Of 254 bags Ceylon offered 44 bags middling sold at 4d., the remainder being bought in at 5d. Nutmegs: 1 case 88's sold at 2s. 4d., and 4 casks low at 1s. Mace: 6 cases fair Penang sold at 3s. 1d., 11 cases salvage ditto, ex Benvenue, at 2s. 7d. to 2s. 10d.

SHELLS.—Mother-o'-Pearl: 15 cases Macassar bought in at £11, and 58 cases Manila at £9. Tortoise: 11 cases (1,552 lbs.) Manlia were sold at 13s. to 15s., and 1 case (124 lbs.) Singapore at 7s.

SAGO.—At auction 322 bags small pearl sold at previous prices, viz., fair to good, 17s. 3d. to 17s. 9d.; medium, 17s. per cwt. Flour: No business.

SAPANWOOD.—Of 57 tons Siam offered 18 tons slightly dirty sold at £7, the remainder being bought in at £8 10s.; also 11 tons Ceylon, at £8.

TAPIOCA.—At auction 362 bags Singapore fine white Rio kind were bought in at 2½d., except 70 bags, which sold, very fine at 2¾d., small at 1¾d. Pearl: 540 bags Singapore sold at lower rates, small, 22s. 6d.; medium, 21s. to 22s.; large, 20s. 6d. to 21s. 6d.; extra large, 21s. 6d. to 22s. Flour: 94 bags Penang sold at 2d. to 2¼d.

TIN.—There is scarcely any demand for Straits, and prices have again declined, the quotations being £130 to £131 on the spot and £128 afloat. Banca is quoted £133 to £134, and Billiton £130 to £131 per ton.

VEGETABLE TALLOW.—An offer of 38 casks Singapore was bought in at 41s. to 42s.

ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

Inactivity and irregularity have been the prevailing features in this market during the past week, and prices of Yarns and Goods still continue to decline. The extent of the transactions has not been sufficiently large to test values fairly, but the few offers that are making are generally at prices which producers are at present disinclined to accept.

CASUALTIES.

The Shepherd, Armstrong, which arrived at St. Helena, June 6, from Colombo, had lost bulwarks, stanchions, &c., having experienced very violent weather eastward of Mauritius and off the Cape of Good Hope.

Advices from Capetown, dated June 4, state that the Blackadder, Robinson, from London to Shanghai, put into Simon's Bay, May 26, and reported that on the May 8, 40 S. 21 W., the wind suddenly shifted from N.E. to S.W., when the main and mizen masts were carried away by the deck, and she lost yards, sails, &c., and had part of her main deck torn up.

Advices from Port Elizabeth, dated May 31, state that the Hanover, Burges, from Colombo to London, put into Algoa Bay, May 23, for supplies, and with decks leaky, having experienced very heavy weather between the 15th and 22nd May, off Natal. At the recommendation of surveyors the cargo was being discharged, and a portion of it proved to be more or less damaged, by sea water.

MISCELLANEOUS.

At MALTA.—July 2, Abbotsford (steamer), Mann, from London, left for Singapore, China, &c., via Suez Canal; 6, Tordenskjold, Danish man-of-war (steamer), from Copenhagen, and left for Port Said and Shanghai, via Suez Canal.

At ST. HELENA.—June 2, Maria Elise, van Deursen, from Batavia; 9, Shepherd, Armstrong, from Colombo; 15, Dartmouth, Elsden, from Shanghai, for London; 17, Banian, Shore, from Shanghai, for Liverpool.

The following is a further list of goods recovered from the wreck of the Benvenue, Penang to London:—184 slabs tin, 28 packages india-rubber, 19 bags pepper, 1 puncheon rum, 1 bag copra, 96 bundles rattans, 3 hides, 1 empty puncheon, and 1 bundle rope.

THE "MANNELITA" AT HONG KONG.—Reports have been made, signed by Mr. Green, the superintendent engineer of the P. and O. Company, by Captains Madden, Stanhope, and Hewitt, and by Messrs. Vincent, Cairns and Minto, upon the twin-screw gunboat Mannelita, built by Messrs. Dudgeon and Co., on the Thames last year. The Mannelita is built upon the composite principle, with iron frame and teak planking, is of 700 tons burthen, with engines of 200-horse power. At a trial trip a speed was attained of thirteen knots, with a steam pressure of twenty-five pounds. The reports state that the vessel is highly suitable to the purpose for which she was designed, the protection of Chinese property from pirates, that everything connected with her construction affords evidence of the employment of the best materials and workmanship, and that she is likely to prove a very efficient and useful vessel. In noticing the Pepita in our last number, the tonnage was misprinted 57 for 357 tons.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Impurity of the Blood.—To ensure health it is absolutely necessary that the fluids and solids of the human body should be kept free from those impurities, which are continually getting admission into the system by erroneous living, unwholesome atmosphere, or disordered stomach. The only safe and certain way to expel all impurities is to take Holloway's Pills, which have the power of cleansing the blood from all noxious matters, and at the same time removing any irregularities which their presence may have already produced in any organ. Holloway's Pills expel all humours which taint or impoverish the blood, which they purify and invigorate, and give general tone to the nerves, stomach, liver, lungs, heart, and kidneys.

LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT OF MEAT.

—Amsterdam Exhibition, 1869. First Prize, being above the Gold Medal. Supplied to the British, French, Prussian, Russian, Italian, Dutch, and other Governments. Dr. Lancaster writes regarding Extract of Meat:—"But there is a difference in flavour, and here, as in all other kinds of food, it is the flavour that makes the quality." It is essentially on account of the fine meaty flavour, as distinguished from the burnt taste of other Extracts, that LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT defeated all Australian and other sorts at Paris, Havre, and Amsterdam, and is so universally preferred in all European markets.
One pint of fine-flavoured Beef-tea at 2½d. Most convenient and economic "stock."
CAUTION.—Require Baron Liebig's, the inventor's, signature on every jar and ask distinctly for LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT.

D. NICHOLSON AND CO.,

Silk, Woollen, and Manchester Warehousemen (Wholesale and Retail), India, Colonial, and Foreign Outfitters, 50 TO 52, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD (CORNER OF CHEAPSIDE), LONDON.

ESTABLISHED TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

PRICE LIST, 76 PAGES.—D. N. and Co. invite the attention of their Foreign and Colonial Correspondents to their Trade List Price Current, gratis and post free, just published, which contains seventy-six pages of matter, comprising full particulars of every description of Silks, Woollen Goods, Muslins, Calicos, Prints, Ladies' Under-clothing, Baby Linen, Mantles, Shawls, Men's and Boys' Clothing, Linens, Blankets, Carpets, Hosiery, Gloves, Ribbons, Lace, Haberdashery, Jewellery, &c., &c. Also, numbers and widths of Ribbons, Tapes, &c., and sizes in Gloves and Hosiery; in short, all necessary information for ordering this class of goods from D. N. and Co.'s house in London.

PATTERNS BY POST.—D. NICHOLSON AND CO. undertake to forward to India, post free, packets containing upwards of 200 patterns of fashionable Silks. A similar assortment may be had of Muslins, Grenadines, and every kind of dress fabric; also, Prints, Calicos, Linens, Woollen Cloths, Doeskins, &c., &c. Each pattern is marked the width and price per yard or dress, so that correspondents are able to ensure having the exact goods they order, by retaining a portion of the pattern of each article they require.

OUTFITTING DEPARTMENT.—D. N. and Co. also forward an abridged list containing every requisite for Indian Outfits for both sexes, properly classified for the especial use of correspondents, military and civil, who might be perplexed with some of the technical terms used in the Trade List.

CONTRACTS FOR UNIFORMS, &c.—D. N. and Co. undertake to supply commanding officers with every description of regimental clothing, cloths, serges, belts, shoes, and other details necessary for completing uniforms at considerably less than agent's prices.

Orders addressed to D. N. and Co., accompanied by a remittance of 50 per cent., will be forwarded on condition that the balance be paid to their Agents in Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, or Colombo, on presentation of the Bills of Lading.

AGENCY DEPARTMENT.—D. N. and Co. undertake the purchasing of goods for Merchants and Traders in India, who have not buyers in London, for a Commission of 2½ per cent. on indents of £250 and upwards; on smaller amounts the charge is 5 per cent. As D. N. and Co. have accounts for their own business with every house of importance in connection with the silk and Manchester Trade, they can offer their Correspondents considerable advantages beyond what could be obtained from an ordinary agent. Under arrangements of this kind the original invoices are in all cases furnished.

CHARLES KELLY,

HARMONIUM MANUFACTURER TO HER MAJESTY,

The Imperial Family of France, the Duke of Edinburgh, the Duchess of Sutherland, &c., &c.,

9, 10, & 11, CHARLES STREET, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

Instruments constructed for Churches, Chapels, Concert Rooms, the Drawing Room or Boudoir, at prices from 9 to 200 Guineas. As none but the best workmen are employed and well seasoned material used in the construction of these Harmoniums, every instrument is "warranted" to stand the test of any climate.

The quality is round, sweet, and intended to resemble an Organ; in no way is it similar to the "reedy tone" usually met with in Foreign-made Instruments.

KELLY'S HARMONIUMS are the ONLY INSTRUMENTS THAT RECEIVED ANY AWARD at the DUBLIN and PARIS EXHIBITIONS.

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vessels of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds, superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

The DRY DOCK (opened in March, 1859) admits two vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with a depth of water ranging to 15½ feet. A second DRY DOCK of larger dimensions will shortly be completed, and available for the heaviest Steamers.

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMON and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon street, London, E.C.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Dates by this opportunity extend to May 31. The outward mail of April 8 arrived on May 27.

The Mikado was present at a review of eighteen regiments of infantry, a small body of cavalry, and a battery of artillery at Kioma-ba-no-hera, about five miles from Yedo; and here his Majesty for the first time openly showed himself to his subjects who were on the ground. Not only many of the lower classes, but a number of high officials of the two-sworded class were permitted to gaze on the "Son of Heaven" together for the first time—an occurrence which testifies to the enlightened views of the present Government. The Mikado was on horseback, and attended, as we have been informed, by a guard of Tosa Lancers. Among the regiments reviewed were those belonging to the following class:—Satsuma, Chosiu, Hizen, Tosa, Tayasu, H'totsubashi. The political and historical significancy of this fact will be estimated differently, as readers are more or less acquainted with the causes which produce and affect the advance of nations, and have studied the disappearance or growth of ideas or customs among them. But it cannot be doubted that this public appearance of the Mikado is an event foreshadowing a change in the national mind of Japan, the importance of which it is impossible to overrate.

The railway works are being pushed on rapidly. The section between Yedo and Yokohama is now being commenced at both ends simultaneously, the land in the capital chosen for the site of the station is being cleared and levelled, and every possible facility is afforded to Mr. Morel in prosecuting the work. The Yokohama station will be erected on the large piece of unoccupied ground near Tobe, at the lower end, or Benten side of the settlement. The railway itself will be carried along the shore embankment already made, in the direction of Kanagawa, thus avoiding the first hill, and will proceed by a bold sweep round Kanagawa Bay, on a prolongation of the same embankment about three chains in width, affording space for a wide carriage drive facing the sea, and for valuable building plots, by the sale of which the Government will recoup itself, in part at least, for some of the extra outlay which this section of the line will involve. At Kanagawa it will cross, at a comparatively low level, through a gap in the range of hills at the back of the town, and from thence the ground will be fairly easy until reaching Yedo. The line crosses the Tokaido (the grand trunk road of the Empire) twice; once at Kanagawa, and once just below the British Legation at Yedo. The railway will be constructed on a three feet six inch gauge, the gauge suggested by Mr. Morel, and approved of by the consulting engineers at home, whose opinions upon the subject were requested. This gauge has, after great experience of its advantages, been recommended as preferable for the purposes sought to be subserved by this line to any broader gauge.

The Japanese have further evinced their interest in this undertaking by founding a college where scientific engineering in all its branches is to be taught. A handsome building is in course of erection, and the names of many pupils are already enrolled.

The officers of the U. S. squadron met on board the Idaho and formed a committee to choose a design and to erect a memorial shaft over the remains of the officers and crew of the Oneida, a sufficient sum of money having been subscribed by the officers and men of the fleet to pay the expense of its construction.

Dupleix, and has taken command of the French squadron in Japanese waters.

Earthquakes have been the order of the day. Captain Peterson, of the Anna, experienced a shock on the 13th, while coming up the Gulf of Yedo. In the vicinity of Vries Island he observed large fields of pumice-stone floating about, and secured some samples.

It is reported that a certain native prince is desirous to procure a loan of $100,000, for the purpose of improving the silk culture and facilitating the silk trade in his district. His territory is near Yedo, and may be reached by small flat-bottomed steamers in ten or twelve hours from Yokohama, and his plan is to buy and put on such a line of steamers, to run daily between his capital and this place, so that Yokohama merchants, and (if the Commercial Department permit) foreign merchants, too, may visit the regular sales at the market in his capital.

NAGASAKI.

May 28, 1870.

My last, dated 14th inst., was sent via San Francisco. The event of the fortnight has been the anniversary of the birth of Her Majesty Queen Victoria. Throughout the day the men-of-war and merchantmen of all nationalities were decorated with flags, and at noon H.B.M. gunboat Grasshopper, North German corvette Hertha, and the Japanese battery fired a salute of twenty-one guns. In the evening H.B.M. Consul, Mr. Annesley entertained a large number of the residents, and among whom were Mr. Von Brant, Consul-General in Japan for the North German Confederation, the Consuls of the Powers having treaties with Japan, the commanders and officers of the Hertha and Russian corvette Haydamaack, and the Governor of Nagasaki.

The Consular buildings and grounds were brilliantly illuminated; on the former was the motto "God Save the Queen," in glass lamps, which device, owing to the darkness of the evening, showed to great advantage. Several of the residents also illuminated their buildings; the most striking ones being those of the China and Japan Trading Company and the Commercial Hotel. By permission of Captain Koehler and officers, the band of the Hertha was in attendance, which greatly contributed to make the evening an agreeable one. Although the number of ladies present were only nine (nearly all Nagasaki can muster at the present time) the dancing was kept up until the morning.

The English mail of the 11th March arrived here on the 17th inst. by the British brig Rose of Australia—67 days.

The English mail of the 25th March arrived here on the 25th inst. by the North German steamer Taipanggo—61 days.

The English mail of the 8th April arrived here on the 27th inst. (its due date) by H.I.F.M. corvette Dupleix—49 days.

The houses now being erected in Naminshira, it is said, are to be turned into "Tea houses," and this seems to trouble certain folks here. The Nagasaki Shipping List is endeavouring to urge the Consular authorities to compel the local officers to order them to be removed or used for other purposes, but I fear his efforts will be in vain, as the buildings in question are not in the settlement. The locality where they are has for years past been a rendezvous for all the thieves, rowdies, and other bad characters; and is, in fact, the hotbed of vice, and seems to have been tolerated as such by the Japanese authorities, who no doubt think it better that such characters should be driven together rather than allow them to be scattered about the native town Considering that the present state of things are not of recent growth, and that European Governments do not interfere with the domestic affairs of the Japanese, I am unable to see what the Consuls can do to remove the evils complained of.

The movements of the vessels of war have been as follows:—

H.B.M.S. Sylvia arrived from Hong Kong on May 20, and sailed again on the 22nd (after coaling) for Hiogo.

H.N.M. corvette Marnix arrived from Yokohama and Hiogo on May 26, having on board his Excellency the Netherlands Minister to Japan.

H.I.R.M. corvette Hadaymaack arrived from Hong Kong on May 23, and sailed again on the 26th (after coaling) for the Russian Possessions in the North.

H.I.F.M. corvette Dupleix arrived from Shanghai May 27.

The North German corvette Hertha left this on the 25th inst. for Kagosima, and has on board the North German Minister, who goes on a visit to the Prince of Satsuma.

H.B.M. gunboat Grasshopper still remains in harbour.

The meeting of creditors of Rainbow, Lewis, and Co., bankrupts, which was arranged to take place to-day, has been postponed sine die, in consequence of the trade assignee being absent from Nagasaki.

A wooden pier is in course of construction here (which is fast approaching completion) for the P.M.S S. Company, and will have sufficient depth of water at the end to allow their steamers to come alongside and discharge cargo. In addition to this, godowns are being constructed, and it is said that the agency will be removed to them when they are finished. The spot selected for them is at the extreme end of the settlement, and very inconvenient for persons who may have to transact business with the company; besides which the surrounding locality is a very crowded one, and this makes the risk of fire greater than it ought to be, considering that every one who sends goods to the company's wharf previous to the arrival of the steamers has to run his own risk against fire.

Business remains in the same unsatisfactory state, which renders all quotations nominal; and are likely to remain so until the new season's teas commence arriving; these the natives say may be expected in twenty days.

EXTRACTS FROM NAGASAKI NEWSPAPERS.

Shipping List, May 11, 1870.—In our issue of 28th December last we called attention to the fact that the Japanese Government had given permission for the erection of seven dens of iniquity (tea-houses) in Naminshira. The foreign Consuls had no sooner been informed of this than a meeting at the Custom-house was immediately convened, at which the Governor was present; and who, after the strongest remonstrances having been exhibited by the representatives of all the foreign Powers against such a step, finally decided to abolish the idea, and to issue instructions that the buildings should not be proceeded with. We have already expressed that we have no faith in the promises of the Japanese Government, but hardly anticipated that a resolution, passed at a meeting of foreign Consuls, and sanctioned by the Governor, should have been violated with impunity. But such we are bound to admit to be the case, for two of these wretched hovels, with which may be associated everything that is immoral and infamous, are in course of construction in Naminshira. Those who have resided here for years, and even those whose sojourn amongst us has been of a much shorter duration, cannot but be sensible to the deeds (some of them of the foulest nature) which have, and doubtless will continue to emanate from these hotbeds of crime.

Now is the time we think for our Consuls to take action; to nip the evil in the bud, and we feel assured that they will again, not only advocate to the Japanese Government how very undesirable it is that such places should be erected, but will issue the most positive instructions that within the limits of the foreign settlements they shall not exist.

Shipping List, May 21, 1870.—Although in our issue of the 11th instant we drew attention to the erection of the tea-houses at Naminshira, representing the evils that emanate from these most disreputable establishments, we find that two have not only been opened and their tenants pursuing that which will eventually produce great disturbances, and in all probability serious crimes, but also that the erection of others of a similar nature are rapidly being proceeded with. It is needless for us to further dilate upon the evils which will arise if our Consuls do not only at once emphatically protest against the erection of such places, but also issue immediate and most positive instructions that those already erected must either be taken down or employed in a business, that to say the least does not present so iniquitous an appearance.

Shipping List, May 18, 1870.—A disturbance took place yesterday evening in the house on Lot 25 Oura. Gambling, we are informed, was the origin, and so formidable an aspect did it assume that knives, clubs, and bricks were freely used. Not resting satisfied with these weapons of defence, they commenced throwing kerosine lamps at each other. So soon as the matter was reported to the Secretary of the Municipal Council, that gentleman immediately informed the Custom-house authorities, who, with the assistance of the police, managed to secure some of the Chinamen, and conveyed them to gaol. It is surely high time that such tumults should be put a stop to. Gambling houses should not be allowed to exist in the foreign settlement; and we trust that the most stringent measures will be taken to prevent a recurrence of the same. We have been given to understand that the premises are rented by Ceaupseng for the purpose of carrying on a gambling establishment.

Nagasaki Shipping List, December 28, 1869.—We have been informed that the native authorities have given permission for the erection of seven large tea-houses in Naminshira, and if such is the case we trust that the consular body will jointly protest against it. We have already enough scandal in the settlement with the number of little shanties that have sprung up in Oura and Naminshira within the last twelve months. If the Japanese Government wishes to establish tea houses at Naminshira let them first pay for a strong body of European police to protect us from the drunken two-sworded fellows who will be passing through the settlement at all hours of the day and night, as it will not be safe for anyone to be out of doors without a revolver. Besides, it must be a great nuisance to those who have their bungalows about Naminshira to have tea houses just under their windows. We think now is the moment that the consular body should show the Japanese that before they give permission for anything within the limits of the foreign settlement they must first get their consent, and we hope that they will now insist upon the removal of all those little shanties just under the British Consulate and at Naminshira, which are a great nuisance.

Nagasaki Express, May 28 1870.—We understand the Prince of Chosiu arrived here a few days ago, in his gunboat Henda. Nothing, so far as we can make out, is definitely known regarding the object of his visit, which is strictly "incognito," but it is rumoured that it has something to do with a proposed to open Simonoseki to foreign trade. We hope there may be some truth in the report.

HIOGO.

From the Hiogo News we extract the following :—

The Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank commence business here, under the management of H. Smith, Esq. Strange that Kobe should have passed through two and a half years of its existence without any bank starting a branch here. However, better late than never. The Oriental is soon to follow the example of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank. Business premises are already erected, and everything appears ready for the commencement of business. The want of banking establishments has been much felt here, and now that they are established, they will prove a convenience to many of the community, and doubtless a profit to themselves.

Messrs. Lehmann, Hartmann and Co. have launched another small iron steamer. The new boat is named the Habicht—Anglice, the Hawk—and, like the Adler, was imported piecemeal by the owners from Europe. The Habicht is a very small boat, as the following particulars will show, but nevertheless will be found very useful in navigating the shallow rivers of Japan. Length, 57 feet; beam, 13 feet; draught, 39 inches; burthen, 50 tons.

It is matter of satisfaction that Kobe has at last been considered of sufficient importance to cause the removal of H.M.'s Consulate from Osaka to this place. Established originally here, the Consulate was transferred to Osaka when that city was opened as a port of entry, but the reason it has been so long kept at that place has for some time past ceased to be evident. Business could there make but few calls upon it, and the advantages of being near the higher Japanese officials seemed certainly overrated when the expense of the Consulate establishment was taken into consideration. The removal has been for some time due to Kobe, as it is fast becoming of considerable business importance.

The last sale of land on the present Kobe Concession has taken place at the Eastern Custom-house. Competition was very spirited, and the prices realised were much higher than those at the previous sales. The auction was conducted by Messrs. J. Collins and Co., and the only hitch that occurred was caused by the authorities objecting to receive a packet of nibus as payment of the deposit fee, soliciting kinsatz instead thereof.

PEKING.

The Tsung-li-yamen has sent a circular to the Foreign Ministers on the subject of the demise of Mr. Burlingame, acknowledging the importance of his services, and paying a graceful tribute to his memory. The sum of Tls. 6,000 is to be paid to Mrs. Burlingame to be expended on the obsequies of her late husband, and Tls. 10,000 more for her own use, in token of the high estimation in which Mr. Burlingame was held by the Yamen

SHANGHAI.

The outward mail of 15th April arrived on the 30th May. The dates are now down to the 2nd June.

The following summary of news is from the North China Herald of May 28th and June 2nd :—

The election of Municipal Councillors for the French Concession took place on the 29th and 30th ult. The following gentlemen were elected :—Messrs. Millot (135), Voisin (118), and Morel (112) votes—French ; and Messrs. F. B. Forbes (187) and Arosenius (182 votes)—Foreigners. 190 electors voted. Messrs. Groom, Aymeri, and Martin, who remain in office, complete the list of Councillors.

Our readers will be interested te know that the erection of a municipal telegraph, between the Central, Lowza, and Hongkew police stations, has been commenced. Mr. L. D. Bishop has undertaken the contract ; and to teach one or two of the police staff the mode of working the instruments. The repair of the Woosung-road, and the construction of a new one along the river bank, have also been commenced.

The Queen's birthday was kept as a holiday in the various public offices. The French vessels of war in harbour were decked in honour of the occasion, and H.I.M. corvette Dupleix courteously fired a royal salute at noon. There is no English vessel of war in port. A number of merchant ships of different nationalities were gaily decked, and we noticed that the Astor House was illuminated in the evening.

Mr. Walters, of H.B.M. Consular service, has published a work entitled "Laotzu, a Study of Chinese Philosophy." It is, in great measure, a reprint of essays which have appeared in the Chinese Recorder. They are here revised, added to, and offered in a compact form. The book contains much valuable information regarding the Chinese philosophy.

Our attention has been drawn to a paragraph about the adventures with pirates of the little steamer Rocket, which reads unfavourably for Captain Roper until another story is told. The Rocket, a little tug steamer of small tonnage, has just arrived from England via the Suez Canal. Off the Arabian coast she was approached by two dhows, each containing seventy or eighty men. Suspecting them to be pirates, she fired at them with Snider rifles until they retired. The circumstances lead strongly to the inference that, if Captain Roper had not acted as he did, the Rocket might now have been numbered among the list of "missing" craft.

The special agent of the China Submarine Telegraph Company (of London), whose appearance amongst us we noticed some weeks ago, has returned from Peking. His application for leave to land the end of the telegraphic cable in this Settlement was refused ; the Chinese, it would seem, apprehending that concession of small beginnings on shore might be interpreted as a concession of a right to lay lines inland, to which point they are not yet able to bring themselves. But provided the line is bona fide submerged, no opposition will be made to its introduction into the inner waters ; and Mr. Dunn is therefore in a position to make arrangements which will suffice for his purpose. We may predict that in a year's time the line will be working from Shanghai to London —and that the connections with India, the Straits, and Australia will also be complete then.

The Fenella returned to Ningpo, after a cruise among the Chusan Islands, on the 30th ult. She had fallen in with one of the Shanghai arsenal steamers at the Raffle Islands ; and Colonel Cooke's men had routed out one nest of pirates in that neighbourhood, and captured several men and boats. It is likely that they will start again in a few days for a cruise about Chipoo and Wanchow and the neighbouring islands ; the Paoshun, however, taking the place of the Fenella.

Three fires have occurred during the week—one in Foo Chow road, nearly opposite the German Club, by which three Chinese hongs were burned down ; another near the French Cathedral at Tung-ka-doo, by which some 150 houses were destroyed. The later occurred in a densly populated quarter ; and the ruin caused would have been immense, but for the exertions of the fire Brigade ; and a third, at the junction of the Canton and Fohkien roads, by which half-a-dozen houses only were burned ; the fire was completely subdued an hour after it broke out.

We have received, from the Customs office, a return showing the trade of Shanghai for the 1st quarter of 1870. The most remarkable feature is the falling off in the import of Grey Shirtings, which has been less than during either of four previous years, and not half that of 1869.

The import of White Shirtings also also shows a slight decrease, and T-Cloths have fallen from 981,000 to 879,000 pieces—the latter figures, however, being still three times larger than the import in 1867 or 1868. The import of Jeans and Chintzes has quintupled and decupled respectively. Cotton handkerchiefs have doubled. All woollen goods show a considerable increase—the import of Lastings, for example, having doubled, and that of Long Ells and Lustres risen to 68,000 and 89,000 pieces, from 44,000 to 75,000 pieces, respectively. The import of brown sugar is thirteen times greater than the highest figure during four years, while that of white sugar shows a steady decline, and has fallen off one-half since 1869. The import of raw silk from Ningpo and Hankow also shows a large increase. 6,750 pieces of Grey Shirtings, and 3,785 pieces of T-Cloths have been conveyed into the interior, under transit pass, during the quarter.

There have been various rumours flying about, lately, in regard to the progress of the Mahommedan rebels in Shense. A rumour even found its way into circulation, that Li had encountered, and been defeated and killed by the insurgents. There seems, however, no foundation for this. Hardly sufficient time has elapsed for him to reach the seat of war ; much less to assume command and engage in a battle. We believe, however, that there is little doubt the Imperialists have suffered a second reverse ; and that grave anxiety prevails at Peking in regard to the Mahommedan successes.

The Maggie again returned from the wreck of the Hamilla Mitchell with 100 boxes of treasure, valued at $101,000, making $180,000 in all saved from the ship.

We understand that from and after the 1st of July the management of the North China Steamboat Company will be transferred from Messrs. Trautmann and Co. to Messrs. Pustau and Co.

NORTH GERMAN CONSULATE.

PENDER AND CO. (MANCHESTER), v. C. GUSTSCHOW AND CO. (SHANGHAI).—This was an action for Tls. 6,023.14, with interest, being the proceeds of the shipment of goods belonging to a Leeds firm, advanced upon by the plaintiffs, and consigned by them to the defendants in Shanghai, on the understanding that the net proceeds should be remitted direct to the plaintiffs. The defendants acknowledged the agreement, but—1st, claimed a set-off as to £500 ; and, 2nd, pleaded a tender of the balance in Hamburg. The claim of set-off was in respect of commission, which might have accrued to the defendants from the sale of goods promised to be consigned to them under an agreement with Mr. F. Gutschow, of Hamburg, acting for defendants. Mr. Ahlers, for defendants, handed in a copy of the agreement in question, and also letters referring to the case. He acknowledged the liability for the capital sum claimed ; but rebutted the claim of Tls. 375.67 interest thereon. Mr. Bird, for the plaintiffs, consented to allow the question of set-off to stand over until the original agreement could be procured from Hamburg, and the Court then gave judgment for £1,500, with interest, from the time of liability on the part of defendants, at the rate of six per cent. per annum. It was a special rule in German law that no higher rate could be claimed. Further, plaintiffs could bring the remaining £500 into Court another time.

AMOY.

JUNE 6.

A new Custom House is in course of erection. It is on the Amoy side, next to Messrs. Elles and Co.'s compound. Yesterday, the 5th of June, the dictator of the destinies of the Custom's service, Robert Hart, Esq., arrived here from Formosa. He is on a tour of inspection. Anent Mr. Hart and the Customs, and the Lekim, I should like to see a committee of impartial men (for the Customs has still fiery haters) assembled and discussing the cause of this port's decline.

The Lekim of Amoy is the bastard child of the Customs—there is no denying it. The case should be brought into court and the paternity proved, for I am convinced that until the Customs is compelled to contribute a certain weekly or monthly allowance for the maintenance of the bereaved, so as to prevent her committing raids upon foreign commerce, no better state of things can be looked for. I hear that the pruning knife of our Government has been at work in Amoy. A saving of £122 a-year has been effected in cutting off some of the Consul's perquisites in the shape of servants. There is said to be great lamentation and bitter weeping in the camp. The pill appears to be a bitter one to swallow, but with such a champion for economy as our Consul is set forth to be in the Blue-book, no doubt he will on reflection bow to the higher wisdom of his superiors. The mandate for retrenchment has gone forth, whatever the Consular body may think to the contrary, and with the present Government is as unalterable as the laws of the Medes and Persians. We are, however, glad to see further on in the Blue-book that our Consul is likely to have his salary increased £100 a year.

New Consular offices and jail are to be at once erected on Koolungsoo, near the dock.

HONG KONG.

Mr. George Baranoffsky, agent to the Russian Steam Navigation and Trading Company, which has been long established in Europe running steamers to the Baltic Ports and to other ports on the Continent, has arrived during the past fortnight, and has proceeded north to ascertain the prospects with regard to extending the line of steamers to China via the Suez Canal. It is already decided to commence next year running steamers from Odessa to Bombay, Calcutta and Galle, and, if the result of the present enquiries is satisfactory, the line will also be brought on to China.

An interesting case—Liebert and Another versus the Oriental Banking Corporation—was decided in the Supreme Court on the 3rd June. This was a hearing on a Bill of Complaint to recover the balance of moneys received by defendants as proceeds of sale of goods deposited by Messrs. Lyall, Still and Co. with the defendant company, and retained by them in liquidation of a dishonoured bill for $3,615. An answer was put in, and most of the allegations admitted. The facts of the case were that the Oriental Bank held goods against advances made to Lyall, Still and Co., and on the goods being realised a balance remained after these advances were met. A bill, however, had been drawn by Still on Lyall, Still and Co. for $3,600, and had been purchased of Still by the defendant company in London. When dishonoured, the amount, with notarial charges, was appropriated by the defendant company out of the balance. Plaintiffs said that this was an unauthorised proceeding, and sued for the recovery of the sum. Mr. Hayllar, for the plaintiffs, having explained that the bill was drawn to pay Mr. Still's ordinary expenses in proceeding to Hong Kong, Mr. Pollard, for the defendant company, said that it was a general account. Mr. Hayllar contended that a special lien overrode any general lien or hypothecation; that, in this case, no lien ever attached in favour of the defendants; and that, if it did so attach, it was not until notice had been given. The Chief Justice, after expressing his regret that instructions from England did not admit of an arrangement in China, this being pre-eminently a case for reference, gave judgment in favour of the defendant company, dismissing the bill with costs, but giving leave to the plaintiffs to file an amended bill within seven months.

A meeting of the members of the Hong Kong Yacht Club took place on the 3rd June, Mr. Hawke, Vice-Commodore, in the chair. The accounts for the past year showed a balance of $265.75 to the credit of the Club, which numbers nine yacht and forty-six non yacht members. The Secretary intimated that he had received a letter from Commodore Jones, expressing, in very courteous terms, the pleasure which his connection with the Club had always afforded him, and tendering his resignation in view of his departure from the Colony. It was proposed, seconded, and carried by acclamation, that Commodore Price be invited to take the post of Commodore of the Club. It was then proposed, and carried unanimously, that the present officers and committee be re-elected. The Chairman observed that the past season had been very satisfactory. Some admirable matches had taken place, and for a place like Hong Kong the meetings had been very large, and had brought forth some very good sailing. He hoped that at next meeting there would be some new yachts, and that the competition would be even better than in the past. It was announced that it was intended to have the next meeting somewhat earlier in the year.

A general meeting of the Indo-Chinese Sugar Company was held in the City Hall on the 28th May. Present—Messrs. Hitchcock (in the chair), Crichton, Helland, Dickie, Styles, E. Sharp-Sherwood, Pollard, Ortuno, Murray, M.D., Morison, Melchers, Kresser, Jameson, Hazeland, G. F. Heard, Hubener, Francis, Ede, Dodds, M.D., Cox, Coughtrie, Coxon, Barrington, and Boyd. The Chairman read the manager's report, for the information of the shareholders of the company. Respecting the condition of the property of the company at Bien Hoa, near Saigon, and in regard to the prospects of purchasing cane and manufacturing sugar during the present season, the report of Mr. Costeker speaks very hopefully, adding that there are over six thousand acres of cane now planted in the immediate vicinity of the factory: he describes the country as possessing the finest sugar growing soil he has ever seen. He further states that there will be no difficulty in purchasing cane at eight cents per picul; and from his report generally the main requirements to the success of the company appeared to be definitely assured. Mr. C. gave it as his opinion, under the circumstances, that no less than 4,000 tons of raw sugar would be produced during the next crushing season. Most encouraging statistics and data (continued the Chairman) had also been received as to the prospects of the company at Swatow. Regarding Amoy, Takao and Wampoa, it is not settled whether operations will or will not be commenced this season.

THE LOSS OF THE "SLANEY."

The Daily Press gives the following account of the loss of Her Majesty's gunboat Slaney, which is more circumstantial than the official report forwarded to the Admiralty and published in our issue of the 11th inst.:—

The Slaney left Singapore on the 14th April, for Hong Kong. On the morning of the 4th a gale commenced from the north-east, the wind having been from the south-west previously, and the vessel running with studding sails. On the 5th and 6th it continued to blow very heavily, the barometer falling to 28.04. The ship hove-to with storm maintopsail very easy, but with the sea breaking heavily over her. On the 7th the gale was more violent, but the wind remained steady at the north-east. On this day she lost the jolly-boat, captain's gig, and dingy, and at midnight the whale-boat was washed away. On the morning of the 8th the foremast went over the side, taking with it the jibboom and maintopsail, the wind continuing strong and heavy, and the barometer standing at 28. During the gale, which was indeed a typhoon, the Slaney made very bad weather and laboured heavily, being most time under water. On the 9th was lying to, with the fires banked, heading to the N.W.; at nine o'clock P.M. got steam up and proceeded, steering N.E., the gale abating. At twenty minutes after midnight the ship struck, going about two knots at the time; the engines were stopped, but before they could be backed the ship was fast upon the reef, the sea pooping and flooding the whole afterpart of the hull in such a manner that one engineer was drowned in his berth. All hands were engaged until daylight on the part of the upper deck in the construction of a raft. At daylight saw land on both bows, small islands, distant about ten miles apart, and from five to six from the wreck, but the surf was breaking and washing over all as bad as before. About six o'clock launched the raft over the starboard bow, when its painter parted. Orders were passed that all who could not swim should take to it to reach the shore; those who could swim went to it, although all did not reach it, and those who could not swim stuck to the hull, and their lives were saved. When the raft left the ship it got well over that part of the reef on which the rollers were heaviest; those on it then appeared to have cast adrift the lashings, and to have divided it among them, but all failed to reach the shore save three, one European and two Chinese. At the time the raft left the Commander, Lieutenant Elwin, called out, "Yon must do the best you can for your lives, lads; I am no raftsman;" and he then plunged into the water, accompanied by Pink, quartermaster. They were seen clear of the reef in smooth water, with what was supposed to be a good prospect of fetching the land; but they have not been heard of since. The survivors, that is, the seven who remained by the wreck, did not leave it until the P.M. of the 14th, during which time they were without food and water, having only a little tobacco; when a fishing junk came and said that there was another wreck not far off, and carried three of the party to it, the rest coming afterwards. Here the survivors of the Slaney found the master and crew of the Curactacus, also wrecked like themselves, but having clothes and provisions saved from the vessel, and the two parties became one, until an engagement was made with one of the junks for a passage to Hainin. During the gale, when the wind was N.E., and blowing at the hardest, the barometer fell to 28·04, and after midnight of the 8th commenced to rise slowly.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this opportunity extend to June 17. The outward mail (French) of May 13 arrived on the 12th June.

We extract the following from the summary of the Straits Times:—

The P. and O. steamer Orissa, with the London mails of 6th May, arrived here on the 6th inst., and the M.I. steamer Peiho, with London letters to the 13th May, on the 12th inst. The Emeu, which takes the present mail, left Hong Kong on the morning of the 9th inst., and arrived here yesterday morning. The last English mail, as will be seen from the datesgiven above, reached this on the thirty-first day from London, being, we believe, the quickest passage on record by the overland route. The Ocean line now offers to convey first-class passengers from this to London for £65, and other steamers have similarly lowed their rates. The result will be, that although at the outset the number of passengers obtained may not appear to warrant the reduction, in the end these low fares will create a traffic for themselves.

Among the passengers by the last outward mail was Mr. J. W. W. Birch, the new Colonial Secretary of the Straits Settlements, who immediately assumed the duties of his office. Captain Shaw, who has been Acting Colonial Secretary since the death of Colonel Macpherson, has returned to his post as Lieutenant Governor of Malacca, and Mr. C. J. Irving, who has been filling Capt. Shaw's place, has resumed charge of the Auditor General's Office. Mr. Birch comes to us highly recommended from Ceylon. While on the subject of official changes, we may mention that the Acting Attorney General, Mr. Aitken, will go home by next mail on private affairs, and that his duties will be taken over by Mr. R. C. Woods, a legal practitioner of long standing here.

No questions of political importance have arisen during the fortnight. There have been two meetings of the Legislative Council, on the 8th and 14th inst., but its time has been wholly occupied with the consolidation and amendment of the Excise Act. At the meeting on the 8th inst., several despatches of the Secretary of State for the Colonies came up for consideration. Those relative to the introduction of the Post-office money order system between this colony and the United Kingdom, and the proposed alteration of the scale of progression in the rates of postage, were heartily concurred in, and the Council expressed its desire that the changes might be made with as little delay as possible. The Hon. W. H. Read also suggested the adoption of the money order system between the three settlements of the colony, of which the Council approved,—a measure that will prove of great public benefit. With regard to the amendments suggested by Earl Granville in the pilots and the volunteer corps ordinances, the Council was of opinion that it was undesirable to make any changes in the existing laws. As, however, the volunteer corps ordinance was referred by Earl Granville to the War Secretary, who remarked that clause 3 was "foreign to English law and practice," and suggested that some provision should be made whereby "commissioned and non-commissioned officers should not be tried by their inferiors in rank," and Earl Granville, while giving assent to the ordinance, recommended the alteration to the consideration of the council—their adherence to the existing law may possibly be deemed by that officer as a want of courtesy; but as there is at present little probability of a court-martial, we suppose the question to be in reality a mere matter of form, and of little moment. On the motion of the Honourable Thomas Scott, the correspondence between the former Government and Tan Kim Seng, Esq., on the subject of the Waterworks, has been begun to be laid before the Council. It is somewhat curious that, out of the voluminous correspondence that passed on this subject, the two or three letters which have so far been published should prove so favourable to H. E. the Governor's views, and tend to discredit the action of the former Government in the matter. When the balance of the correspondence is forthcoming, the question may appear in a very different light.

Commercial Report.

STRAITS, JAVA, AND CHINA IMPORTS.

SHANGHAI.—Piece Goods: A variety of causes had conduced to check business. The natives were passing through a sort of monetary crisis, and great difficulty was experienced by the native bankers in raising the Sycee to meet their liabilities. The advices from Tientsin were of crops almost ruined from prolonged drought, and of general depression; and the nature of those from the river was not much more encouraging. In addition to these there were increasing stocks, and telegrams of an enormous export of Plain Cottons from home. Grey Shirtings: Medium weights saleable in small lots at a slight concession to buyers. Light and heavy makes very difficult to place, and quotations are to a great extent nominal. Stock on 31st May, exclusive of supplies brought by ships, whose cargoes had not been circulated, about 400,000 pieces. White Shirtings: Small business at previous rates. Stocks, 81,000 pieces. T-Cloths: Best kinds of 7-lb. Mexicans in strong demand during the early part of the fortnight, with large transactions; but anxiety of holders to sell checked any tendency to improvement in value. In medium and common descriptions very little done, and market closed quiet and weak. Stocks 1,120,000 pieces. Drills again easier, and tendency of the market still favoured buyers. Stock 350,000 pieces. Jeans: A large sale to natives of mixed chops, English goods, at Tls. 2.30 per piece, proportion, would indicate returning confidence. A considerable quantity of Jeand has gone into consumption, and their cheapness seemed to be gaining for them the place of heavy Shirtings and T-Cloths. Stock, 190,000 pieces. Sheetings: Few sales, prices unchanged, holders very firm. Fancy Cottons: Market generally worse. A heavy sale of Gentian Shirtings, at Tls. 2.40 per piece, and some forced transactions in Chintzes were the chief features of the fortnight. Woollens: Long Ells attracting more attention. For favourite Chops and good assortment, prices firmer, and in some instances higher; ordinary not been wanted. C P H assorted quoted Tls. 5.80 to 5.85 per piece, but holders firm for an advance. H H Scarlets regaining their former position, Tls. 6.1.0 having been repeatedly refused for them. Camlets, Lastings, Crapes, and Spanish Stripes neglected. A sale of Figured Orleans, of finest quality and patterns, at a reduced rate is reported. Generally the market for Woollen manufactures continued in a most unsatisfactory state. Metals—Iron: Nothing done since last report; quotations nominal. Lead: Heavy arrivals had caused further depression; common chops changed hands at 4.20 and 25; L.B. at 4.35; market closed very weak. Quotations:—G.E. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., Tls. 1.9.5 to 2.0.0 per piece; 8¼ lbs., Tls. 2.2.5 to 2.3.0; 9 lbs., Tls. 2.3.5 to 2.4.0; G.E. White Shirtings, Tls. 1.9.5 to 2.5.5; American Drills, Tls. 3.5.0 to 3.6.5; Jeans, Tls. 2.6.0 to 2.7.0; English Drills, Tls. 3.2.0 to 3.3.5; Jeans, Tls. 2.2.5 to 2.3.2; Sheetings, Tls. 3.3.5 to 3.6.0; Dutch Drills, Tls. 3.1.0 to 3.2.0; Jeans, Tls. 2.2.0 to 2.3.5; T-Cloths, 6 lbs. TEA.

SHANGHAI.—No business had been done in Black Teas; a muster of 200 half-chests Ningchows had been shown on the market, which were said to be new Teas. Green: No transactions.

HANKOW.—The following report of the opening of the market is from Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer, and Co.'s Circular:—We have to advise the opening of our tea market, which took place unexpectedly the day on which the musters were first shown, being four days earlier than in any previous year. On the 18th May a few musters of fine Ningchow received from Kiukiang were offered, two of which were settled late in the day at Tls. 40 per picul, laid down in Shanghai. On the following morning further musters were shown, and 10 chops found buyers at opening rates; the finest parcels were then actively competed for, and large settlements made at from Tls. 34 to Tls. 37 delivered here, and Tls. 38 to Tls. 43 laid down in Shanghai, the latest settlements showing an advance of fully Tls. 3 per picul. Business commenced in teas from our own districts on the 21st by the purchase of an Oanfar at Tls. 31½. For two or three days but little was done in Oopacks, and only such taken as were fit for the Russian market, as much as Tls. 34 to Tls. 35 being paid for three or four fine chops: other grades remained neglected till heavy arrivals compelled teamen to reduce their demands, when numerous settlements were made at gradually declining rates, till we quote a reduction of Tls. 3 to Tls. 4. As a crop we consider it superior to last year's, the improvement being most noticeable in the leaf, which seems to have been more carefully manipulated. The Ningchows, we think, will again rank as the finest of the year, whilst of teas from our own districts we give the preference to the Oanfas, which are fine and strong in cup and freer from admixture of leaf from other districts than last year, but not perhaps of so distinctive a character. The Cheong-sow-kyes, although showing less improvement in make, are superior in cup; whilst in the Young-low-toongs and Nip-car-sees the superiority is most apparent in the leaf. Only a few musters have arrived from Soong-yong, but for these we form a favourable opinion of the growth. We quote finest Oanfas 29 to 30; Oopacks, fine to finest, 24 to 30; medium to fine, 22 to 23½; and Ningchows, 28 to 31 taels per picul—choice parcels would, however, realise higher figures. Quality considered, we think rates now current are lower than at same period of last season. Of Ningchows 43,300 half-chests have been offered, of which 32,800 have found buyers. Rates paid for Oopacks at exchange here of 6s. 3d., and freight per steamer £7 for 40 feet, are equal to 1s. 7½d. to 2s. 4d., and for Ningchows 2s. to 2s. 3d. per lb.

FOOCHOW.—Messrs. Westall, Galton, and Co. report as follows:—The first of the new season's Teas reached this market on the 20th May, and to date (4th June) the arrivals amount to 100,144 chests, against 164,050 at the same time last year. Expressions of opinion as to the quality of the crop must be limited at present to the descriptions known as "low country teas" and "Paklings," as the musters from the distant districts are, so far, too few to allow of a correct judgment being formed of them. Taken as a whole, the "low country teas" can scarcely be considered as superior to those of last season. The comparative far smaller admixture of old leaf and greater strength are points strongly in their favour; but, unfortunately, the improvement in these respects is nullified to a lamentable extent by the general roughness of the leaf and extreme rawness—almost amounting to coarseness—of the bulk in water, attributable, no doubt, to the delay which took place in the first picking of the leaf. As regards "Paklings," although but few musters have been shown which can be classed as "finest," the quality generally must be pronounced as superior to that of last year's crop, inasmuch as it appears to be genuine, i.e., free from mixture with other kinds. A few musters of inferior Oolong have been shown. The new Scented Teas may be looked for in a few days. The opening rate of freight has not yet been settled. The SS. Achilles, Thermopylæ, Windhover, Everest, Falcon, Wylo, Eme, and Norman Court are in port ready to load, and several other vessels are daily expected. Exchange on London, 4/7½ for six months' sight credits, nominal.

CANTON.—The market was opened on the 24th May by the settlement of some 10,000 boxes Scented Caper, at Tls. 24 to 26 for good medium grades, which prices were from Tl. 1 to 1½ below the opening rates of last season. Since the opening, a fair business had been continued daily. The settlements reported of Scented Orange Pekoes were at full rates compared with the first purchases of similar medium kinds last year. The musters lately offered showed no improvement in quality over those first exhibited on the market, the Tea being almost without exception badly made and mixed with old leaf. No District Congou or new Canton Greens had found buyers. The small parcel of Imperial reported had been purchased for shipment to the Continent. Some rather large contracts of Pouchong for future shipment to the United States were reported to have been entered into during the fortnight. The Taeping carries home the first cargo of new tea. She cleared from Whampoa on the 4th June, and completes her cargo at Macao, from whence she will probably depart on the 9th June. Canton settlements from 21st May to 4th June:- Country Congous and Country District Congous, nil; Scented Orange Pekoe, 15,000 boxes, at Tls. 22 to 34; Scented Caper, 39,000 boxes, at Tls. 18 to 32. Canton Greens—Gunpowder: Nil; Imperial, 800 boxes, at Tls. 15; Young Hyson, nil.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular:—Hank musters of the new silk arrived on the 23rd May, and bale musters were shown on the 30th; the silk from Nanzing shows a great improvement both in size, colour, and quality on that of last year, while that from Linhoo and Hoochow is most decidedly inferior, being very coarse, mixed, and cased. On the 31st May the market was opened by the purchase of No. 4½ Linhoo Silk at Tls. 520 to Tls. 530, and was immediately succeeded by one of Blue Flags, at Tls. 585, and some good Nanzing Four Tsatlee, at Tls. 545; from that moment buying became general, and we hear the Phœnix and Blue Peacocks Chop has been sold at Tls. 545; Old Cat Chop Tingsfung, Tls. 580; Pagoda Chop, Tls. 585 to Tls. 590, while for Chooping Sequence of Check Chop, Tls. 630 is asked for the No. 3, and the rest in proportion. Only two or three musters of Red Peacocks have been shown, but no price fixed, as it was impossible to get any quantity down for this mail; both the Checks and Red Peacock's are unusually good this season, and far exceed both in quality and size those of last. Hangchows have met with some little attention, but, although the quality is better than last season, it is far from satisfactory. Kahings and Chinceum: Only a few of the lower grades, say thirds to inferior quality, have arrived on the market and found purchasers at Tls. 420 to 460. Skeins: Some good black ties sold at Tls. 405 to 415. On account of the unusually fine weather, some 1,400 bales have arrived from the interior, out of which 1,000 bales have found buyers. The opening prices are unprecedentedly high, being fully 1s. 6d. to 2s. over last telegraphic advices. The yield for season is not expected by the best informed natives to exceed 40,000 bales. The past season has ended more fortunately for all concerned in the article than could have been anticipated. The market was opened about the 9th June, 1869, at fairly moderate prices, say 24s. for Red Peacocks and 28s. 6d. to 29s. 6d. for Chops, but, on the arrival of the silk in London and Lyons, manufacturers would not respond to these rates in consequence of the European yield being larger than that of late years, stocks were therefore allowed to accumulate until some importers forced sales at losses ranging from 1s. to 3s. per lb. Even this proved no discouragement to buyers here, who continued operations, and were at last rewarded by a favourable turn in the home market about the end of November, since when it has gradually improved; the impetus thus given caused a rapid advance in prices here, and the parity of home rates was soon exceeded, sanguine buyers taking almost any description of silk offered, so that many of the native manufacturers preferring to realise their supplies intended for local consumption, the export was unexpectedly swelled to a total of 42,804 bales. The outturn of the whole season has been mostly in favour of shippers, although such must be attributed more to good fortune than to any reasonable foresight on the part of buyers, and it is to be hoped that this unexpected success may not engender over-sanguine expectations for the coming year.

CANTON.—The market had continued active, and prices had further advanced. The Silk of the first crop had been sent down rather too hurriedly, and it was difficult to speak so favourably as regards size and cleanliness of thread. The present mail steamer would take forward nearly all that was likely to be received from the first yield. Concerning the second crop, reports were rather contradictory, but it was estimated that about 2,000 bales would be available for export. Very high prices continued to be asked for America, and consequently buyers were few in number. At 4/7 exchange, the following were the laying down costs in London per Overland route:—Tsatlee-reel, best selected, none; ditto, No. 1, $5.25 to 5.30 per lb.; ditto, No. 2, $5.10 to 5.15 per lb.; Loonkong, best selected, $5.50 to 5.55 per lb.; ditto, No. 1, $5.20 to 5.25 per lb.; ditto, No. 2, $5.05 to 5.10 per lb.; Cumchuck and Lacklow, No. 1, $4.85 to 4.90 per lb.; Re-reeled and Lacklow, No. 1, $5.45 per lb.

JAVA AND STRAITS PRODUCE.

BATAVIA.—Arrack: Current worth may be taken at f.77½, equal to f.118 per leaguer, f.o.b. Coffee: A very trifling business; second quality Bali sold at f.28 per picul. For "good ordinary" Java, f.30 to f.31 per picul would still be paid, equal to f.29.75 per 50 kilo, or 51s. 3d. per cwt., f.o.b. Gum Dammar: An average amount of business at f.38 to f.86 per picul for clean picked best quality Sumatra, equal to f.33.77 per 50 kilo, or 56s. 8d. per cwt., f.o.b. Hides: Demand for Buffalo steady at former prices, upwards of 1,500 skins of second quality changed hands at 24 to 25 cents per American lb.; about the same quality superior at 27 cents. Rice: Supply of new and old grain considerable and increasing. Values had consequently further receded. Quotations:—First Batavia, f.145 per coyan; Second do., f.130; Cargo do., f.105. Tin: The third bi-monthly auction of Billiton Tin was held on the 3rd June, when the 6,000 piculs offered were taken at an average price of f.76.44 per picul, equal to f.69.21 per 50 kilo, or 117/5 per cwt., f.o.b.

SINGAPORE.—There was not much alteration in the position of the market; business had been limited and quotations showed little change. Gambier, about 1,050 tons sold at $3.20 to 3.17½ per picul, but telegrams of low prices on home market caused a decline. Tin had fallen in value but there had been a fair inquiry and a good business had transpired. Supplies of Black Pepper small, prices firmer. White Pepper is coming in slowly and had advanced. Pearl Sago dearer and in demand. Sago Flour firm, supplies readily taken up. Gutta Percha fallen considerably. India Rubber in good demand, arrivals small. Nutmegs risen in value. Mace in moderate request. Hides in fair inquiry, quotations unaltered. Horns in good demand, prices firmer. Rattans best qualities wanted and readily taken up at full rates. Rice quiet, few sales. Tapioca receded in value. Sticklac offering more freely, price easier. Closing prices: Gambier, $3.12½; Pearl Sago, $3.17½; Sago flour, $2.55. Black Pepper, $8.15; White Pepper, $11.75; Tin, $30½.

PENANG.—Tin: The bulk of the business done had been at $31 to 31.10 per picul, which may be taken as the closing price. On the arrival of the news that the British bark Andes, with a cargo of Pepper from Sumatra had been totally lost, the price suddenly rose to $8½ per picul for West Coast, but in face of fresh arrivals had gone back to $8.10. Supplies of East Coast and Acheen taken at $7.80 to 8.10 per picul. White Pepper, in moderate supply, and purchased at $11.40 to 12 per picul. Sugar: Few transactions, No. 1, extra, sold at $7.50, ordinary at $5¾ to 6.30; No. 2 at $5; No. 3 at $4½ per picul. Tapioca and Cassava Flour, no change in value. Hides, Buffalo taken at a slight advance. The prices ranged from $10 to 10.25 per picul. Cow rather scarce, arrivals purchased at $14 to 14.55.

Mr. E. Mellish's Hong Kong circular remarks:—Since the last fortnightly mail left for Europe, Sterling Exchange has advanced about ½ per cent., and closes firm at above quotations. The Pacific Mail steamer China, from San Francisco and Japan, arrived on the 1st instant, bringing Treasure to the value of $700,000, comparatively a small portion only of which consisted of Mexican Dollars. Notwithstanding advices from India of a higher Sterling market, Rupee Paper both on Bombay and Calcutta has been sold at rates more favourable to buyers than those ruling at the close of last mail. Tenders were invited for H.M. Treasury Bills at 30 days' sight, and offers were accepted at rates varying from 4/6 to 4/6 3-16. Estimated amount of business—Bank Bills, £160,000 to £170,000; Private Paper, £200,000.

COMMERCIAL POSTSCRIPT.

THE Post-office officials have apparently but just become alive to a fact which we pointed out in our issue of the 27th ultimo, namely, that the Pacific mail steamers for China and Japan now leave San Francisco on the 1st instead of the 4th of each month, and that correspondence posted here must consequently reach New York by the 22nd or 23rd of the previous month. A notice to this effect was issued from the Post-office on the 25th inst.

A private telegram, dated Foochow, June 29, reports the Tea Market at that port still unopened.

The following vessels outward bound passed through the Suez Canal from the 19th to the 25th inst.:—The English steamers Bellona, Evora, Sulina, Eldon, Otterburn, Emma Ash, Agamemnon, and Chinditetah (?); the French ironclad corvette Belliqueuse, the Messageries steamer Hoogly, and the Danish frigate Tordenskjold, with a portion of the Great Northern telegraph cable.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite. The Civil Service Gazette remarks:—"The singular success which Mr. Epps has attained by his homœopathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any experimentalist. By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in tin-lined packets labelled—JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London.

LONDON: WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1870.

THE TIENTSIN MASSACRE.

OWING to the declaration of war by France against Prussia, it has been impossible to get any sort of hearing for this occurrence at the French Foreign-office. All we can assume is that the French Chargé d'Affaires at Peking, M. ROCHECHOUART—whom it was at first conjectured was killed—has been instructed to demand satisfaction for this atrocity, and, failing to obtain the most complete and sincere action at the hands of the Peking Government by the immediate punishment of the offenders and a disavowal of any complicity, the French Government would be left free to take such measures as they may deem necessary—probably the infliction themselves of retribution on the town of Tientsin. The feeling of exasperation on the part of the French will be intense, and we fear that the Chinese will find them far harder masters than the English, notwithstanding the character our officials in China bear in the opinion of the peace party—Sir CHARLES DILKE and Mr. RYLANDS. The Chinese are so subtle that it is extremely difficult to form an opinion as to their complicity in this last affair or the murder of Mr. WILLIAMSON, one of our own missionaries, who, it will be remembered, was attacked and murdered while travelling in a boat, and up to this hour we have no satisfaction for the injury. Our Government have admitted the claim of the Chinese to the ordinary usages of international courtesy, and, as we have often pointed out, have committed a great mistake in so doing. It is simply impracticable. We have no doubt that this Tientsin tragedy has been instigated by the Literati and Mandarins, who are simply one remove from the actual Government. We know well enough that the mercantile classes of the Chinese are quite content with the presence of foreigners. Extraordinary as it may appear, our Foreign-office did not receive any information on the affair via Kiachta. Perhaps the spirit of economy has extended to forbidding the use of the telegraph wires. The Journal Officiel of France publishes a telegram from Peking, which states that the victims were M. FONTAINE (the French Consul), M. SIMON, M. and Mdme. THOMASIN, eight Sisters of Charity, two priests, Fathers CHEVRIER and DE CHALMAISON —in all, fourteen French subjects.

On the 20th inst. the following telegram was received from St. Petersburg :—

The Chinese murdered the Consul of France and his secretary, all the Roman Catholic priests, nine sisters of charity, two merchants and their wives, and two young Russians. The French Consulate, the Roman Catholic Church, and the Hospital of the Sisters of Charity have been burned down. The other Europeans were unmolested. On the next day order had been re-established by the authorities.

By later telegrams it appears that our authorities in Hong Kong were sending up troops to Tientsin to protect foreigners from further outrage. But later still we have a telegram that a Chinese general has been despatched to France to atone for the massacre; this is certainly a novelty in our relations with China.

THE SUEZ CANAL AND THE WAR.

ONE of the most interesting phases of the war just declared by France against Prussia is whether in the course of events which must arise out of it, France will find a pretext for interfering with the navigation of the Suez Canal. At the Conference held by the delegates at the opening ceremony the inviolability of the Canal, whether in war or peace, was very emphatically urged by Mr. WM. PUSTAU, the North German delegate, which at this moment is very significant. Our readers may also remember that in April last we alluded to the proposed alteration in the charges of the Suez Canal Company, i.e., to charge on the cargo conveyed, which would have given the company a pretext for examining the hold of a vessel, and thus have violated one of the articles specially stipulated. In fact, the delegates made "neutrality" a standing and leading item in the compact.

THE WAR AND ITS CONSEQUENCES.

FRANCE, or rather NAPOLEON III., believes she is waging war against Prussia or the North German Confederation, but she is mistaken. The invasion of the Rhine by an enemy will assuredly be the means of bringing and binding together both North and South Germany. It will kindle a flame of love. All will unite, and the cry of "Vaterland" will be universal against the old enemy, the battalions of NAPOLEON. Patriotism in its most extreme enthusiasm will be roused by the thoughts and recollections of bygone days and the injuries and insults of the first NAPOLEON. Neither one, two, nor three defeats will suffice to curb the ardour of the Germans, who will come forward and join the ranks to the soul-stirring strains of our "Vaterland." No other is necessary. To all observers of French politics it is transparent that this war is to NAPOLEON III. one of expediency, not dictated by any real grievance, but the state of France and home affairs have of late so encroached on his popularity that a war was the last card to avoid a revolution, which would end in his abdication or flight. The alternative is one of the most wicked ever perpetrated, and the Duc DE GRAMONT and other Ministers who have given effect to the decision are not worthy of the name of Ministers. They are the mere tools of a despot. We rejoice at the expression of opinion in the House of Commons by Mr. DISRAELI. Sure are we that such views boldly enunciated are the surest way of gaining the respect of the whole world. They will be handed down to posterity, and future generations may take counsel from them.

The words of Mr. DISRAELI are golden, and well deserve to be engraven in gold. Of all the wise and patriotic utterances of our great men, including the celebrated civis Romanus suum of Lord PALMERSTON, we doubt if any come up to the high intellectual and thoroughly English tone of Mr. DISRAELI. The speech is unique; while most emphatically and unmistakably proclaiming the position and what is due to this country, it does not exhibit any petty feeling of slight towards France. Of course, had Mr. DISRAELI held the office of Prime Minister he would have been unable to express his views so independently; but nothing is more calculated to put him in office when the course of events bring about a change in our Ministry. The Conservatives may, however, treasure up "Mr. DISRAELI'S speech on the declaration of war by France" as one of the most potent influences to promote their cause on the hustings. The war will give an undoubted supremacy to our flag by throwing out the Mercantile Marine of France and Germany. Notably amongst those who will chiefly benefit by this are the P. and O. and Cunard Companies. The old game of registering vessels under neutral flags has been repeated, and we hear of arrangements to place the German steamers to New York under the American flag. If the Hamburg, Bremen, and St. Nazaire boats should venture to ply as usual to New York, Brazils, and other places, they certainly will not command either freight or passengers with the same readiness as steamers under the English flag. It will also be a check on the French steamers on the Pacific lines, and will greatly affect the various services of the Messageries Imperiales; but we presume they will keep up their line to India and China, as it is unlikely that the French Government will require their boats for transport services, the war being almost entirely a land one, and the risk of capture insignificant. The large number of German vessels in the Straits, China, and Japan waters will also be thrown out of employment, as the local underwriting offices could not accept war risks at a rate to allow of employment at a paying rate. Another inconvenience will arise to the various communities in the East, and that is the unemployed seamen cast on shore. The annoyance on this score will be well-nigh intolerable, for by the last mail we have lamentable accounts of European vagrancy in Ceylon. The French navy being so much superior in numbers, Prussia, like Russia in the Crimean War, will make no effort to cope with France by sea, and cannot but submit to be blockaded by the superior strength of the French navy. Not that the Prussian navy is by any means contemptible, but it would be a waste of the time, strength, and resources of the Prussians to attempt an engagement at sea which could not inflict an injury on her antagonist of any value in the struggle. The great study of Prussia must be to husband resources, and be more cunning, cautious, and patient, than valorous. Let the French, as is their wont (and losing feature) do the impetuous. Germans must resemble the English, and be able to stand transient defeat but utterly unable to be beaten. With the French temperament success is absolutely indispensable to final victory. Defeat—even but temporary—utterly demoralises them. The effect on our Money Market at the outset will be rather beneficial than otherwise, as Continental people of all classes, from princes to peasants, will be sending their spare capital to England. Our rates of interest are therefore likely to rise but little; but this condition of things will be of short duration, for we shall have France out with loan upon loan, and although the financial strength of Prussia is much superior to France, she must also come on the market, although she did not in her struggle with Austria. The present war with France is, however, on a far more gigantic scale, and consequently involves an immeasurably larger expenditure. Still the financing tactics and the credit of Prussia are infinitely superior to the French, and they will obtain their loans on much better terms. Money being said to be the real arbiter or sinew of war, Prussia stands at an immense advantage over France, which is well nigh bankrupt before she commences the lavish expenditure attendant on war.

The Corn Market has promptly shown a sympathy, and transactions in wheat have taken place at an advance of 15s. per quarter; and as our crops will be exceedingly light, owing to the want of rain, and the ports of the Baltic will doubtless be blockaded, we may look for very dear bread next winter. Coal, being contraband of war, cannot now be exported to France, and as this forms a large branch of our trade with that country it will throw out of employ a considerable amount of tonnage, as well as the firms and hands engaged in the trade. Saltpetre, hemp, tallow, and lead have risen in value, while coffee, which is so largely consumed on the Continent in time of peace, has fallen 8s. to 10s. Sugar has not fallen, as there are many chances of supplies being interrupted from Cuba and other places. The present low range of prices for Tea will be maintained if not further depressed, as our orders from the Continent have always been a great support to prices. Taking a general view of the effects of the war on our industry and trade, a falling off by one cause will be made up by another; we shall be freed from the competition of France and Belgium in railway and other iron works. There are many other commodities which are alike produced in this country and on the Continent, but our neighbours will have their facilities for production and export cut off, which must increase our field. Our railway dividends should also increase, as at this season of the year thousands would be arranging for a holiday in Switzerland and such like places who will now prefer the peaceful fields and lakes of their own country.

THE Austrian Lloyd's have not up to the present time found sufficient inducement to increase the cargo service from Trieste to Bombay by the Canal. Nominally it is once a month, but not on a fixed date. The weekly line from Trieste to Alexandria, connecting with the P. and O. Company' steamers to and from India and China, remains the same.

HONG KONG IN 1870.

BARRACKS.

The additional barracks are planted in four several ranges on the face of the hill, immediately in the rear of the Military Hospital, and should be cool, for they are well placed to catch the breezes either from east or west. But why so many soldiers are required here I can hardly divine, and no wonder the mercantile community grumble at having to pay £20,000 a-year towards their support.

SEAMEN'S HOME.

It is hardly correct to speak of this as a Government institution, for it has been mainly established by the enterprise of mercantile firms, prominent among whom is that of Jardine, Matheson and Co., who hold a mortgage on the premises for $40,000, or about half the cost. It is a fine building, facing the sea at a point where the Queen's-road takes off towards Pokfoolum, and is capable of accommodating over a hundred men. The charges for seamen ($8 a-week) are moderate, and there is a bar, at which the inmates can obtain whatever liquor they require at cheaper rates than they would have to pay in taverns. Unlike the Shanghai Home, where men sleep in bunks, and in the full sense of the term "rough it," here each boarder has his iron-frame bed, mattrass, sheets, &c., with a small cupboard at each bed's head to store their little knicknacks, which sailors like to have about them. Officers of ships are domiciled in a separate room, and pay something extra for perhaps a trifle better food or style of cooking. Under the superintendence of Captain Overbury, many years master of ships trading in these waters, but few complaints of mismanagement are heard—a marked contrast to the growl continually emanating from the Northern Home. There is this difference between the two, too, that in Shanghai (by sparser liberality) the accounts show a surplus annually for appropriation towards the discharge of an encumbrance also held by Jardine, Matheson, and Co.; here there is not a sufficiency of balance on the right side to pay for fire insurance. The lower part of the house, built for the superintendent, is used as an office (offices) for the Harbour-master in that branch of his department which relates to the shipping of seamen. The Colonial Chaplain performs divine service in the lower rooms every Sunday evening.

TELEGRAPHS.

The first series of wires laid was from the offices of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co., at East Point, to their establishment in town. After that Government put lines of poles from the Central Police Station to Shiwan, these running along the beach, another series going up the Gorge, entering at Hospital-hill, and over the mountain to Stanley; a third line extending from the Central Station to the Peak, and thence down to Aberdeen; the whole length of wire being over forty miles, I should think.

SEAMEN'S HOSPITAL.

This, again, is an institution founded on private rather than on public enterprise. It stands on the same site as the hospital built in 1842, and for many years managed by the late Dr. Harland, on funds named but never paid by Heerjebhoy Rustonjee, a Parsee merchant, who fancied he had $12,000 in the hands of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co., but had not (the firm liberally gave the money, however). It is a very well-designed building, of two stories, in four blocks, on the sides of a centre open quadrangle—the north front and west side blocks being occupied by the house surgeon, apothecary, house steward, and first-class patients. For the latter the accommodation may not be boasted of, the rooms, ten or twelve feet square, without closets, being too small. The boarding is good, however, and for a convalescent requiring quietness and generous feeding rather than close medical treatment, the Seamen's Hospital is preferable to an hotel—the rate, $3 a-day (without liquor), being about the same—hot or cold baths at any hour of the day being great advantages. Consequent on the number of cases of small-pox and typhus fever (invariably brought in ships from Yokohama) a building is about to be erected apart from the main block, so as to keep such contagious afflictions entirely separate. At present patients with these diseases are placed in a temporary house on the west wing.

WATERWORKS.

These may be designated the great muddle—the grand drain—of the colony. Although the name of the island in Chinese signifies fragrant streams, the waters from which it takes its appellation are to be found chiefly on the south side of the mountain; and though, until the native population increased to an unreasonable extent, water enough could be procured from springs and wells on the north face to satisfy all wants, those of the shipping included, it then became necessary to provide against droughts, to check fires, &c., and so it came about that the Government offered a premium for the best scheme to supply all wants, at all times and seasons. Mr. Rawlings, an officer of the Royal Engineers' Works Department, was the successful competitor, and, on application made, was permitted to leave the service, and see his plan carried out. After he left, the works came under the Surveyor-General's Department, and such a heap of money as it has since cost, and is yet costing, to perfect the original plan, must be a caution. From first to last the scheme was wrong, as thus. Pokfoolum, the place selected for a reservoir, is a gorge, in a confluence of hills, the flow of which is about, I should think, 600 feet above the level of the sea, and may be likened to a trapezium, with lengths of sides about double the extent of the spread or base—the fall, from the apex, being such that it would be possible to make a series of tanks, with eight feet outside wallings, sufficiently large to retain enough water after each heavy rainfall to keep the town supplied for a year. Instead of any such tanks, however, the plan in work is the erection of a huge barrier across the mouth of the gorge, an earthwork containing, I estimate, a cubical content of some four millions of feet, and it is in the basin behind this barrier they purpose to have a small sea of something like seventy feet in depth. If, after all, this barrier should be insufficient for the pressure against it, the consequences of a burst would indeed be terrible. As regards the cost, I find that instead of contracting for digging, as was the practice in the old economical times, they pay labour after the rate of four men per dollar, this being just twice the price paid for coolies in the days of cutting a gap into the Wangneichung Valley in 1843.

[Query.—How is it the cost of labour has increased to such an extent as this? Who enjoys the difference? Not the actual earth-cutters, that we may be sure of.]

Exchange: Bank bills, six months, 6s. 1d. London telegrams to June 14 received July 3.

(RECEIVED VIA GALLE, JULY 25.)

HONG KONG, JULY 7.—Intelligence has been received here stating that the Chinese at Tientsin rose against the foreigners on the 21st of June, and murdered the French Consul and the Sisters of Mercy. They also destroyed the Consulate and the cathedral. It is rumoured that the French Minister and several Russians have been murdered at Peking. Great excitement prevails at Nanking, and Her Majesty's gunboats Opossum and Dwarf have been despatched to the north. At Shanghai the Volunteers have been called out, and the troops here are ready to proceed to the north at a moment's notice. The French authorities have sent despatches to Saigon to call up troops. War appears unavoidable.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM, RECEIVED VIA GALLE, JULY 26.)

HONG KONG, JULY 7.—Grey Shirtings, 6½ catties, 8¼ lbs., $2.85, Water Twist, $1.30. Tea, quiet; total export (China and Japan), 18,000,000 lbs. Exchange on London, six months' Bank Bills, 4s. 6¾d.

SHANGHAI, JULY 1.—Grey Shirtings, 6½ catties, 8¼ lbs., Tls. 2.20. Cotton, Shanghai, Tls. 18. Silk, large business done at former prices; settlements since departure of last mail, 4,700 bales. Export to date (China and Japan), from commencement of season, 13,000 bales. Exchange on London, six months' Bank bills, 6s. 1½d. Freights, tea, £2 10s.

BOMBAY, JULY 26.—Intelligence has been received here by the last China mail that an insurrection has broken out at Awa, in Japan; 1,400 persons are believed to have been massacred. The Daimio of Awa is said to have declared that he will exterminate all the inhabitants.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

(RECEIVED VIA GALLE, JULY 26.)

SINGAPORE, JULY 15.—Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $2.82½; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., $1.77½; Mule Twist, 40's, $134. Exchange, Bank bills, six m.s., 4s. 6¾d.

Monetary and Commercial.

At the meeting of the East and West India Dock Company a dividend of 3 per cent., free of income-tax, was declared for the half-year. The directors' report, which was adopted, mentioned that the shipping shows an increase of 25,709 tons as compared with the first six months of 1869, and that from the West Indies, Mauritius, China, and Australia, the additions to the tonnage account are in excess of this amount of increase. The reduction in the number of miscellaneous shipping and grain-laden vessels has, however, operated in abatement of the general account, so that the full value of the increased Colonial business is not shown in the report of the tonnage. The importations of West Indian and China produce have been in excess of those of the first six months of 1869, but the importations of East Indian produce, as well as the amount of East Indian shipping, seem to correspond very nearly with those of 1869.

At an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China, held on the 19th inst., Mr. Edward James Daniell, of the firm of Messrs. Daniell and Co., East India merchants, London, was unanimously elected a director in the place of Mr. Ellis James Gilman, resigned.

According to a statement just issued by Messrs. Pixley, Abell, Langley, and Blake, the bullion brokers of Old Broad-street, the imports of bullion into London, during the six months ending the 30th ult., amounted to £8,768,110, against £9,711,077 in the corresponding period of 1869, while the exports reached £6,269,298, against £8,437,331.

The steamers Erl King and Diomed, with the first cargoes of new teas, may be expected here about the 4th proximo.

The tenders for £400,000 on India were received at the Bank and the amounts alloted were—to Calcutta, £297,500; to Bombay, £100,000; and to Madras, £2,500. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10½d., on all the Presidencies, and tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10½d. will receive about 18 per cent.; those above in full. Tenders on Bombay at 1s. 10¾d. will receive in full. These results show that remittances to the East have been checked by the war and the uncertainty of the Money Market.

Mr. Sam Mendel has issued a circular calling for the co-operation of merchants and brokers to declare their shipments more promptly, and thus avoid the after entries, which are sometimes a month old.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

The excitement which has attended the declaration of war on the Continent has imposed a serious check upon business, and transactions have been extremely limited in extent, while in many cases prices have declined.

TEA.

The Circular of Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson says:—

The slight improvement noticed in our last on the 14th inst. no longer exists. The dealers are holding off from buying, on account of the "new terms" proposed by importers, and the market is also suffering from the effects of the war on the Continent. Foochow Congous: Siftings and Dust are unaltered; Broken-leaf may still be quoted at 8d. to 9d., inferior common at 9d. to 10d. per lb., common to good common at 10½d. to 11½d. per lb., and fair has been sold to a small extent at 1s. per lb. Black Leaf Congous: Common is still at 10d. to 11d., and good common to fair 11¼d. to 1s. 0¼d. per lb, but these prices are quite nominal; a parcel of fine has been sold at 2s. 1¼d. per lb. Tayshan Congous: The few at present on the market are without enquiry. Souchongs and Oolongs are quite neglected. Scented Teas: A slight demand continues for the finer grades at about former rates, but the present stock of these kinds is very limited. In Green Teas there is not any alteration to report, few sales having been made since our last. There have not been any Public Sales during the past week.

SILK.

The market, which had previously been extremely quiet, pending the first arrival of the new China Silk, has, since the political anxieties of the last ten days, relapsed into general stagnation. The lamentable outbreak of war between France and Prussia has quite put a stop to business, and we can only record the smallest possible transactions, and those by country buyers. Quotations are under the circumstances nominal, and are likely to be so until some definite result of the approaching struggle takes place which might restore peace to Europe and security to commerce; the few transactions of the past week have been generally at about 1s. decline. The deliveries are less satisfactory, owing of course to the all but general cessation of orders from the Continent to forward Silk. The total clearances from the 1st to 20th instant are as follows:—China, 1,440 bales; Japan, 357 bales; Canton, 415 bales; Bengal, 180 bales; total, 2,392 bales.

COFFEE.

The market is in a most unsatisfactory condition. Although only a small supply of Ceylon has been brought forward at the public sales, the greater portion had to be withdrawn, and so severe has been the depression in the market that the small business effected establishes a decline in Plantation of 10s. per cwt. on last mail's prices, the last rates paid being—Triage, 39s. to 48s.; small, 47s. to 53s.; low middling, 53s. to 54s. 6d.; middling, 56s. to 62s.; good middling, 67s.; peaberry, 67s. to 73s. No transactions are reported in Native Ceylon or in other East India, and at the close business in all kinds appears to be entirely suspended. The landings for the past week are heavy, and consist chiefly of Ceylon, but being 400 tons less than last year, and the deliveries 360 tons in excess of 1869, the surplus in the stock is brought down to 1,240 tons.

SUGAR.

The business since our last report has been unimportant, but prices continue to be sustained. The only sale of East India has been 300 bags Penang at 27s. to 28s. 6d. An offer was made of 35,760 bags clayed Manila, just arrived, per Cleughs, which were all bought in, duty 4s., at 23s. 6d., a small part fine (duty 4s. 9d.) at 26s. The landings for the past week consist chiefly of Colonial sorts, and are 650 tons less than last year; but as the deliveries are also 300 tons less, little difference occurs in the position of the stock, the surplus being still about 17,000 tons.

COIR GOODS.—The last sales, although not heavy, contained a large proportion of undesirable and second-hand parcels, which met little demand, and were chiefly withdrawn. Of 826 bales 11 tons Cochin Yarn only a small part sold, low £18 5s., medium £25, good to fine, £31 15s. to £35 5s.; 128 bales Ceylon were bought in, fine £45, superior £65; of 127 tons ditto the greater part sold, low and common, £17 15s. to £20, good common to medium, £21 to £24, good medium to good, £26 to £28 5s. Of Fibre, 6 bales 7 tons Ceylon met few offers, and were all withdrawn. Kitool Fibre, 8 bales 15 bundles Ceylon, sold at 6d. to 6¼d.

COCOA NUT OIL.—The market for Ceylon is quiet but steady at £38.

CUTCH.—A further slight decline has occurred, 534 boxes fine Pegu having been sold at 21s. 6d. to 22s. per cwt.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—The only sale to report is of 10 cases Cassia at 4s. 3d.

HEMP.—There has been no business in Manila.

ISINGLASS.—At the last sales there was a fairly active demand, and the prices realised showed some advance upon those previously current. Of Penang 11 cases sold, fair tongue at 8s. 6d., ordinary at 2s. 9d. to 3s. per lb.

OILS.—A parcel of Japan Fish, 56 tons, realised £33.

PEPPER.—The market continues dull. Of Black, 71 bags Singapore sold at 5d., showing a decline of ¼d., and 240 bags Batavia were offered and bought in at 4¼d. per lb. Of White, 164 bags Singapore were bought in at 6¼d., except 60 bags sea-damaged, which sold at that price. Privately about 500 bags Singapore have sold at 6d. cash to 6¼d. prompt, being a decline on last mail's rates.

RUM.—There is an active demand at advanced rates; we note the sale of 150 puncheons Penang at 1s. 7¼d. per proof gallon.

RICE.—The demand is not active, although prices are well maintained. An important rise which has taken place in the Corn market has not exercised any improving influence. The inquiry on the spot has run exclusively upon Siam, in which there have been somewhat extensive transactions, comprising 1,800 tons field in mats—400 tons at 8s. 1½d., 400 tons at 8s. 3d., 1,000 at 8s. 4½d.; and 40,000 mats (1,200 tons) garden, at 8s. 7½d. to 8s. 9d. The landed cargo of 800 tons garden Siam in mats, per W. W. Smith, has been sold at 8s. prompt two months. Afloat the cargo of 660 tons Necranzie, per George Avery, May sailing, has been sold at 10s. ex ship, or 10s. 6d. landed; and the cargo of 900 tons Necranzie Arracan, per Hannah Maria, at 10s. for the Continent. Landed last week 347 tons, delivered (exclusive of the quantity ex ship), 1,049 tons; stock, 40,314 tons, against 52,120 tons at this time last year.

SPICES.—There have been no transactions.

TIN.—The demand continues limited, and prices have suffered a further considerable decline, the current quotations being—Straits, on the spot, £124; Banca, £125; Billiton, £124; being £4 to £7 lower than those last given.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE.—The demand is still restricted, but prices are maintained at the former range, viz.:—Java, 20c. to 22c.; Singapore, 18c. to 19c.; Manila, 16c. to 17c.; Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19c. gold. The sales have been 715 bags superior Java per Regina Maris at 22½c. gold, 4,400 mats Singapore per Nabob, and 1,760 bags Singapore, vessel not named, the two last parcels being on private terms. The stock of Manila on the 1st July was estimated at 1,700 bags, against 6,769 bags on July 1, 1869; of Java (Government), at 850 bags, against 1,995 bags; of Java mats, 49,362, against 66,691 bags; of Ceylon, 250 bags, against 1,884 bags; of Singapore 5,171 bags, against nil.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 18c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2; Cassia, $1.25 gold.

FIRE CRACKERS.—There is now little or no demand, and prices have further receded, the closing quotations for Extra No. 1 being $3.10

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 3¾c. gold (duty paid); stock, 7,000 bales.

GUNNY CLOTH.—The market is quiet at 20½c. to 21c. for Borneo.

HEMP.—There is a large supply of Manila and but little demand; the price is nominally 13½c. to 13⅝c. gold, but no transactions are reported, and business could be done in inferior qualities at lower rates. The stock of Manila on the 1st July was estimated at 17,935 bales, against 5,744 bales at the corresponding date of 1869, and 25,157 bales in 1868. The imports into the United States from the 1st January to the 30th June, 1870, were 85,121 bales, against 61,235 bales during the corresponding period of last year, and the quantity afloat on the 30th June was 25,409 bales, against 38,700 bales at the same date last year.

INDIGO.—The market continues quiet, and no transactions are reported.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $8 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is $1 to $1.75 currency (duty paid).

RICE.—There is more activity in the market, and Rangoon has realised higher rates, the sales being 2,800 bags for home consumption at $6.87½ to 7, and 3,500 bags in bond for export, part afloat, at $3 to 3.25 gold.

SPICES.—There is a fair demand, and with moderate stocks and favourable foreign advices the market remains very firm. Two invoices say 1,600 bags, Pimento, sold on private terms; and 3,000 bales Cloves just received, were sold before arrival. We notice besides, in lots to the trade, 200 cases Nutmegs at $1.7½ to 1.10; 10 to 15 cases Mace, $1.22½ to 1.30; 400 to 500 bales Cassia, 47c. (and 27c. in bond); 800 to 900 bags Pepper, $26¼ for Sumatra, and 27 for Singapore; and 80 to 90 bags Wild Cinnamon $45½ to 46, all gold.

TIN.—The demand is limited, and is confined exclusively to Straits, which maintains the former price; we note the sale of 1,100 slabs at 38c. gold. In Banca no business has been done. The nominal quotation is 39c. to 39½c. gold.

TEA.—Not a single transaction has been effected since our last report, and prices for all kinds are consequently nominal.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

Freights to the East are at present in a very unsettled state, owing to the war.

Current rates of freight for vessels on the berth:—To Yokohama: 32s. 6d. weight, 35s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 120s. weight: 110s. meast. To Shanghai: 40s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 90s. weight, 80s. meast. To Hong Kong: 35s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Batavia: 25s. weight, 30s. meast. To Penang: per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Singapore: 30s. weight, 25s. to 30s. meast.; per steamer via Suez Canal, 70s. weight, 60s. meast. To Ceylon: 20s. to 25s. weight, 20s. meast; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 60s. mea t At New York to China; $12 to $15 per ton of 40 cubic feet.

The current quotations for coal, &c., are as follows:—From Wear or Tyne per keel.—For Yokohama: £35. For Hiogo: £35. For Hong Kong: £29. For Singapore: £25. For Galle: £27. From Newport, Cardiff, or Swansea per ton.—For Hiogo: £1 14s. For Yokohama: £1 12s. 6d. For Shanghai: £1 16s. For Hong Kong: £1 8s. For Singapore: £1 4s. For Galle: £1 6s.

Off GIBRALTAR.—July 11, Eden (s.s.), from Liverpool, for China.

At PORT SAID.—Abbotsford (str.), Mann, from London, for Singapore, Hong Kong, &c.

ISMAILIA, SUEZ CANAL.—Between July 14 and 18 the following vessels passed:—Erl King (str.), from China; Diomed (str.), from China; and Paris Port de Mer, from Hong Kong.

The Bengal, Burgess, from Cardiff to Singapore, put into Rio Janeiro June 12.

At MALTA, July 13, Bellona (s.s.), Wilkinson, from Liverpool, and left for Colombo (via Suez Canal). The Committee of Lloyd's are advertising for information concerning the Catherine Rankin, Petersen, which is reported to have sailed from Banjoewangie for Amsterdam, Nov. 26, and been spoken with on the 8th Dec., since when she has not been heard of.

CASUALTIES.

Advices from Rotterdam, dated July 14, state that the Voorlichter, Duinker, from Batavia, capsized at the quay July 12, and was still on her beam ends, but preparations were being made to raise her; there was some water in the hold to be pumped out. At the time of the accident the vessel was lying with topmasts and topgallantmasts out, and the whole cargo had been discharged, with the exception of 200 slabs of tin. The damage and expense would be considerable.

The Fetisch (N.G. barque), Greiff, from Hamburg to Hong Kong, which put into Rio Janeiro on the 13th June, was leaky, making six inches of water per hour, and would have to discharge to discover the leak. A preliminary survey decided that the vessel was tight above the water-line.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

—Sore Throats.—There is in our variable clime no complaint more common than this; few more annoying or more troublesome to cure when neglected. The moment there is any hoarseness or dry cough, the part affected, after fomentation with salt water, should be briskly rubbed with a piece of new flannel, to open the pores for absorbing the Ointment to be instantly applied, and the process should be repeated twice a day. The most obstinate sore throat or cough will disappear before this treatment. It would always be as well while treating the disease externally with the Ointment to take a course of the Pills, which would give tone to the system, and expedite and confirm the cure.

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vessels of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds, superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

There are TWO DRY DOCKS, each capable of admitting two vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with depth of water ranging to 20 feet.

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMONS, and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon-street, London, E.C.

LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT OF MEAT.—

Amsterdam Exhibition, 1869. First Prize, being above the Gold Medal. Supplied to the British, French, Prussian, Russian, Italian, Dutch, and other Governments. Dr. Lancaster writes regarding Extract of Meat:—"But there is a difference in flavour, and here, as in all other kinds of food, it is the flavour that makes the quality." It is essentially on account of the fine meaty flavour, as distinguished from the burnt taste of other Extracts, that LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT defeated all Australian and other sorts at Paris, Havre, and Amsterdam, and is so universally preferred in all European markets.

One pint of fine-flavoured Beef-tea at 2½d. Most convenient and economic "stock."

CAUTION.—Require Baron Liebig's, the inventor's, signature on every jar, and ask distinctly for LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT.

PERMANENT PHOTOGRAPHS.

MESSRS. EDWARDS and KIDD are prepared to undertake printing in permanent pigments by their new method of photo-mechanical or surface printing, or by the Autotype process (Edwards's patent, under licence of the Autotype Company)

Prints by either of these processes are indestructible, and unaffected by exposure to any climate. Their cost is less than that of silver-printing.

Enlargements made from negatives taken with Edwards's miniature apparatus (sold by Messrs. Murray and Heath), or from any other negatives.

Arrangements may be made for the working of either process by photographers in the East. Terms and specimens on application. Messrs. Edwards and Kidd also undertake the publication of, or agency for, photographic works in this country.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

JUNE 5.

All is activity, and the weather charming. The Public Gardens have been opened, and are universally admired, owing to the beauty of their situation; the oppositionists are now won over. Lamp-posts are being erected in the settlement, and streets and drains progressing well. The Yedo Railway is to be finished in about eight months. The line will probably go straight across from Benten to Kanagawa.

The Yokoska Docks are likely to be opened for ships within six months. An intelligent Japanese officer, who was five years with Messrs. Napier, of Glasgow, is superintending officer of the Yokoska Dockyard, the French foundry at Yokohama, and the arsenal at Nagasaki. Yedo land sales took place last week, and several lots were sold at prices which I think will hardly remunerate the purchasers, as Yedo can never be of importance to foreigners, Yokohama having too much of a start.

The natives are looking forward to a very successful year of sales of tea, silk, and silkworms' eggs; but the foreigners have met with severe losses in rice, oil, beans, and sugar.

In Yedo all is quiet, and I hear of no changes. The Daimios still remain in their countries, but some will probably come to this capital for their Parliamentary duties. A Chinaman has been detected in forging kinsats, and is to suffer death. The races are over, and passed off well. A fine organ, built at New York, is on its way for our church, and great credit is due to Mr. Pearson for his exertions in obtaining it. One of Liebe's ice machines has been introduced into the settlement, and is greatly appreciated. It turns out one or two tons daily. The new theatre is to be opened in a month by Messrs. Merry and Pearson, and other well-known amateurs.

TWO WEEKS LATER VIA SAN FRANCISCO.

The steamship China, from Hong Kong, June 11 and Yokohama June 22, arrived on July 13. She brought 1,097 packages of tea, 130 packages of silk, and 20 packages of general merchandise for New York by the Pacific Railroad. She also brought 7,814 packages of tea, 171 packages of silk, and 40 packages of general merchandise for shipment via Panama. The China had 660 passengers, including 67 United States sailors, 560 Chinamen, and 7 Japanese.

A Japanese conspiracy to fire the city of Osaka had been discovered, and numerous arrests of people implicated in the plot had been made.

Doubts had been expressed whether the Japanese Loan can be legally raised in the English markets. The Oriental Bank refuses to accept any responsibility in regard to the transaction.

The principal Government officials were debating whether to assist the Coreans in expelling foreigners from Corea, and assisting that country as a dependency of Japan.

A treaty of commerce would soon be made between Japan and Peru.

The advices of the new crop of silk were satisfactory. A number of sales had been made at $770. The export of silkworm eggs was expected to fall short of the estimate, on account of the ravages of disease. Some of the provinces near Yokohama will scarcely produce a card this year.

CHINA.

TIENTSIN.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

Taking it for granted that anything showing Chinese life and character may be useful to you at present, I give you an account of how rice is conveyed from Tientsin to Tungchow. The account was given me by the crew of the boat in which I came down from Tungchow the other day.

The boatman received notice on the ninth day of the second moon that his boat was required for service by Government; in fact, impressed. On the thirtieth day of the third moon he left Tientsin for Tungchow with 80 tons of rice. Had there been sufficient water in the Peiho his boat could have taken 150 tons. He was thirteen days in getting to Tungchow, a distance of 400 li by water, or 70 miles or 210 li by land. The boat received as freight 230 cash per ton (1250 cash to the dollar) for 80 tons, equal to cash 18,400.

To make up in part for this heavy loss he purloins, by the way, about five tons out of his cargo of eighty tons, and sells it, by the way, at the rate of $5 per ton	25,000
He also belongs to a community some 30 li W. of Tientsin, who render each other mutual assistance; they have 300 boats; of these 170 were pressed; the 130 boats not pressed allow to the pressed on his first trip 200 cash per ton; he therefore gets from this source...	16,000
Still leaving a balance against him of	7,610
Fare of $6 a passenger to Tientsin	700
Balance against him after 2½ months	610

To make up the measurement of the rice stated he puts in water enough to swell it up to the mark. This was white rice; had it been the common brown, or red rice, they would have added finely pounded earth to make up the measurement. They at one time tried sand, but it was too heavy, and the sand, on the rice being measured, fell to the bottom, and was seen by the mandarins, and being of such a glaring description, the parties got punished.

On several of the boats I saw women pounding the earth, but at first could not conceive with what object; it was openly done on the deck of the boat.

The river is very shallow at present in places, only 1 ft. 7 in. in some parts of the Peiho, boats going up with less than half cargo—the larger ones. The river is full of sandbanks and spits, and it would cost as much to dredge it as to make a railway between Tientsin and Tungchow. While a railway would have taken up the rice in four hours, the boat took thirteen days. While six per cent. of the rice was stolen, and a large portion of the rest damaged by boat, the railway would have taken up every grain of it uninjured.

From the above account you can easily see who are the parties who profit by this state of things; no one but the mandarins and their hangers-on, from highest to lowest. As a proof that even high mandarins engage in such practices, I give you a story that can be vouched for.

At Peking on one occasion, not very long ago, the mandarin in charge of the granaries there went in state, as is usual on such occasions, to open a granary and distribute rice to the poor. The door was opened, and the granary found empty. My informant said that Prince Kung was very wroth at this, and on being asked why the mandarin was not punished, the reply of my informant was that the mandarin was of too high rank to be easily punished. Again I ask you, who gains by these thefts and squeezes? It is not the poor who are ground to the dust. Set your moralist to work; he cannot be too hard on these rapacious wretches, who thus rob the poor under the name of benefiting them.

SHANGHAI.

Dates by this opportunity extend to the 9th June. The outward mail of 22nd April arrived on the 5th June. Telegrams to the 17th May had been received.

The Erl King from Hankow arrived outside Woosung, and proceeded to sea early on the 8th, with 11,540 chests 5,332 half-chests and 2,458 boxes tea on board. She is the first steamer to get away with the new teas. The Diomed followed on the 9th.

The first report of the new Anglo-American Council has been published. The principal points referred to are the extension of the Broadway to Yang-tze-poo, the erection of a police telegraph; and the intention to enforce the erection of gutters on houses in the Settlement. It is also proposed to follow the example of the French Council in erecting railings along the face of the Yang-king-pang. Reference is made to a plan for bunding the face of the Soochow Creek; we hope this will be so arranged as to work in with a new bund line for the river. The latter seems to us to be the more pressing requirement.

M. Millot has been elected President, and Mr. Forbes Vice-President, of the French Municipal Council.

Much dissatisfaction is expressed at the withdrawal of the P. and O. Company's steamer announced to load at Hankow for London.

A new era is, we understand, this season to be inaugurated in the Hanhow tea trade, by the despatch of a ship, the Albyn's Isle, for Australia direct. Hitherto the supply for that country has been drawn, almost exclusively, from Foochow.]

We have the unexpected news from Yunnan that the Imperialists are really making vigorous headway against the Mahomedans. The two Imperialist armies, says our informant, commanded respectively by Tang-ta-men and Chen-foo-tay, have been victorious both at Chao-chong and near the capital. "Some strong and important forts, together with several rich and powerful Mahomedan chiefs, have fallen into the hands of the Imperialists. But the victors are pitiless towards the vanquished, and put all to the sword. There hardly seems any hope left to the Mahomedans, save in their capital city of Tali, where their petty ruler Tou-wen-sion is ensconced. And I believe that this will soon fall before the cannon of Mr. Mourens. The capture of a celebrated fort near the capital, which had previously kept in awe all the Chinese army, is entirely attributed to the khai-haophao (grape shot, lit. blowing-flowers-cannon) which this officer directs. There is thus a glimpse of peace shining over these foggy mountains; and we may hope ere long to see the most important places of the province cleared of the rebels and reopened to the Imperialists." The Mr. Mourens named is, we believe, an Englishman, formerly in charge of a Chinese gunboat at Canton, who lately left Hankow with one foreign (Greek) companion for Yunnan, with some European firearms destined to help the Viceroy against the Mahomedan rebels. There, as in the case of the Taipings, foreign cannon seem to be deciding the day.

The following from Hankow, is from a letter from that port on the opening of the tea market:—"What will people think of us? In the face of a stock much larger than anticipated, brought about by a less demand for tea than we calculated on, we ship, through the Suez Canal, on the top of a stock under which the unfortunate merchants are already groaning, full cargoes by the the steamers Erl King, Diomed, Agamemnon, and, I am given to understand, Sunda and United Service also; to be further followed by several other steamships from Shanghai, and a fleet of clippers from the same place. Had the produce the merit of great cheapness, some slight extenuation of the aggravated circumstances might be advanced; but when it is known that much of the tea is just at the old-fashioned scale of price, and that produced purchased in Shanghai last year greatly cheaper, resulted unsatisfactorily, what will be thought of the present operations?"

THE CONVENTION OF PEKING.

At a meeting of the Asiatic Society, held on the 16th of May, Mr. Michie, Vice-President, in the chair, Mr. J. Barr Robertson, of Bull, Purdon and Co., read the following paper on "The Convention of Peking":—

It has been frequently remarked of late that now for the first time we are negotiating a treaty with the Chinese Government on terms of equality, and in a time of profound peace. The treaty of Tientsin opened up the north of China, and the lower Yangtse, to foreign commerce, and thus gave us access to all the more important commercial cities on the seaboard, and to 600 miles of the great artery of the empire. Fortunate was it, both for foreigners and Chinese, that the events at Canton in 1856 raised in the minds of the British and French Governments the question of the necessity of dealing with the central government at Peking, and of still further opening the empire to foreign enterprise. With the Treaty of Tientsin, the era of extorting concessions by force of arms has closed, and it is fortunate that all the more important concessions were obtained before the change in the views of British statesmen. The field of Treaty revision is practically limited by two conditions, namely, by the extent of the concessions which the Chinese are likely to yield, and by the limits within which the British Government are willing to accept any further extension of Treaty rights that may be obtainable by their representative.

The Treaty of Tientsin provides for two distinct objects: first, for security of life and property; and, secondly, for certain trading privileges, and a certain tariff of duties, &c., to be charged. Now, it is in respect of the first of these two objects that China differs from every civilised country. The security of life and property, to which the Chinese are accustomed, falls so far short of the Western standard that we have been unable to accept it; and, therefore, the Treaty Powers have been compelled to reserve all jurisdiction over their nationals and their property. This special jurisdiction, unknown amongst civilised nations, is indispensable here; and it is because it is indispensable that the British Government cannot leave anything relating to the security of the lives of British residents to the discretion of the Chinese officials. In respect of this provision for necessary protection, Lord Clarendon's published instructions do not, in my opinion, meet the wants of the case; and on this phase of our Treaty relations there is room for a firm remonstrance.

But, turning now to the second object of the Treaty, namely, that of trading privileges and tariff of duties, we find that in these matters China stands more nearly on an equality with foreign countries. On this question of trading privileges, and tariff also, the Treaty Powers do not all stand on the same footing. Great Britain represents the principle of free trade for itself, and of protection for its colonies; the United States represent the principle of protection in a very exaggerated form; France, Germany, and Spain follow in a milder strain; and Russia represents the exclusive political economy of the last century.

We cannot conceal from ourselves that nothing but the unexampled inertness of the Chinese Government stands in the way of their dictating the terms of a much higher tariff than the existing one; and, as the Chinese are by no means behind the age in the amount of their levies, we would have extreme difficulty in offering a satisfactory vindication of any attempt we might make to interfere with whatever tariff they were determined to institute.

However, to pass the main features of the Convention the case may be summarised thus:—in return for an increased duty on opium and on silk the Chinese Government undertake to permit all foreign imports (opium excepted) to pass freely into the nine treaty-port provinces without any restriction or exaction whatever, and into the other provinces (excepting Manchuria) under transit-passes, to be granted without charge on payment at the port of entry of full import duty as at present, and half import duty in lieu of all transit duties. Chinese produce intended for foreign export is to be brought from the interior and shipped without other charge than tariff duty and a half; so that the predominent stipulations of the Convention are increased duty on opium and silk, against a fixed charge on the foreign trade of the tariff duty and a half.

The duty on opium is to be raised from Tls. 30 to Tls. 50 per picul, and is to remain under its present exceptional conditions as to transit. It is impossible to object to it on economical grounds, because the Indian Government derive from the opium exported about Tls. 200 per chest, and, therefore, it is laid down at the ports of China at an enormous advance upon its cost of production; and the question in reality is, whether is the Indian or the Chinese Government to get the benefit of the immense difference in price, between the cost of production and the rate at which it sells in the markets of China, namely, in taxes alone, about Tls. 230 per picul? India finds the producers and the drug, China finds the consumers; ought India to have large duties or China, or ought they to share them equally? At present, China is content to allow India to have Tls. 200 of the spoil; and, in order that this sum may not suffer any diminution by competition, the Chinese Government are sufficiently accommodating, as we learn from the Chamber of Commerce delegates' report on the trade of the Upper Yangtse, as to impose duties on the native grown opium, passing from Sze-chuen to Shanghai, to the extent of nearly Tls. 150 per picul.

It will, doubtless, be argued that the British Minister was not entitled to stipulate for the payment of a higher import duty, without coming to some satisfactory arrangement on the question of the barrier duties, to be levied in transit. I can see no necessary reason which imposed upon Sir Rutherford Alcock any such course. Opium is one of those articles which ought to be subjected to the highest taxation that it can bear, and China will do well to extract from it the maximum revenue.

The next point to be considered is that of the proposed increase in the silk duty, namely from Tls. 10 to Tls. 20. This is objected to because China silk has to compete with European silk, and an addition to the export duty must place the former, by so much, at a disadvantage in the European market.

If the defenders of the increased duty insist that the Chinese are resolved to have Tls. 20 per picul, and that there are advantages in the Convention that outweigh this additional tax, then, I think, we have no option but to agree with them.

There are, however, much more conclusive reasons in favour of consenting to double the silk duty than the simple wish of the Chinese Government, than the necessity of conforming to the 5 per cent. ad valorem basis, or than the opinion which has been expressed that silk can afford to pay the additional burden. On the question of transit dues, in connection with silk, I will deal separately; and I, therefore, conclude that, as the Convention provides for the legalisation of rather less than the amount of the duties with which silk is at present charged, the proposed nominal increase of tariff duty ought to be approved.

The commutation of all transit dues whatever, on a basis of 2½ per cent. ad valorem, has been pronounced a failure, and three principal reasons have been alleged as producing this result—first, that the fiscal system of the Empire being founded on taxes on goods in transit, the native authorities have been unable, and in many cases unwilling, to adapt themselves to a change which, by a single payment, commutes all these charges; secondly, that many of the local authorities are unwilling to forego taxes that have been farmed out to them, and that the corruption of the mandarins is too deep-seated for them to abandon sources of revenue which they can continue to profit by, without regard to the wishes of the Peking Government; and, thirdly, that all the proceeds of the transit pass system, or, as has been held more recently, at least a considerable part of them, are transmitted to Peking, thus depriving the provincial Government of part of their appropriate revenue. But I am by no means satisfied that inland taxation is so heavy as is generally assumed.

The conclusion, therefore, at which I think there are ample grounds for arriving, is that the amount of inland taxation has been exaggerated, and that in Hoonan, Szechuen, Shantung, Shansi, and Shensi, foreign goods are offered at prices but little enhanced by taxation; and in Hoonan especially we can scarcely expect, under any circumstances, to lay down our goods at prices lower than those now current there.

The British Government propose to commute all inland taxes whatever by payment at the port of entry of a fixed duty. If this fixed duty were merely a fraction of the various taxes for which it was offered as an equivalent, there would be little hope of its being voluntarily accepted by the Chinese authorities, and I think the British Government would refrain from pressing it. But from the fact that it will be impossible for goods to evade this duty at the port, and that, consequently, all imports and exports will be subjected to it, a commutation on a basis of 2½ per cent. ad valorem, or, more correctly, half the tariff duty, will, in reality, probably not be very much less than an equivalent for the inland taxation now levied. The Chinese will have the advantage of the full tax on every parcel of goods, the proceeds will be placed in their hands without any of the expense, uncertainty, and irregularity of the present system, and this maximum of benefit from the commuted duty of 2½ per cent. will be equivalent to a higher amount levied in their more primitive and less economical fashion. Thus, I regard this proposed levy of 2½ per cent. at the port as an advantage both to ourselves and the Chinese.

I am, therefore, bound to conclude that, so far as Mr. Johnson and others maintain that the Treaty of Tientsin did not contemplate the distinctive privileges of foreign and native ownership of goods, their views will not bear examination. How far this differential stipulation in favour of foreigners could be founded on any just principle it is unnecessary for me to consider now that the removal of the distinction is provided for by the Convention. It is well, also, not to overlook the fact that the transit system, even as limited to foreign ownership, is extending. When the Treaty of Tientsin was framed, foreigners were impressed with the idea that they could, if permitted, appropriate at least a considerable share of the internal trade in articles entering into foreign commerce, and therefore Lord Elgin stipulated for the permission. But since that time opinion has undergone considerable modification, and we are now tolerably well convinced that we cannot compete on equal terms with the natives; and that, therefore, the provision that excludes natives from the benefit of the transit pass system is one of the great obstacles in the way of extended commerce. Still, even with the limitation to foreign ownership only, the transit pass system has, contrary to the opinion that we have been accustomed to accept, on insufficient grounds, gone on progressing; although, of course, it is needless to say it has not been carried out in its integrity in terms of the Treaty. The following are the figures pertaining to it for the last six years:—

AMOUNT COLLECTED IN COMMUTATION OF TRANSIT DUTIES.

1864	Tls.	39,048
1865	„	87,693
1866	„	27,248
1867	„	66,892
1868	„	118,308
1869	„	147,343

Thus we see that the system is extending; and as the amount of internal trade done by foreigners is insignificant, it can only be from an extension of the operation of the commutation to native ownership that we can hope for any much more important results.

Passing now to the non-Treaty-port Provinces, it is provided that there the Transit Pass system shall have effect, without, however, any further payment than the Tariff duty and a half at the port of entry. No additional tax whatever is to be paid; but, as in these provinces less is known of foreign goods and foreign methods than in the others, the Transit Pass system is to continue in them for the better protection of the foreign trade, where the Peking Government seem to be less confident of their ability to carry the system of free transit into successful operation.

As to the remaining stipulations in the Convention, the opening of Wuhu and Wenchow; the right of carrying goods into the interior in vessels not propelled by steam, and of residing there under passport; bonded warehouses; steam tug on the Poyang Lake; certain changes as to tea bonds, drawbacks, manifests, tonnage dues, &c.; reduction of duty on a few minor articles, and abolition of duty on materials used in docks for repair of ships; certain of the advantages of a Treaty port to be extended to Hong Kong; the appointment by China of Consuls in any of the ports in the British dominions, &c.—as to all these, I repeat, there is little to be said; they are so insignificant that it is scarcely necessary to do more than name them.

It is impossible not to regret that steam communication has not been extended by the Convention; and that one or two more leading centres of trade on the vast water-ways that intersect the empire, have not been added to the list of open ports. But we cannot control these tendencies. We have passed into a stage of international relations where the influence of pressure has ceased to pervade our policy, and where the weak and obstructive opposition of the Chinese rulers to beneficial changes is accepted as the enlightened conduct of progressive statesmanship. And as the question of revision can, by the Convention, again be raised at any time, I think it would be a mistaken policy to reject the terms that are now offered.

After some remarks by Mr. Hertz, and the Rev. E. Syle,

Mr. Kingsmill remarked that circumstances in China, in 1869, were not very unlike what they were before the breaking out of the Arrow war, and that we were rapidly drifting into the same path which had proved so disastrous in those years. He felt that, in this assemblage, there were few who did not agree with him in condemnation of a Convention made, as Mr. Robertson suggested, at the instance of a feeble Ministry at home. With no other nation were treaties required for the conduct of trade, and he did not see why China should be the only exception. The alleged benefits of the Convention were that our goods were to penetrate into the interior, in return for which they were to pay a much heavier rate of taxation. Here he differed from the principle of this instrument; in the one case we gave up to China a large additional tax, while, in return, we gained nothing but a bare promise.

Mr. Medhurst, H.B.M. Consul, would wish to point out one or two important considerations in connection with Mr. Robertson's able paper. In the first place, much stress had been placed by Mr. Robertson, and all other persons in favour of the Convention, on the fact that it had been voluntarily conceded by the Chinese, and had not been the result, like previous treaties, of warlike pressure. So far from the Chinese deserving any credit in this respect, he thought it was very much the other way.

The second point worthy of notice Mr. Medhurst considered to be the unreliableness of all treaties with China, owing to the disadvantageous circumstances under which these are concluded, as far as foreigners are concerned. This, at any rate, had been the experience of past years; and the speaker thought the day was still far distant when both parties could be said to enter into such compacts upon a common footing, and with the same commendable, reliable spirit actuating both sides.

Mr. Hanbury, of Bower, Hanbury and Co., said he had listened with much pleasure to the valuable and elaborate paper of Mr. Robertson, with much of which he entirely agreed; and he was glad to find some one with the courage fairly to set before them the arguments that could be adduced on what might be called the unpopular side of the question. An immense difference existed between the circumstances attending the signing of the treaty of Tientsin, ten years ago, and those obtaining at the time of the conclusion of the Convention of Peking; in the one case, the Chinese were ready to sign anything and everything to secure peace from their victors; now, however, the pressure had been removed, and the Convention was the result of two years' hard work and earnest endeavour, on the part of Sir Rutherford Alcock, to obtain the best terms possible for the mercantile interests he represented. It was useless for the China merchants to shut their eyes to the fact that a position of equality in negotiating treaties had been conceded to the Chinese by European nations, and by the United States. And what did equality mean?—As regards the tariff, it meant the right that no statesman would for a moment question in the case of Greece, Portugal, Turkey, and other weak nationalities, that of fixing the rate at which they would admit the manufactures of other countries, without so much as consulting the other countries.

We have heard much, in the present day, of the need for progress, and the acceptance of Western ideas, among the Chinese. Speaking as a merchant, and from a selfish point of view, he trusted there might be, in one sense, no more progress until the Convention was ratified; for it was only the ignorance and inertness of the Chinese Government that kept them from perceiving that their tariff is the lightest in the world, and the amount of revenue raised by it insignificant when compared with other nations. Let them become a little more enlightened and they would not be slow to see that the English Government raises from the two articles, tea and opium, double the amount the Chinese derive from the whole foreign trade. He (Mr. H.) dreaded the day when the Chinese would find out that they, too, had native manufactures to protect; and, taking example from what many consider the most advanced foreign nation—the United States—would demand 20, 30, or even 50 per cent. on textile fabrics. Nor could we conceal from ourselves the fact, however unpalatable, that neither the English nor any foreign nation was at all likely to go to war to compel the acceptance, by the Chinese, of a low tariff. Having, therefore, a moderate tariff in the Convention presented to us, he would counsel its acceptance.

The Chairman, Mr. A. Michie, of Chapman, King, and Co., said that it had been observed that such rapid changes had taken place in political opinion that ten years later the treaty of Tientsin would have been impossible. We were now astonished at the determination of Great Britain and America to treat China as their equal, though they made the rather important reservation of declining to trust it with the lives of their people. But the records of British intercourse with China show that, in the days of the East India Company, Great Britain dealt with China as with a superior, so that the present temper of our Government is not really so retrograde as appears. We must fight our way as we have done before, expecting steady opposition on the part of those who ought to be wiser; but there is no doubt we shall succeed in opening up China sooner or later. It is a mistake to suppose that future Treaties with China must necessarily be worse than those that have preceded them.

Mr. Robertson briefly replied to Mr. Kingsmill. He entirely agreed with Mr. Hanbury in thinking that the entire burdens on the foreign trade were not such as we could complain of, and that so long as civilised governments impose prohibitive tariffs it was difficult to see how we could compel the Chinese to reduce or not to raise their low tariff. He did not think the Convention the best arrangement that could be proposed, but that was not the question. It was the best that we were likely in the meantime to get, and he considered it would be a mistake to refuse it, and to have to continue under the stipulations of the Treaty of Tientsin.

FOOCHOW.

Dates from this port are to the 10th June. Teas were coming in slowly and said to be less mixed, but the leaf shows want of care in manipulation, and is not satisfactory in general appearance and quality. No prospect of market opening. Freights and Exchange nominal; eleven vessels on for London, and steamer Achilles. [Telegrams to 1st July report market still unopened.]

HONG KONG.

Dates by the present opportunity are up to the 16th June, but our files have unfortunately missed.

COCHIN CHINA.

—o—

SAIGON.

The following is from the Circular of Messrs. W. G. Hale and Co., June 20:—

The M.I. steamer Pehio arrived here on the 16th inst., with advices from London to 13th ult.

Rice.—The advices from Japan continue most discouraging, and the demand here having in consequence ceased entirely, prices are fast declining. We are to-day able to quote round grain at $1.70, and long at $1.50 per picul; but ere long rates must go very considerably lower. The exports to date are as under:—

	Since May 24th. Piculs.	Previous. Piculs.
China	20,250	201,978
Japan	291,923	1,547,996
Singapore	5,000	59,864
Mauritius	—	37,943
Europe	—	17,500
	317,173	1,864,781
		317,173
Total exports since Jan. 1, 1870		2,181,954

Tonnage—Is now in no demand whatever, it being ruinous to ship rice to Japan. The freight offering to Hong Kong and Singapore is now almost entirely taken by steamers.

Exchange.—London, 6 m.s., with documents, 4s. 7d. nominal; Paris. 6 m.s., do., f.5.80; Paris, 1 m.s., Government, f.5.45; Hong Kong, 1 m.s., with documents, 4 per cent. discount; Yokohama, 1 m.s., do., 4½ per cent.; Singapore, 3 d.s., par.

The Circular of Messrs. Behre and Co. is as follows:—

Rice—Owing to the continued and more and more unfavourable news from Japan and China, our market has been very quiet, settlements by Europeans being limited to about 25,000 piculs round grain at prices varying from $1.88 to $1.75 per picul, and some 20,000 piculs long rice at $1.54 per picul. Since the arrival of the steamer Sawonada business is at a regular standstill, and prices so weakly maintained that round rice is nominally to be quoted $1.65, whilst long grain would be obtainable at $1.50 per picul. A further decline is confidently anticipated. The greatest part of the vessels in port and still expected are for account of Chinese merchants. Exports since our last are:—

	Tons.	Total since Jan. 1. Tons.
Jdpan	14,823	111,405
Europe	—	1,042
Mauritius and Bourbon...	—	2,516
Singapore	298	4,257
Sundries...	—	357
	16,067	135,741

Piece Goods.—8¼ lbs. have slightly declined; T-Cloth, light weight, in fair demand. We quote:—Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $3.22½ per piece; do., 7 lb., $2.65; T-Cloth, 5 lb., $1.65; do., 4½ lb., $1.60 to 1.57½; Irish Linen, No. 120, $2.20; do., No. 150 $2.25.

Freights.—In harmony with the news from the North, the demand for tonnage, still pretty fair shortly after our last issue, has greatly fallen off, and to-day it would be difficult to close operations except at very reduced rates.

Exchange.—On London, Credit bills, 6 m.s., 4s. 7½d.; documentary bills, 6 m.s., 4s. 8d.; Paris, Treasury bills, 30 d.s., f.5.45; Bank bills, 30 d.s.. f.5.45; credit bills, 6 m.s., f.5.80; documentary bills, 6 m.s., f.5.82½; Hong Kong, Bank bills, 3 d.s., ½ per cent. prem.; documentary bills, 30 d.s., 3½ per cent. discount; Yokohoma, documentary bills, 30 d.s., 4½ per cent.; Singapore, Bank bills, 3 d.s., par to ½; Bourbon, documentary bills, 60 d.s., f.5.90; Mauritius, documentary bills, 60 d.s., f.6.

SIAM.

—o—

BANGKOK.

The dates are up to the 8th June. We extract the following items from the Siam Weekly Advertiser:—

The grand and imposing ceremony of fixing the summit of the Prachedi was effected on the 25th May, at 9 A.M. His Majesty the Supreme King of Siam graced the heathen temple and act with his presence. The assemblage that gathered together to witness the imposing act was immense. His Majesty returned via the canal in a stately barge on the 26th ult. The finest steam yachts in the kingdom were in readiness and at their stations to convey his Majesty to Bangkok by sea, had it been his Majesty's pleasure.

It is currently reported that an invitation has been sent to our friend, A. Nelson, Esq., to return to Siam and help the Siamese to fit up a machine shop, so that they can repair and manufacture their own machinery.

A large concourse of priests and people assembled at Prâtom to witness the placing of the summit of the spire on the 25th May.

With reference to Treaty Rights, a very able letter has been printed from Mr. D. K. Mason, Consul for Siam in London, headed "Siam and the Western Powers," and addressed to "His Excellency Chow Phya Sri Suriwongsee, Regent of Siam."

The following is the report on the Bangkok Produce Market :—Rice has considerably declined in value, owing to the last advices from China and Japan and the present scarcity of foreign shipping in our harbour. Chinese are not now willing to pay over $1.20 per picul for Namuan, and $1.40 per picul for Nasuan mill cleaned Rice, put on board in the river in mat bags. Paddy has continued firm during the past few weeks, the natives being most unwilling to make any abatement in rates, owing to their fears as to the shortness of this crop and the possibility of stocks becoming too scanty before the arrival of the next. As there is, however, very little work for the steam mills, and a comparatively small demand for Rice, we hope to see an easier market very shortly, although we are not sanguine of any very material fall taking place. A slight decline in the prices of Paddy shows that the news from Hong Kong is beginning to be felt among those who supply us with the grain, but under any circumstances we do not expect this season to see Namaun Rice much below $1.20 per picul.

At Exchange 4s. 7d. per dollar, Namuan Rice now costs, inclusive of commission and lighterage to the bar, but exclusive of insurance, 5s. 1½d. per cwt. and 5s. 11d. per cwt. for Nasuan. If shipped in gunnies there is an additional cost of 3d. per cwt., and on such part of the cargo as the vessel may be able to take inside the bar there is a saving of 3d. per cwt.

SUGAR continues to be scarce and dear. The demand is chiefly for the north of China. We quote quality equal to No. 16 D. S. at Tic. 10 per picul ($6.53 per picul f.o.b.). Good Brown has been placed at Ticals 6 per picul ($4.00 f.o.b.).

SAPANWOOD.—For China is in very little demand at Ticals 3 to Ticals 3½ per picul ($2.21 to $2.49 per picul f.o.b.).

STICKLAC.—Our market is still without supplies worth speaking of.

TEEL SEED.—The early crop should come in before the close of this month. Small quantities are bought for local consumption at Tls. 100 per coyan.

GAMBOGE AND GUM BENJAMIN.—Our market is still without supplies.

BUFFALO HIDES are in fair supply at Tls. 11 per picul.

BUFFALO HORNS can be bought at Tls. 13½ per picul.

BLACK PEPPER is by no means plentiful, and the price is firm at Tls. 12 per picul ($7.94 per picul f.o.b.).

COTTON.—The bulk of the crop is expected to come to our market towards the close of the month, and prices are likely to be firm at about last year's rates.

JAVA.

—o—

BATAVIA.

The Java Bode, 27th May, says: "In the matter of the subsidy asked for by the Netherlands India Railway Company, an extraordinary credit of f.175,000 has been opened in favour of the company. The works on the Batavia Buitenzorg Railway progress extremely slowly. The expropriation of some land, formerly belonging to natives, but lately bought up by European speculators, gives rise to the greatest difficulties.

Rhio—official report for April :—"In Assahan some disorders were committed by Battas, who were incited to it by a Datu in the lowlands. The said Datu has, consequently, been suspended, and is under surveillance. The greater part of the Batta chiefs have co-operated in preserving tranquillity, and endeavoured to capture the leader of the disaffected, but failed to effect it. Further complications of any importance are thought to be improbable, from the check given to the disaffected. Forty-nine natives concerned in the Bekajsie disturbances have been condemned to death, and one was acquitted. The remainder died in prison. The produce of gambier and pepper at Rhio and Lingga may be called favourable, taking into consideration the state of the weather."

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this mail extend to the 24th June. The outward mail of the 20th May arrived here on the 21st June. The homeward M. I. mail steamer Hooghly, from Hong Kong, 16th, and Saigon, 21st, arrived here on the 24th.

Among the papers laid before the Council on the 22nd is a return of the convicts, effective and non-effective, at present in the Settlements, with particulars of how they are employed :—

	Singapore.	Penang.	Malacca.	Total
Present strength	1,571	650	533	2,754
Deduct ticket of leave	454	183	41	678
Number under gaol discipline	1,117	467	492	2,076
Invalids and sick	111	35	53	199
Lunatics	8	—	—	8
Public works and conservancy within the gaols	354	112	143	609
Public works beyond the gaols	298	45	44	387
Brick fields and stone quarries	64	19	—	83
Public roads	49	116	161	326
Scavengers under police and municipality	4	8	20	32
Messengers, orderlies, and punkah pullers	229	132	71	432

The distribution of the convicts is here set down with great plainness; the only division not quite clear is under the head of public works—namely, public works within the gaol and public works outside the gaol. What public works, beyond the hewing of a few stones and the fitting of wood work, can possibly be carried on inside the goal? and yet it would seem from the table that 609 men are so employed, against 387 employed on public works outside the gaol. But the item which will most attract attention is the number of convicts set down under the head of messengers, orderlies, and punkah pullers. Out of the 2,076 effective convicts, no less than 432 are employed in these vocations.

The Mohr reports that on the 21st June, when off the Little Carrimons, she sighted a schooner lying on her beam ends. The vessel was boarded and found to have been abandoned. Two Europeans and four of the crew were left in charge, until the Mohr could come to New Harbour and coal; after doing which she returned to the Carrimons and brought the schooner in tow. The vessel is evidently the one that had been abandoned on Friday last, by a Nacoda and his crew. The former states that whilst on his passage from Samarang to Singapore, with a cargo of rattans and other produce, valued Rs. 50,000, and when abreast of the Carrimons, it being dark, he resolved to pass the night there, he therefore took in sails and let go the anchor, on which the vessel capsized and settled on her stern; he and his crew then took to their boats and came to Singapore.

The average amount of Notes in circulation at the branch of the Chartered Mercantile Bank, for the month ending May 31, was $245,190.

The following are the totals of the receipts and disbursements of the Municipal Fund for the year 1869 :—

PENANG.

The cargo of coal of the Ystavat, Russian vessel, which caught fire at sea and was towed in here on the 2nd of March last by the P. and O. steamer Travancore, has been sold by auction. The coal only realised $1.75 per ton all round. This for Cardiff coal may be considered cheap.

The barque Andes, belonging to Penang, on the night of May 20, grounded on a sand bank near point Pedro, on the north coast of Acheen, and by noon of the following day she was found to have sprung a leak and was full of water. She was surrounded by a number of Achinese, when three or four hundred men boarded the ship and took possession of her. The Nakoda had gone to Acheen, which was only a few hours' distance, to procure assistance, and the Sultan sent one of his officers; but he seems to have been unable to exercise any effectual control over the natives, who removed everything on board that could be got at, and cut and carried away the rigging. The Chief of the place near which the wreck occurred made an agreement with the Nakoda, by which the latter was to receive a third of the property saved, and this arrangement is said to have been observed as regards the articles which came to the Chief's own hands, but it is asserted that a number of the other persons engaged in saving the cargo, &c., refused to abide by it. The crew were brought to Penang by the Therese, which arrived here on the 14th instant. The colonial steamer Rainbow left this on the 3rd June for Acheen, and it is to be hoped that she may have made some inquiries into the matter. The story of the Nakoda is probably exaggerated, but it is very desirable that some immediate investigation should be made on the spot by a Government officer into the circumstances, and if it is found there was the pillage alleged, that a requisition should be made on the Sultan of Acheen for restitution or compensation.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

MASSACRE OF CHRISTIANS IN CHINA.

(July 25th.) Colonel SYKES asked the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs whether it had come to the knowledge of the Foreign-office, officially or otherwise, that the Chinese had perpetrated outrages on Christians in China, attended with loss of life.

Mr. OTWAY regretted to say that it had come to the knowledge of the Foreign-office both officially and otherwise, that the Chinese had perpetrated outrages of the nature described by the hon. and gallant gentleman. A telegraphic despatch from Sir Andrew Buchanan, dated St. Petersburg, July 14, stating that "official confirmation had been received of an insurrectionary movement at Tientsin against Frenchmen and Catholic missionaries. Fourteen Frenchmen and three Russians had been killed. French consulate and missionary residence destroyed by fire. Outrage excited by suspicion that children had been put to death by missionaries." The Lieutenant-Governor of Hong Kong had telegraphed by another route: "Serious disturbances at Tientsin. French consulate destroyed. Missionaries and Sisters of Charity attacked and murdered. Great excitement in northern ports. Gunboats left last evening from Hong Kong with 600 troops, to land if required." This despatch was dated Tientsin, 6th July, and arrived at the Foreign-office on the 23rd.

Colonel SYKES: Have you any reports from our consular agent at Peking?

Mr. OTWAY: No; the outrage took place at Tientsin, and not at Peking.

THE DIPLOMATIC AND CONSULAR SERVICE IN CHINA.

(29th.) In reply to Colonel SYKES, Mr. OTWAY stated that Mr. Wade did not receive his full salary of £6,000 a-year at Peking.

Mr. HOLMS, who had given notice of his intention to move a reduction in the vote of £7,850, withdrew his motion, because he could not do justice to it without occupying more time than could be spared at this late period of the session. Unless, however, there were a very marked decrease in the Estimates next year, he should bring the whole question before the House. He did not object to pay consuls well, but there were dozens of consuls more than were required.

Mr. OTWAY said that some of the consuls had been already reduced, and that one or two others would not appear again in the Estimates. Upon the China Consular Estimates this year there was a saving of £9,903 as compared with last year.

THE P. AND O. COMPANY.

(29th.) The Marquis of HARTINGTON said notice had been given to the P. and O. Company that they would, in a given time, be required to establish a service by Brindisi. Information had been received by the Post-office that the tunnel under Mont Cenis would be completed in the autumn of next year; and, when it was, he did not know why that route should be subject to greater uncertainty than any other. The examination of the accounts of the P. and O. Company had led to a considerable difference of opinion between the Post-office and the company as the mode in which those accounts ought to be kept. The question was still under consideration, and, as it might be referred to arbitration, he would say no more at present. It was not yet settled what they would have to pay the company for last year, much less was it possible to say what they should have to pay for this year. It was true that the postage to India was very high, but even with the present high rate the service was not a profitable one; nor could he hold out any hope at present that the rate should be reduced.

CAPTAIN EYRE AND THE "ONEIDA."

The following remarks relative to the judgment of the Court upon Capt. Eyre, of the Bombay, are from the Broad Arrow:—From beginning to end the whole affair is a singularly disastrous and unfortunate one, and it is due to the American Government to state that a most generous view has been taken of the case. Frankly admitting their own vessel was the cause of the collision, they merely make the complaint that Captain Eyre should have steamed away without ascertaining the extent of the injury suffered by the Oneida; while, on the other hand, the sentence pronounced by the court of inquiry at Yokohama, is, in this country, deemed by the authorities so mild that the Board of Trade has declared it "fell far short of what might have been pronounced." In doing justice to the impartiality of the official tribunals, we must not altogether forget that there are two sides to the question, and that much may be said in behalf of Captain Eyre. It is stated that the Oneida was a vessel converted into a sloop of war during the struggle between the North and the South, and at the time of the collision was in charge of a midshipman who, when the danger threatened, put her helm "a-starboard," contrary to all the rules of recognised navigation. On the other hand, the Bombay was, according to the testimony of Sir John Elphinstone—no mean authority by the way—a well-appointed ship, handled in the best way to avoid the collision, and also to mitigate the shock when the collision was inevitable; and it was quite possible that the quarter gallery might have been carried away without any material damage having been supposed to have taken place. Then, again, it is just possible that the Oneida by continuing her course for at least five minutes—some say fifteen—after the collision, was out of earshot of the Bombay when she fired her guns, and this may account for Captain Eyre or his crew not hearing them, and consequently, not keeping a stationary position longer than he did. Under any circumstances, the incident is most painful, view it from whatever quarter we may. The error—if error there be—was momentary; still it must not be forgotten that these errors must be visited with severity when there is even a suspicion of negligence in the preservation of human life. The imperious necessity of the public interests of navigating nations requires that no efforts should be spared to prevent shipwreck or loss of life; and in a matter affecting the deaths of 120 persons, it ought not to be surprising that every atom of evidence should be carefully sifted, and the utmost pains taken to arrive at a decision which should not condemn Captain Eyre if he is blameless, or shield him if he is culpable. We have no wish to lighten the censure passed upon Captain Eyre if he is guilty of the grave act of inhumanity laid to his charge. But it is difficult to understand the sentence. If he deserted a vessel which he believed to be sinking, through injury caused by his own ship, then no amount of censure or reprobation can be sufficiently severe, and the mere suspension of his certificate is a parody upon justice; but if this grave charge cannot be proved—and for the honour of our countrymen we trust it will not—he is entitled to an acquittal, or, to say the least of it, that the Board of Trade should investigate anew and upon fresh evidence a charge which so seriously affects our reputation as Englishmen as well as that of Captain Eyre's as a British seaman.

THE bones of about 1,200 Chinese lately reached San Francisco, on their return to the Celestial Empire. They had been gathered up along the line of the Central Pacific Railroad, and were all there was left of a regiment of the labourers on that great work. They are taken home in pursuance of the contract by which they were originally brought into the country.

THE Army and Navy Gazette states that the health of Vice-Admiral Sir Henry Kellett, the Naval Commander-in-Chief in China, has been affected by the climate, and is, therefore, not so good as his friends could wish.

AN Italian periodical, Filosofia delle Scuole Italiane, contains a highly interesting paper on Japan and its inhabitants, and on the language and literature of the Japanese, by Prof. Anselmo Severini.

LIEUTENANTS H. H. EDWARDS, late in command of H.M.S. gunboat Leven, and H. W. Richards, senior Lieutenant of H.M.S. Princess Charlotte, have arrived in England.

MESSRS. CASSELL have brought out a book with the title of the Log of the Fortuna, a Cruise in Chinese Waters, by Captain Augustus Lindley, author of The Taiping Revolution, which contains about as much rubbish as that book did.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.—Colonial-office: Messrs. E. H. Watts and F. A. Swettenham have been appointed to be Straits Settlements cadets.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite. The Civil Service Gazette remarks:—"The singular success which Mr. Epps has attained by his homœopathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any experimentalist. By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in tin-lined packets labelled—JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London.

THE TIENTSIN MASSACRE.

It will be seen in our Parliamentary intelligence that at last Government is able to announce that they have received intelligence relating to the Tientsin massacre. The first information respecting this horrible affair was received by us through Grant's Circular on the 4th inst., and our office was daily besieged by anxious inquiries from friends of those resident in Tientsin. What can Mr. Wade, the British representative at Peking, have been doing to omit the despatch of a telegram via Kiachta, and also by Galle? Surely one of the principal functions of our Ministers abroad is to keep Government au courant. Had Mr. Wade only been at the Foreign-office or occupied a seat in Parliament at the time the news reached us, and seen the miserable exhibition our Secretaries were driven to, it would have been such a lesson to him that any danger of a repetition of the error would most certainly have been removed. Again we have received, through Grant's Circular, on 25th inst., an announcement that a Chinese ambassador had been despatched to France, and even this important and novel event is not officially known. It is a shrewd move on the part of the Chinese Government, and may be the means of saving them from the wrath of the French. We believe the Ambassador is Chunghow, a superintendent of trade, well known to be favourable to foreigners, and who assisted at the negotiation of the Treaty of Tientsin. We cannot rely on the correctness of the telegram, which reports that 600 troops had been despatched to Tientsin from Hong Kong. We trust it is so, as there is nothing equal to a prompt demonstration in these cases to avoid ulterior consequences, which are always fraught with more injury to both sides. If Mr. Wade has really taken this step of ordering up troops we must congratulate him on his boldness; it is an immense relief to all interested to know that he has so much altered in his conduct of our interests at Peking. We can assure him of support at home, should our Foreign-office be disposed to cavil at the step.

THE TEA QUESTION.

The disagreement between tea importers and the dealers or buyers has at last been settled by the latter consenting to the merchants' terms in regard to the abolition of the super-tare. It is well that the dispute has been settled before the arrival of the new season's teas, expected in a few days, per Erl King and Diomed, but we cannot congratulate the merchants on the manner in which these negotiations have been conducted nor the manner in which they have yielded step by step at the dictation of the dealers. It forms a very bad precedent for any future difficulty which may crop up. While on the subject of tea we may notice with satisfaction that up to the latest telegrams from Foochow (June 29) the market had not been opened. This exhibits such determination and admirable arrangement on the part of the representatives in charge of the firms, to protect the interests of their employers, that we most heartily congratulate them. At last they have found it practicable to check their own impatience and allow stocks to accumulate until reasonable prices were accepted by the teamen. We know that in former years Foochow has had managers on the spot who have fought hard to carry out these views which we have so often reiterated, and we hope this season to see its utility.

COOLIE LABOUR IN CEYLON.

The latest advices from Ceylon suggest grave apprehensions that the increasing scarcity of coolie labour, unless speedily and earnestly counteracted, will operate most unfavourably on the growing prosperity of the country. Various causes, and some remedies, for the present unsatisfactory state of things are suggested by the Colombo Observer and its correspondents; and the figures quoted in illustration of the apparent discontent of the coolies are very startling. For the first five months of the present year the arrivals of immigrants at ports in the Northern Province have been only 10,000, against 21,000 departures; though this fact must not be taken in all its apparent importance, the present being the season when departures always exceed arrivals to a certain extent. Nevertheless, when it is remembered that a good coolie can pick 10 cwts. of crop during the season, and that new estates are continually being brought under cultivation, it is evident that the slightest actual decrease in the number of coolies must be attended with wide-spread evil. The first and most obvious remedy for scarcity of labour is, of course, advanced wages; but, with coffee at 65s. in the home market, this is a step which can only be taken with extreme caution. The evil appears to us to lie deeper than the mere question of wage; and, indeed, the means hitherto adopted by the planters to secure a regular supply—heavy coast advances, increased wages to head canganies, and even advanced rates of coolie pay—have generally failed of the desired effect. As a rule, able-bodied coolies now earn 8d. a-day, women 7d., and children 6d. to 5d., according to age and strength. A coolie, if he is prudent and in full work, can live with comfort, and save four or five shillings a month. The evil appears to us to lie in the want of united action among the planters and agents. It is to be feared that, in many cases, the spreading discontent of the coolies is caused by irregular work, occasionally arbitrary reductions of pay, the bad practice of keeping four or five months' wages "in hand," and the serving out of inferior or adulterated rations. It is said that on some estates men can only get four days' work a week, a greater number being employed on them than they can support, while other plantations are starving for want of labour. If the planters and agents would unite in establishing one uniform rate of wages, and agree to divide their surplus hands among those who require them, a great step would be taken towards securing increased harmony between both masters and coolies. The least imposition by superintendents in supplying coolies with unwholesome or adulterated rice, or in "marking off" half-day's time without reason or warning, reacts to the disadvantage of the whole body of planters. Every coolie who returns to his country disgusted with such practices deters many others from coming to Ceylon at all. Hence the late increase in coast-advances, which is practically only the coolie's guarantee for full wages. But there are other evils which equally demand the attention and united action of the planters. The coolies are gradually becoming more and more addicted to drink. Arrack-shops, and places where the most poisonous so-called gin and brandy are sold without restraint, have sprung up in every village, with the most injurious consequences to industry, health, and even life. It is necessary that these places should be put down, or at least strictly regulated by the Government, if the coolie is not to be thoroughly demoralised. Nor should another precaution for the social well-being of the coolies be neglected; marriage should be encouraged, and the means of marriage be supplied by the importation of women coolies in greater proportion. There are still plenty of coolies to be found in the districts from which Ceylon has hitherto drawn her supplies, but it must be remembered that the increasing demand for labour in India increases the reluctance of coolies to emigrate to a place where they are not sure of increasing their comfort. Relatively, we believe that coolies are not indisposed to prefer Ceylon to their own country, but such practices as we have alluded to have somewhat shaken their confidence in the promises of the emigration agents. Let that be restored by the enforcement of the laws of moral and political economy, and there need be no fear that the magnificent resources of Ceylon will lack development for want of labour.

While we have been noticing, in almost every issue for some months, some item of progress by the Japanese, we are now startled by a telegram announcing that an insurrection had broken out in the territory of a Daimio, and that 1,400 people had been killed. The telegram comes via Galle, but no date is given, and as it was not reported via San Francisco as part of the news conveyed by the steamer which arrived there on the 13th inst. (with dates to 22nd June), we are disposed to doubt its correctness.

M. Geofroy has definitely accepted the appointment of Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of France to the Court of Peking. It was arranged when the offer was made to that gentleman that he should leave France for China in October, and it does not appear that any change has been made in that arrangement. M. Geofroy has been diplomatically engaged in the United States, and is well acquainted with the English language.

Mr. Brown and the Chinese Commissioners have left Paris for Madrid.

THE CHINESE CONVENTION.

We have some weeks since already announced that it was the intention of Her Majesty's Government not to ratify the Convention of Sir R. Alcock, and this has been confirmed in Parliament by the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs. The following despatch has been sent by Lord Granville to the Committee of Merchants, which very happily concludes the matter :—

Her Majesty's Government have given their most attentive consideration to the representations that have been made to them by the merchants of London interested in the trade with China, and by different commercial associations in this country, and also in China, urging them to advise Her Majesty to withhold her ratification from the Convention signed at Peking on the 23rd of October last by Her Majesty's Plenipotentiary and those of the Emperor of China, and having for its object to improve and extend the commercial relations between the two countries, by securing for them advantages not provided for in the Treaty of Tientsin.

Her Majesty's Government have received with much regret this general expression of dissatisfaction with the proposed arrangement. It was hoped that it might secure, at an inconsiderable sacrifice on the part of England, great immediate, and still greater prospective advantages. It would, in their judgment, have promoted the textile industry of the manufacturing districts by facilitating the importation of its products into the most important provinces of China; and, not to dwell on other minor advantages by which commerce might have eventually been developed, it would have relieved Chinese produce on its way from the interior to British markets from undue exactions on the part of local authorities.

Her Majesty's Government have had to decide whether they should abide by their own impressions, and advise Her Majesty to ratify the Convention, or should defer to the adverse opinion which has been insisted upon by the mercantile community more directly concerned in thequestion.

Although they are not free from doubt whether the decision which they take is calculated to promote the real interests of the commercial and industrial classes, Her Majesty's Government have, nevertheless, determined to defer to the wishes expressed by the commercial bodies who have so urgently appealed to them, and they have accordingly advised Her Majesty to withhold her ratification from the Convention of the 23rd of October last; and they will forthwith announce to the Chinese Government, and to the Governments of other Powers having Treaties with China, that the Convention will not be ratified by the Queen.

Foreign Intelligence.

GERMANY.

Hamburg, July 25.

As the inhabitants of this city are more devoted to commerce than war, one of the most interesting and important questions was to ascertain, as soon as possible, the intentions of the belligerents with regard to privateers, blockades, and other subjects of international law, that naturally crop up when a war breaks out. Prussia, with praiseworthy promptitude, has already make known her line of conduct, which is the same as she observed in the war of 1866: viz., to respect private property at sea as well as on land. It is therefore decided that no German ships of war can capture any French vessels or their cargoes, without any reference to reciprocity, and orders to that effect have been issued accordingly. It may be said in objection to this that they are mere empty words, as the Germans have no cruisers to capture, nor the French any merchant ships to be captured, which is no doubt true to a certain extent; but at all events it shows the good feeling that animates the German policy. Up to the present time nothing is known of the intentions of the French, further than the notice in the Journal Officiel, that German vessels would be allowed thirty days to quit French ports. But it is feared there is but little chance of reciprocity with regard to the respecting of private property at sea as a general principle, though they are bound by the Paris Declarations of 1856 to admit the rights of neutrals; that the flag covers the cargo, that enemy's goods in neutral vessels are inviolable, and that blockades, to be respected by neutrals, must be effective.

It is believed here that the French intend to blockade the Elbe, the Weser, and the Eyder, in the North Sea, and also some of the Baltic ports; but unless the blockading ships have very good pilots on board —which it is well known the French do not possess—they will not be able to effect an entrance into the rivers, far less come up to Hamburg and Bremen, as measures have been taken to prevent that by the removal of the floating lightships, beacons, and buoys that mark the navigable channel, which makes it extremely difficult even for the experienced local pilots to bring vessels up and down the rivers in safety; in addition to which I may add that at the mouth of the Elbe and of the Weser stone ships have been moored in position, which can be scuttled and sunk in ten minutes on the actual approach of the enemy's ships of war, and thus still more effectually prevent their entrance.

Though Hamburg is so pre-eminently a commercial city, it looks at present much more like a garrison; for trade is altogether lamed, and the streets are enlivened by the presence of large bodies of troops arriving from the surrounding country, and after being fitted out with their uniforms, accoutrements, and arms, they are sent on to the frontier provinces, which are likely to become—at all events in the first instance—the theatre of a long and sanguinary conflict, for no one places any faith in the delusion that it will be short and decisive, because it was so in 1866. That this state of affairs should tend still more to cripple business is not to be wondered at, and under ordinary circumstances it would create great inconvenience, as most of the clerks in mercantile offices have received orders to join their regiments. I may here instance one of our principal houses, who is thus deprived of no less than thirteen of their young men; but the principals have everywhere behaved in the most patriotic spirit, having intimated that their situations thus vacated will be kept open till their return, and, moreover, that their salaries will be continued to be paid to them whilst with the army. It is no doubt an inconvenience to domestic comfort to have strange soldiers billeted upon private families, but in the present spirit of patriotic enthusiasm no one seems to mind, and cheerfully give the best they have to the defenders of the Vaterland. Thus, in the house I inhabit there are no less than eighteen at this moment, three of whom are billeted on your correspondent. I must say they behave themselves well, and give no cause of complaint.

With regard to the alleged treaty between France and Prussia the semi-official Correspondance of Berlin says the draft is in the handwriting of M. Benedetti, and is in the archives of the Ministry for Foreign Affairs. The paper goes on to say, "Already, before the war of 1866, France had offered her alliance to Prussia, with a promise to declare war against and to attack Austria with an army of 300,000 men, provided that Prussia would consent to make certain territorial cessions to France on the left bank of the Rhine." It is officially announced that the Prussian Government has informed the British Ambassador, Lord Loftus, that the draft in M. Benedetti's handwriting, with which Lord Loftus is acquainted, was open to his lordship's inspection at any moment.

COMMERCIAL.

Trade is paralysed for the moment, and the only articles that are in demand, and dearer, are those required for war purposes or wanted for the clothing of the troops—such as sulphur, saltpetre, lead and leather.

HOLLAND.

Rotterdam, July 27.

The main question of the day is whether Holland will be dragged into war, and be made to fight entirely against her will because war suits the purposes or gratifies the passions of one or more nations of the Continent. That Holland will do her utmost to keep out of the war is certain, but the question is—will it be possible to keep aloof from a conflict which may affect our interests in a most important degree? Some days ago there seemed a very fair probability that we should not be involved, as both combatants had given the most positive assurances that they should respect the neutrality of both Holland and Belgium. But what is to be thought since The Times published the draft of the treaty between France and Prussia? It cannot be a matter of indifference to us that within the last four years France should have proposed to Prussia to conclude an offensive and defensive alliance, one of the objects of which should be to bind Prussia to give the Emperor armed assistance in case he should be led to undertake the conquest of Belgium, and to support France with the whole army and navy of Prussia against every Power which in that event might declare war against her. Indeed, this prospect is most alarming, the more because the French official press does not cease to direct attention towards Holland. Whilst one portion of it pretends to see in the firm assertion of our neutrality an anti-Prussian tendency, the France continues to pour out accusations upon our kingdom. The Correspondence au Nord Est says openly that France is not quite sure about the neutrality of Holland. Intelligent Dutchmen cannot help seeing a significance in these incessant attacks. If I had to sum up the feeling prevailing here I could only say that, if fear for the independence of the country is entertained, it is not fear of danger from the Germans, but that France will seize an opportunity to violate our neutrality. In the meanwhile, the whole country still rings with military preparations.

Of course, there is but little except war news; topics of the day are that Mr. van Naamen van Eemnes, M.P., has presented a horse to the army; that Mr. Knoop, M.P., has resigned his seat to have command of a division; that Mr. So-and-so has given twenty rifles, &c. I only pick up from the Nederlandsche Industrieel a very remarkable report upon the East India Railways, made by the engineer, Mr. Grol. He states that the disappointment could not be obviated, because it was obvious that the capital of fourteen millions was too small to construct the works, and that the engineers did not know the state of the grounds so well but that now and then some accidents happened. Mr. Grol, however, is of opinion thot these misfortunes could not be prevented, and that a minute examination and boring of the ground, if this had been possible, would have cost more than is spent in repairs.

I need not say that business has come to a complete standstill, and at the Bourse a panic prevails day after day. The Bank of Holland has again raised its rate of discount by ½ per cent. Fears prevail that we shall hear shortly of many failures. Till now only some houses of small standing have stopped payment. The transport by our steamers to England is enormous. Thousands of passengers and school-children come down the Rhine from various places and proceed to England. The noble river is now, instead of being crowded by tourists, left utterly desolate, not a single craft being allowed to pass either up or down.

The Dutch Missionary Society has held its annual meeting. The report was not very favourable. The accounts showed a deficit, which, however, was covered by the favourable balance of last year. The expenses for 1871 are estimated at f.88,000.

The Duc de Chartres is residing at Amsterdam.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

The greatest dulness prevails in our Colonial Produce Market. The war has stopped all activity. The Bank of Holland raised its rate of discount another ½ per cent., in order to check the export of silver.

Coffee.—There are no transactions to report; prices are nominal.

Sugar.—The Trading Company offered for public sale 52,269 mats, but only 18,071 mats were sold, the rest being bought in. The price paid was about 1f. to 1½f. under May value. No private transactions are reported. Stock in bond 51,862,068 kilo.

Tea.—The valuation of the 10,244 chests finest Kaisow Congo, imported per Red Riding Hood, from Foochow-foo is as follows:—QJT, 80c. to 82c.; QET, 88c. to 90c.; QHT, 83c. to 85c.; AGT, 78c. to 80c.

Tobacco.—The announced sales of Java tobacco are postponed.

THE FRENCH IN CHINA.

(THE GLOBE.)

It is to be hoped that amid all the cares and anxieties that harass and perplex France at the present crisis, she will yet find time and means to avenge the insult that has lately been offered to her flag and religion by the massacre of the French Consul and priests at the hands of the Chinese mob at Tientsin. The position of the French beyond that of any other foreign people in China requires that such insult should be promptly and fully avenged. The French diplomatist succinctly and truthfully expressed the relative positions occupied by the various nationalities when he said, "The English come to China with their commerce, we with our ideas." Unfortunately for France, the matter-of-fact Chinaman has a decided preference for our commerce over her ideas. It is the one thing that makes our presence at all endurable to the mass of the people. The Government derives a large revenue from our trade, and the mercantile and lower classes fatten on our substance. But to none of these large sections of the community do the French bring anything but vexation of spirit. In time of war they are in the habit of acting on the unpleasant principle of making war support war, and when peace reigns they neither help to enrich the merchants nor to fill the Imperial exchequer. Their only interest in China is the Roman Catholic religion, which next to or even before opium the Chinese Government look on as the greatest curse to the country, and which, from its very nature, is more difficult to support and protect than the commercial interests of other countries. With self-abnegation beyond all praise the priests have wandered into the very heart of the Empire; but, with less discretion, they have very constantly shown themselves only too willing to interfere between their converts and the native authorities; which, added to the isolated position of their mission establishments, has frequently invited attack, an invitation which the Chinese mob has never been loth to accept, and hence have arisen those cruel massacres which have periodically multiplied martyrs and shocked the civilised world during the last two hundred years.

Suffering under these disadvantages the task of raising the popular fury against the priests is an easy one. They are in the habit of buying young children to adopt and educate as Christians. This is quite enough to supply the mob leaders with materials for the wildest charges against them. "Don't think," they say to the people, "that these foreign devils buy your children for any good purpose. Their object is only to murder them, that they may bury their bodies under the foundations of their houses for good luck, and make medicines from their brains and charms from their blood, to pervert the ignorant from the religion of Confucius to their own deceitful teachings." These, or similar words, we shall find have been used to instigate the mob to attack the French missionaries at Tientsin and Nanking. And now, what steps will the French Government probably take to punish the offending nation? Fortunately for it, both places are situated on navigable rivers, and are neither of them defended by any formidable works. As far, then, as the local mobs are concerned, the French, with the naval forces at their command, which they possess at Shanghai and Japan, will have no difficulty in inflicting the well-merited chastisement. But the situation requires that something more than this should be done. The Central Government should be held responsible for such outbreaks, and should be made to feel, by the presence of a French army at Peking, that they have sinned. An expedition to Peking would present fewer obstacles to the French than to any other nation. At Saigon they have a considerable force of "Zephyrs," who, though morally speaking they are the scum of the French army, yet can never be accused of having ever, either in Algeria, Saigon, or China, the enforced scenes of their service, shown any backwardness to fight. An army of these men might be landed within eighty miles of Peking in little more than a fortnight from Cochin China, and, a landing once effected, they could make their own terms. What those terms will be remains to be seen. France has long had a hankering after the Island of Chusan, and the recent outrages form a very plausible pretext for the necessity of having some basis for operations either in or in the immediate neighbourhood of China.

THE INDIA AND CHINA LAND ROUTE.

The last number of the Gazette of India gives publicity to a correspondence between the Viceroy and the King of Burmah in regard to the extension of trade in the direction of South-Western China. The Viceroy, after referring to the edict in which his Majesty promised that the expedition organised under Major Sladen in 1868 for the exploration of the old caravan route between the Irrawaddy and Yunan should be furthered and assisted by every available means at his disposal, expressed his regret that, though several of the objects for which it was instituted had been accomplished, the officers who composed it had met with serious opposition at Bhamo and Ponsee, both of which places are situated in the King's territories. Apart from this opposition, the Viceroy intimated his assurance that the various tribes through whose country the expedition passed were in favour of the renewal of the old trade, and that they had given evident proofs of their disposition to co-operate in a work as interesting as it was likely to be profitable to themselves. His Excellency preferred to believe that those who threw obstacles in the way of the undertaking had acted in disobedience of the royal proclamation and in disregard of his Majesty's orders. In his opinion it was only necessary for the King to express his desire and determination to favour the project in order to induce his officials to do likewise. His Majesty had shown what was his own inclination by placing one of his own steamers at the disposal of the party when they left Mandalay, and the Viceroy was persuaded that the King was as solicitous as he had been in the commencement to give his active support. He concluded his letter by declaring how great was the interest of the British nation in the development of commerce with the districts bordering on Her Majesty's dominions, and how anxious the British Government was to co-operate with his Majesty in so noble an enterprise. By the appointment of a British officer to reside at Bhamo, to which the King had agreed, great hope was entertained that good would result to the merchants of both nations. The King, in his answer, alludes to the prosperous times previous to the outbreak of the war between the Chinese and the Panthays, when an ambassador came once in ten years from China with royal letters and presents, and when the opening of the "gold and silver road of commerce" gave a vast impetus to the trade of the country, and a corresponding increase to the customs revenue. When peace had been established between the belligerents he entertained no doubt that trade would again revive, and intercourse be as secure as formerly. Whenever a suitable opportunity occurred his Majesty was ready to help to the utmost of his power any English expedition that might hereafter be deputed to investigate further the Chinese route. As to the "misunderstanding" between the English officers and the Governor and other officials at Bhamo, his Majesty was inclined to ascribe it to the mutual ignorance of each other's customs and rules of etiquette. He hoped that the Viceroy would take the same view of the matter. For his own part, far from making any invidious distinction between Burmese and English, he looked forward to increasing prosperity for the latter in his own dominions, and he was convinced that the wealth which the subjects of both countries now enjoyed might fairly be attributed to the improved state of intercourse and the amicable relations which treaty alliances had brought about between the two Governments. At present, I may remark, nothing would be gained by a further expedition. We know that we have nothing to fear from the Khakhyens and the Shans, whenever we endeavour to revive the trade. They look forward to the advantages which will accrue to them as carriers and purveyors. Up to Momien, the extreme point to which Major Sladen penetrated, we are sure of our ground. Beyond that all is uncertainty. The Mahometan rebels have still to establish themselves firmly in Yunan. Solitary towns, like Talifoo, are said to be in their possession. But the Chinese Government is still contending for the mastery of the province, and disputing the occupation of every district by their rivals. Till civil war is at an end, any advance on our part beyond Momien would not only be dangerous but futile, for we can expect no interchange of commodities with a population whose country is being harried, and who with the greatest difficulty provide themselves with the bare necessaries of life.

SILK IN CALIFORNIA.

The Alta California of the 30th ult. contains the following remarks upon the progress of silk culture in California:—The demand in Europe for raw silk and silkworms' eggs is constantly on the increase, in the double ratio of greater number of people and larger distribution of wealth, which allows a greater consumption of silk. Nevertheless, the damage done to the culture in the silk countries by disease among the worms is such as to make manufacturers dependent, to a greater extent annually upon foreign countries for the raw material. Europe collectively now purchases annually a value of $160,000,000, of raw silk, and $10,000,000 worth of eggs. This is the season for the purchase of the latter, and this year there is an unusually great demand. We published a few days since a notice of a letter from Bersiges, in France, directed to Mayor Selby, asking the price of silkworms' eggs and yellow cocoons in the State. The railroad has now brought us a number of agents for French, Italian, and other silkworm industries, who are on their way to Japan by the steamer of the 1st, to make purchases of eggs, and their orders will reach some $6,000,000, to be drawn in favour of Japan. We have commented upon this exchange operation under the commercial head of this day's paper. These gentlemen have been very active in visiting the various companies of this State, and have expressed the greatest admiration for the prospects of that interest. Among others they have visited the California Silk Culture Company, near Sacramento, which is exceedingly flourishing this year. They have raised 3,000,000 worms. The cocoons attracted great attention. They have for sale some 4,000 ounces of eggs, of the well known French variety. These are worth in the neighbourhood four dollars per ounce, and the raw silk ten dollars. All the silk establishments in the State have not done well this year. From some undefined causes failures have been met with. As a whole, the interest is very growing. The French variety generally propagated is the best known and most admired in Europe. It is larger and more marketable, and it is that which in Europe has most suffered from disease in the last few years. The outlet for the sale of the eggs is immense, and the development of the interests here will lead to great results. For instance, the California Silk Culture Company, from the present stock, will, with a fair season next year, have 170,000 ounces of eggs disposable, which is a value of $700,000, and in five years they may raise 1,500,000 eggs. The causes of failures in some places will be constantly discovered and removed, until a uniform large crop may be obtained, and there is no reason why we should not at least rival Japan in the sales.

LABUAN.

The Pall Mall Gazette says:—An admirable practice seems to have prevailed until quite lately at Labuan with regard to destitute sick, and which is well worth the attention of boards of guardians in this country. Among the reports just printed "exhibiting the present state of Her Majesty's colonial possessions" is a copy of a despatch from Governor Pope Hennessy to Lord Granville, dated January 25 last, in which, speaking of the establishment of a civil hospital, he says that on his arrival in Labuan in 1867 he found it was the practice to treat the destitute sick as if they were criminals. In the absence of any civil hospital they were always sent to prison. The following memorandum was made in the early part of 1868 by Mr. Warren, gaoler, in reply to an inquiry on this point:—"Sick people are regularly committed and sent into prison for treatment, in general for one month, but in some cases for two or three months. Sometimes they are further detained by order of the colonial surgeon. They wear prison clothes and use prison bedding. They receive full rations, as the able-bodied convicts, besides extras as hospital comforts, by order of the colonial surgeon. They occupy the prison cells, which are only adapted for prisoners." We might improve on this plan by sending our convicts to our lunatic asylums. Instead of sentencing a garotter to be flogged the judge might send him to Hanwell for a month; if he returned to his associates with his ribs smashed and his breastbone mysteriously broken we should hear little more of deeds of violence outside the walls of an asylum.

THE TEA TRADE IN AMERICA.

The following particulars are from our Consul's report at New York. We do not correct here the inaccuracies which appear:—

In the tea trade the consumption was as under:—

	Green. lbs.	Japan. lbs.	Black. lbs.	Total. lbs.
1868 ...	15,577,505	7,153,304	12,584,635	35,315,444
1867 ...	14,231,271	7,027,459	13,600,212	34,858,942
1866 ...	13,138,226	5,348,609	11,402.703	29,889,538
1865 ...	13,227,628	5,646,571	10,979,234	29,853,433

The Consul remarks that "the tea trade during the year 1868 was notable for its entire freedom from speculation, business being confined wholly to the requirements of the demand for consumption. An increased consumption of Japan teas during 1867 and 1868, as compared with the two preceding years, is attributed to the defective quality of Oolong from China, with which dust was largely mixed, creating a prejudice against this description. Considerable parcels of tea were received during the latter part of last year by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, via San Francisco and Panama. This is a new feature, and by this route it is shown that the new crop can be laid down here two or three months earlier than by sailing ships. The receipts through this channel amounted to 510,454 lbs. Green, 201,837 lbs. Japan, 188,957 lbs. Black—a total of 901,248 lbs., the first of which were on market as early as September. But the completion of the Pacific Railroad will doubtless supersede the importation of teas by way of the Isthmus of Panama, and already, at the time I now write, shipments are being forwarded from San Francisco overland to the Western cities. Much will depend on the rate of railway freight. Should this not exceed five cents per lb. in gold, New York could be supplied more advantageously and cheaply by this than by the sea route. Even at a considerably higher toll, the Mississippi Valley, Chicago, and the North-West will before long receive their whole supplies through San Francisco, one striking advantage being the freshness and consequently superior quality of the article. Indeed, the time cannot be distant when, by increasing the facilities and cheapening the cost of the transportation of teas across the Continent, the trade in teas at New York will be converted from an import into an export trade, and when this city will form a chief entrepot of teas, as well as of silks and other light Asiatic products, for the supply of Europe."

San Francisco advices mention that two Chinamen had been arrested there for counterfeiting notes of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China. A sum equal to about £7,500 of these notes, almost exactly like the genuine ones, was seized.

Monetary and Commercial.

A return issued by the Suez Maritime Canal Company gives the following as the receipts since the opening in November last down to the end of June:—November, 1869, f.75,119; December, f.241,596; January, 1870, f.258,030; February, f.340,727; March, f.647,588; April, f.377,270; May, f.486,982; June, f.817,117—total, f.3,244,616.

On the question of draft and tare on Tea, which we have noticed in another column, we extract from the Produce Markets Review the following on super-tare, which it is now agreed shall be abolished:—

The meaning of the first change resisted by the dealers, which is called the "super-tare" question, is, perhaps, very little understood by the trade, and it is therefore well to explain in what it consists, that the retailers may be able to arrive at a decision on the point. Grocers will no doubt have observed that, in addition to the pound draft allowed them on tea, the merchants' tare is occasionally one pound in excess of that granted by the Customs, and that the allowance is, for instance, 23, 24, and 1 lbs., the first being the Customs' tare, and the second being the trade tare and draft. The difference is accounted for as follows:—A certain number of chests, say twelve, are selected for taring; the tea is emptied out, and the twelve empty chests are found to weigh 280 lbs., or an average of 23⅓ lbs. per chest. The fractions of a pound, being less than half-a-pound, are not allowed for by the Customs, and their tare is called 23 lbs. The practice hitherto pursued with the merchants' tare has been to allow all fractions of a pound to count as one pound, and the trade tare fixed in the case in question would thus be 24 lbs. Had the weight of the twelve chests been 286¼ lbs., or an average of over 23⅔ lbs., the Customs' and trade tare would both have been 24 lbs. By looking through their books, the grocers will notice that the cases in which the merchants' tare (apart from the draft) exceeds the Customs' tare are rare, but the proposed assimilation of the trade and Government methods of taring will of course, so far as it goes, be a loss to the retailers.

The following circular has been issued in regard to the settlement of the Tea dispute, signed by Messrs. Magniac, Adamson, and Deacon. They also recommend, by a circular, that in future any proposed alterations in the Tea trade should be a matter of reference between importers and buyers:—

Having conferred with Messrs. Peek, Harrison, and Edwards in regard to certain differences which have arisen respecting the terms of sale of Tea, we agree to recommend to the importers the following conditions, as suited to the present circumstances of the trade:—

Tea to be sold on Customs' weights and tares. The prompt of Teas weighed to be the first Friday on or after the expiry of three months from the day of sale. On Teas not weighed an additional week to be allowed. The allowance for draft to be made as at present, viz., 1 lb. upon every package weighing over 28 lbs. gross. Other terms and conditions as customary at present.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Transactions have been on a very small scale, and quotations are quite nominal. The dispute between importers and dealers about conditions of sale, referred to elsewhere, and the withdrawal of all shipping orders in consequence of the war, together with the absence of arrivals, are the causes of the dulness which has prevailed.

Messrs. Lloyd and Cheshire's Circular is as follows:—Congou—Red Leaf: We have no change to report in siftings; low and dusty common is worth nominally 9d. to 10d., and common 11d.; small sales of good common have been made at 1s. to 1s. 0½d.; the few parcels of medium sold have brought full prices, and the stock in first hand is firmly held, no doubt owing to the fact that telegraphic advices to the 2nd instant report the Foochow market unopened. Souchong: There is very little doing in common to medium; quotations are unchanged. Black Leaf: Siftings remain without change; small sales of common have been made at 11½d. to 1s., and of medium at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 3d.; the better kinds are neglected, as the Erl King with the first of the new crop is expected next week. There is nothing doing in new makes. Oolong: Transactions have been very trifling; offerings are confined chiefly to parcels of seasons 1868-69. Scented Tea: Spurious Sc. Caper is worth nominally 6½d. to 7d., but there is little demand for anything but medium up to 1s. 6d. S. O. Pekoe continues dull of sale. There has been a little inquiry for Foochow Pekoe. Green: Moyunes are still in request, but all other kinds of country Teas are neglected. Cantons are not in demand. Deliveries from the 13th to the 26th instant—5,113,477 lbs.

Messrs. Kinnear, Hawes and Hertz's Report says:—Our Tea market has been almost bare of any transactions during the past fortnight, chiefly owing to the discussions between the merchants and dealers, which have now fortunately resulted in a satisfactory settlement. We may therefore be justified in anticipating a more lively market, as the dealers, having withheld from buying to a great extent, must now replenish their reduced stocks.

SILK.

There is a complete suspension of business in the market; quotations are purely nominal, and to effect sales a considerable reduction would have to be submitted to. Red Peacocks can be bought at 25s., and a few parcels of Tsatlee have been sold at a reduction of about 3s. per lb. Deliveries 1st to 27th inclusive; China, 2,263 bales; Japan, 412 bales; total 2,675 bales.

COFFEE.

The market is without change. Since our last report there have been no public sales of Ceylon, and the private business therein has been of limited extent at prices which show a decline of 10s. to 15s. per cwt. for Plantation, and of 7s. to 8s. for Native compared with those ruling previous to the declaration of war on the Continent. In other East India kinds there have been no transactions. The landings are 2,000 tons less than last year, the deliveries, although showing some decline from those in the previous week, being 270 tons in excess; the stock now shows a decrease of 1,000 tons, being the first for some time past.

The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation 314,255 cwt., against 280,342 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1869; Native, 24,927 cwt., against 39,857 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is 22,952 cwt. Plantation, against 11,346 cwt., and 9,031 cwt. Native, against 22,155 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the twenty-nine weeks ended July 23, 1870, was, of Ceylon, 20,600 tons, against 21,513 tons during the corresponding period of 1869; of all descriptions, 32,411 tons, against 37,896 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 5,932 tons, against 6,276 tons; of all descriptions, 10,213 tons, against 10,411 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 15.616 tons, against 13,621 tons; of all descriptions, 24,455 tons, against 23,711 tons. The stock on July 23 was, of Ceylon, 12,916 tons, against 12,611 tons; of all descriptions, 21,962 tons, against 22,994 tons.

SUGAR.

The business in East India is still very limited, there having been no public sales since our last report; prices on the spot are however maintained, but for floating cargoes easier rates have been accepted. By private contract, 600 baskets fine strong Java have been sold at 35s. 9d. (duty 5s. 3d. to 6s.), and 15,000 bags low brown Manila at 20s. 6d. per cwt. Although the landings at this time last year were large they are exceeded by those in the present, which consist almost wholly of British West India, by 2,000 tons, and the deliveries being 250 tons less, a further accumulation is caused in the stock, the surplus now being about 19,000 tons.

The quantity of Sugar landed in the twenty-nine weeks ended July 23, 1870, was, of Penang, 2,277 tons, against 1,995 tons in the corresponding period of 1869; of Manila, Java, and China, 13,761 tons, against 19,780 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 1,437 tons, against 1,443 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 14,224 tons, against 8,975 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, 95 tons. against 64 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 1,775 tons, against 635 tons. The stock on July 23 was, of Penang, 3,075 tons, against 817 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 33,552 tons, against 39,054 tons.

Cocoa Nut Oil.—The export trade being interfered with, there is little or no inquiry; the price is nominally maintained at £38. The quantity afloat is estimated at 20,120 cwt., against 13,847 cwt. at the same time last year, and 13,623 cwt. in 1868.

Cardamoms.—Of Ceylon 16 bags fair quality were offered and bought in at 3s. 3d.

Cutch.—The tendency of prices has again been downward; 475 boxes fine Pegu at auction were bought in at 20s. 6d. to 21s. 6d., and private sales have been effected of 680 boxes at 20s. to 21s. per cwt.

Essential Oils.—Of 10 cases Cassia 1 case sold at 4s. 3d., the remainder being bought in at 4s, 4d.; 1 case very ordinary Cinnamon sold at 2¾d. Of 27 cases Lemongrass 4 cases good sold at 3d.; 4 cases Nutmeg chiefly bought in at 8½d.; 2 tins Cassia settlings sold at 2s. to 2s. 9d.

Ebony.—An offer of 17 logs (138 cwt.) Ceylon sold at £11.

Gums.—Benjamin: 4 cases Siam, brown thirds, bought in at £9 10s., and 36 cases Sumatra, thirds, rather dark to good almondy, at 70s. to 90s. Copal and Damar: No offers have been made.

Gambier.—There is scarcely any inquiry; the nominal quotation is 15s. 9d. to 16s. for fair block; privately 300 mats Cubes have been sold at 21s. per cwt.

Hemp.—We note the sale of 250 bales good roping Manila at £54 to £54 15s.

Japan Wax.—Of 126 cases Japan saucers offered, 123 cases were bought in at 61s. to 72s. for medium to good hard quality, and the remaining 3 cases were sold at 73s. per cwt.

Musk.—Prices show a decline of 2s.; the sales have been 24 caddies Tonquin—good shaped pods with some rather bally at 30s. to 32s., more or less bally and skinny, &c., 13s. to 19s.; 9 tins grain bought in at 50s. to 52s. 6d., inferior 26s.

Orchella.—An offer of 42 bales Ceylon was bought in at 52s.

Pepper.—Black: The market is still dull; the only sale has been 340 bags sea damaged Singapore at 4⅛d. for first-class quality, 1,639 bags sound being offered and bought in at 5d. to 5½d. White: A steady tone is maintained, and the sales have been 412 bags Singapore at 6d. to 6½d., and 61 bags Penang salvage, ex Benvenue, at 5¼d. to 5⅝d. per lb.

Plumbago.—Of 272 barrels Ceylon offered 32 barrels good dust were sold at 7s., the remainder being bought in, common lump at 8s. 6d., dust at 5s. 6d.

Rice.—There is but little inquiry, and few sales have been effected either on the spot or afloat; prices are, however, firmly maintained; the business in East India has again been confinad to Siam, of which 5,000 bags fine garden have realised 9s. 3d., and 250 tons field in mats 8s. 7½d. short prompt; afloat the cargo of 350 tons Bassein per Mary Ann, arrived off the coast, has been sold at 10s. 3d. landed terms for London.

Rhubarb.—Prices exhibit a decline of 3d. to 6d. per lb.; of 157 cases offered, 40 cases sold; fair round 3s. 2d. to 3s. 5d.; flat 2s. 10d. to 3s. 1d.; flat and round 3s. to 3s. 3d.

Spices.—Cassia Lignea: 125 boxes sold, first pile 110s., second 102s. to 104s., unsorted 100s. Cassia: 38 boxes coarse China bought in at 30s. Cassia Vera: 200 packages Padang bought in at 75s. Cinnamon Chips: 57 bags good middling sold at 5¼d. Cloves: 21 boxes fine Amboyna bought in at 7d. Nutmegs: 23 cases Penang 121's bought in at 1s. 11d. and 30 casks limed Java 109's at 1s. 10d., 7 cases ditto 95's sold at 1s. 11d. Mace: 5 cases common Java bought in at 3s. 3d.

Sago.—At auction 257 bags small pearl were offered and bought in—good at 17s. 9d., ordinary at 17s.; 50 bags large sold at 22s. Of Flour 500 bags Borneo sold at 14s. 9d., with short prompt.

Sapanwood.—An offer of 24 tons Manila was bought in at £7.

Soy.—At public sale 50 casks China were offered and bought in at 2s. 6d. to 2s. 9d. per gallon.

Tapioca.—No transactions are reported.

Tin.—There is a good demand, but owing to pressed sales prices have further given way; but the stocks in the market being so reduced, and the consumption being good, they will probably recover. The current quotations are: Fine Straits, on the spot, £119; afloat, nominal; Banca, £120; Billiton, £119; showing a decline of £5 upon our last quoted rates.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

The war has not as yet much disturbed the freights to the Eastern Ports, although there has naturally (owing to charterers being adverse to German and French vessels) been a general rise in rates; the arrivals have not been very numerous, but the berths are pretty well supplied with tonnage.

Current rates of freight for vessels on the berth:—To Yokohama: 32s. 6d. weight, 35s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 120s. weight: 110s. meast. LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT OF MEAT.

—Amsterdam Exhibition, 1869. First Prize, being above the Gold Medal. Supplied to the British, French, Prussian, Russian, Italian, Dutch, and other Governments. Dr. Lancaster writes regarding Extract of Meat:—"But there is a difference in flavour, and here, as in all other kinds of food, it is the flavour that makes the quality." It is essentially on account of the fine meaty flavour, as distinguished from the burnt taste of other Extracts, that LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT defeated all Australian and other sorts at Paris, Havre, and Amsterdam, and is so universally preferred in all European markets.

One pint of fine-flavoured Beef-tea at 2½d. Most convenient and economic "stock."

CAUTION.—Require Baron Liebig's, the inventor's, signature on every jar, and ask distinctly for LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT.

THE STRAITS TIMES.—Daily, weekly and fortnightly editions; published in Singapore for circulation throughout the STRAITS SETTLEMENTS JAVA, BORNEO, SIAM, FRENCH COCHIN CHINA, CHINA and JAPAN.

This paper, which is the oldest in Singapore, and the most widely circulated throughout the FAR EAST, offers an excellent medium for the advertisements of shipbuilders, machinists, manufacturers, patentees, &c., in the United Kingdom.

Advertisements to be forwarded through an Agent in Singapore, or GEORGE STREET, 30, Cornhill, London.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

SYSTEMATIC TREATMENT.—Few statements are more wide of truth than the assertion that for the cure of disease the ailing part alone demands attention, whereas both local and general mischief requires redress. These medicaments boldly face the evils they profess to remedy; local relief and general purification progress together; the diseased portion is cured, the foul whole is cleansed. Holloway's Ointment rubbed on the throat and chest exercises the most beneficial influence over sore throats, diphtheria, and cough, whether resulting from catarrh, asthma, or bronchitis. This unguent acts miraculously in arresting the extension of sores, healing ulcerations, curing skin diseases, and completely stopping all destructive inflammations.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Dates by the present mail extend only to the 14th June, but via San Francisco we have despatches to the 22nd. The London mail of May 6 arrived out on the 19th June.

The Japan Weekly Mail of June 18th furnishes an analytical summary of the Trade of Japan at all the open ports, distinguishing the foreign or direct trade from the local trade of each port. The latter, according to this statement, would appear to be chiefly confined to the redistribution of foreign goods, which it may be presumed have already been entered in the returns of the direct trade, and it is probable that no inconsiderable portion of the native produce carried between the open ports in foreign vessels is intended for reshipment, and is eventually included in the direct exports to foreign countries. It may be doubted, however, whether a correct estimate can be found from the Custom-house books of the extent of the local trade which affords such extensive employment to foreign shipping in Japanese waters. The marked disparity observable between the quantities of foreign goods stated to have been shipped from Yokohama to other ports and then returned as received at the latter, is sufficient to denote a very imperfect system of record in respect to these reshipments.

The direct trade for 1869 amounted to	Dollars.
Imports	17,356,932
Exports	11,485,645
Total	$28,842,577
and the local trade to	Dollars.
Imports	6,924,475
Exports	2,975,626
Total	$9,900,101

Total direct and local trade $38,742,678.

A comparison of the direct trade of the two years gives, it will be seen, the following results:—

IMPORTS.	1869.	1868.
Cotton Manufactures ...	$5,251,324 ...	$4,722,583
Woollen do. ...	2,010,553 ...	2,610,838
Metals	682,255 ...	698,780
Arms and Ammunition ...	1,857,625 ...	2,730,651
Miscellaneous	1,776,690 ...	1,491,043
Eastern Produce (as Rice, Sugar, Cotton, &c.) ...	5,828,485 ...	2,751,476
	$17,356,932	$15,000,871
Increase in 1869	$2,356,061

EXPORTS.	1869.	1868.
Raw Silk	$4,864,990 ...	$10,638,041
Cocoons	177,805 ...	128,040
Silkworms' Eggs	2,728,500 ...	4,199,188
Tea	2,019,180 ...	3,084,580
Miscellaneous	1,685,220 ...	2,390,334
	$11,485,645	$20,435,333
Decrease in 1869	$8,949,688

The Shipping Returns show a remarkable increase in the employment of foreign tonnage in 1869. British tonnage it will be seen has been more than doubled during the year, having advanced from 496 ships of 192,185 tons in 1868 to 897 ships of 410,105 tons in 1869; while the shipping of other nations has increased from 461 ships of 389,581 tons in 1868 to 713 ships of 659,293 tons in 1869. The large capacity of the Pacific Mail steamers contributes materially to the augmentation of American tonnage. The total tonnage entered at all the ports under all flags in 1869 amounted to 1,610 ships of 1,068,107 tons, as against 957 ships and 582,396 tons in 1868.

Bank Corporation. Admittance to the Bank was obtained through a window, from which one of the protecting bars had been removed, the first padlock of the outer door of the treasure room was tried, but with no result.

The Japan Gazette of June 21, speaking on the subject of Mr. Barnard, says, that among the few notable events that have occurred in our midst during the last fortnight has been the decided course taken by H. M. Consul, Mr. Lowder, in suspending a barrister, Mr. F. J. Barnard, from practising in the Court over which he presides. Mr. Barnard has a curious mania for calling his opponents and their witnesses by such epithets as "liar," "swindler," &c. The Consul has done all he could to check him, and to bring him to his bearings, lately going so far as to order him out of court. Mr. Barnard has been assaulted publicly three times, for this one thing—calling men "liar." But having crowned his folly one day last week by inserting an advertisement in a local newspaper, in which he calls on the public to disbelieve the Consul himself, the cup of his iniquity was full, and the Consul at once announced in the public newspapers that Mr. Barnard is suspended from practising in H. M. Court. Irrepressible indeed is this extraordinary "limb of the law." He talks now of proceeding against the Consul, and obtaining fabulous damages from him.

A libel case was lately tried in H.M. Provincial Court, in which a M. Bertrand, a French subject, claimed $1,000 damages from Mr. Howell, Editor of the Japan Mail, for an alleged and admitted libel. Mr. Howell had written in error, and on discovering himself to be in the wrong, did everything he could to repair the evil he had done—even offering to pay any sum three men appointed by Mr. Bertrand and approved of by himself should award. Indeed, his conduct after his mistake was pointed out to him was so straightforward and manly, that everyone rejoiced to see he was only cast in nominal damages.

The Yokohama Library and Reading Rooms are now opened, with every prospect of success.

The following is a correct account of a circumstance to which we referred last week:—It appears that a man, by name A-ho, took advantage of the absence of Sir Harry and Lady Parkes, on their late excursion, to introduce into one of the upstairs bedrooms as a place free from observation, another Chinaman, who had plotted with certain Japanese to make a quantity of false Kinsats. The Japanese supplied the paper and copper plates to this latter Chinaman, who bribed the steward A-ho to provide him with a safe place to work in. The proceedings being mentioned to Sir Harry Parkes on his return from the country he discovered proofs of the crime in the possession of A-ho. These consisted of paper, copper plates, and implements necessary for the fabrication of the false money, and also about 100 rios worth of the latter. A-ho was at once arrested and delivered over to the Japanese authorities. The real forger, that is the man who made the kinsats, was not a servant of Sir Harry Parkes, but lived at a place much frequented by Chinamen.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT—BY AMERICAN MAIL VIA SAN FRANCISCO.)

June 22.

A great number of our friends from China and Japan are returning home by this opportunity, some say as many as a hundred, and more are spoken of, but they do not all go by this route, probably not being aware of the communication. Mr. Pollard, the Q.C. from Hong Kong, is amongst the number, and it is rumoured that he will succeed Sir Edward Hornby. Japan is quiet. Lots of rumours about difficulties in the commercial department have been started by the Herald, but they are unfounded. No foreigner knows much about this company, which, from all I can learn, seems calculated to be of great benefit both to natives and foreigners, and to be conducted on very sound principles. They have already purchased steamers, put foreigners in command of them, and begun to run them as passenger and cargo boats calling at various ports. They have also purchased foreign cattle, oil, machinery, &c. They will, in time, have the Yedo Hotel, and they will make a good thing of it if they are wise enough to recognise the fact that foreigners are the right people to manage foreigners. The company will also be interested in reporting and checking produce.

News from England states that the loan is arranged, so that the line will be finished in six months, and it is sure to pay well under good management. All imports are cheap; exports dear. The season is favourable, and the Japanese must be making a prosperous year. Yokoska Dock is progressing well; all the machinery, &c., at work. The meeting at the Public Gardens passed off well. I carried my proposal, and the Gardens are to be opened to the public. The Civil Hospital on the hill is a great boon to the settlement and shipping. Mr. Brooke has taken charge of the Herald; the Mail is in Mr. Howell's hands.

HIOGO.

The Hiogo News describes the last meeting of the municipal board as more interesting than usual. The resolutions calling for plans and estimates for the extension of the roads and drains, and for building suitable municipal premises, naturally result from the council being placed in additional funds by the late land sale, amounting to boos 105,613,84, exclusive of the annual ground-rent. Although we do not anticipate any such reckless expenditure of funds as the council at one time appeared disposed to indulge in, we yet regret to see some considerable desire evinced to get rid of the haul which Providence, and rather too anxious bidders, have placed in their net. We feel it incumbent upon us to remind the members of the board that the money can be easily exhausted, and not so easily replenished; when the present supply is spent they have no power to raise more.

Lot No. 27 on the Foreign Settlement, containing 318½ tsubos, was offered at public auction by Messrs. Wainwright and Co., and after some spirited bidding was knocked down for $1,700 (Mex.). This lot cost about $860 (Mex.) at the land sale in June last year.

The ballot closed at the various Consulates for a member of the Municipal Board for the unexpired term of Ryle Holme, Esq., who has resigned, in consequence of an intended lengthened absence from the port. Franklin Blake, Esq., was duly elected, all but unanimously, having received 51 votes out of a total of 60.

NAGASAKI.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT, VIA SAN FRANCISCO.)

June 14, 1870.

The French mail of 17th March and English mail of 22nd April have been received.

As yet we have had but little rain, but sufficient to relieve the minds of the natives, who were beginning to get very anxious about their grain crops; it is also a source of satisfaction to the residents, as another year of failure would be as great a misfortune to foreigners as it would to the natives. The natives account for the bad state of trade by saying that, owing to the high price of food, people have no money to spend for clothes; but this complaint must shortly (if it has not already) cease, as the quotation to-day for Saigon Rice is certainly not over $2¼ to $2½ per picul.

Some new tea has arrived here, but at present no settlements have been made, as the teamen say they cannot sell at the prices offered them, which show a considerable loss on prices ruling up country; but these statements, I am inclined to think, are greatly exaggerated, and it suits their purpose to spread these reports, as it often leads buyers to give higher prices.

You will see that the editor of the Nagasaki Shipping List has an article on the Chinese at this port, who are gradually getting all the business away from foreigners. It contains a great deal of truth, but is incomplete without an addition, which I will now make:—"They not only smuggle, and thus defraud the revenue of Japan, but they even carry this game as far as to infringe that of America. The modus operandi is this—say a Chinaman is about to go as a passenger by one of the Pacific mail steamers, he takes charge of all the letters of his 'cousin brothers,' who are on these occasions a very numerous body, as relationship is admitted under very extraordinary circumstances." I have no doubt that large numbers are conveyed in this manner, as a short time since I met a Chinaman carrying a lot, on which the postage would have amounted to several dollars; and I made the remark to him that they bore no postage-stamps, which he accounted for by saying that "a friend brought them over in his box"—a proceeding which I should say would not be agreeable to the Postal Department at Washington, who pay a large annual subsidy for the service.

The affairs of the Club seem to be the source of trouble to some of its members, and it is not to be wondered at, considering that the building in which the bowling-alley was situated has been taken down, and no provision made for the members during the rebuilding of the new one; who are thus deprived of the use of the alleys, but who I presume will be called upon to pay their "full subscription" as usual. The shareholders who benefit most have completely ignored the interests of the ordinary members who mainly contribute the dividend. "An Indignant Member" is complaining in the Nagasaki Express about the way in which the Club library is managed, and states that books belonging to it are to be found in nearly every hong in the settlement, and some have been there for years—this statement is to a great extent true. He also asks what does Mr. Stone the manager do all day long.

The British barque Aztecs, with coal from Sunderland, arrived on the 2nd inst.

The North German barque Alida has taken berth for London at current rates, which are quoted £3. 10s. per ton of 50 feet.

The North German barque Catherine, Capt. Molsen, which arrived here on the 9th inst. in ballast from Yokohama, was discovered to be on fire about one o'clock in the morning of the 10th. It broke out in the cabin, but was extinguished after a quantity of wearing apparel and furniture had been consumed. The origin of the fire seems to be unknown.

The movements of the men-of-war have been as follows:—

The North German corvette Hertha arrived 29th May from Kagosima, and sailed again 31st May for Yokohama, after coaling.

H.I.F.M. corvette Dupleix sailed 31st May for Kagosima, and returned again 11th June and re-sailed for——on 14th inst.

H.B.M. gunboat Grasshopper remains in port.

H.N.M. corvette Marnix sailed on 2nd June for Kagosima.

H.B.M. corvette Rinaldo arrived 7th instant from Hong Kong, and sailed again 9th inst. for Hiogo and Yokohama after coaling

A North German corvette just anchored as I write.

SHANGHAI.

Dates by this opportunity extend to the 16th June. The London mail of 6th May was looked for on the 20th. The North China Herald has the following account of the disturbance at Nanking, which was telegraphed, and its importance overrated.

From Nanking we have news of intense excitement against foreigners; and here, again, kidnapping children is the cause. Five men have been beheaded for this crime, and for selling the eyes and other parts of their bodies to the missionaries. To such a point has the excitement reached, that the people have signified their intention to shut their shops on the 4th of the current Chinese moon, and not to open them again until the missionaries have been put out of the city. It was rumoured that the missionaries had left. The Mandarins, though apparently anxious to allay the excitement, do not go the right way to work, and rather increase than diminish it. Unless they succeed better before the examination comes on, it may be taken as nearly certain that a riot will occur; and the danger even now is imminent. We are not exaggerating, and rely fully on our information, when we say that the presence of a gunboat off the city is needed; and that it would be well the Dwarf should go to Nanking, instead of prosecuting her intended trip to Chefoo.

A correspondent at Tientsin writes:—There is no news from Kansuh and Shensi; but certain it is that the fighting there is assuming greater dimensions. It is difficult to get reliable information from the seat of war. There are many in Tientsin (amongst the Chinese) who have relations and friends with the Imperial army in the field there, but not one, strange to say, has heard or received intelligence thence since a year and a half. H. E. Chan-how was robbed of Tls. 2,000 the other night. Thieves broke into his treasury. For some time there have been certain people in the habit of kidnapping children. The interesting fact connected with this circumstance, as the Chinese tell it, is that the children are allured by sympathetical means, the children follow the men whether they like or not. On the 14th June three of these fellows were caught, and as they were transported to the Yamen for trial, they were lynched by the incensed and furious mob, and nearly half killed. What they are doing with these children thus captured I have not been able to ascertain. Trade is in an awful plight; the godowns are full of goods, and it becomes a serious question where to store the new supplies. Even at the reduced rates now ruling it is difficult to move off imports.

We hear than an office was opened at Soochow, and one outside the new north gate, at Shanghai, for sales of office, to get money for military purposes in Kweichow. Formerly, those who gave in their names and money received only a receipt for the same, and had to wait for order from Peking as to appointment to office; but now those thus contributing will receive both a receipt and an immediate appointment.

So far from being ruined by the competition of ocean-going steamers, the vessels of the two river steamer companies appear to be doing more work than ever. The Moyune brought down some 20,000 packages of tea from Kiukiang, and reports any quantity more awaiting shipment. It is to be hoped that the large arrivals in Shanghai will tend to lower prices.

We notice from the Customs Gazette that the Amoy Custom House is being pulled down, with a view to the erection of a new one. We wonder when a similar improvement will be effected in Shanghai. The present building is certainly picturesque; but it is ricketty, draughty, and inconvenient.

The Chinese authorities in Formosa are causing new trouble by insisting on foreign vessels chartered by Chinese paying a mast-tax (that is, so much for each mast), in addition to the treaty tonnage dues. Native vessels pay this mast-tax. The foreign vessels on which the impost had been first tried being American, the dispute was referred to Mr. Legendre, U.S. Consul at Amoy, who communicated with the Viceroy on the subject. The latter, in council with the Commissioner of Customs at Amoy, decided that the impost must be paid. Mr. Legendre demurring, the matter has been referred to Peking.

We learn that Capt. Howlett, who has so long and successfully commanded the Tunsin, has been compelled to retire temporarily by ill-health, and that his place has been taken by Captain Blatchley, late of the Glengyle.

The News Letter (American) has the following on the U. S. navy in China:—in 1867, under the late Admiral Bell, with his war-famous flag-ship, the Hartford, and afterwards under Admiral Rowan, with the equally fine man-of-war, the Delaware, made a formidable array of Uncle Sam's fighting material in these seas. Where is that noble squadron now? Its leader, Admiral Bell, with Lieutenant Reed and a boat's crew, drowned off the Osaka Bar in Japan. Captain Williams and his brave officers with the Oneida, sunk beneath the waves in Yokohama Bay. The Idaho, nearly lost in a typhoon, put back dismasted from sea, and condemned in Japan. The Arvostook, condemned and sold in Japan. Unadilla and Maumee, condemned and sold in Hong Kong. The Monocacy, on the Japan station, and the Ashuelot, on the Hong Kong station, are now all that are left of that proud fleet. The rest, as can be seen, are lost or gone homeward, broken up, sunk, or sold; A. D. 1870! Truly a flattering picture for foreign nationals in China to look upon. No wonder that an American Minister to China, within the past three years, had to creep through the gates of Peking as the servant of a member of his travelling party.

The Cycle is constantly affording us reason to be gratified at its existence. It is fulfilling the purposes we expected, and is presenting in every issue so far explanations in the nature of defence against foreign misrepresentation or ignorance, or both combined. We have already noticed its article on the Transit Dues. The Treaty of Tientsin provides that one payment, at the barrier or at the port, shall exempt goods from all further inland charges whatsoever. This the Cycle asserts was never intended, inasmuch as it interfered with the discretionary power of the inland Governors "to raise money according to their several requirements," and as the proposed Supplementary Treaty was intended in some way to remedy this grievance, it of course is advocated by our contemporary. The foreign merchants object to this revision of the original Treaty, and they now know, upon the best authority, what is the case they are fighting with. The Cycle says, in effect:—"We know we signed a Treaty, but we never intended that it should bear the interpretation which you have placed on this portion of it." And then the Cycle proceeds to advocate the barrier system, which the foreign merchants oppose.

The News Letter further says:—We hear that owing to the preoccupation of Congress, Consul-General Seward finds himself detained in Washington for at least another month. He had, until the arrival of the last mail, been expected on July 4, and preparations were being made to welcome him by firing a salute of 100 guns in front of the Consulate.

The General Sherman Corean affair is, we hear, to be made a subject for action by the American Minister at Peking, Hon. Mr. Low, so soon as the fleet under Admiral Rodgers arrives in China waters. We trust that the new squadron will not rendezvous in Hong Kong, under the delusion that that port is China. A station at Hankow, and one at Tientsin are among the absolute needs; not to speak of Shanghai, and other treaty ports, heretofore rarely visited by our men-of-war. The Tientsin station should be held by a steamer of sufficient power and speed to be of service to our Minister at Peking in time of need.

HONG KONG.

Dates by this mail are to the 23rd June. The London mail of 13th May (French) arrived out on the 20th June, with telegrams to the 4th.

The Overland China Mail has the following:—

A change is apparently impending over our police system; Mr. Creagh, who has been Acting Superintendent for many months, has obtained indefinite leave of absence—not to put too fine a point upon it—and has been succeeded by Mr. T. Fitzroy Rice, a gentleman who has had much practical experience in the police forces of Victoria and the Mauritius. It is significant, as following closely upon the departure of Sir Richard MacDonnell, that a piratical attack has been made in the harbour by one Chinese junk on another; the matter is undergoing inquiry before the Coroner, a Chinaman having died from wounds received in the attack.

The present movements of the American squadron in these seas are associated with circumstances of more than usual interest, if the information which has reached us is, as we believe it in the main to be, correct. The flag-ship Delaware, Capt. Earl English, bearing the flag of Rear-Admiral S. C. Rowan, will leave here for Singapore on the 16th inst., where she will remain until the arrival of the relieving squadron under the command of Admiral John Rogers. The flag-ship Colorado is expected in Singapore about the 1st of August, having left New York on the 9th of April. The Colorado is a fine first-rate, with full steaming powers, and by far the most powerful armed vessel the United States have ever had in Eastern waters. The Benicia, a new second-rate, ship-rigged, with auxiliary steaming powers, of the same class as the Hartford, which bore the flag of two flag officers on this station, once in 1859 and again in 1866; the Alaska, also a second-rate, but with full powers, and the first of her particular style that has been put in commission, and the Pallas tender (despatched via the Suez Canal), will constitute the subordinate vessels in the new Asiatic squadron. A full battalion of marines (distributed among the vessels), and several batteries of field artillery, accompany the squadron. On the arrival of Admiral Rogers, the sale of the Monocacy and Ashuelot will probably take place, as the Government has no further use for vessels of this class. We are informed that an expedition to the Corean group, consisting of a combined force of British, American, French, and Japanese vessels, will take place during the present year, and that preparations on a large scale are taking place in Japan to enable the Mikado to supply his contingent. The Americans have the General Sherman tragedy to punish, the French the murder of their missionaries and the repulse of their expedition to avenge; while Japan has some alleged treaty stipulations to enforce. We believe it is probable that some sort of demonstration is contemplated, especially on behalf of the American and French Governments.

A letter from Her Majesty's Consul at Canton says that the Chinese Government had done all they could in searching out and punishing the perpetrators of the piracy on the Crofton, which occurred a few months since off Macao.

We regret to hear of the death of Colonel B. P. Chenoweth, United States Consul at Canton, which event occurred on the 21st of June.

We regret to hear that Mr. W. H. Dalmeida died very suddenly at Shanghai, of typhus fever. Mr. Dalmeida was an assistant in one of the principal American houses here, had been a resident of this colony since 1860, and was very generally respected and esteemed in our community.

We have been shown a ten-cent. coin, manufactured in Canton from the pattern of the Hong Kong coined pieces. It is very coarse in manufacture, having been moulded instead of struck, and contains about 20 per cent. of alloy. It is said to be a favourite way of disposing of the broken fragments of silver which accumulate in the Chinese hongs, and are too small to be used as objects of barter, without risk of loss, while the percentage of alloys amply repays the cost of "minting."

The Overland Trade Report contains a copy of the memorial of the merchants interested in the trade of Formosa, to which we alluded some time since.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The following is a summary of the report read at the half-yearly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, held on the 14th June, Mr. J. B. Taylor, vice chairman, presiding:—

The Commercial Expedition of Mr. Moss.—The report states that, personally, Mr. Moss raised $2,010, making in all $4,010, for the expenses of the expedition. The expedition started from Canton on April 26, but no intelligence has as yet been received; $800 was spent for outfit, and $1,700 was taken to defray the expenses, a sum of $1,510 being left in hand.

Postal Communication with Foochow.—This paragraph contains simply a notice of the refusal to facilitate regular communication with Foochow.

Tea Freights.—A reference was here made to a reply forwarded to the General Shipowners' Society of London, on the question of unequal freights at different periods of loading.

Chopped Dollars.—An attempt has been made to do away with the mutilated currency here and at Canton, and a correspondence took place between the Chamber, the Colonial Secretary and Consul Robertson.

Room of the City Hall.—At a monthly rental of $75 per month, the Chamber congratulates itself upon being in possession of one of the finest offices in the colony.

Stocks.—In view of the satisfactory result arrived at by the last trial to obtain quarterly returns of stocks, another attempt was suggested at the end of the present quarter.

The Chamber's Market Circular Is still being published and improved.

New Members.—There have been elected, and require confirmation, as members—Messrs. Deètjen, Von Bergen, W. M. Morgan, J. C. Whyte, and J. J. Francis.

Funds.—To Mr. Whyte, for drawing memorial, $750; Printing, $338; gratuity to Mr. Wood, $300; Mr. Moss's expedition, $490; new furniture, $105. These sums amount to $1,983, which, with $1,510 of Moss's advance. sums a total of $3,493. To meet this one of the deposits of $5,000 will be converted, leaving a balance to credit of current account of $1,507.

The Secretary then read the letter addressed to the Colonial Secretary, requesting that something should be done towards obtaining more certain postal communication between this port and Foochow; together with an answer from the home authorities distinctly refusing any reform or improvement at the Imperial expense.

Mr. Pyke remarked that it was very unadvisable to allow such a question to drop; the fact that the Foochow Tea trade exceeded 50,000,000 lbs, producing a large revenue in Customs, had been overlooked.

Mr. Rowett thought they might address the P. and O. Company.

The Chairman observed that there was now a very small amount of revenue accruing from letters, though of course it would be much larger if the steamers were subsidised; still there was not much hope of bringing the amount up to a sum equal to the expenditure.

The report was passed unanimously, and the election by ballot of chairman, vice-chairman and committee was then proceeded with. Mr. Whittall was declared chairman, and the election of vice-chairman was left to the committee.

CHINA, AND JAPAN IMPORTS.

Yokohama.—There had been a slight improvement in the demand for Plain Cottons, and sales of 8¼ lbs. Grey Goods had been made at an advance of 10 cents per piece. Transactions had not been large, as holders were mostly disinclined to accept ruling rates. Cotton Yarns were rather lower, and Woollens and Fancy Goods had attracted but little attention. Quotations:—G.E. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.50 to 2.55 per piece; Do. 8¼ to 8½ lbs., $2.90 to 2.92½; Do., 9 to 9¾ lbs., $3.15 to 3.20; G.E. White Shirtings, 3.05 to 3.20; T-Cloths, 6 to 7 lbs., $1.80 to 2.15; Brocades and Spots, White, $2.90 to 3; Do., Dyed, $3.75 to 4; Chintz, Assorted, $2 to 2.50; Handkerchiefs, 65c. to $1.10 per dozen; Turkey Red Shirtings, $2.85 to 3 per piece; Cotton Yarn, No. 16 to 24, $45 per picul; Do., 28 to 32, $45.50 to 46; Do., 38 to 42, $48 to 48.50; Camlets, S. and BBB., $13.50 to 14.50 per piece; Do., SS., $13 to 13.50; Do., SSS., $9.50 to 10.50; Cloth, Medium and Broad, 80c. to $1.60 per yard; Lastings, $12 to $13.50 per piece; Long Ells, Assorted, $8 to 8.75; Lead, $5.75 to 6.25 per picul; Tin Plates, $5.75 to 6 per box; Iron—Nail Rod, $2.60 to 3.40 per picul; Bars, $2.60 to 3.25.

Hiogo and Osaka.—The business done in Piece Goods during the month had again been very limited, but there were some slight signs of improvement at the close. Grey Shirtings were improved in demand at somewhat higher rates. Cotton Yarn had been placed at quotations, and there was continued disposition to purchase, but stocks were light. Turkey Red Cloth had attracted somewhat more attention. Other Cottons were neglected. Camlets had been sold to a limited extent. Plain Lustres were asked for, the demand being in favour of White, Gentian, and Ash. Mousselines de Laine had found buyers to a fair extent at low prices. Blankets in slightly improved demand. Quotations (in dollars, at 106½ rios to $100):—Cotton Yarn: Nos. 16 to 24, 140.84 per bale; 28 to 32, 145.54; 38 to 42, 162.32; G.E. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., 2.58 per piece; 8¼ to 8½ lbs., 2.99 to 3.06; 9 lbs., 3.16; G.E. White Shirtings, 56 to 60 reed, 2.58 to 2.82; 64 to 72 reed, 3.16; T-Cloths, 6 to 7 lbs., 2.58; Handkerchiefs, Assorted, 0.56 to 0.70 per doz.; Brocades and Spots, White, 2.70 to 2.82 per piece; Dyed, 1.88 to 3.29; Chintz, Assorted, 1.98 to 2.12 Turkey Red, 2.58 to 3.29; Turkey Red Cambrics, 2.92 to 3.04; Velvets' Black, 7.98 to 8.45; Victoria Lawns, 1.18 to 1.29; Taffachelas, Double Warp, 2.58 to 2.70; do., Single, 2.12; Woollens and Woollen Mixtures: Camlets, SS, Scarlet, 14.56 to 15.02; do. Black, 11.26 to 12.20; Iron, Bars, 2.34 per picul; Nail Rod, 2.58; Hoop, 2.58; Lead, 5.74; Tin Plate, 5.96; Spelter, 3.29 to 3.76.

Shanghai.—The Piece Goods market was daily becoming more unsatisfactory. Money was easier amongst the natives, but, in the utter absence of demand from the consuming marts, the dealers had been afraid to buy; whilst a rapidly advancing sterling exchange, coupled with extensive forced sales by one firm had given a marked impetus to realisation, and nearly every article of import had declined materially in price. Grey Shirtings: Large quantities of mildewed Shirtings offering at reduced rates. Some sales of 8¼ lbs., good makes but mildewed, at Tls. 2.1.7 to 2.2.1 per piece. For other weights inquiry was small, and the few sales reported show a serious decline on last mail's quotations. White Shirtings, T-Cloths, Drills, Jeans, and in fact almost every description of Cotton manufactures, were as a drug on the market, and could not be sold saving at a concession to buyers. Fancy Cottons: No business. Woollens: Forced sales injuriously affected trade, and the market for all kinds was weak at quotations. Metals—Iron: No business since last report. Lead: Slight improvement took place, L.B. changed hands in small lots at Tls. 4.5.5 to 4.6.0. Quotations:—Grey Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., Tls. 1.8.5 to 1.9.1; do., 8¼ to 8½ lbs., Tls. 2.1.7 to 2.2.6; do., 9 lbs., Tls. 2.3.0 to 2.3.5; do., 10 to 9.12 lbs., Tls. 2.5.8 to 2.7.5; White Shirtings, Tls. 1.9.0 to 2.6.0; Camlets, English, SS., Tls. 10.5.0 to 11.5.0; do., SSS., Tls. 9.5.0 to 10; Spanish Stripes, Tls. 0.4.4 to 0.5.0; Medium Broad and Habit, Cloth, Tls. 0.9.0 to 1.5.0; Long Ells, Scarlet, C. P. H., Tls. 5.7.0; Assorted, H. H., Tls. 5.4.0 to 5.5.0; do., C. P. H., Tls. 5.5.0 to 5.7.0; Lastings, 30 yards, Tls. 8 to 10.5.0.

Foochow.—The sales had comprised:—Grey Shirtings, 2,000 pieces, 7 lbs., $2.82½ to $2.87½ per piece. T-Cloths, 500 pieces, 6 lbs., $2.10 per piece; 3,550 pieces, $2.40 to 2 65 per piece; 200 pieces, 8 lbs., $9.90 per piece. Lead, 1,500 pigs, $7.25 per picul.

Canton.—Lead was in heavy stock, and there being considerable pressure to sell, prices had suffered a decline of 25c. to 30c. per picul. Quicksilver, on the other hand, had slightly improved. Sales:—Lead, Common, 1,400 piculs, $6.15 to 6.20; W. B., 200 piculs, $6.35 to 6.40; Quicksilver, 200 flasks, $68.60 to 69.50.

Hong Kong.—Until within a few days preceding the departure of the mail dulness continued to prevail to as large an extent as has been reported for some time past. The attention of dealers was entirely confined to the auction sales, which continued without intermission, but subsequently stocks were so largely added to by arrivals per steamers via the Suez Canal, that some importers grew anxious to sell, and in order to effect sales reduced their prices for Grey Cottons about 5 cents per piece all round, and a fair amount of business then resulted. In Yarns and Woollens very little had been done, but prices must be considered nominally weaker. Cotton Yarn: Sales had been almost entirely confined to 16-24's, of which one special kind had been in request. Of these counts stocks were by no means heavy, and rates were generally upheld. 28-32's, on the other hand, were plentiful, and there was but a small demand for them. Of 38-42's large additions to stocks had been received from Singapore and other places, so that quotations were lower, and sales very difficult to effects. Grey Shirtings: The arrival of the steamer Priam with large supplies on board caused parcels of both 7 lbs and 8.4 lbs. to be forced on the market at reduced prices, and sales resulted to a fair extent. At auction prices had improved, owing to the increased attendance of country dealers. White Shirtings: Small sales only at about previous quotations. Grey T-Cloths: More inquiry after the finer qualities of 7 lbs., and holders had taken advantage of it to lighten their stocks. Common qualities declined in value to the low figure of $2.02½ per piece. Other makes are very quiet and call for no remark. Grey Twills: Dutch makes had been forced off at miserably low prices; English and American do not figure amongst the fortnight's sales. Dyed and Fancy Cottons: Only a little business doing. Woolen Cloths: Without any special inquiry there had been little done, viz., a sale of Superfine, Dark Blue, at $3.15 per yard, and of Medium Assorted, at $1.45 per yard. Spanish Stripes: The only reported transaction is a sale of the heavy German quality at 91 cents per yard. Long Ells: A small lot of H Scarlet forced off at $7.05 per piece. Camlets: Sales of SS quality in assortments more or less suited to the wants of dealers at $14.50 to 14.80 per piece. A transaction in S quality at $15 per piece involves a reduction upon quotations. Lastings: Uninquired for. Metals: Nail Rod Iron: Unchanged.; it was evident that the Chinese were working upon the stocks they had had the means of laying in so cheaply, and when these were reduced we should doubtless see better rates. Steel moved at irregular prices. Tin Plates sold at a decline. Quicksilver advanced. Lead not improved; a parcel of L.B. offered at $5.50 without sales. Quotations:—Cotton Yarn, Nos. 16 to 24, $135 to 140 per bale; 28 to 32, $140 to 146; 38 to 42, $160 to 163. Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs., $2.50 to 2.52½ per piece; 8.4 lbs., $2.85 to 2.87½; 9 to 10 lbs., $3 to 3.80.

White Shirtings: $2.30 to 3.40; finer qualities, $4.25. T-Cloths: 6 lbs., 1.82 to 2; 7 lbs., $2.2½ to 2.40; 8 to 8.4 lbs., $2.50 to 2.60. Grey Twills: English, $4.20 to 4.30 per piece; American, $4.65 to 4.75; Dutch, $4.25; Jeans, $2.95 to 3.20: Spotted Shirtings, White, $2.60 to 2.70; Dyed, assorted, $3.40 to 3.60; Brocades: White, $2.70 to 3; Dyed, assorted, $3.50 to 3.85; Damasks: Dyed, assorted, $4.70 to 5.25; Turkey Red Cambrics, 3 lbs., $2.60 to 2.75; Chintzes, assorted, $2 to 2.20; Gentian Twills, $2.65 to 3.10; Handkerchiefs, per dozen, Turkey Red, $0.90 to 1; Assorted, $0.65 to 0.80; Velvets, Black, $0.22½ to 0.25 per yard; Blue, $0.23 to 0.24; Velveteens, Black, 18 in., $0.19 to 0.21; Iron Nail Rod, $2.40 to 2.60; Bar, $2.60 to 3.30; Hoop, 2.70 to 3; Lead, Inferior, $5.40 to 5; L. B., $5.50 to 5.60; W. B.; $5.80 to 5.90; Coal, English, $7.50 to 8; Welsh, $9 to 9.75.

CHINA AND JAPAN EXPORTS.

TEA.

Yokohama.—Business had continued brisk since the date of last advices, and the new Teas had been bought up on arrival at very full prices, ranging on an average at least $10 per picul over those at the same time last year. Settlements since the last American mail amounted to about 5,000 piculs of old and new leaf in about equal proportions, and consisted of all grades from medium to choice. Arrivals had been on a par with settlements; the new Teas had been all thin Shimosa leaf; heavy arrivals of other kinds were daily expected. Stocks were small and principally of old leaf. The prices quoted are for new Teas—Common and good common, nominal; medium, $35 to 37 per picul; good medium, $38 to 40; fine, $41 to 45; finest, $46 to 50; choice, nominal.

Hiogo and Osaka.—During the month about 800 piculs of old leaf had been settled at easier rates. Of the new crop some 500 piculs had come to hand, of which 400 piculs had been purchased at prices showing an advance of Rios 8 to 10 on last season's opening rates, fine being eagerly purchased at Rios 43, and for a parcel of choice extreme rates were demanded. From the interior advices reported that the crop was abundant, and the quality superior to last season; but the excessive prices asked by the growers would prevent any large arrivals for some time. The Edward Herbert was loaded and ready for sea, bound for New York, having 241,532 lbs. on board. Quotations—Common, Rios 13 to 18 per picul; good common, Rios 18 to 23; medium, Rios 24 to 32; good medium, Rios 33 to 36; fine, Rios 37 to 42; finest and choice, none.

Shanghai.—Black: the market for new season's teas had been opened, but not with any spirit, and the state of affairs was characterised by extreme depression, if not entire stagnation. Teas had come down from Hankow and Kiukiang in large quantities, and there was a stock at this port of nearly 100,000 chests. There had been no demand for Bank paper, owing to the dulness of the import trade; the banks had consequently improved the opportunity to such an extent that paper previously saleable at 6s. 1d. was quoted at 6s. 4½d. This had induced an exceedingly tight money market, and had not tended to smooth the way for Tea operations. A further examination of the new crop did not quite bear out the previous favourable impressions. There had been some very fine Teas, nearly all of which had gone forward from Hankow or as reshipments from hence; but the bulk of the Teas offering, though comprising some good parcels, was not equal to that available last season. There was much dust and broken leaf which should certainly not appear in teas of the first crop. Settlements, 8,650 chests. Reshipments, 21,000 chests. Stock, 98,000 chests. The following prices had been paid:—Oopacks, &c., Tls.29 to 31¾; Oonfans, Tls. 29 to 31; Ninchows and Hohows, Tls. 27¼ to 34. A comparison with prices ruling at the same time last year shows as follows:—Oopacks, &c., 1s. 5½d. to 1s. 9d. per lb.; Oonfas, 1s. 6½d. to 1s. 8½d.; and Ningchows, 1s. 5½d. to 1s. 8½d. per lb. Green: In old tea there had been no transactions, and the stocks still held would no doubt be mixed off with new Japan or Hoochow leaf as occasion offers. Some musters of new Pingsueys had been shown, none however of first-class quality. It was asserted that as much as Tls.35 has been offered. Stock: 4,200 ½-chests Fychows and Shanghai packed; 5,000 ½-chests Pingsueys. Total, 9,200 ½-chests.

Hankow.—A large business was done during the early part of the fortnight at prices favouring buyers, and the market had been cleared of all the first chops of fine teas. Common and medium had been quite neglected, and teamen had almost discontinued showing them on the market. Large shipments made to Shanghai were chiefly composed of these descriptions; prices of fine Oopacks must be quoted relatively higher, at the close sales of second chops of Yang-low-toong and Soonyong being reported at Tls. 19 to 22.5 per picul. The prices paid were as follows:—Oopacks and Cheong-sou-kais, finest, Tls. 24.50 to 34.75 per picul; medium to fine, Tls. 17 to 24; Oonams, medium to fine, Tls. 15.50 to 18.50; Oonfas, medium to fine, Tls. 20 to 28.50. The following is a comparative statement of statistics:—Settlements, 132,325; contracts, 6,847; shipments to Shanghai, 43,187; total shipments, 182,359; stock, 29,993; total arrivals, 212,352 chests.

Foochow.—The market was not yet opened, the only transactions reported being the private settlement of Pehling kinds at Tls. 20 to 32 (1s. 5½d. to 2s. 1⅜d.), but this was not looked upon as a market operation, and had had no effect upon buyers, by whom no eagerness to commence business was manifested. Rumours had been circulated of the immediate opening of the market, but these had not been verified. Some chops had, however, been taken by firms having control over them, namely, Changkee and Cheang-mow, by Gilman and Co.; Ee-hung and Suez-fung, by Phipps, Hickling, and Co.; E-yuen, by Turner and Co.; Teen-ching and others, by Jardine and Co.; and Chun-hing, by D. Morrison, but none of these Teas had been actually placed upon the market. The arrivals of Congous were 58,000 chests less than at the corresponding date last season; of Oolongs, 7,000 half-chests less; of Scented Teas, 28,000 boxes less. The Congous from the up-country districts, the bulk of which had arrived, were in some instances superior to those of last season, though not equal to the standard of former years. Total arrivals — Congou, 212,000 chests; Souchong, 3,000 chests; Pekoe, 800 chests; Oolong, 20,270 half-chests; Scented Teas, 7,000 boxes.

Canton.—The market had remained extremely quiet, buyers having shown a great amount of prudence in holding off and resisting the demands of the teamen. The very bad accounts of the London market offered no inducement to purchase, but at the same time there was more unanimity displayed than might have been hoped for. Canton Congous: Small parcels for the colonies and India had been taken. Scented Orange Pekoes: Settlements made on a small scale, at about 2 tls. lower than opening quotations. The qualities taken were principally fine to finest. Scented Capers: Grades above common scarce, and a concession of Tls. 2 to Tls. 3 per picul on these qualities had induced buying to a moderate extent. The lower kinds were held for too high prices to enable operators to purchase them. Canton Greens: There had been no settlements for England, but small chops had found buyers for the Continent and America. Quotations: Canton-packed Congou, Tls. 18 to Tls. 20; Scented Orange Pekoe, Tls. 22 to Tls. 34; Scented Caper, Tls. 20 to Tls. 30; Gunpowder, Tls. 15 to Tls. 25; Imperial, Tls. 14.50 to Tls. 20; Young Hyson, Tls. 24.

SILK.

Yokohama.—The business, amounting to about 400 bales, had been almost limited to the sweepings of the season, which had been sold at too irregular prices to make any absolute change in quotations. The tone of the market was very firm, and the new season was likely to open at a very high range of prices. One small parcel of three bales had been shown as new Silk, but was so mixed with old as to form no criterion of what the quality of the new season's produce may be; fair arrivals, however, were likely to be down in the course of a fortnight. The unsold stock was reduced to about 200 bales very mixed and inferior. Settlements of Hank sorts, 50 bales; Oshu, 100 bales; other sorts, 250 bales; total, 400 bales. Quotations (laid down in London at exchange 4s. 7½d.:—Hanks, Mybash and Sinchu, extra, nominal, 38s.; do. best, 35s. 7d. to 37s. 2d.; do. medium, 31s. 3d. to 34s.; do. inferior, 27s. 4d. to 28s.; Oshu, extra, nominal, 30s. 1d. to 40s. 8d.; do. best, nominal, 35s. 2d. to 37s. 2d.; do. medium, 32s. 5d. to 34s. 10d.; do. inferior, 27s. 4d. to 31s. 3d.; Coshu, best, nominal, 30s. 1d. to 31s. 8d.; do. medium, 27s. 4d. to 28s. 11d.; do. inferior, 24s. 7d. to 26s. 11d.; Sodai, best, 31s. 3d. to 33s. 8d.; do. medium, 29s. 4d. to 30s. 10d.; Etchesen, best, 29s. 4d. to 31s. 3d.; do. medium, 27s. 4d. to 29s. 4d.; do. inferior, 24s. 7d. to 25s. 3d.; Mashta, best., 27s. 4d. to 29s. 4d.; do. inferior, 24s. 7d. to 26s. 11d.

Hiogo and Osaka.—Supplies had been brought forward freely during the month, but they had been almost entirely confined to coarse and inferior descriptions, scarcely a parcel of fine Silk having been shown. Settlements were estimated at 190 bales of 80 catties. Prices had been irregular, but dealers had generally been disposed to accept easier rates for low and inferior Silks. The new crop was expected to be good, the weather having been favourable, but the general result would scarcely be known in this district before the middle to end of July. Quotations (in dollars at 106½ rios. per $100), Hanks, nominal; Idah, fine, 788.74 to 816.90, equal to 33s. 7d. to 34s. 9d., per picul, laid down in London; do. medium, 704.22 to 751.18, equal to 30s. 1d. to 32s. 1d.; Sodai, medium, 638.50 to 676.06, equal to 27s. 7d. to 29s. 2d.; Itchisen, medium, 610.32 to 638.50, equal to 26s. 5d. to 27s. 6d.; do. common, 525.82 to 582.16, equal to 22s. 1d. to 24s. 4d.; Oshu, Hamatki, best, 657.28 to 685.44, equal to 28s. 5d. to 29s. 6d.; do. medium and common, 563.38 to 629.10, equal to 23s. 6d. to 27s. 3d.

Shanghai.—During the early part of the fortnight, owing to the departure of two mail steamers for Europe (Messageries Imperiales and P. and O.), a good demand existed, but subsequently, owing to the rapid and great advance in the rate of exchange, business had been restricted; as the mail closed, however, the natives who held large stocks of Silk which had been purchased at the highest point of the markets in the interior, had become very anxious sellers, and as they were willing to accept of a decline more than the equivalent enhanced cost caused by the high rate of exchange, a fair business was being transacted, and settlements had increased to 5,000 bales (including 2,457 bales exported per Phase), giving a total from 1st June of 6,000 bales. For the French mail prices were Tls. 610 to 627½ per picul for chop third Tsatlees (the latter being the price of Koo-fong-sings); Tls. 590 to 600 per picul for Market 3; and Tls. 555 per picul for "Red Peacock." In Karshing Taysaams Tls. 520 to 525 were reported paid for No. 1, and Tls. 490 to 500 for No. 2; and when the steamer left on the 10th June the market was very firm at these rates, at which some 300 to 400 bales were purchased for this mail. At this date exchange was quoted 6s. 1½d. for credits, the following day the rate took an upward movement, and rapidly advanced to 6s. 4½d.; as Exchange advanced prices for silk receded, and at the close there was an irregular decline of Tls. 20 to 40 for market and lower Tsatlees, Tls. 20 to 30 per picul for Chops, Tls. 20 to 35 for Karshing Taysaams and all other descriptions. The arrivals had been on a somewhat liberal scale, induced no doubt by the very dangerously high rates paid for the last English and French mails, and the unsold stock was estimated at about 5,000 bales. The following chops had been purchased:—"Tso Pings," No. 3, Tls. 600; "Dragon" (reported on half account with natives) at Tls. 595; Donkey at Tls. 580, and Red Peacock Tls. 520 per picul. Silk generally appeared coarser in size this season than last, and Taysaams are inferior to last year's silk. Quotations:—Tsatlee, No. 2, 600 to 620; do., No. 3, 3580 to 600; do., No. 3½, 555 to 580; ordinary, No. 3¼ and No. 4, 530 to 555; do., No. 4, 490 to 510; do., No. 5 and com., 465 to 485; Karshing Taysaam, chop No. 1, 480 to 500; do., No. 2, 450 to 475; do., No. 3, 425 to 455; do., No. 4, 5, and com., 380 to 420; Chin Cum, Taysaam, No. 2, 425 to 440; do., No. 3, 405 to 415; Yuenfa and Hainings, No. 3, 505; Hangchow Tsatlee, 440 to 455; Laeyongs, 385 to 400; Sewhings, 395 to 410.

Canton.—Settlements had been on a very limited scale, as holders were very firm, and asking higher rates than those last advised, whilst buyers were not encouraged by their advices from home to continue purchasing. Quotations:—Tsatlee-reel, best selected, $565 to 570; ditto, No. 1, $500.25 to 5.30; ditto, No. 2, $510 to 515; Loong-kong, best selected, $500 to 560; ditto, No. 1, $525 to 530; ditto, No. 2, $510 to 515; Lacklow and Cumchuck, $500 to 505; Re-reeled Cumchuck, $560 to 565; Kowlong, $465; Seulam, $415; Punjum, $140; Waste Silk, No. 1 and 2, $75 and 57; Pierced Cocoons, $78.

The British steamer Danube from Liverpool via Suez Canal, reports the first part of passage fine weather until 13th June, when experienced

The China arrived on the 15th June, and reports having sailed from London on the 16th November, and encountered strong winds with weather dirty coming down the Channel. Afterwards favourable weather was experienced until January 17th, the ship being lat. 36.50 S., long. 9.30 W., weather thick, and blowing strong from the S.W., passed over some very discoloured water and much kelp, there could not have been more than ten fathoms water. February 9th, lat. 39.20 S., long. 42.30 E., fell in with a strong S.E. gale, which continued for five days, and then had strong variable winds up as far as Anjer. On the 25th of February, at four P.M., when in the meridian of St. Paul's, and twelve miles south of it, the weather clear, tried to sight it in order to test the accuracy of the chronometer, but could not until the following day; and discovered the chronometer to be out 155 miles. Was off Java Head 24th March, and drifted out of sight of land on three different occasions—the prevailing winds being East with strong current. Left Anjer on April 9th, and had a series of heavy squalls; wind variable, and but few observations could be obtained. May 30th, the weather cleared up, and continued fine, until taking the pilot on board on the 1st June, when, at noon, it again set in thick. Anchored at six P.M., was compelled to remain for thirty-six hours, and reached Shanghai on the 5th, after a passage of 201 days.

THE TIENTSIN MASSACRE.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

Sir,—Pending the receipt of a more detailed account of the Tientsin massacre than that given by telegraph, it would be premature to express any opinion upon its immediate or remote cause. The question, however, as to how France will act in the matter is one of grave importance; for, if adequate satisfaction be not exacted and the mandarins be not made to feel that such outrages will most certainly involve themselves in disgrace, and ruin, there will hereafter be but slight security for the lives and property of foreign residents at the smaller treaty ports.

One of the telegrams states that the missionaries were accused of murdering children and scooping out their eyes, and similar accusations, you may remember, preceded the Yangchow outrage in 1868. Now, it is a well-known fact that these calumnious falsehoods are disseminated in China by means of inflammatory placards, which are posted up at the gates of cities or other places of public resort, and, seeing the lamentable events which have too often followed their publication, it is to be hoped that the Representative of France will now insist on the promulgation, in the Peking Gazette, of an Imperial decree, making it obligatory on all local authorities throughout the Empire, on pain of degradation if the duty be neglected, to cause such placards, whenever they may appear within their respective jurisdictions, to be instantly removed, as well as to seize and punish all concerned in their production.

I feel sure that, as a preventive measure, this would have a good effect, and think that, as a preliminary course, the Tientsin mandarins should likewise be required, through the Peking Gazette, and under pain of degradation, to apprehend, within a given time, the ringleaders of the mob that sacked the consulate and other buildngs, and murdered the French subjects.

There can be little doubt that, in addition to the execution of the leaders of the mob, the French authorities will demand of the Chinese Government the rebuilding of the cathedral, consulate, and hospital, and monetary compensation for the relatives of the deceased, a demand in which I trust they will receive the moral support of the representatives of the other Treaty Powers at the Court of Peking.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

August 5, 1870. M. N.

The members of the Chinese Embassy at present in Europe have addressed the following letter to the French Minister for Foreign Affairs:—

"Twenty-eighth day of the Sixth Moon (July 27).

"It is with a profound sentiment of grief that we learned that the scenes of murder and devastation which occurred at Tientsin, through a popular rising, have been confirmed by a telegram lately received from Count de Rochechouart. We have, on the other hand, been semi-officially informed that the Chinese Government has confided to a functionary of elevated rank and eminent capacity the care of opening an inquiry relative to these regrettable events. We do not hesitate to affirm that this high personage, whoever he may be, will use the greatest diligence in acquitting himself of his mission, regulating his action on treaties and laws. This is for us a reason to hope that the negotiations previously commenced between the Duke de Gramont and ourselves, with a view to arrange, as we have done with the principal Courts of Europe, the bases of a durable understanding on the principles of international law, and which have been so unfortunately interrupted at the moment they were about to be completed, will be resumed hereafter. Under existing circumstances we propose to leave Paris for Spain to-morrow. We shall shortly return, and, in the meantime, ask permission to take leave of your Excellency in renewing the assurance of our high esteem."

THE REJECTED TREATY.

Now that Her Majesty's Government has finally abandoned the Alcock Convention, any further discussion of its merits—or demerits—may perhaps be considered wearisome and profitless; yet we cannot allow the paper read by Mr. J. Barr Robertson, at the Asiatic Society's meeting (reported in our last issue), to pass unnoticed. Mr. Robertson, who is the able exponent of views held, we believe, by a far from insignificant section of the mercantile community in China, finds a good deal to say in favour of Sir R. Alcock's Convention, and indeed he defends some of its provisions with a degree of skill that would do credit to the Treaty-maker himself. Broadly speaking, Mr. Robertson divides the Convention into two sections; the first concerning security for life and property, the second relating to trading privileges and the tariff. That the requirements of the case embraced under the first head are not duly met by the proposed Convention, Mr. Robertson unhesitatingly admits; but, with regard to the second, he considers that we should have done well to accept the settlement offered by the Chinese Government. They might, he says, have dictated terms far more burdensome; for every country has a right to arrange its Customs' tariff, as well as its other sources of revenue, on a scale in accordance with its requirements. Then he shows that opium would, after all, be very lightly taxed at fifty taels per picul, considering that the Indian Government derives four times as much profit from it; that the proposed "nominal" increase of the silk duty is outweighed by advantages obtained in other parts of the arrangement; that inland taxation is by no means so heavy as has been assumed, and that therefore the objections to the proposed commutation of transit dues lose much of their force; and, lastly, that, as the question of revision can be raised again at any time, it would be good policy to take the Convention as it stands.

It is not easy to gainsay the assertion that every nation has an inherent right to fix its own scale of duties without asking the permission of other countries, and this is the strongest argument Mr. Robertson adduces in support of his views. The United States—one of the youngest of nations—having pushed that right to such extremes, it would seem hardly fair to deny similar privileges to one of the oldest. But then it is not a question of tariff alone; it is a question of our whole commercial and social relations with China; and although theoretically this may be divided, after Mr. Robertson's fashion, into two separate parts, it must practically be dealt with as a whole, and negotiations must be conducted on the "give-and-take" principle. Mr. Kingsmill, in the course of the discussion which followed the reading of Mr. Robertson's paper, went so far as to say that "with no other nation were treaties required "for the conduct of trade, and he did not see why China "should be the only exception." Here is an extraordinary misconception. England has had commercial treaties with half the nations of the globe; and, as an example, at the very time this discussion was taking place in China, a controversy was going on at home on the working of our Commercial Treaty with France. If it is permissible to make special conditions by which trade between this country and France shall be governed, surely a treaty defining the terms on which our trade with China shall be carried on cannot be pronounced useless or superfluous. The difficulties in the way of a satisfactory settlement are no doubt very great; but that is no reason why we should hastily accept any terms offered, in despair of getting better ones. Whatever arguments there may be in favour of such a course, we retain the conviction so often expressed, that the merchants did right to demand the rejection of Sir R. Alcock's one-sided Convention, and that the Government acted wisely in acceding to their wishes. That this would be the result we predicted from the first; but it would need a greater degree of foresight than we can boast of to foretell the result of the next attempt at revision. That must depend almost entirely on the character of the negotiator to whom the task is allotted, and the selection has yet to be made.

LEGATION BUILDINGS IN CHINA AND JAPAN.

A Parliamentary Paper has been issued showing the details of the estimates for Legation and Consular Buildings in China and Japan. Major Crossman was sent out to superintend the erection of these buildings in 1866, but the uncertain state of the relations between England and Japan made it impossible for him at that time to furnish any general estimate of the sums required for buildings in the latter country. The Legation had their residences both at Yedo and Yokohama, towns within a short distance of each other rented of the Japanese Government at about £1,800 a-year From 1859 to 31st March, 1870, only £2,500 were expended on the Legation buildings. In the current year £500 is provided for repairs. It is uncertain whether the Legation will be definitively fixed at Yedo or Osaka, or at both places. When that question is settled, buildings will have to be erected at an estimated cost of £30,000. In 1866 there were three Consular establishments in Japan—viz, at Kanagawa or Yokohama, at Nagasaki, and at Hakodadi. Rents amounting to about £3,500 were paid by the English Government for Consular buildings. The Consulate at Kanagawa, proposed by Major Crossman, has been since erected at a cost of £11,000. Major Crossman proposes also to build at Nagasaki, where a house has been purchased for the Consul, and an estimate submitted to Parliament for works. It is estimated that it would cost £7,000 to build a Consulate and offices at Hakodadi. Since 1866, the ports of Osaka, Hiogo, and Neegata, have been thrown open, and Yedo has become the residence of a Vice-Consul. Major Crossman estimates the cost of Consulate and offices at Neegata at £6,500; at Osaka at £7,000; and at Hiogo at £7,000. In the estimates for the current year it is proposed to vote £5,000 for Osaka and Hiogo. The rents paid by the English Government for Legations and Consulates in Japan amounted in 1866-7 to £5,300; and in the current year they are estimated at £4,050.

The following return shows the amount expended under the superintendence of Major Crossmann between March, 1866, and September 30th, 1869, the probable amount that will have been expended between 30th September, 1869, and 31st March, 1870, and the amount provided for the financial year 1870-71:—

THE WAR AND THE SITUATION.

(London and China Express.)

No dispassionate person who reads the projected Treaty by the light of the so-called "explanations" of Bismark and Benedetti can doubt that the two contending Powers are very much in the position of an embryo Brigand Company (Limited), who have merely fallen out over the division of their spoil before it was won, on an uncandid comparison of their capital. Both parties were, no doubt, willing to invest their reputation—such as it was—and to increase their national debts and impoverish and decimate their subjects, just as far as it seemed desirable to follow out the principles inculcated in our late Laureate's lyric—

> The good old rule, the simple plan,
> That they should take who have the power,
> And they should keep who can—

was to be applied with all the force of the chassepot, the mitrailleuse, and the excitement of the cry for a "united Germany," to the extinction of the independence of Belgium and Luxembourg. The scheme was nothing new, so far as France was concerned at least. So long ago as 1859 Mr. Kinglake, in the House of Commons, openly charged the Emperor of the French with having, at Villafranca, proposed to the Emperor of Austria to assist him in taking back all that he had lost in Italy, on condition of his consenting to the enlargement of France "to the Rhine." This accusation was never denied; and, though the plan fell through then, its promoters were not discouraged. France, disappointed in Austria, sought a nearer and a more potent ally in Prussia; and she found, apparently, that she had nothing to apprehend from the coyness or the scruples of her last made friend. The plot seems to have proceeded bravely; and there is not much room to doubt that it would have been carried out "in its integrity," had not old wounds been re-opened on both sides. "When rogues fall out, honest men come by their own," says the proverb; in the present case, honest men will probably hold their own from the same cause. Hatred between Prussia and France would seem to be the normal condition of both nations. For more than a century—from 1706 to 1815—both countries were engaged in no less than thirty conflicts with each other. Turin, Malplaquet, Minden, Montmartre, and Waterloo were conspicuous among the victories in which the Prussians assisted against the French; and Valmy, Jena, Montmirail, and Monteron, scarcely compensated French pride for so great a balance of defeats. But France had gained new laurels since the last of her distinct encounters with Prussia. She had humbled Russia in 1856, Austria in 1859, and she felt that the mitrailleuse and the name of Napoleon would suffice to humble Prussia in 1870.

Assuming, then, for the sake of argument, that the present war, if confined to the two belligerents, will be brought to a speedy conclusion, it remains to be examined how far the probability extends of other nations being involved in the affray, which side their sympathies or interests would impel them to take, and what they could gain by declaring war at all. To the last part of this question it appears to us that the answer is simple and conclusive. No nation—be it what it may—can gain anything by attempting to disturb the map of Europe. "Not one Frenchman in a million," writes the correspondent of The Times, "believes that England will go to war for Belgium." Perhaps we might add that not one Englishmen in a thousand believes that France would venture to annex Belgium in the face of her stanchest and most formidable ally. England is the Nestor of Europe. Her age, her progress, her achievements, and the admiration with which her institutions are everywhere regarded, give her a weight in counsel far greater than her present strength in war. The haven of deposed Sovereigns, she is also the sustainer of threatened dynasties. Always slow to attack, she was never known to flinch when called upon by duty, and her traditional gallantry and stedfastness is appreciated by no Power more than her nearest neighbour. France will never seek to annex European territory so long as England contents herself with protesting against such annexation, and repairs with due, but not unbecoming, haste the ad captandum blunders of the present Government in reducing her forces to a minimum. England's voice will be the key-note of European action or neutrality. Most of the other nations have not only nothing to gain, but also nothing to lose—i.e., nothing to spend—by taking part in the impending struggle. Spain, the original casus belli, does not care two straws about the success of either side; and she has already derived enough benefit from the beneficent action of her Republican Government to make her anxious only to adopt their recommendation as to the future form of their constitution. Russia, while beginning to prepare for eventualities, declares her intention to be neutral. So also does Austria. Austria and Russia have need of all their revenues to carry on their Governments on a footing of peace. We see nothing to tempt Austria to take part with either of the two combatants, by both of whom she has invariably been worsted; and Russia can hope for nothing, in any convulsion, unless it is the invasion of India, to which the present war is not very likely to conduce. Italy would probably incline to the Prussian side, but she would hamper, rather than assist, whatever Power she allied herself to, for, the moment she ceases to be neutral, she becomes inevitably French. Denmark is the Power most to be apprehended, and easiest to be excused, for taking part in a strife which may restore part of the dominions of which she was deprived by the last partition of the Germans. Could this be restored to Denmark without embroiling other nations the war of 1870 would not be without its good. Had the spoliation of Denmark been resisted, as it should have been, by England, the present war would not have taken place. The English Ministry at that time was composed almost of the same statesmen as the Ministry of to-day. Their incertitude at that period was the certain precursor of the presumption of the present war—a war which would never have been declared if England had retained the dignity in the councils of Europe which she enjoyed while represented by Pitt and Canning. It is not, however, by contrasting the statesmen of the present with those of a by-gone day that we can arrive at the solution of the question which is on everyone's lips,—"Will England be able to keep out of the war?" We believe that she will, without forfeiting one jot of dignity; and our reason for so believing is that, although our present statesmen may not be in every way equal to the "pilots who weathered the storm" for us in former days, they have at least the advantage of not being disunited. Party spirit is laid aside in the present crisis, and the result will be that what neither Mr. Gladstone nor Mr. Disraeli, Lord Granville nor Lord Derby, could achieve singly, will most likely be secured by the unanimous voice of the country.

THE P. AND O. COMPANY.

On the vote for postal services, in the House of Commons, attention was called by Mr. Crawford, M.P. for London, as to the intentions of Government regarding the Brindisi route. The Marquis of Hartington stated, in reply, that the P. and O. Company had been informed that the company would in a given time be required to run their steamers to Brindisi. He also proceeded to say that considerable difference existed between the company and Government as to the amount to be paid to the company under the contract. The difference arose from the manner of keeping accounts. It will be remembered that the terms of contract involved the payment of £400 up to £500,000 per annum, according to the receipts of the company from other sources. Should the earnings be equal to a dividend of 6 per cent. on the capital, the minimum sum would be paid by Government, and a rise in proportion on a sliding scale. This plan we stated at the time was most unsatisfactory. It virtually made the Government partners with the company, and in reality opened the door to all kinds of complications unbefitting Government. It seemed a clever scheme on the part of Mr. Scudamore, but we are surprised that such a measure should have been permitted by such a practical man as Mr. Disraeli, under whose Government it was done.

We have no further information regarding the Tientsin massacre, and the postal advices detailing the event cannot reach us until this day fortnight. We may have telegrams in the interval, however, announcing the arrival of the troops from Hong Kong, and the effect this step produced. We shall be curious to know in what light the Chinese Government view this action on the part of the British, as the insult was entirely confined to the French. We anticipate that it will prove a most salutary measure, and valuable in checking outrages in future. We call attention to a correspondent's letter on this subject, which suggests that the least atonement the French should demand is the execution of the ringleaders, the rebuilding of the cathedral, and a money compensation to the relatives of the unfortunate people killed. Also the publication in the Peking Gazette of an edict requiring all local authorities to cause the removal of any inflammatory placards.

The Commercial Company of Japan are creating a small revolution in the mercantile world at Yokohama. They interfere somewhat with the operations of foreigners, and consequently are not looked upon with very great favour. Still we should not complain of a combination of this sort, as it is likely ultimately to produce a large increase in the use and demand for English manufactures. If this Commercial Company establish a code of honour amongst the Japanese in their trading relations with foreigners it will effect much good. Some well-disposed foreigner should make this suggestion to them. To be able to rely on their purchases and sales, both in quality and time, will be a great stride with our Japanese friends.

Sir Charles Dilke has favoured us with another example of his vigilance in the affairs of the Far East. He has discovered that a great injustice is done by referring Consular cases at Bangkok to the Court at Singapore, and suggests that the Judge at Singapore should make periodical visits to Bangkok to hear such cases. The ignorance displayed in the suggestion is simply ludicrous, and Sir Charles is damaging his reputation even more than he did by his book "Greater Britain." Mr. Monsell, the Under-Secretary for the Colonies, very neatly exposed the absurdity of the proposition.

A detachment of Royal Marine Light Infantry are under orders for Japan. We believe they are simply reliefs, and not as an augmentation of our forces in Japan. The economical members of Parliament who complained of our keeping troops at Yokohama appear to be now satisfied that the barracks at that settlement have proved of immense service to the troops in a sanitary point of view.

THE CHINA CONVENTION.

In addition to the letter to the merchants given in our last, there is also a despatch from Earl Granville to Sir Rutherford Alcock, which contains a balm for the Minister's feelings, and a very proper tribute to his zeal and effort in the tedious negotiations with the Chinese :—

Earl Granville to Sir R. Alcock.

Foreign-office, July 25, 1870.

Sir,—The various communications which, since your return to England, you have had with this office and the Board of Trade will have prepared you for the announcement that I have now to make to you, that Her Majesty's Government have determined to advise Her Majesty not to ratify the Convention which you concluded with the Chinese Plenipotentiaries on the 23rd of October last.

I wish you, however, clearly to understand that, although such is the decision of Her Majesty's Government, nothing can be further from their intention than to impute to you any blame for the part you took in the conclusion of the Convention. On the contrary, Her Majesty's Government most highly appreciate and approve your zealous and indefatigable exertions throughout the whole of the long and difficult negotiations which preceded the signature of the Convention ; and Her Majesty's Government much regret that the view taken by the mercantile associations in this country and in China of the probable benefit of that Convention, if ratified, to the commercial relations between the two countries, has not coincided with the view which Her Majesty's Government had hoped would be taken of it.—I am, &c., (Signed) Granville.

Notice of the distribution of prize-money for the crew of the Janus has been issued by the Admiralty.

Captain Stanhope, R.N., who has recently arrived in England from China, has commenced his duties as private secretary to the First Lord of the Admiralty.

It is rumoured that Captain Sherard Osborn will shortly be called upon to take active service. In another column we print a letter from Captain Osborn on our iron-clad navy.

Monetary and Commercial.

The Board of Trade Returns for the month ending June 30 have been issued, from which we gather that the total declared value of exports for the month was £17,307,924, against £16,740,645 in 1869, and £13,933,054 in 1868. The usual summary for the Far East will appear in our next.

The principal changes in the exports are an increase in fire-arms and also in gunpowder. Of beer and ale there has been an increase, and in coals and culm there has also been an increase. There has been an increase in cotton manufactures, the figures of the latter being 275,784,236 yards, against 250,178,712 yards in 1869. Linen yarns have increased, and linen manufactures show an increase from 16,161,520 to 18,261,481 yards. The exportation of machinery has increased, and iron and steel have also improved. Silk manufactures have increased in value from £91,153 to £104,469, and British spirits have decreased from 120,125 gallons to 97,579 gallons. Of tea there was imported during the month of the present year 4,576,457 lbs. ; in 1869 the importation was 5,446,790 lbs. There has been an increase in tobacco, and also in wine.

The tenders for £400,000 in Bills on India were received at the Bank of England, when the amounts allotted were—to Calcutta only £3,500, and to Bombay only £2,500, these being all that were applied for at the minimum price, although it was fixed at 1s. 10⅛d., a reduction of 1 per cent. The state of the money-market seems, therefore, for the moment to have caused almost a suspension of remittances to the East.

Bar silver has been sold at 60⅝d. per ounce, and a quantity of Mexican dollars at 59d. These terms show a reduction of 1¼ per cent. from the high rates obtained ten days since, and indicate that there is no longer a demand for exportation to Germany.

The following vessels passed through the Suez Canal from the 25th July to the 2nd August :—Homeward bound—the Messageries Imperiales steamer Donnai, and the Egyptian steamers Zagazig and Migidi (?) ; outward bound—the P. and O. Company's steamer Salsette, and the British steamers Crosby, Historian, Petersburg and Cordova.

The Erl King arrived in dock on the morning of the 4th with the first of the New Teas from Hankow, and consequently obtains the extra freight of 10s. per ton. The Erl King left Hankow on the 4th, and Woosung on 8th June, and performed the passage in fifty-six days from Woosung via Suez Canal.

The suspension of Messrs. Brown, Seton, and Co., East India merchants and silk piece goods brokers, is announced. Their liabilities will reach a quarter of a million, while the assets are believed to be anything but favourable. Mr. Brown has left London. It is asserted that large losses have been made on the Stock Exchange.

Mr. Edward Cannington Britton, formerly connected with Messrs. C. Shand and Co., of Colombo, has been admitted a partner in the firm of Clark, Spence and Co., Galle.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson's Circular is as follows:—Since the settled alteration of conditions of sale a moderate business has been transacted, but without any alteration in prices. The Erl King is in dock. Sales of half-chests and boxes have been made at prices ranging from 2s. to 2s. 6d. per lb. Foochow Congous: Siftings and Dust continue unchanged, broken leaf has been sold at 8d. to 9d., and inferior common at 9d. to 10d. per lb.; an inquiry has existed for common to good common at 10½d. to 11½d., and for fair at 1s. per lb., but only a limited business has been transacted. Black-leaf Congous: Common may still be quoted at 10½d. to 11d., and good common to fair at 11½d. to 1s. 0½d. per lb., which prices do not show any improvement. Tayshan Congous are unaltered. Souchongs and Oolongs: The few parcels remaining on the market are quite neglected. Scented Teas and Green Teas are very heavy of sale.

Messrs. Shepard, Harrison, and Rehden's Circular says:—

Business has been done at satisfactory prices, especially for Teas of second-class quality, say flavoury Oopacks, and tarry Pekoe flavoured Oonams at 1s. 10d. to 2s. 1d. per lb., Ningchows, Oolong Pekoe, and Pekoe-Souchong flavour, at 2s. 2d. to 2s. 6d., and a parcel of 1,200 boxes at 2s. 6d. per lb. The quality generally bears out the favourable opinions expressed in China, especially the Ningchows, and, looking at their superiority, have sold at reasonable prices. So far, dealers have been the chief, if not sole operators, shippers' attention being directed to finest parcels. Of the Erl King's cargo, freight for 3,000 packages has already been engaged for the Continent, and we understand two-thirds of the Diomed's is destined for the same quarter.

SILK.

There is no improvement in the market. Some parcels of the new crop have arrived and have been placed upon the market; but although these were offered at a figure which shows a loss of 4s. to 5s. upon the invoice cost, no business has resulted.

The following is from Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw and Co.'s Circular:—There is an almost universal suspension of business in the Silk market since the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war, the suddenness of the calamity having paralysed the trade; and for the time it can only be be said that from a sound and prosperous market, with a good future before it, Silk has become extremely depressed, and must now wait upon the events of this lamentable war. No pressed sales of any kind are taking place, but a few small parcels of China Silk daily change hands for consumers' wants, at about 2s. to 3s. decline from the highest moment. The general feeling among holders up to the present time is to look forward rather than to force off Silk, seeing that the stocks and known supplies from the East for the season are both very moderate, and even would be under more favourable circumstances inconveniently small for the lately increasing wants of the trade. The first arrivals of the new China Silk are at this moment taking place, but as a matter of course are attracting no attention, nor does there seem any probability of business resulting at present, particularly considering the extreme cost of the Silk. The deliveries from the London warehouses in July, although contrasting unfavourably with the former month, were, however, quite as good, if not better, than could have been expected under the serious events which are occurring.

According to a Circular of Messrs. Arles, Dufour, and Co., of Lyons, the outbreak of war, "as lamentable as unexpected," has nearly stopped all transactions in the Silk market at that city. Large orders of goods for Germany and Paris were withdrawn, but, on the other hand, in consequence of the suspension of work in the Silk manufactories of Rhenish Prussia and of many districts of Switzerland, some important purchases have been made for English and Russian consumption at reductions not exceeding 10 to 15 per cent.

COFFEE.

Small quantities of Plantation Ceylon offered by auction were taken off slowly at about the previous value, chiefly by the home trade. 49 casks 3 tierces 24 bags sold, small, 54s. to 54s. 6d.; middling, 59s. to 60s. 6d.; good middling, 63s. 6d. to 66s.; pea-berry, 75s. to 76s.

The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation 314,255 cwt., against 280,342 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1869; Native, 24,927 cwt., against 39,857 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is 22,952 cwt. Plantation, against 11,346 cwt., and 9,031 cwt. Native, against 22,155 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the thirty weeks ended July 30, 1870, was, of Ceylon, 20,870 tons, against 22,729 tons during the corresponding period of 1869; of all descriptions, 33,469 tons, against 39,402 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 6,167 tons, against 6,467 tons; of all descriptions, 10,751 tons, against 10,759 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 16,511 tons, against 14,103 tons; of all descriptions, 25,795 tons, against 24,685 tons. The stock on July 30 was, of Ceylon, 12,056 tons, against 13,154 tons; of all descriptions, 21,142 tons, against 23,178 tons.

SUGAR.

The market has again shown great inactivity and easier rates have been accepted, the decline being the most perceptible in the common and medium descriptions. The only sale of East India, 22,000 bags low Manila at 19s. (duty 4s.). The landings for the week are 800 tons larger than last year, and the deliveries are about on a par, so that the surplus in the stock is increased to 20,000 tons. Stock, July 30, 1870, 103,709 tons against 83,715 tons in 1869.

The quantity of Sugar landed in the thirty weeks ended July 30, 1870, was—of Penang, 2,277 tons, against 2,078 tons in the corresponding period of 1869; of Manila, Java, and China, 13,870 tons, against 20,481 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 1,447 tons, against 1,493 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 14,809 tons, against 9,355 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, 95 tons, against 64 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 1,824 tons, against 635 tons. The stock on July 30 was, of Penang, 3,065 tons, against 850 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 83,027 tons, against 89,375 tons.

Camphor.—100 cases China sold with fair competition, good fair to good reweighed at 76s. to 78s. 6d.

Coir Goods.—The last public sales went off with little spirit and prices were generally lower, the greater decline being for common qualities. 65 bales Ceylon Yarn chiefly sold—good medium to good, £25 15s. to £30 5s.; and 31 tons ditto, very common to good common, £16 to £20; good medium, £26 10s.; fine to very fine, £32 15s. to £41.

Cocoa Nut Oil.—There is still a great lack of activity, and the quotation for Ceylon has declined to £37. The quantity afloat is estimated at 20,120 cwt., against 13,847 cwt. at the same time last year, and 13,623 cwt. in 1868.

Gums.—Benjamin: 8 cases ordinary second Siam bought in at £9 to £10. Of 28 cases Sumatra 5 cases fair seconds sold at £7 15s. to to £8, and 8 cases wrecked, ex Benvenue, at 43s.; pieces and sweepings 5s. Copal: 6 packages Australian withdrawn; 10 packages white Angola bought in at 45s.; blocky 27s. 6d. Damar: 100 cases good Batavian, chiefly rather small, bought in at 68s., and 11 barrels Ceylon, fair clean, partly bold, at 40s., ordinary coated 20s.; 3 cases Singapore, small to bold, pale mixed with some dark, sold at 57s.

Gambier.—226 bales pressed Cubes bought in at 17s. to 17s. 6d., 43 bales block sold at 15s. 6d. to 15s. 9d.

Hides.—The market for East India Hides continues depressed, and a further decline in prices has taken place. Present average rates show, as compared with those current at the end of June, a decline of ½d. per lb. on all fair and good descriptions, whilst ordinary and inferior, which had previously shown the greatest reduction, must be quoted ¼d. per lb. lower. The next sales are fixed for the 11th August, when, if no further arrivals come to hand, the quantity to be offered will be unusually small, viz., under 300,000 skins. The prospects, however, are very unfavourable, as, in consequence of the war on the Continent, exporters, who are by far the largest buyers, will be out of the market.

India-rubber.—An offer of 585 bags Assam was bought in at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 4d., and 38 cases Borneo at 1s. 8½ per lb.

Musk.—11 caddies Tonquin sold, good shaped pods with some rather bally, at 29s. 6d., rough and bally mixed with flat pods at 17s. 6d.; of 3 tins grain 1 tin fair sold at 50s. 6d.

Pepper.—Black continues dull; the only sale has been 1,241 bags Batavian at 4⅝d to 4¾d., 960 bags Singapore being offered and bought in at 5d. to 5⅛d. Of White there have been no sales; an offer of 200 bags Singapore was bought in at 6⅛d. to 6¼d.

Rice.—The tone of the market is still one of extreme dulness; the only sale to report is of 4,000 bags old Rangoon at 9s. per cwt.

Rhubarb.—Of 63 chests China 22 cases fair flat rather mixed sold at 2s. 8d. to 2s. 10d., being again 1d. to 2d. lower.

Spices.—Cassia Vera: 224 bales good Padang were bought in at 70s. Cinnamon: 16 bales Ceylon were offered and withdrawn. Chips: 138 bags Ceylon were bought in at 5d. Nutmegs: Of 16 cases Penang offered 6 cases low sold at 11d., the remainder 110's being bought in at 2s., and 5 casks Java 108's at 1s. 11d.

Tin.—A slight improvement has taken place in Straits, which is firm at £119 10s. to £120. Banca is quoted at £120 to £121, and Billiton £119 10s. to £120 per ton.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

TEA.

The following is from Messrs. Beebe's Circular, dated 15th July:—Since the 1st inst. our market has ruled almost without demand, and the sales from first hands are scarcely worth reporting. No change in prices can be quoted, as buyers and sellers have by common consent omitted business, until the question of future duty was definitely settled. This has now been done, the rate having been fixed by Congress at 15c. per lb., to take effect December 31st, and we trust a resumption of business will soon follow. In the interim holders, as a general thing, while disposed to meet the market at about old prices, are firm in refusing to make further concessions. This is especially true of fine to finest Greens, and as these are known to be in moderate supply, there is some probability of a favourable reaction for them when the demand for Tea generally becomes more active. Sales of the fortnight are limited to 1,300 half-chests Green, 950 half-chests Oolong, and 350 half-chests Japan. The latter is a small invoice of new crop (just to hand via San Francisco) of choice grade, and are reported to have brought 90c. gold, duty paid. There have been no further additions to our supplies other than those via Pacific mail steamer.

The following are the current quotations:—Greens (Moyune, Twanki and Fychow): Gunpowder, common to good, 60c. to 100c.; fine to finest, 70c. to 120c.; Imperial, common to good, 50c. to 90c.; fine to finest, 55c. to 105c.; Young Hyson, common to good, 40c. to 85c.; fine to finest, 43c. to 110c.; Hyson, common to good, 47c. to 80c.; fine to finest, 53c. to 95c.; Hyson Skin, 35c. to 47c.; Foochow Oolongs, common and good, 47c. to 53c.; superior and fine, 55c. to 67c.; finest, 72c. to 90c.; Amoy Oolongs, common and good, 45c. to 52c.; superior and fine, 54c. to 63c.; finest, 67c. to 75c.; Souchong and Congou, common and good, 40c. to 50c.; superior and fine, 54c. to 63c.; finest, 65c. to 85c.; Japans, common, 55c. to 58c.; medium, 62c. to 65c.; fine and finest, 73c. to 80c.; choice, 85c. to 90c.

The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan at the port of New York from Jan. 1 to July 13, 1870, were as follows:—Greens, 16,145,101 lbs.; Japans, 6,658,269 lbs.; Souchongs, 2,408,937 lbs.; Oolongs, 8,203,853 lbs.; other sorts. 154,464 lbs.; total, 33,570,624 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1 was 9,866,167 lbs.; which, added to the above total, gives a result of 43,436,791 lbs. Subtracting from this total the exports from Jan. 1 to July 13, 2,992,339 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption during that period, 22,153,974 lbs., there remains a total of 18,290,478 lbs., representing the stock on the last-named date. The receipts from June 29 to July 13 amounted to 169,428 lbs.; the withdrawals for home consumption to 1,533,065 lbs.; and the exports to 120,440 lbs.

SILK.

The following is from Messrs. O'Donoghue and Howell's report, dated July 20th:—We have but little activity to report in the market since the issue of our last, the excited condition of affairs in Europe during the past two weeks has had a very material influence upon the trade here, and no transactions of importance have been made; the mills are not running very briskly, and manufacturers for the most part seem to think that a small addition to their present stock will suffice them for the remainder of the summer season. Re-reeled Haineens and Tsatlees, stock of which has been strengthened by recent arrivals from China and London, are not at present in demand. Usual reel Tsatlees and Taysaams are selling slowly. Re-reeled Cantons, extra fine, are in fair demand, and bring good prices; the lower grades of the silk are also selling steadily. A large business in the fall is anticipated, especially in the weaving trade. It is impossible, in the present excited condition of our market, caused by the uncertain state of affairs in Europe, to give any really reliable quotations. Gold has advanced within a few days as much as 10 per cent., and is continually fluctuating; the prices which we annex are such as ruled with gold at 112.

The following are the current quotations:—Tsatlee, No. 2, $10.25 to 10.50; No. 3, $10.1-8; Nos. 4 and 5, $9 to 9.25; Taysaam, Nos. 2 and 3, $8.25 to 8.3-8; Nos. 4 and 5, $7.3-8 to 7.50; Canton Re-reeled, good, $7 to 7.25; fair, $6 5-8 to 6.75; medium, $6.3-8 to 6.50; Tsatlee Re-reeled, good, $10.50; fair and medium, $9.75 to 10; Haineen Re-reeled, fair, $9.75 to 10; Canton Re-reeled, extra fine, $8.50. Japans: Maibash, nominal; Koshio, good and fair medium, $8.50; Atchezan, good, $8.7-8 to 9; fair, $8.5-8; Tamba, $8.50; Sodai, good and fair to medium, $10.

Imports for the past month, 251 packages—value $196,550; corresponding month last year, 738 packages—$270,455. Total imports since the 1st of January to 30th June, 2,591 packages—$1,234,651; corresponding period last year, 3,248 packages—$1,575,720.

COFFEE.—The market for Brazil is quiet, the demand is exclusively for prime and good qualities, prices for which are steadily maintained, while for commoner sorts, for which there is no enquiry, quotations are nominal. For East India kinds no demand is exhibited; prices are nominally maintained at the former range, viz.:—Java, 20c. to 22c.; Singapore, 18c. to 19c.; Manila, 16c. to 17c.; Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19c. gold. The sales have been 715 bags superior Java per Regina Maris at 22½c. gold, 4,400 mats Singapore per Nabob, and 1,760 bags Singapore, vessel not named, the two last parcels being on private terms. The stock of Manila on the 1st July was estimated at 1,700 bags, against 6,769 bags on July 1, 1869; of Java (Government), at 850 bags, against 1,995 bags; of Java mats, 49,362, against 66,691 bags; of Ceylon, 250 bags, against 1,884 bags; of Singapore 5,171 bags, against nil.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 18c. gold (in bond).

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2 to $2.5; Cassia, $1 to $1.25 gold.

FIRE CRACKERS.—There is no demand, and prices are nominal.

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 3¾c. gold (duty paid).

GUNNY CLOTH.—The market is quiet at 20½c. to 21c. for Borneo.

HEMP.—The transactions in Manila have been small, and show a decline in prices; the sales reported are 500 bales at 13c. gold, and 1,400 bales upon private terms. The stock of Manila on the 1st July was estimated at 17,935 bales, against 5,744 bales at the corresponding date of 1869, and 25,157 bales in 1868. The imports into the United States from the 1st January to the 30th June, 1870, were 85,121 bales, against 61,235 bales during the corresponding period of last year, and the quantity afloat on the 30th June was 25,409 bales, against 38,700 bales at the same date last year.

INDIGO.—There is a steady though not an extensive business doing in Manila, and we note sales amounting to about 35 cases at $1.15 to $1.35 currency.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $8 to $11 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is $1 to $2.50 currency) duty paid.

RICE.—Owing to unfavourable advices respecting the Indian crop there is an active demand for Rangoon, the price of which shows an advance of about 25c. to 35c. upon our last quoted rates, and preserves an improving tendency. The sales have been 5,200 bags at $6.87½ to $7.50 currency, duty paid, and 7,000 bags at $3.25 to $3.50 gold, duty paid.

SUGAR.—The sales is reported of 55,000 bags Manila at 8½c.

SPICES.—In invoices there has been no business, but there is a steady good demand from the trade, and the market remains firm at previously quoted rates. The final passage of the new tariff, largely reducing the duties, has as yet no influence upon the market, as it will be nearly six months before the new Act goes into effect. Sales have been made, in lots, of 200 cases of Nutmegs, at $1.07½ to 1.10; 20 ditto Mace, $1.22½ to 1.30; 200 ditto, 200 to 300 bales and 4,000 mats Cassia, 47c. to 47½c.; 150 bales Wild Cinnamon, 45½c. to 46c.; 800 bags Pepper, 26½c. for Sumatra, and 27c. for Singapore; and 200 to 300 bales Cloves, 25⅞c.; Batavia Cassia is held at 46c. gold, from first hands.

TIN.—Advices of the decline of Straits to £127 on the London market have had no effect, the stock being all in the hands of one firm, and held firmly for 38c. gold. No business is reported.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

A large inquiry has taken place for steamers of most classes, but more particularly for those adapted for the coal trade. Several sales have been concluded at good prices. The number of steamers in builders' hands unsold being few, both builders and owners are indisposed to sell, except at higher prices than hitherto obtainable. A fair amount of inquiry has taken place for steamers on time charter, and much higher rates are offering for vessels of medium tonnage.

We have no change to note, steamers continue to load freely for the Eastern ports at former rates.

Current rates of freight for vessels on the berth:—To Yokohama: 32s. 6d. weight, 35s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 120s. weight; 110s. meast. To Shanghai: 40s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 90s. weight, 80s. meast. To Hong Kong: 35s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Batavia: 25s. weight, 30s. meast. To Penang: per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Singapore: 30s. weight, 25s. to 30s. meast.; per steamer via Suez Canal, 70s. weight, 60s. meast. To Ceylon: 20s. to 25s. weight, 20s. meast; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 60s. meast At New York to China; $12 to $15 per ton of 40 cubic feet.

The current quotations for coal, &c., are as follows:—From Wear or Tyne per keel.—For Hiogo: £35. For Hong Kong: £29. For Singapore: £25. For Galle: £27. From Newport, Cardiff, or Swansea per ton.—For Hiogo: £1 14s. For Shanghai: £1 16s. For Hong Kong: £1 10s. For Singapore: £1 4s. For Galle: £1 6s.

CASUALTIES.

The names of the crew drowned in the ship Fusi Yama, from London for Hong Kong, which foundered in the Channel on Tuesday morning last, after being in collision with the American ship Liverpool, from New York for London, were—James M'Donald, William Franks, able seamen; Samuel Ariell and James Fraser, boys. The master,

Digitized by Google

Mr. Borup, who was also lost, was on deck in charge at the time of the collision. The Liverpool, it seems, was seen ten minutes before the accident. The chief mate of the Fusi Yama was below at the time, and, hearing the crash, ran up on deck, and saw the master, who called out to him to jump overboard and save himself, for the ship was going down, and directly afterwards the vessel disappeared. All that were saved jumped overboard and were picked up by the crew of the Liverpool. For some time it was apprehended she would also founder; fortunately she was fitted with four good pumps, which were the means of keeping her afloat.

The Breiz Izel, Jego, from Cardiff to Gallo, was found to be leaking in the fore compartment, July 22. After being brought to anchor off Lavernock Point she was towed on to the East Cardiff Flats, and it was then discovered that one of her plates had been penetrated owing to the anchor hanging through the hawse pipe.

MISCELLANEOUS.

At Gibraltar.—July 29, Ercillia (steamer), from London, and proceeded for Singapore, China, &c. (via Suez Canal).

At Port Said.—Agamemnon (screw-steamer), from China, and left July 27, for London; July 19. Erl King (screw-steamer), Steel, from Hong Kong; 20, Diomed (screw-steamer), Crampton, from Hong Kong, and both left for London; Paris Port de Mer, Frane, from Yokohama.

At St. Helena.—June 25, Zeenimph, Roggen, from Batavia, sailed for Amsterdam; Henry Grenfell, Penrose, from Singapore, sailed for Liverpool, both after repairing.

Off St. Helena.—June 20, Tewkesbury, from Manila, for New York.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Let the Sick Take Heed.—The stomach is the commissariat of the physical system. It furnishes the material sustenance of every organ. If disordered, the whole body languishes; but however severely affected, its tone and vigour may always be restored by a course of these irresistible Pills. Biliousness, indigestion, liver complaints, and other disorders of the stomach can easily be cured by the use of Holloway's Pills. Thousands attest this assertion, and no sufferer who has ever tried them will deny their supreme efficacy. In every case of stomach disease, from the mildest case of dyspepsia to the horrifying cancer, from the nausea of the free liver to the vomiting accompanying ulcerated stomach, these Pills immediately relieve and generally cure.

LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT OF MEAT.—Amsterdam Exhibition, 1869. First Prize, being above the Gold Medal. Supplied to the British, French, Prussian, Russian, Italian, Dutch, and other Governments. Dr. Lancaster writes regarding Extract of Meat:—"But there is a difference in flavour, and here, as in all other kinds of food, it is the flavour that makes the quality." It is essentially on account of the fine meaty flavour, as distinguished from the burnt taste of other Extracts, that LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT defeated all Australian and other sorts at Paris, Havre, and Amsterdam, and is so universally preferred in all European markets.

One pint of fine-flavoured Beef-tea at 2½d. Most convenient and economic "stock."

CAUTION.—Require Baron Liebig's, the inventor's, signature on every jar, and ask distinctly for LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT.

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vessels of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds. All superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

There are TWO DRY DOCKS, each capable of admitting two vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with depth of water ranging to 20 feet

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMONS, and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon-street, London, E.C.

SILK CULTURE IN JAPAN.

Another Parliamentary paper respecting silk culture in Japan has just been issued. Sir Harry S. Parkes, having recently made an excursion across the plain of Yedo as far as the range of highlands which encloses it on the northern side, has taken the opportunity of observing the prospect of the coming season both as to silk and grain, as the districts visited furnish the principal supply of food for the population of Yedo, and also the bulk of the silk exported from Yokohama. As a consequence of the opening of Japan to foreign trade, the profits of silk culture have become gradually greater, and much impulse has been given to this branch of industry. All persons engaged in the cultivation of silk are endeavouring daily to attain increased excellence. They test the goodness of mulberry-trees grown on different soils, they calculate the effects of warm or cold situations, and improved plans of cultivation will doubtless be the result. It is asserted that of the two branches of seri-culture, the profits of reeling silk are not equal to those of the manufacture of cards of eggs. But both classes of producers confer a benefit on the country at large, and by working together harmoniously may raise their art to the highest perfection. The first part of the process of producing silkworms' eggs is to choose eggs of the best quality. The eggs are transformed into caterpillars, from which time, until they are finally removed, they must be fed through their four stages of torpor and activity with mulberry leaves of proper quality. All these operations may have been performed with the greatest care, and yet, after the silkworm has at last become a cocoon, in some seasons a dark spot appears in the chrysalis contained in the cocoon, and an uji is produced from it, by which the number of eggs is greatly diminished. Numerous diseases are caused by unsuitable temperature, or a want of care in selecting a wholesome kind of mulberry leaf. If silkworms are fed with leaves from trees growing in situations to which the wind has not free access, or which have not been properly manured, or whose vigour has decayed from age, although the caterpillar does not appear to suffer, the poison declares itself when the cocoon stage is reached, and an ulcer is formed on the chrysalis, which becomes an uji. A strange disease called "koshari" has been very prevalent of late years. It attacks the full-grown silkworm, which is suddenly paralysed, and the entire crop dies. The strangeness of this disease has caused it to be considered contagious, but its origin has not yet been definitively ascertained. The silkworm is affected by a variety of diseases. Two or three days after it emerges from the egg, it is liable to a disease, when it is said "kane ni naru," i.e. to become metal. It becomes black, and dies while in the caterpillar state. Sometimes the first or second periods of torpor are missed, in which case the body of the silkworm contracts, and it eventually dies. This is called "yasumadryu." Another disease is called "augara kaiko;" the head of the silkworm swells, becomes of a light red colour, and it dies. The "chijimo kaiko" is a disease when attacked by which the silkworm gradually wastes away and dies. Hot weather or a strong south-east wind after the silkworm's fourth period of torpor produces a disease called "fushi kaiko," in which the joints of its body become prominent; it afterwards turns a dark colour, and its body mortifies. These are the principal forms of diseases, for which the Government is anxious to stimulate the growers to find out the causes and remedies. Heretofore silk culture has been considered chiefly as an employment suitable for women, and to be an art which impressed itself on the mind by means of manual practice; but now that it has taken such a development it ought to become the main occupation of whole families. In a late notification the Government invite persons who have been engaged in it to communicate the results of their observations, so as to form a body of information, which it is intended to publish. The machine for reeling silk at present in use is also described as very imperfect; and it is intended to import foreign machines of superior construction, the principles and use of which will be explained and taught by Government.

Captain W. Shaw, 73rd Regiment, who was recently appointed Brigade-Major at Hong Kong, has been selected to succeed Captain and Brevet-Major Tonnochy, 81st Regiment, at the Straits Settlements. Captain A. L. Walker, 99th Regiment, who passed from the Staff College in December, 1868, has been given the post of Brigade-Major at Hong Kong, vacant by the transfer of Captain Shaw.

THE DUTCH EAST INDIA RAILWAY COMPANY.

It is seven years since this Company undertook to construct the first railway in the island of Java. The difficulties which had to be overcome were very numerous, and they were not only of a material, but also of a political kind. As soon as the concession for the construction of the line through the Samarang Principalities was granted, the Conservative party in Holland did all they could to oppose the enterprise, which they feared would overthrow the system upon which Java was governed. And in this they were right. The construction of this line has completely disproved the assertion that forced labour was the only labour which could be profitably employed in Java. The Company began with free labourers, who were well paid; and there was never any want of hands. As soon as the natives learned that they would obtain recompense for their work, they offered themselves, and the Company has not had any reason to complain of their want of industry and fitness. At some periods there have been more than 10,000 natives employed, and this public work will be completed entirely by native labour, without it being necessary to force a single individual to work. When once the railway net is completed it will exercise the greatest influence in promoting the civilisation and welfare of the natives, who, for too long a time, have been "squeezed" for the benefit of the Dutch treasury. Since it was finally resolved that Java should have its railways, the Dutch Conservatives have been constant in their opposition; and the many difficulties in which the company have been from time to time involved have afforded them many opportunities of interposing obstacles in the course of the undertaking. In the year 1868 it was found that the original capital raised for the construction of the line in the Samarang Principalities, which amounted to 14,000,000 florins, was too small; and the Company was compelled to memorialise the States-General to augment the warrant and to guarantee the payment of the interest upon a capital of 17,000,000 florins. The Government declined to accede to this request unless the Company could prove that the line would be completed with the augmented capital; and a second stipulation was made that the Company should increase the capital by a sum of 4,000,000 florins, to be employed in the construction of the Batavia-Buitenzorg section of the railway. The Company fulfilled these conditions, and the Bill to increase the original concession was carried. The money was sought on the Amsterdam and London markets, a loan being raised at 9½ per cent., furnishing a net amount of 8,247,000 florins. The calculations made in 1869, however, are now proved to have been underestimated, and the capital of the Company is exhausted without the line being completed. This was welcome news for some of the Dutch politicians, and a great outcry was raised when intelligence was received in Holland that the Governor of Java had advanced 175,000 florins in order that the works might be continued. In the meanwhile, the directors of the Company were authorised, at a meeting of shareholders, to issue a loan of two millions without the aid of the Government. The opposition party in the States-General—it is curious to remark—hold the Government answerable for the fact that the Company's cash is exhausted without the contract being fulfilled. They assert that it was the duty of the State to prevent this result, but they forget that, when the engineers of the Company stated that the line would cost so much, the Government was not supposed to know that their estimate was too small. The history of the construction of railways in Europe shows that they have invariably cost more than the sum originally fixed. The opponents of the scheme express their opinion that the Dutch Government can make a good profit by seizing the railway now that the company is somewhat en déconfiture; but it is tolerably certain that the Government will not act in so questionable a spirit. The original shareholders have done all they can to meet their obligations, and they have even resolved to sacrifice their interest of two per cent. It certainly would not be right on the part of the Government to take advantage of the strict terms of the contracts, notwithstanding that such a course is advised in certain quarters. The Company is greatly hampered by the course of events on the Continent, and it is useless now to bring forward an unguaranteed loan of two millions. It is to be hoped that the Java Government will give further monetary aid, so that the works may be completed.

SIAM.

BANGKOK.

The death of the Foreign Minister of State is thus recorded in the Advertiser:—The Siamese flags at half-mast on the afternoon of June 12th announced that his lordship Chow Phya Tipakarawongs, the Pusamret Rajakan Tängprä-t'ate, and ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs, is no more. This great Siamese statesman was a son of the late Somdetch Ong Yai, and a younger brother of his Highness the P'usamret Rajakan Pendin, the Executive Minister of State, and popularly styled "His Grace the Regent." His lordship was a highly esteemed relative of the Royal family. His father and ancestors formed a line of most distinguished statesmen, who have been the king makers of Siam. The present King, after ascending the throne, appointed the elder brother P'usamret Rajakan P'endin, and the younger brother P'usamret Rajakan Tang prat'ate, the one the Great Executive Minister of the Home and the other of the Foreign Department, the President and Vice President of the great Council of State, known here as the Senabawdee. His late lordship was long in office as Minister of Foreign affairs, and was very favourably known to the Consuls of the Western Treaty Powers, and the bulk of the European and American residents of Siam, as the great medium through whom foreigners transacted their business which was in any way connected with the Siamese Government, and his lordship's name appears in most of the Treaties as one of the Commissioners on the part of the Siamese Government. His promptness, ability, and apparent sincerity secured for him the affection and respect of all classes, both natives and foreigners. During his illness both the First and Second Kings visited the dying statesman.

We noticed some time since the undertaking of the Siamese to erect a light house on the bar off the mouth of the river. The iron work and all the apparatus for the light and construction of the tower arrived some months ago. It was supposed that it would be erected and the light burning for the benefit of mariners by the end of June, but the work proceeds so slowly that there is little probability of its completion until the close of the present year. Foreigners often have their temper and patience greatly tried by the tardiness of the Siamese Government and officials. It is now ten years since the light house question was urged upon the attention of the Siamese Government and its importance and advantages brought to their notice. The fact that the tower is in course of construction is encouraging, but to see it erected and the light burning would be far more gratifying.

The following is from Messrs. Markwald and Co.'s market report, dated 24th June. Our market for Rice maintained its former position until the latter part of last month, when, owing to unfavourable news from China and Japan, the demand slackened, and since then the market continued to have a declining tendency. Supplies from the interior have not been large, and as there were still a number of vessels under charter awaiting cargoes, holders of paddy had no difficulty in keeping up prices. Although we quote to-day much lower than by last mail, our prices must still go down considerably, in order to be in proportion to the present value in China and Japan. The native mills have stopped working since the beginning of this month, and unless paddy prices go soon lower the steam mills will have likewise to stop. Our to-day's quotations are for Steam Mill Namuang or Field Rice, $1 per picul; Steam Mill, Nasuan or Garden Rice, $1; Native Cleaned Garden Rice, resifted, $1; Native Cleaned, White No. 1, Tls. 53 per coyan, do. No. 2, Tls. 48; Clean cargo No. 1 (1 to 2 per cent. Paddy), 43; do. No. 2 (4 to 5 per cent. Paddy), 40. Cargo rice according to quality, nominal. Sugar: Owing to the unfavourable prospects of Rice in China, a number of native shipowners are loading their vessels with sugar, and prices are consequently firm and a trifle higher. We quote: White Superior, Tls. 10½ per picul; do. No. 1, 10; do. No. 2, 9¾; do. No. 3, 9¼; brown No. 1, 5¾; do. No. 2, 5½. Black Pepper: At present, supplies are small, but above prices are well maintained, viz., Tls. 11¾ to 12 per picul. Sapanwood: No alteration to report.

The Chinese Recorder and Missionary Journal.—The June number of this useful little magazine possesses more than an average interest. The Rev. Mr. Eitel contributes a paper on the Nirvana of Chinese Buddhists, and the Rev. Mr. Edkins an article on the Karens. The Rev. Mr. Swanson gives an account of ten years of missionary life in Amoy, and there are several articles on the Peking Gazette—Marco Polo and Ibu Batuta in Fookien, the Overland trip from Kinkiang to Foochow, and Small Feet, &c., which will repay perusal. There is an interesting paper on the Possession of Macao by the Portuguese, by Mr. G. Minchin, of Foochow. In the Asia Portuguesa, written by Manoel de Parie e Souza, they alleged that they obtained permission to inhabit Macao, because they had cleared the island of pirates. For this Macao was said to be granted to them in perpetuity, but no authentic proof of such a grant can be produed, and Mr. Minchin expresses his opinion that the Portuguese were allowed to live in Macao on their paying a ground rent of 500 taels annually to Sin Fu, who was the mover in this matter, and on whose representations the (Ming) Emperor Lung Khing (who reigned from A.D. 1567 to 1572) granted their requests. Whether this agreement was even formally confirmed Mr. Minchin is not informed.

(FROM A COLOMBO CORRESPONDENT.)

As the day of the departure of our Governor draws near, a crusade against him has been entered upon by certain parties, who all at once profess to have discovered that Sir Hercules has "done nothing for Ceylon, but that Ceylon has done much for him." To imbue the public with this idea, they are vainly endeavouring to show that the feelings which actuate them are those of the Ceylon public. Unfortunately for them, the journal they have selected as the medium for their attacks by no means sympathises with their object, and most flatly contradicts its self-constituted correspondents. The other journals keep aloof from the controversy; and such is the rancour of parties, that, rather than be baulked in their scheme of "writing down" the departing Governor, it is said they are resolved to bring out a new paper to advocate their views. But then two difficulties meet them. They would not like openly to avow themselves the proprietors or conductors of such an organ, and they are not at one on some of the questions of public importance which have got mixed up in their late effusions.

Apart from personal feeling, the lately published correspondence is in bad taste and ill-timed, especially in view of the probability of Sir Hercules Robinson being promoted to Madras. If they really deprecated his policy, and considered his administration only worthy of censure, why were not their opinions promulgated two years ago, when, with half his term of government still to run off, they might have hoped to rid the island of the incubus they now discover that he has been, and saved the colony the cost of his mismanagement. They would then have had the press on their side, for the Governor had sent to Downing-street an obnoxious despatch, which was probably not intended to see the light; but in an unhappy moment it came before the vulgar gaze in the island newspapers during his absence in England. However it happened, this made the Governor very unpopular, and, if the opposition had shown itself then, it might have been accounted for. It is now believed that the Governor, then comparatively new to the island and the people, had been misinformed when he wrote that unlucky despatch, and that he has lived to regret it, and to think very much better of the people among whom his lot has been cast. He has laboured nobly, both at home and since his return, for the benefit of the colony, and not of one section only, but of all classes. When at home did he not set to work with a will to relieve us of that obnoxious export duty, thus saving us £60,000 a-year? And did he not prevent the attempt at further exactions on account of barracks for military not required for internal protection? Nor did he forget the native interest. He voted large sums for the restoration of tanks and embankments, and for the creation of other irrigation works. He carried out that network of roads throughout the country which it was the boast of Sir Henry Ward's Administration to initiate. I believe that before his period of vice-royalty here expires, Sir Hercules Robinson will have created a greater mileage of roads than any of his predecessors. He will also, I trust, have inaugurated that extension of the railway system which is to tap the mountains of the great coffee producing regions of Dunboola and Dickoya.

The Governor has his faults, like other men. He has his weaknesses, too. Destitute, naturally, of that bonhommie which made Sir Henry Ward so general a favourite, and being of a more retiring disposition, not fond of public speaking—although he speaks very well—he has proved a hard-working rather than a showy governor; and when he leaves the monuments of his worth will be found in the roads, railways, bridges, and irrigation-works which he has developed, as well as in the educational system which he has founded.

AN EMPIRE THAT IS NOT PEACE.

(NEW YORK HERALD.)

Many circumstances during late years have tended to increase our knowledge of China and the Chinese. We have become acquainted with much of their social life, their curious theology is more familiar, and the general condition and culture of the people are better understood than was the case not many years ago. And yet the impressions gained are often singularly erroneous. The popular idea is that the chief characteristic of the country is a perpetual calm, and that the inhabitants are, for the most part, engaged in silk and tea culture, and in the interchange of ceremonials of civility upon all occasions; and in some respects the picture may be a correct one. Nevertheless, the Empire is continually agitated by social disorders, organised expeditions of marauders, and destructive wars.

The Taeping rebellion, which closed not long ago, was one of these latter contests, and lasted twenty years. It is estimated that fifty millions of human beings were sacrificed before the Taepings were finally subdued; and the most fertile and densely populated provinces were devastated so completely that they cannot speedily recover. Where flourishing towns were, a score of years ago, the deer and the pheasant dwell undisturbed, and where the mansion of the Chinese gentleman stood amid its trim fantastic gardens, the jungle is thickly spread. Dismal as are these results of internal war, the prospect for the future is not more encouraging. A new rebellion is already in progress. It is a revolt of the Mohammedan element against the Manchoo dynasty. The Mohammedans have been for some time consolidating their power in Eastern Toorkistan, in spite of the utmost efforts of the Imperial troops. They have again advanced in force to the southward, and with great apparent confidence of success. The Government is alarmed, and a portion of the army sent to meet the rebels has been defeated. Their design is to march to Peking, and attack the Imperial city itself. In short, a conflict of great magnitude has begun—one that will require for its satisfactory suppression all the force and generalship of the Emperor's forces. Of course these events are producing great confusion in other directions than the mere war itself. The outlying tribes of Mongols are amusing themselves by pillage and slaughter, and there is no military force to restrain them. It really seems as if China was in great danger of being torn to pieces, unless, perhaps, the strong arm of Russia interpose for the protection of the present dynasty, which is not an utterly improbable contingency. At all events the nation which sent us the embassy of Mr. Burlingame, and which we generally regarded as existing in a condition of sluggish comfort, is one of the most unfortunate and distracted upon the earth.

THE LATE MR. BURLINGAME.

The subjoined letter from Mr. Low, the American minister in China, to Prince Kung, relative to the death of Mr. Burlingame, has been published in New York:—

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Highness' despatch of May 14, in which you inform me that the sum of 6,000 tls. had been appropriated from the funds of the Chinese Embassy in Russia and handed to the son of Mr. Burlingame to defray the expenses of the obsequies of his father; and further mention that an Imperial decree had been received in which his Majesty commends the acts of his late Minister, and as special marks of his regard confers upon him the title of a Minister of the highest rank, and orders that the sum of 10,000 tls. be granted to his family, &c. Mr. Burlingame lived in this city (Peking) so many years, and his ability in the conduct of all affairs that arose between China and his own country is so well known to yourself and all the members of the Foreign-office, that it seems to me to be needless here to do more than refer to it. On the day he died the American Minister at the Court of St. Petersburg telegraphed the event to the Secretary of State, who replied, the next day, by cable telegraph, as follows:—"The announcement of the death of the Hon. Anson Burlingame was yesterday received with mingled feelings of surprise and grief. Stricken down, as he had been, in the midst of his noble efforts, as the representative of the great Empire of China, to assert her position as one of the family of nations, I am sure that those feelings will be felt by all, and one sentiment of regret fill the hearts of all who appreciated his mission. I beg that you will convey to Mr. Burlingame's afflicted family, and to their Excellencies, his distinguished associates, Chikang and Sun Chia-Ku, an expression of the profound sorrow and sympathy with which that sad dispensation has inspired the Government and people of the United States. Though Mr. Burlingame had not brought his mission to its full end, he had so far completed his negotiations that its most important objects may now be readily accomplished; and it is a satisfaction to know that a citizen of this country has thus assisted in advancing the welfare of China. Since this Government entered, last year, into treaty stipulations with the mission, it has entertained a lively interest in its success, and looked forward to the acceptance by the leading maritime Powers of the same general principles of amity and equity in their dealings with Chinese; for it is the earnest wish of the United States that that great Empire should advance as other nations are doing, and rise with them to the highest prosperity and happiness. In promoting this work the name and fame of a citizen of the United States will hereafter be associated, and it will be remembered to his honour that he acted a conspicuous part in inaugurating and leading on a new era of harmony and commercial intercourse between China and the Western Powers." I have just received the foregoing despatch, and hasten to make it known to your Highness. I would only add that there was but one expression of sorrow and sympathy throughout the whole thirty-seven States of the Union when the people heard of the death of Mr. Burlingame, in whose decease they felt that not only had China lost one of her highest statesmen, but that his own country was called to mourn over one of her most meritorious men. I shall forward a copy of your Highness' despatch to the Government at Washington, in order that the mark of high regard paid to his memory by the Emperor may be generally known; and, in acknowledging it, I am, at the same time, able to communicate to you this expression of the sorrow and sympathy which that Government sincerely feels.

ANTI-CHINESE DEMONSTRATION AT SAN FRANCISCO.

A demonstration was held at San Francisco, on the 16th ultimo, against the employment of Chinese labour in that city. We abridge the following account of the proceedings from the San Francisco Bulletin:—The anti-coolie demonstration at the Pavilion was largely attended. Several organisations and clubs in various parts of the city met at their various headquarters, and paraded through the principal streets before going to the meeting. There were a number of transparencies carried in the procession, each bearing inscriptions of an anti-Chinese character. The sashmakers and Ninth Ward Anti-Chinese Club came in from the Ninth Ward. Among the transparencies of the sashmakers was one having reference to the Doe Brothers, who have employed Chinese in their business. The gasfitters and plumbers met at the City Hall, and, with several transparencies, joined the other organisations. These associations united, and with music and torch-lights marched to the Pavilion, which contained so large an audience that it was impossible for all to hear from one stand, and it was determined to hold a meeting at each end of the hall. At the west end of the building, or main stand, Mr. Clary, president of the St. Crispin organisation, acted as President. In calling the meeting to order, he stated that this was an adjourned meeting, called to hear the report of certain committees, &c. Since the last meeting the St. Crispins had organised anti-coolie associations in four wards of the city, and many trades unions had been organised on an anti-coolie basis. The work must go on, and the rights of working men must be preserved, even if the last intrenchment of their liberty proved to be their graves. The organisation must be completed, and the Supervisors and city officers who had failed to co-operate with them must be hurled into oblivion. General Winn then presented a report on behalf of a committee previously appointed. The committee had agreed upon a plan for general organisation throughout the State on an anti-coolie basis. The plan embraced a State covention of labouring men and mechanics, to be held in this city on the 2nd of August. All delegates must present credentials from the associations which they represent. The great obstacle in the way at present was the treaty with China, and its entire abrogation must be demanded by the people. The Government could not withstand such a demand, and the voice of the people would be obeyed. One effect of a thorough organisation here would be to deter the Chinese from coming, as they would think it unsafe. He had been assured that 8,000 of them sailed from China in the month of April. The speaker hoped that no political influence would be tolerated in their ranks. The name adopted for the new organisation was the "Anti-Chinese Convention." It was not anti-coolie merely. They took ground against all classes of Chinese labour, whether free or coolie. The speaker then read the constitution, which was adopted by the meeting. Mr. Winn then offered two resolutions. One of them instructed the officers of the meeting to inform the heads of the Chinese companies in this city that, in the opinion of the meeting, it was unsafe for any more Chinese to come here, and request that they inform the Emperor of China of the fact. The other resolution calls on the supervisors of the city to enforce the same sanitary regulations against the Chinese that they do against the white citizens. Both resolutions were adopted.

THE OUTRAGES AND KIDNAPPING IN CHINA.

(THE GLOBE.)

The news lately brought us both by the mail and the telegraph from China is of a very disquieting nature. From north to south, from Tientsin to Hong Kong, and from as far westward as Nanking, reports reach us of the display of universal ill-will towards foreigners—in some places culminating in riot and murder, in others venting itself in threats and menaces. In all places the exciting cause is the same, and, unfortunately, while the shape it assumes in the eyes of the ignorant and superstitious Chinaman is supremely absurd, there is yet a sufficient substratum of facts to render the charges brought somewhat difficult of disproof. There can be no doubt that the practice of kidnapping children has of late been largely on the increase in the neighbourhood of the open ports. The fate of the girls thus stolen may be easily surmised. To them for the future is reserved a life of degradation and sin; they are snatched from their homes to replenish the dens of infamy at Shanghai and San Francisco. Boys are always saleable in China as heirs to wealthy and childless couples, and, probably, most of the stolen boys are disposed of in this way. It will readily be seen how, with the increase of such places as Shanghai, and the rapidly augmenting Chinese population in California, the trade must be a very lucrative one. Large numbers of Chinamen are engaged in it, and results prove that their operations are very fairly successful. By the mass of the people the kidnappers are held in abhorrence, and if caught, rarely survive the fury of the mob a sufficient time to go through the ordeal of a trial. They are, therefore, compelled to carry on their dealings with the utmost secrecy, and to divert suspicion from themselves by all the means in their power. The general mode they have hit upon is ingenious, and so far dovetails with the known practices of the foreign—notably the Roman Catholic—missionaries, that it carries with it a certain amount of plausibility. Immediately that the people of any place become alarmed at the frequent loss of their children, kidnappers post up notices and spread reports to the effect that the foreign missionaries have stolen them for the purpose of cutting out their eyes and brains wherewith to compound bewitching drugs. The notorious desire of Roman Catholic missionaries to secure children for their schools gives a colour to their canard, and too often the fury of the mob is thus diverted from the real culprits to those whose mission is only to do good.

This is, shortly, the moving cause in all the missionary riots. The latest news from Nanking reports that the people have become so infuriated against foreigners that the Protestant missionaries have deemed it prudent to fly from the city, leaving their Roman Catholic brethren to bear the brunt of the attack which was, when the mail left, hourly expected, protected only by a proclamation of the Viceroy. At Shanghai the native authorities have found it necessary to offer rewards for the apprehension of real kidnappers and their accomplices, thus attempting to divert all suspicion from the foreigners; and a telegram published yesterday morning states that a similar belief has given rise to such bad feeling towards the French at Canton that the French Consul at that port has been obliged to seek refuge in the English Consulate, while, as we have already learnt, far more disastrous effects have resulted from the outbreak of popular feeling anent the same subject at Tientsin. In all cases where the tumults have ended in mischief, the native authorities have invariably ignored the first symptoms of the outbreaks, and have afterwards proved themselves quite unequal to the task of suppressing them; thus showing both incapacity and weakness. The events we have referred to prove conclusively that it is time some steps were taken to protect the foreign residents at the Treaty Ports from outrage. The Chinese are plainly unable to do this—have confessed that they are—and it therefore only remains to employ foreigners to protect foreigners. At Ningpo for several years an Englishman has had the command not only of the police of the foreign settlements, but also of the native city, with the happiest results. Under the rule of Colonel Cook, Ningpo has earned for itself the enviable notoriety of perfect freedom from popular outbreaks and tumults; the people have implicit faith and reliance in himself and his men, and evil-doers show an equal disposition to fear and avoid them. The arrangement entails no complications, there is no question of annexation; the Chinese authorities act cordially with him, and are devoutly thankful to be relieved from the responsible and unprofitable task of keeping the citizens in order. With the greatest ease the same system might be introduced at the other Treaty Ports; and, if no other political results should be obtained by it, this at least will be gained—that the lives and property of our fellow-countrymen will be secured.

A correspondent of the Standard writes:—I beg to forward to you an extract from a letter which I have just received from my brother, at present resident in Shanghai. It may serve to throw some light on the late progress of events in China, and to give some information as to the causes which have brought about the late massacres of Europeans in that country. The facts detailed in the letter seem to me to be a very practical comment on the tendency of our late Chinese policy, and they convey very significant hints as to the results likely to follow from a continuance of that policy.

"There is a very disgraceful affair 'going on at Nanking, which seems to be part of a general plot. People at Tientsin, here, at Nanking, and most of the large cities, have been within the last few weeks treated to Chinese proclamations, stating that many cases of kidnapping children had occurred, and making the usual threats. No particular notice was taken of them, as there was no reason to believe that more children were being decoyed away in 1870 than at any other time. It was then pretended that the children were being stolen to be used for medicinal purposes—that a drug was given them which forced them to go in one direction—that they were then killed, their eyes taken out, and their bones powdered, &c.

Having got the people up to a state of excitement, the next step was to hint that foreigners were the people for whom the children were required. This was done continuously, and without any definite charge, as, of course, it would not suit for the mandarins to appear further in the matter.

"In Nanking, where there have been some English and also French missionaries, the excitement of the people was carefully nursed. Strangers (Chinese) who had no friends in the place were arrested on suspicion of being concerned in the crime, every care being taken to give as much publicity as possible to the act. Finding at last that public excitement was getting up to the boiling point, some of these unfortunate people were put to the torture to make them confess their crimes. Much virtuous indignation is displayed by the mandarins, and many ingenious attempts made to provide a story.

"The matter was now becoming serious; the English missionaries, remembering Lord Clarendon's conduct with regard to Yangchow, thought it best to clear out as quickly as they could. This, of course, is taken hold of by the mandarins as a proof that the charges were well founded. They then made, as they did in Formosa, a visit to the French missionaries, and pretended to be seeking for evidence. They were taken all through, but could not discover anything. In fact, the charges are shown to have no foundation whatever. Such an ending would not, however, suit. Some of the unfortunate people who had been arrested in the first instance must be sacrificed to keep up the excitement. Rumours say that seventeen have been executed in the Yamun at Nanking. As a matter of course the city is boiling over with excitement; the common people hounded on by interested parties, and aware of the execution of those people for crimes said to have been proved to the satisfaction of the mandarins, are ready to break out into open violence. The excitement has spread to Chinkiang, Nanking, Tanyang, and even nearer, Shanghai, so that it is quite possible there may be trouble somewhere.

"The simultaneous issue of the proclamation at so many different and distant places is the most extraordinary part of the affair. It is well known that there are people in China, as elsewhere, who kidnap children for the worst of purposes; that there was no need to inform the people of. It is not, so far as can be judged, that this crime is on the increase. It has not been spoken of amongst the people, who would be the principal sufferers were such the case; nor were there any tangible charges brought forward or instances alleged. A general statement is made that children are being kidnapped; proclamations are then issued, and every possible care is taken at each step to increase the excitement. As soon as this has got to the required heat it is turned against foreigners and perfectly innocent natives, against whom no charge has been made which could be proved, have been thrown into prison, tortured, and finally executed.

"This is China in 1870—the country with which we are to treat on equal terms, the object of Sir C. W. Dilke's and Mr. Rylands' warm praise, not to speak of its being the nation to which, on a bare promise of doing something, Sir R. Alcock in his convention gave up, or sought to give up, the most important of our rights."

COMPTOIR D'ESCOMPTE DE PARIS.

We have just received an analysis of the annual report of this society, presented to the shareholders at the general meeting held on the 30th of July. The progress of this society has been rapid and steady, and the results of the last twelve months have surpassed all preceding years. In 1848-9 the amount of its business was only 4½ millions sterling; in 1852-3 it was more than 20 millions; in 1860-1 it had reached 40 millions; in 1868-9 £112,840,000; and during the last twelve months £113,440,000. During the same time the dividend grew from f.16 to f.59 in 1867-8; last year it was f.41, and this year f.44.

In 1867-8 the discount business of the society amounted to 50 per cent. of the whole; in 1868-9 it was not much less, but during the last twelve months it was little more than two-fifths of the whole; but although it exhibits a proportional decrease, the positive discount business was larger than ever last year.

The deposits show a diminution of £88,000, and acceptances and advances on security one of more than a million sterling; but these deficits were far more than covered by the large increase of advances on public stock; by the development of the agencies in France, the business of which reached 17½ millions, or upwards of seven millions more than in 1868-9; by an increase of more than three millions in the business of the colonial and foreign branches, and of about 4½ millions on the stockbroking account. The last-named increase was chiefly due to the Ottoman and Egyptian loans, which were placed in the hands of the society.

The accounts current present large totals:—

The balance in hand on the 15th June, 1869, was ...	£2,352,631
Deposits during the twelve months ending June 15, 1870	10,171,334
	£12,523,965
Paid out	10,010,068
In hand on June 15	£2,513,897

The directors lay the greatest stress, however, on their foreign and colonial business, and say that their agencies of Bombay, Calcutta, Hong Kong, and Saigon, Bourbon, Shanghai, and Yokohama, Alexandria and London, contributed £53,640,000 to the total amount of business; and, while regretting the extremely unfavourable circumstances of the French colonies at the present moment, which prevent very satisfactory results, the directors say that a few prosperous years for the colonies would place the society in a position that few have ever attained to. The results of the working of the past twelve months, after allowing for losses at Hong Kong on rice advances, are as follows:—

The gross profit amounted to	£371,888
General expenses, discount, &c....	90,110
Net profit	£281,778

This, after payment of 2 per cent. on the capital, allows of the payment of a dividend of 44 francs per share—namely, 21 francs on the first and 23 francs on the second half of the year.

THE NEW ART MAGAZINE.*

When Messrs. Smith, Elder, and Co., who were the first to discern an opening for a shilling monthly, started the Cornhill, a host of imitators arose with marvellous rapidity to contest the newly-discovered field, until very soon quite a legion of shilling magazines clamoured for the patronage of the reading public Several of these shortly succumbed under the weight of excessive competition; others have since died of inanition, but a sufficient number still remain—some of them apparently quite as flourishing as their prototype—to show that magazine literature has gained such a hold on the public mind as was not dreamed of in the days when ponderous quarterlies enjoyed a monopoly. With this experience of shilling magazines before us, we cannot help feeling some surprise that the venerable Art Journal—the only illustrated monthly devoted to art—has remained so long without a rival, more especially when we consider the facilities afforded by recently perfected photographic processes for multiplying permanent reproductions of works of art.

At length, however, a competitor has entered the lists, under the title of Art; Pictorial and Industrial, the first two numbers of which are now before us. Externally it is a handsome publication, somewhat larger than our old friend the Art Journal, beautifully printed on thick toned paper with an ample margin, and containing, in each number, six large illustrations of varying degrees of merit. No. 1 (July) has for its frontispiece a photograph admirably executed, of a clever painting by L. Perrault, an eminent French artist, entitled "Pour la Petite Chapelle" (a Gallic version of "Please to remember the Grotto"). The second picture is a photographic reproduction of Albert Durer's far-famed engraving of "St. Jerome in his Study." This will be a boon to connoisseurs, for while it has the unapproachable accuracy of a photograph, it is quite free from glaze, and looks, in fact, just like a good impression from the plate itself. The third represents a statue of the late Lord Derby, by Mr. Theed, and is far from pleasing. The writer of a descriptive article that accompanies the illustration calls it a "noble" statue, but we cannot agree with him; it has a very wooden look, and is not a particularly good likeness of the late Earl. The photograph, too, is far from successful, having evidently been taken in a bad light. No. 4, a "Flora" by Greuze, is a faithful reproduction of a very charming picture lately in the Demidoff collection. No. 5 is a copy of a sheet of studies of heads by Michael Angelo. The original is a drawing in red chalk, and it is here faithfully reproduced (apparently by the autotype process) in the same colour. The last illustration is a very good view of the interior of Ely Cathedral. The letter-press includes several interesting articles on art subjects, some of them by well-known writers.

Making allowance for certain unmistakable signs of having been hastily "got up," No. I. may be pronounced a success; but No. II. is in many respects better. To commence with the illustrations, we find first an autotype of Mr. Cave Thomas's "Girl Reading," recently exhibited in the Dudley Gallery; next, "Mont St. Michel, Normandy"—a very effective sea-piece, by Mr. J. Webb, admirably photographed in a warm brown tint deepening to black in the shadows; then a drawing by Rembrandt, the merits of which are chiefly technical; then a copy of Sir Joshua Reynolds's "Holy Family," which, from its exactness and absence of photographic glaze (being printed on India paper), might be taken, except for its reduced size, for an actual impression of the well-known engraving by Sharp. An architectural subject (a curious external pulpit at St. Lo) follows, and a beautiful study for a foreground of ferns, moss and foliage, from nature, completes the list. The letter-press is of more general interest than in No. I, comprising cleverly-written articles on The Completion of St. Paul's, Industrial Art, Female Artists and Art Schools of England, the Maclise and Dickens' Sales, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Notes on Fans, &c., &c.

Among the contributors to Art are Messrs. Blanchard Jerrold, Cordy Jeaffreson, George A. Sala, John Piggot, Hyde Clark, Cave Thomas, G. W. Yapp, Townshend Mayer, Charles Burton, G. W. Reid (Keeper of the Prints), E. Walford, George Henty, Ralston, Henry Blackburn, Alex. Rivington, H. M. Wright, and others. Considering the value of the literary matter and the number and quality of the illustrations, it is probably the cheapest publication in existence, and cannot fail to secure a wide circulation.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.

The Select Committee of the House of Commons on the Abyssinian Expedition, after reciting the facts, dates, and circumstances connected with the Abyssinian estimates submitted to Parliament, and some selections from the Ministerial statements on the subject, report that the total net cost of this expedition, so far as the exact fact has been ascertained by the Treasury up to the 1st of July of the present year, amounted to £1,921,600 spent by the Home Government, £5,578,400 spent in India, £1,300,000 spent in Abyssinia—total, £8,800,000, or £5,300,000 in excess of the first estimate, and £3,500,000 in excess of the second. "It would appear," the Committee adds, "that the author of the first estimate does not himself acknowledge it to have been an estimate at all." General Jameson, who (if any one) may be said to have prepared the estimates, both of November and of April, states that the November estimates submitted to Parliament "was merely an attempted approximation to the amount;" that "the word 'estimate' had been improperly used;" that the preparation of an estimate was in no way his official duty, or the duty of any one connected with the India Department; that it was "only as a matter of official courtesy and convenience" that he gave the information which was embodied in the form of an estimate; that he did not at all contemplate being made responsible to Parliament; that the Government were told that the estimate could not be relied upon; and that no military power could have made even an approximate estimate of the expenses of the Abyssinian War. And to this Mr. Seccombe added, that it should not have been called an estimate at all, but "a memorandum for the information of the Secretary of State." It was also given in evidence before your Committee by Lord Napier of Magdala, the general in command of the Expedition, by General Sir William Mansfield, the Commander-in-Chief in India, and indeed by every military authority whom they consulted on this point, that the nature of the work assigned to the Expedition, and the peculiar circumstances under which we made war in Abyssinia, rendered even an approximate estimate of the cost utterly impossible.

The Cargo of the "Libell."—We extract the following narrative from the Shipping Gazette:—"In March, 1866, the Libell, a Dutch vessel, from San Francisco to Hong Kong, was wrecked on a reef in the Pacific, known as Wake Island, and lying about 1,250 miles east of the Ladrone or Marianne group. The greater part of the freight was recovered, but about 700 flasks of quicksilver were left in the sea. Towards the end of 1867 the schooner Clio, of Shanghai, was chartered to proceed to the South Seas on a trading voyage. Mr. Storm, who was appointed as supercargo, thought it expedient to add a salvage expedition to other business, and he accordingly engaged Mr. Bristow, an engineer, Mr. Jones, a diver, and Mr. Van Curbach, a pilot, to proceed to the wreck of the Libell, and recover as much as possible. The Clio reached Wake Island about the end of March. On the island they found Messrs. Foster and Inglis, from Honolulu, who had been so successful that they had recovered 450 flasks of the quicksilver. Some six weeks before the Clio arrived a strong gale came on and drove their schooner out to sea, and she never returned. Foster and Inglis, thus left without resources on a barren island, had lived entirely on sea birds and fish, and were in a state of extreme destitution when the Clio hove in sight. It was agreed that the salvors should be left on the island with the long-boat of the Clio, a quantity of tools, and five months' provisions. They set to work on the wreck, and laboured during May, June, and July, without recovering any more quicksilver, but stripped the wreck of some iron, copper, &c. August came and passed away but the Clio did not appear. On the 15th September it was found that all the provisions were exhausted, except about thirty pounds of bread and sixteen pieces of pork. It was resolved to repair, enlarge, and strengthen the long-boat, so as to fit her for sea, and to keep the remaining provisions for use on their voyage in search of deliverance. They suffered much from the want of food while their boat was preparing, but at last it was ready, and on the 8th of August, 1869, they sailed from Wake Island, after a stay of over fifteen months. Van Curbach happened to have a chart with him, by which they steered for Fala-londe de Toros, one of the Marianne Islands. They were favoured throughout with fine weather, and after calling at several places they at last arrived at Guam, where they reported themselves to the governor (Don Francisco Moscosca), and gave an account of their history. They remained there some time, living on the credit of the Spaniards, who disposed of their effects. In February and March four whaling vessels called at Guam, but they afforded no chance of release, as they were going direct to the northern fishery. At length, on the 5th of April, the Spanish biennial mail arrived. When Mr. Van Curbach engaged his passage he was stopped by the Spanish authorities, and was only allowed to proceed on giving an order for their claim against him, payable in Shanghai; and his papers were retained, and are to be returned only after his order has been honoured. Bristow and Jones were detained on the same ground when Van Curbach left Manila.

Foreign-office Agents.—The correspondence respecting the grant of compensation to the Foreign-office agents, on the abolition of the existing agency system, has just been published. The agents rested their claim to compensation on immemorial usage, and the assumed sanction of the Committee of 1833, which resolved that the practice of officers and clerks of the House of Commons being engaged in soliciting private bills, or, in other words, as private agents, should cease with the lives of the then possessors of the places. When the agencies, formerly held by clerks in the Colonial-office, were abolished in 1830, the Committee expressed their opinion that "it would be unjust to withhold most ample compensation;" and when, in 1857, it was thought that the emoluments of proctors might be damaged by the abolition of the exclusive rights and privileges they had enjoyed, the Treasury were authorised to award to each proctor a sum of money, or annual payment during his life. In the present case the claim to compensation was warmly advocated by Lord Clarendon, Lord Stanley, Sir C. Trevelyan, Sir William Craig, and Mr. Hammond (Under Secretary of State); and the Lords of the Treasury have therefore sanctioned a rate of allowance to the gentlemen now acting as agents equal to two-thirds of their net profits per annum, based upon the average of the last three years, it being distinctly understood that henceforth no gentleman in any way connected with the Foreign-office is to undertake, directly or indirectly, business as agent on behalf of the diplomatic body. This scheme will not come into operation until it has been submitted to the House of Commons in a supplementary estimate, and been sanctioned by a vote of the House. After that time those of Her Majesty's diplomatic and consular officers who, on the cessation of the agencies, may not desire to give powers of attorney to bankers or correspondents, may be enabled to draw their salaries and allowances by bills on the chief clerk.

Two new class of gunboats, called "avisos," named the Albatros and Nautilus, for the North German navy, now in course of construction for service against pirates in the China Seas, are in such a forward state that, according to present arrangements, the former will be launched directly and be ready for the pennant next month, while the latter will be ready for commission at the end of the year.

The following appointments have been made at the Admiralty during the past week:—Navigating Sub-Lieutenant: Edwin R. J. Williams to Columbine. Second class Assistant Engineer: Richard J. Tench to Ocean, additional. Inspector of Machinery: Thomas T. Murray to Princess Charlotte, for service on the China Station. Assistant Paymaster: Gabriel Beer to Racoon.

The detachment of Royal Marine Light Infantry which is to be despatched to Japan to relieve the 1st battalion of the 10th Regiment will consist of 400 men from the Plymouth division. The detachment will sail in a few days on board the Indian troopship Tamar, now lying at Devonport.

Mr. O'Brien, of the Control department, proceeds by the next mail to Singapore

Two hundred and eighty-five Chinese emigrants have arrived in San Francisco, on the ship Sardis, from Hong Kong.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, Aug. 8.

The 75th and 76th Regiments of Infantry, which were raised here, and are officially called the 1st and 2nd Hanseatic Regiments, have gone off to the seat of war, and the inhabitants of the city proper are for the present no longer cramped for room by having soldiers quartered on them. But it is now the turn of the suburbs and rural districts to become practically acquainted with the inconvenience, though from patriotic motives not a murmur or complaint is heard. Hamburg is much too important a place to leave without protection, and thus we have a large body of cavalry and field artillery billeted on the inhabitants of the outskirts. There is but little chance of a hostile visit from the French, unless they can persuade the Danes to abandon their proclaimed neutrality and join them in an attack on North Germany. Public feeling in Denmark is of course in favour of the French, and the hope of eventually getting back their provinces of Schleswig, and perhaps Holstein, is no doubt a great inducement to take a decided part in the war.

A portion of the French Baltic Squadron, consisting of eight or ten ironclads and rams, has already arrived from Cherbourg in Danish waters, and though only one or two of them have shown themselves at Copenhagen, whilst the remainder are at anchor at Frederikshaven or cruising about in the Sound, it is under the pressure of their immediate vicinity that the Marquis de Cadore has arrived at the Danish capital on a special mission to persuade the Government to take up arms and make a secret treaty with France. It must be remembered that the gallant little Danish nation have not the power to enforce their neutrality and forbid the ships of war of either of the belligerents from entering their ports, except from stress of weather, and then only for twenty-four hours, or they would not now be furnishing the fleet with provisions and coals; therefore it is to be feared, as they have to succumb in this case, they will be forced into the war sooner or later. And, indeed, the French must know very well that it would be the height of imprudence to undertake offensive operations in the Baltic without having a safe base line in their rear to which to retreat, after an action, to refit and recoal their vessels. But with the Danes as allies they could with perfect safety accomplish a landing in some port of Jutland, and march southward to this neighbourhood, where in that case we may expect to see some fighting, though perhaps more to occupy a portion of the German armies than with the hope of marching to Berlin. It cannot be denied that Hamburg offers considerable attractions to an unscrupulous invader, not the least of which is the money in the banks here. When the French took possession of this city in 1808, Marshal Davoust robbed the Bank of Hamburg of ten millions of marks banco; and now that there is more than double that sum in gold and silver ingots and coined money lying in their cellars, and perhaps an equal amount in the coffers of the joint-stock banks—the North German, the Vereinsbank, the International, and the Commercial and Discount Bank—there would be a great inducement to pay Hamburg another hostile visit on the part of the nation that professes to march at the head of civilisation, and yet has made no promises to respect private property either at sea or on land. It is this fear that causes an uncomfortable feeling in the minds of the inhabitants here.

In the meantime, the people of this city are doing what they can—and with no sparing hands—for the comfort and relief of their defenders. Dozens of charitable committees have been formed for collecting money for the widows and orphans of those who may be killed in this war, others for supplying marching regiments passing through the city with refreshments on their arrival; rich people have placed their country villas at the disposal of the authorities to be used as hospitals for the wounded and convalescents, and in every house, not only the ladies, but the servants and the children, are eternally picking lint and making bandages for the wounded, from all which it is evident that the general impression is that the war will be both protracted and sanguinary.

Several French spies and political prisoners have been brought in and sent on to Berlin for further examination and punishment. As this city is officially declared to be in a state of siege, we are living under martial law, and the civil tribunals and authorities, with the exception of the Senate and other Executive officials, are suspended. The commander is a Major-General von Gerstein, acting under General Vogel von Falckenstein, whose head-quarters are at Hanover, and who is specially charged with the coast defences. He has not yet thought it needful to stop up the navigation of the Elbe, though stone ships are all ready to be sunk at the mouth of the river; but, as the buoys and beacons have been all removed, it is extremely difficult, even with local pilots, for vessels to come in and go to sea. But at Bremen the sea-road is hermetically closed, the two vessels selected for the purpose of being first filled with stones and then ignominiously scuttled in the narrow channel being a steamer called the Loreley and a whaling-ship called the Bienenkorb, the latter belonging to Herr Rosenthal, of Bremerhaven.

A village of wooden huts for wounded soldiers is being erected on the large open space between Hamburg and Altona, known as the "Heiligengeistfeld," and will be fitted up with 1,500 beds, together with apartments for the surgeons, nurses, and attendants. Thirty young men of this city, of good family and patriotic feeling, have formed themselves into a civil volunteer corps to bring the wounded out of action. They have been taught their duties, and how to apply the first bandages to wounds, by the Knights of the Order of St. John, and, like them, wear as a distinguishing mark a white scarf with a red cross on the left arm.

The Prussian official Staats-Anzeiger announces with authority that, in consequence of the representations made by the merchants engaged in the China trade, the Government has resolved not to ratify the convention of October, 1869, entered into between Germany and China.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 10.

The home news is very meagre; the attention of everyone being fixed upon the struggle between the two great nations. The sympathy of our people for the belligerents is most divided. Those who fear for Holland being annexed to the German League hope that France may be eventually victorious; while those who are of opinion that we shall remain a small but independent people, happen what will, are delighted at the success of the German troops, because they believe Prussia to be in the right, and that it was not the fault of that nation that Germany has been involved in war. There is yet another party, represented by the Dagblad, whose hope is that both the belligerents may obtain alternate victories, so that at last they may be obliged to make peace. The papers abstain most wisely from declaring their sympathies or antipathies. They are convinced that being too absolute on either side would not coincide with the neutrality which our Government observes. Our army is now completely on a war footing, and every possible measure has been taken to defend our independence and nationality. I need not say that the energetic behaviour of our Ministry is much approved of by all the parties. The papers are filled with particulars of the several encampments and the inspections held by the Prince of Orange as Commander-in-Chief, but the general opinion being that there is at this moment no fear of our being swallowed up by Prussia, the articles have but small interest. In political news entire dulness prevails, all party quarrels having come to a standstill.

A terrible fire took place here yesterday, which caused damage amounting to two millions and a-half. Amongst the valuable merchandise destroyed by the flames were two cargoes China tea, viz., 5,494 chests, ex Bristow, and 7,533 chests, ex Diamond. Both these cargoes were announced some time ago for public sale, but the political events made them unsaleable. I hear that they are fully insured. The Netherlands Bank has again raised the rate of its discount one-half per cent.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

COFFEE.—For some days there has been a demand for providing the Prussian army; the market has become thereby somewhat less dull.

SUGAR (RAW).—The market is firm, but transactions are unimportant, holders declining to operate. They only include 1,708 mats Cheribon, No. 11, at f.30¾; 536 mats do., No. 17¼, at f 34¾—both parcels ex Mystic Belle; 261 mats Java, No. 12¾, ex Rotterdam, at f.31; 499 mats Java, Nos. 17-18, at secret prices; 899 mats do., No. 18, ex Launceston, at f.35½. Stock in bond, 50,100.026 kilo

RICE.—The market is inactive.

TEA.—Dull; the only demand is for home consumption. Stock, 23,000/4 China (from which the burned parcels must be deducted), and 17,8004/ Java.

TOBACCO.—Dull; stock of Java, 25,531 b.

MANILA CIGARS.—There is a good demand for export. Prices are very firm, there being but a small stock.

TIN.—Prices are nominal. The only parcel sold realised f.69. It is asserted by an eminent firm of Dutch brokers that there is every probability of the Dutch Trading Company holding no sale this autumn at all, or else offering a very small portion of the supply at its disposal.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Aug. 6, at Texel, from Batavia, Anna Maria Wilhelmina; 8, at Hellevoet, from Macassar, G. H. Betz.

DEPARTURES.—Aug. 4, from Hellevoet, for Batavia (via Newport), Alblasserdam; 7, from Texel, for Samarang, Noordzeekanaal; 8, from Texel, for Samarang, Pauline Constance Eleanora.

PASSENGERS INWARD.—From Java, per Anna Maria Wilhelmina: Mrs. Hart and family.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.—For Java, per Pauline Constance Eleanora: Mr. H. F. Grivell and family; per Noordzeekanaal: Messrs. V. Clignett, A. R. van Nerum, Mrs. Schultze.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

BIRTHS.

M'DOUALL—On the 6th Aug., at Smeaton Hepburn, East Lothian, the wife of James M'Douall, Esq., jun., of Logan, of a son.

WHITE—On the 8th Aug., at St. Petersburg Cottage, Bayswater, the wife of H. Osborne White, Esq., of a son.

MARRIAGE.

MORGAN—SIMKIN.—On the 9th Aug., at St. Mary's, West Brompton, by the Rev. Arthur Veysey, Septimus Vaughan Morgan, 6, The Boltons, South Kensington, to Ellen Sarah, younger daughter of the late Henry Simkin, Esq., of Highbury-place.

DEATHS.

BOLTON—On the 1st July, on board the P. and O. steamer Mooltan, on her way to Calcutta, Louisa Caroline, the wife of Charles James Bolton, Esq., commander of the Glenartney steamer.

BOWYER—On the 9th Aug., at Clevedon House, Lordship-lane, Dulwich, William Edwin Bowyer, of 84, Great Tower-street, aged 55.

STEWART—On the 2nd Aug., at Gnaton Hall, Devon, John Erskine Douglas Stewart. He was the youngest surviving son of Admiral Sir Houston Stewart, G.C.B.

TIPAKARAWONGS—On the 12th June, at Bangkok, his Excellency Chow Phya Tipakarawongs Maha Kosa D'ip'a Bawdee, the ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite. The Civil Service Gazette remarks:—"The singular success which Mr. Epps has attained by his homœopathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any experimentalist. By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in tin-lined packets labelled—JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London.

LONDON: MONDAY, AUGUST 15, 1870.

THE P. AND O. COMPANY.

We are glad to announce that a new contract, which obtained the sanction of Parliament on the 9th inst., has been made with the P. and O. Company. This abolishes the anomalies alluded to in our last issue, and stipulates for a fixed payment of £450,000 per annum, the company undertaking without additional payment to substitute for the present mail service between Marseilles and Alexandria a weekly service between Brindisi and Alexandria as soon as called upon after the completion of the tunnel through Mont Cenis, the payment to the company for the fourteen months previous to that date being at the full amount of £500,000 a-year. The fixed subsidy to include the payment for calling at Penang, and not to be subject to any deduction on account of the withdrawal of the sorting officers from the Mediterranean packets. The contract is to continue in force till Feb. 1, 1880. The new contract also contains permission for the company to substitute Liverpool for Southampton as the port of arrival and departure of the steamers on a notice of three months.

This indicates that the P. and O. Company are preparing to meet the altered circumstances developed by the shortened route between England and the East. We may state, however, that it is not at present in contemplation to withdraw the company's vessels entirely, or even in part, from Southampton. The permission has been obtained only as a preparatory step to save time, in the event of such a movement becoming necessary. It is possible that both Liverpool and Southampton may be used by the company, as it would be equally inconvenient and expensive for goods from London and the South to be sent to Liverpool as it now is to forward Manchester goods to Southampton. We observe that the new contract fixes the old rate of average minimum speed—viz., ten knots per hour west of Alexandria, and at 9½ knots on the routes east of Suez. The rate of speed between Brindisi and Alexandria is, however, to be at eleven knots. Owing to stagnation of trade and to severe competition on the part of the French, Austrian, and Italian Companies, the financial position of the P. and O. Company, since the last contract was entered into, has not been flourishing, and the opening of the Suez Canal, the success of which was by no means considered certain in 1867, has still further disturbed their prospects. It is therefore gratifying to observe that in accepting the present contract, which has been conceived by Government on a large and liberal basis, the P. and O. Company are preparing to adapt their service, and conform their vessels, to the altered circumstances consequent on the latest triumphs of engineering skill. Although they can never hope to regain the virtual monopoly of the traffic with the East which they so long enjoyed, it is quite within their power, with such a subsidy, and by such changes as are demanded by the progress of the age, to maintain the pre-eminence for which they have been always distinguished.

The steamer Hibernia, which left on the 27th ult., had on board the cable to connect Singapore and Batavia. She proceeds to Batavia round the Cape. The sections to connect Singapore, Penang, and Madras are nearly ready, and will be shortly despatched in two steamers via the Canal. Mr. C. H. Forde, the Electric Engineer to the Company, will proceed by the P. and O. mail, arriving in Batavia the first week in November, when he will proceed on board the Hibernia, and subsequently with the section for Penang and Madras. In order to suit the season, the laying of the cable will commence at Singapore and end at Madras.

PUBLIC WORKS IN CEYLON.

Proposals to raise capital for public works by loans on the security of revenue are, in some quarters, received with a mistrust for which it is not easy to account by any process of modern reasoning. Kept within due limits, and expended with due caution and economy, such loans afford the best possible security to the public debtor as well as the public creditor. Not only do the works begin to be remunerative so quickly as to go far towards the payment of their own cost while in process of construction, but they directly contribute, by the employment they afford, and the expansion of trade which they bring about, to raise and relieve the revenue on which they are based, while their very existence is so much value added to the material wealth of the country they improve. All the conditions essential to the prudent raising of such a loan—i.e., public prosperity on the one hand, and public security on the other—are combined in the proposal, for which Ceylon is indebted to Sir James Elphinstone, to lay out a million sterling on the extension of her railway and irrigation systems. The revenue of Ceylon is already one million, and bids fair to go on increasing without additional taxation, and even without the material and urgently demanded improvements which it is now sought to effect. The proof of this is the fact of the gradual reduction of the existing debt of the colony, which is confidently expected, at the end of the present year, to amount to no more than £430,000. Moreover, the profits of the existing railway are so considerable as already to go far to meet the costs of its extension.

The railway returns for the half-year ended June 30th are now certain to show a revenue of £102,000, and, anticipating a result at least equally favourable for the remaining portion of 1870, we may calculate on a surplus of £15,000 above the estimate formed by the Colonial Secretary, based on the departmental returns, or, say, £55,000, after setting aside £58,000 for interest and sinking fund. An inquiry into the proportions in which the staple articles of transport—coffee, rice, and manure—entered into the traffic down and up, shows that, while the total traffic in 1868 equalled 116,000 tons, there was an increase in last year's return of over 15 per cent., the figures being 134,369 tons. Of this increase of 18,000 tons, coffee made up nearly 6,000 tons, manure 3,200, and rice 8,500, while in general goods and railway materials there was little or no variation. These results show at once the progress of coffee-planting, and especially of manuring, in the different districts, and also the increasing use made of the railway. Seven thousand tons of manure sent forward for the benefit of estates which can be reached by cart transport from the Kandy Railway station show as nearly as possible 1 cwt. per acre for all the cultivated land in the surrounding districts. In March, 1868, the rate on coffee from Kandy, Peradenia, and Kadugunawa was reduced to 20s. per ton. The result has been practically to annihilate the cart traffic on the Kandy road, and to divert almost the whole of the coffee crop within reach of the railway at all from the road to the rail. The cart-bullocks, being mainly imported and fed on imported food, cannot compete with the railway rate; and to the low price must be added the advantages of speedy transit and almost complete security. In another fortnight we hope to be able to extract similarly encouraging facts from the report for the expired half of the current year; but, in the meantime, enough has surely been shown to remove any hesitation that may exist in official quarters respecting the advisability of hurrying on the railway extension.

In the face of such unquestionable prosperity it would be worse than unreasonable—worse than short-sighted—to confine the enterprise and capital of the colony within its present practically comparatively narrow limits, surrounded as they are by vast tracts of rich lands, which require only railways to reach and irrigation to fertilise them. The only question that seems to us to require consideration is, not whether or when, but in what direction, to commence the work of extension. Those districts which will prove soonest remunerative should, of course, have the first care; and, in the choice of these, the colony is neither at a loss for sound practical advisers nor distracted by difference of opinion. The Colombo Observer faithfully represents the public conviction that "southward lies the path of prosperity in Ceylon," until Dimboola is lost in Ouvah, and Kirrigalpotta looks down on an unbroken expanse of coffee culture, extending from its base northward to Matelle, defined on the west by Adam's Peak, Raxawa, Ambalawa, and Allagalla, and on the east by Pedrotallagalla, Diatalawa, Medemahanewera, and the Knuckles. Already has successful cultivation reached the edge of the Agra patenas, southward, eastward, and westward of which lie at least 20,000 acres of good forest. Here, in fact, lies the great reserve of the forest wealth of Ceylon. To Navelapittia the railway can be carried without crossing a river of any importance; and, with a good road thence, and traction-engines plying upon it, even estates at the foot of Kirrigalpota might be profitably worked and regularly manured. Nor is there any reason to apprehend that, with the extension of the railway, the rate of earnings per mile would be lessened for any length of time. Such, at all events, has not been the case in India, where the vast lines already constructed have only served to justify their extension to places more remote, notwithstanding the fact that, in many parts of India, railways have had to compete with water-carriage in a degree altogether unknown in Ceylon. We cordially hope therefore that the proposal of Sir James Elphinstone, which has been so favourably received at the Colonial-office, may receive the official sanction of Sir Hercules Robinson at the earliest possible moment. To delay progress in times of prosperity is to neglect the best interests of the colony.

THE WAR AND THE SITUATION.

(London and China Express, August 12.)

Events of such vast importance have followed each other with such astounding rapidity and effect during the last few days, that the week, which opened when the greatest war of modern times had scarcely begun, seems not likely to close before the fate, both of the war itself and of the dynasty which prompted it, shall have been decided. Not only have three crushing defeats at Weissenburg, Woerth, and Forbach, and the ignominious expulsion of the French invaders from the position at Saarbruck, which they nominally held for only a few hours, revealed a total absence of design on the part of the Emperor, and of strategic resource on the part of his generals, but the reverses occasioned by their imbecility have aroused in the whole French nation a frenzy of indignation which it will be scarcely possible for the Empire to survive. At the moment when we write the Prussians are before Metz, where the French Emperor had massed his retreating forces, in the last, almost forlorn, hope of retrieving his fortunes by another battle, which, however, he now seems unwilling to risk. Whether he win or lose it, his position will be one of the most difficult in which the Commander of a great army was ever placed. Should he be beaten, his losses cannot be repaired; should he win, he will not know which way to turn to follow up his advantage. Already, by superseding McMahon and Lebœuf, and by virtually resigning the supreme command, the Emperor has confessed to his army and the enemy that his confidence in himself and his generals was a fatal chimera. All that courage and military science can supply, we may be sure, will not be wanting while Bazaine commands the French army, and Changarnier, who, at seventy-seven years of age, has placed himself by the side of the Emperor, assists its Councils of War. But the startling fact remains that the French are unable to collect 200,000 men to withstand Germany and protect Paris. The German Confederation numbers more than a million of men under arms at this moment. The issue of the war cannot, therefore, be any longer considered doubtful. The terms of the peace which is to follow it must be dictated rather by Prussian generosity and wise forbearance, than by any doubt of the present position of affairs being materially changed. Nor are generosity and forbearance qualities in which there is any reason to apprehend that the Germans will prove deficient. Throughout the brief but bloody campaign, their union, their promptness, the high-minded gallantry of Prussian and Bavarian alike, have not been more conspicuous than the noble simplicity of the despatches in which King William and the Crown Prince have announced their victories, and the grave sympathy with which the French prisoners have been received on their deportation to Berlin. The Germans admit that the French fought like lions to Woerth, and would not give way until resistance became absolutely impossible. It is to the wretched generalship of the French marshals, aided by the Emperor's inexplicable delays, that the French army owes it repeated defeats—not to any want of courage. In every way their equals in gallantry, the Prussians have proved themselves immeasurably more fortunate in their leaders, and more prompt to seize and improve advantage after advantage. "Ask me for anything but time," was the language of the First Napoleon. Events have shown that by his fatal delay of ten days, which may for ever be inexplicable, Napoleon the Third threw away the chance of succeeding in the invasion which he had been planning for four years. On the contrary, "The Man in Spectacles," as the Prussians fondly call General Von Moltke, has been as prompt as he has been wise and daring. From point to point he has never given the French an hour of unnecessary time, and we may be sure that he will give them no time now. All hope of the foreign allies which France at first sought so eagerly, and, when disappointed, disclaimed so vainglorously, is dissipated by the new Treaty for the maintenance of the neutrality of Belgium, to which Lord Granville has secured the adhesion of Russia and Austria, consequent on its recognition by England, Prussia, and France. This Treaty, which engages this country to co-operate with one of the belligerents in the defence of the Belgian territory, if it is invaded by the other belligerent, and which is to continue in force for twelve months after the ratification of peace, is a masterpiece of diplomacy, which reflects the greatest honour on our Foreign Secretary, and which even the Leader of the Opposition willingly describes as a "wise and spirited measure—none the less wise because it is spirited."

The new French Ministry, so suddenly installed in office. is far more likely, from its ultra-Imperial tendencies, to prove fatal to the Empire than inimical to England. No one will lament the downfall of the Ollivier Cabinet. Ever since the time of the Plebiscite it has been felt to be what Mr. Carlyle would call a sham. It has possessed the confidence neither of the Imperial nor the Liberal party. For himself it may be conceded, now that he has resigned, that he was a well-meaning man, exceedingly slow to perceive that he was made a tool of. His successor, General Cousin-Montauban, is a veteran soldier, who has seen forty-two years of active service and twenty-eight campaigns. He won his title in the Chinese war of 1860, and has a reputation for decision and energy, not entirely unsullied by the reproach of cupidity in the article of "loot," as our readers will remember, in the affair of the "Summer Palace." The Ministry which surrounds him seems, in a great measure, a return to the men and the principles of a year or two ago. "Personal Government" is no more likely now than it was then to find opponents in M. Magne, M. Chevreau, the Prince de la Tour d'Auvergne, and Baron Jerome David. Whether such a principle will find acceptance now, or whether it can even be temporarily restored in the present emergency, may be more than doubtful; but, in a supreme moment like the present, every honest well-wisher of France, and of peace, cannot but rejoice that the late weak and vapid Cabinet has been replaced by men of consistency, and men to whom the national honour is dearer than the false dignity of plastic officialism. Even if the Empire is to fall, and yet another Republic is to be added to the changeful bead-roll of French Governments, it is better that the change should be the result of constitutional opposition to a Government, respectable but behind its age, than that it should be initiated by the reckless and vulgar clamourers who disgrace their Chamber and invite carnage. Such, then, is the "situation" in which England, through the firmness of her people and the solidity of her Government, regards foreign nations, herself at peace, and likely to remain at peace, with all, at the close of a session which will long be memorable both for the gravity of its measures and the spirit of progress which has dictated them. Whatever may be the form of the peace, which all men hope may be speedily concluded between Prussia and France, the neutrality of England can scarcely be more securely established than it is now. And, when the happy moment for mediation shall arrive, the good offices of England will be all the more gratefully accepted by both belligerents when they reflect that, if she armed herself during the course of the conflict, she did so only to protect other nations from the calamities into which they have been misled.

The expedition to Corea, reported in the last mail's papers, is not recognised by our Government, and is very improbable altogether.

Monetary and Commercial.

It is understood that specie shipments to the amount of more than a million sterling may be expected from India. In consequence of the confused state of Continental affairs every description of silver has become excessively flat, and it has been difficult to find purchasers. Sales have, however, been effected of bars at 60⅝d., and of Mexican dollars at 58¾d.

At a meeting of the British Australian Company it was decided to abandon the land line from Port Darwin to Busheton, thus leaving only the submarine from Singapore to Java, and from Java to Port Darwin. We may notice that the suggestion to wind up this company proceeds from an opponent, and is not at all likely to take effect.

We understand that a decision has been given by the Supreme Court at Lubeck in favour of the Bank, in two of the cases pending between the Chartered Bank of India and J. G. W. Finke and Co., of Bremen, as to their liability on credits granted to Morgan, Melbourn and Co., Batavia.

The Red Cross and other lines of steamers for Calcutta, calling at Colombo, by the Canal, advertise for passengers at £50 first class, £30 second.

The following vessels are reported from Ismailia as passing through the Canal between the 3rd and 9th of August:—From Port Said to Suez, English steamers Arcturus, Sarawak, Delaware, and Gambia. From Suez to Port Said, English steamers Ajax, Brazilian, and Brightman.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Arthur Capel and Co.'s Circular contains the subjoined report:—We have had a somewhat firmer tone in our market, with rather more doing in most descriptions, consequent on the settlement of the differences between the importers and the buyers and in occasional instances rather better prices have been paid for good common kinds. The chief feature of interest has been the arrival of the Erl King on the 4th inst., and the Diomed on the 5th inst., with first supplies of the new Teas direct from Hankow, via the Suez Canal. The samples per Erl King were out on the 4th inst., and for the first shown very full prices were obtained, with a view of getting them delivered the same evening for transmission to the town and country dealer, the prices paid for first sales being 1s. 10½d. to 2s. 1d. for good to fine, and 2s. 2d. to 2s. 6d. for fine to finest, the latter for boxes. These first wants being satisfied, the market became very quiet, and sales cannot now be made within 1d. to 2d. per lb. of the opening rates, except for superior chops ranging from 2s. 4d. to 2s. 6d. per lb., of which the supply for the home market is limited, the great bulk of such kinds being bought in China, on Russian account, and being transhipped direct to St. Petersburg. The war has had a prejudicial effect on prices, as it has kept exporters generally out of the market, thus very materially restricting competition for fine to finest chops. On the whole, we consider the quality about equal to the previous year. Red-leaf Congous: Siftings and broken-leaf kinds remain much as before; fair to good common have been steady at 10½d. to 11½d. per lb; fair to good flavoury kinds show no change; a few of the finer parcels left on hand have been sold at full prices, but the opening of the Foochow market has checked the demand. In Pak Lin kinds there has been no alteration. Black-leaf kinds: The lower qualities remain dull of sale; fair to very good common, from 10½d. to 1s., have been saleable at a slight improvement; good to fine, of old season, have been neglected. In new season's later sales have ranged from 1s. 9d. to 1s. 11d. for good to fine, and from 2s. to 2s. 6d. per lb. for fine to finest, but the demand has become very quiet. In Amoy kinds there is no improvement. In new-make Canton kinds a few sales have been made at previous prices. Oolongs remain much as before. In Souchongs but little has been done; really fine quality is much wanted. Scented Teas: Canton and Foochow Capers show no change, the demand being small. Canton Orange Pekoes show no improvement; a few parcels of Foochow kind have found buyers at the low rates current. Uncoloured Japans: Common kinds have sold from 10½d. to 11½d., and fine from 1s. 7d. to 1s. 9d. per lb., Green Teas: The market remains without improvement; fine qualities are comparatively saleable, but common to medium kinds difficult to move. Canton Gunpowders show no alteration. There have been no public sales of China Tea. The stock in the United Kingdom on 30th ultimo was estimated at 80,000,000 lbs, against 74,600,000 lbs.; and the quantity afloat at 11,050,000 lbs., against 9,670,900 lbs. last year.

The following is from Messrs. Shepard, Harrison, and Rehden's Circular:—There has been a good general demand from home buyers, who have not individually operated to any extent, but the trade is so large that most of the Erl King's cargo has been disposed of, and several chops, ex Diomed, have also been sold. Prices opened at a satisfactory range, and, but for the high cost in China, would have given brilliant results; Ningchows at 2s. 3d. to 2s. 6d.; Chong Sou-Kais at 2s. 2d. to 2s. 4d.; Oopacks and Oonams at 1s. 10½d. to 2s. 1d. per lb. For second-class quality there has been a decline the past day or two of 1d. to 2d. per lb., but finest continues in request at full rates. So far Continental buyers have held aloof, partly through the War, and also from the fact that some 8,000 packages purchased in China on Russian account are in course of transhipment. The quality of the crop, as a whole, we make fully up to an average, Ningchows especially good, but the Ooanfas to hand lack the decided characteristics of past seasons. Deliveries read well, and stand as follows:—

Home consumption for London from 1st Jan. to 31st July	1870. 46,560,000	1869. 45,096.000
Export do. do.	17,800,000	21,473,000
Sent coastwise do.	25,700,000	21,078,000

Messrs. Lloyd, Matheson and Co., with reference to the new Teas, remark that finest, in the absence of demand for export, and with very little country demand for high priced Teas, with an increase of supply, will decline in value. The Teas have not been favourably received in the country, and as regards their general quality we consider that the reports of its superiority received from China were incorrect. The sales thus far amount to about 20,000 packages, being about 12,000 chests at 1s. 9d. to 2s. 4d. per lb., 4,000 half-chests at 1s. 10d. to 2s. 6d. per lb., and 4,000 boxes at 2s. 1d. to 2s. 6d. per lb. About 12,000 packages are for transhipment to Russia, leaving 15,000 packages on offer.

The Circular of Messrs. Kinnear, Hawes and Hertz has the following:—The bulk of the new season's black leaf, ex Erl King and Diomed, has been placed on the market, and about 18,000 packages have found buyers. The quotations of sales effected range from 1s. 8d. to 2s. 6d. per pound. The prices obtained for fine Teas, the first two days after the arrival of the Erl King, were about 3d. per lb. higher than those obtainable since. This reduction, which manifests itself every year after buyers have satisfied their first wants, has taken place unusually early this time. As to quality we notice that the finest, which the two cargoes to hand only represent in a few parcels, is not up to last seasons', while fine medium to fine compare not unfavourably with Tea of the same class of 1869-70. The home trade do not seem willing to buy beyond their immediate wants.

SILK.

There has been no change in the market during the past week; it remains in the same position as last reported, no transactions in new Silk, sufficient to quote, having taken place. Importers do not seem desirous to force their stocks, and seem inclined to await the turn in events; the few sales which have been made to the home trade have been done at 2s. to 3s. reduction from recent rates. Deliveries, 1st to 10th inclusive, China, 705 bales. Japan 103 bales; total 808 bales.

The following is from the Circular of Messrs. Hunt and King:—The unexpected and sudden political complications, followed by war and its consequent financial embarrassments, have for the past month entirely prevented business to any extent in the Silk trade. Its position, however, had become so exceptional from the continued paucity of supplies and the extreme caution of consumers in buying during the advance in prices, that only a nominal effect has been produced. Generally sales are not pressed, and as the temporary pressure in the money market has subsided, there seems some disposition to buy at the lowest quotations of last year, showing a decline of 10 to 15 per cent. from the prices of June last, upon Tsatlee and the bulk of Japan Silk; other sorts, not having risen in proportion, are not much affected. The new China Silk now arriving is not offered for sale at present; the bills will not begin to approach maturity till the end of the year, when a much firmer market is expected, as the aggregate supply of Silk this season will probably be more reduced than ever. From Shanghai the latest telegrams, to the 16th July, report settlements of Silk this season 15,000 bales at very high rates, in the proportion of 31s. to 32s. for No. 3 Tsatlee. The crop is estimated at 36,000 bales, but this quantity would have come forward only had prices been maintained.

COFFEE.

The market generally has shown but little change during the week, the depression which has prevailed of late continuing without relief. The only alteration apparent is in Native Ceylon, for which an inquiry has sprung up, resulting in transactions at a slight improvement upon the low prices lately ruling. In Plantation there have been limited transactions at rates about on a par with those given in our last report. Only one public sale has been held, at which 35 casks 2 tierces coloury Plantation were offered, and bought in at 66s. to 68a., except two lots, which sold at 63s. for coloury, and 75s. 6d. for pea-berry; of 1,383 bags Native offered 350 bags were sold at 44s. to 47s.; and 530 bags small, at 40s. to 40s. 6d.; good bold pale, at 49s.; pea-berry, at 48s. to 48s. 6d. Since the sale there has been a steady demand for Native, and higher rates have been paid, small realising 40s. 6d.; real good ordinary, 46s.; fine bold, 50s.; and pea-berry, 50s. At these prices about 15,000 bags have been sold, while small parcels of Plantation find buyers at the above-quoted rates. No transactions have been effected in other East India kinds. A large quantity of Costa Rica, amounting to nearly 1,600 tons, is included in the landings, the total being fully 800 tons more than in 1869, and the deliveries having decreased to about the same quantity as last year, the deficiency in the stock is lessened, being now only 1,200 tons.

The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation 286.739 cwt., against 276,877 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1869; Native, 20,684 cwt., against 39,610 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is 22,952 cwt. Plantation, against 8,252 cwt., and 9,031 cwt. Native, against 11,038 cwt. The quantity of Coffee landed in the thirty-one weeks ended Aug. 6, 1870, was, of Ceylon, 21,645 tons, against 23,538 tons during the corresponding period of 1869; of all descriptions, 36,245 tons, against 41,355 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 6,388 tons, against 6,726 tons; of all descriptions, 11,190 tons, against 11,189 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 17,128 tons, against 14,739 tons; of all descriptions, 26,813 tons, against 25,741 tons. The stock on Aug. 6 was, of Ceylon, 11,993 tons, against 13,068 tons; of all descriptions, 22,461 tons, against 23,645 tons.

SUGAR.

There has been great dulness throughout the week, and the business done has been very limited. Prices show a further slight decline, and to effect sales to any extent a more important concession would have to be submitted to. The only sale of East India has been 206 bags yellow (duty 5s. 3d.) at 28s. 6d., a further offer of 2,325 baskets and 153 bags date sort, low brown quality (duty 4s.), being bought in at 17s. to 19s. per cwt. The week's landings consisting of British West India, Havana, and Cuba, are 1,500 tons less than last year, and deliveries are 500 tons less, thereby reducing the surplus in the stock to 19,000 tons. The total stock on the 6th inst. was 104,192 tons against 85,093 at the corresponding date last year.

The quantity of Sugar landed in the thirty-one weeks ended Aug. 6, 1870, was—of Penang, 2,277 tons, against 2,092 tons in the corresponding period of 1869; of Manila, Java, and China, 13,904 tons, against 21,183 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 1,547 tons, against 1,549 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 15,234 tons, against 9,796 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, 95 tons, against 73 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 1,825 tons, against 635 tons. The stock on Aug. 6 was, of Penang, 2,965 tons, against 799 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 32,636 tons, against 39,636 tons.

Coir Goods.—The last sales included 7 tons Ceylon Yarn, which realised £18 15s. to £19 5s. for common and £26 for good medium. No Rope or Fibre was offered.

Cutch.—Prices have slightly improved; at public sale 300 boxes fine Pegu realised 20s., and a private sale of 200 boxes is reported at the same price.

Cocoa Nut Oil.—Ceylon is in rather more inquiry, but the recent decline has not been recovered, the current quotation being £36 10s. to £37. The quantity afloat is estimated at 19,278 cwt., against 16,261 cwt. at the same time last year, and 13,577 cwt. in 1868.

Camphor.—There is an entire absence of inquiry, and no sales are reported either of China or Japan.

China Grass dull; the nominal quotation is £60 to £70.

Canes.—At the last sales 40,950 Bamboo slightly mouldy were bought in at ⅝d. each, also 68,000 Partridge at 2¼d. to 2⅜d., except one lot, which sold at 2½d. Of 30,729 Malacca, 8,229 sold—No. 1 at 6d., No. 2 5½d., No. 3 3¾d.; 846 bundles Borneo were bought in at 1d. to 1⅛d. 78,375 Tonkin at ½d. to 1⅛d., 5,844 Midgen at 2¼d., 21,800 Rajah at 2¼d., 5,700 Pimento Sticks sold at 3d. to 4¾d., re-tied 2¾d.

Gambier and Gums.—No sales are reported.

Hemp.—The market for Manila is quiet but steady; there have been small transactions privately in fair roping at £57, and 387 bales at auction were bought in at that price; Boluzan is held for £56, and fine white for £66.

Hides.—The last sales opened heavily for East India Hides at previous prices to ¼d. per lb. decline for most descriptions, but as hey progressed there was increased dulness, and where sales were pressed a reduction of ½d., and in some cases of ¾d. per lb., had to be submitted to, although more than half the quantity offered were taken in. 13,474 Dry Singapore, Penang, &c., Ox and Cow Hides offered, 2,402 sold—Heavy 6d., Small 6d., Fourths 3¾d. to 4d. per lb. 818 Ceylon Hides offered, none sold. 600 Java Buffalo Hides offered, none sold. 2,240 Singapore and Penang Buffalo Hides offered, 228 sold—Best Heavy 4⅜d., Light 5d. per lb. 1,686 Siam Buffalo Hides offered, none sold.

India-rubber—Meets with very little notice, and the market is flat for all kinds. Transactions quite nominal; at auction 728 bags Assam and 38 cases Borneo retired, 1s. 7d. being refused for the latter parcel.

Japan Wax.—There has been no business.

Oils.—Cinnamon scarce, and wanted; 8 cases Leaf Oil at public sale firm. Citronelle firm, and a shade better prices paid at the sales, which embraced 77 cases, all sold, chiefly at 2⅛d. per oz., a few lots at 2d. Lemon Grass steady; 4 cases at auction bought in at 8d. 33 cases, wrecked ex Benvenue, Penang, sold at 2⅝d. to 3d. per oz. for good quality. Aniseed has sold more freely, but lower; 40 cases sold at 7s. 9d. Cassia cheaper; business privately to a considerable extent, about 50 cases having changed hands at 4s. per lb. Nutmeg: No change.

Pepper.—Black: The market continues dull, without change in prices; at auction 64 bags Penang salvage, ex Benvenue, sold at 4½d., and privately 200 bags Singapore and Java have found buyers at 4⅞d. for the former and 4¾d. for the latter, cash. White: A parcel amounting to 1,326 bags has been offered at public sale, and holders being willing to sell, the greater part was disposed of at ½d. per lb. decline; of 1,226 bags Singapore, 800 bags, chiefly old import, sold at 5⅜d. to 5⅞d., a few lots recent import at 6d., and 100 bags Penang sold at 5⅝d.

Rice.—The demand continues very moderate for all kinds, and the sales have been limited in extent at previous rates. At auction 10,500 bags new garden Siam of fresh import, per Krimpen van de Lek, were bought in at 9s. 9d.; 1,679 bags Rangoon sold, sound at 9s. 6d., second class sea damaged at 8s. 4½d. to 8s. 6d.; 655 bags Bengal partly sold, sea damaged white at 10s., and Ballam 8s. to 8s. 6d. Privately on the spot the sales have been 1,000 tons field Siam in mats at 8s. 3d. prompt one month, 4,000 bags Necransie at 8s. 6d. prompt six weeks, and afloat the cargo of 620 tons Bassein arrived off coast at 9s. 7½d. for the Continent. Landed last week 821 tons, delivered (exclusive of the quantity ex ship) 1,766 tons; stock 38,280 tons, against 50,130 tons at this time last year.

Rattans.—We note the sale of 505 bundles sea-damaged, from Pasoervean, at 4s. to 5s. 6d. per 100 canes, and of 869 bundles Penang wrecked, ex Benvenue, at £5 to £5 12s. 6d. per ton.

Spices.—The business since our last has been very limited, and the only sales to report are of 210 bags Cinnamon Chips, medium quality, at 2¼d. to 3d., chiefly the latter price, and 41 cases Penang Nutmegs at previous rates—viz., 72's at 3s. 1d., 95's at 2s. 1d. to 2s. 2d., 121's at 1s. 10d. to 1s. 11d per lb. Messrs. Borwick's Monthly Price Current contains the following summary of this market:—The stock of Black Pepper is wearing down, and has been reduced to the extent of 10 per cent. during the month. The present quantity at this port is 1,037 tons, showing a reduction of between 560 and 600 tons as compared with this time last year. The stock of White Pepper has been increased during the month to 690 tons, against 570 tons last year, and the deliveries do not compare very favourably. Holders, as a rule, do not press sales, but the parcels realised show a decline of ¼d. per lb. At this reduction, such supplies as offered have for the most part found buyers. Cloves have not sold readily, more especially within the last fortnight. Prices may be considered about 1-16d. easier, but there are not free sellers at any reduction. The stock has, however, filled up a trifle, and buyers for the moment do not take more than actual orders on hand compel. These remarks apply to Zanzibar Cloves. The few parcels of Penang and Amboyna on the market are held at firm rates. Cinnamon has undergone hardly any change. There have been but few parcels offering at the intermediate auctions, and to all such parcels as were offered previous limits were affixed. The demand was, however, slow, and but a small quantity found buyers. About 800 packages have been added to stocks in the course of the month. The several parcels of Cassia Lignea on the market for some time have been partly cleared off, but at decidedly lower prices, the decline on the month being 5s. to 8s. per cwt., the largest decline being on the better kinds. Cassia Vera has also sold lower by 3s. per cwt. Buds remain nominally unaltered.

Sago.—There has been no business. Of flour 200 bags Borneo have been sold at 14s. 3d. to 15s. each.

Sticklac.—The market is very quiet; 13 cases Siam offered at auction were withdrawn.

Star Aniseeds.—There is some inquiry, but no offers are made.

Tin.—A more active inquiry for Straits has sprung up during the past week, and the price has gradually advanced; the present quotation is £128, showing a rise of £8 to £8. 10s. upon last mail's rates.

Vermilion.—There is a moderate business doing in China at 3s. 2d. per lb.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

There is more animation in berth freights to the Eastern ports, but rates are without alteration; coal freights from the Northern outports have an upward tendency, and are firm at the undermentioned quotations.

Current rates of freight for vessels on the berth:—To Yokohama: 32s. 6d. weight, 35s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 120s. weight: 110s. meast. To Shanghai: 40s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 90s. weight, 80s. meast. To Hong Kong: 35s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Batavia: 25s. weight, 30s. meast. To Penang: per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Singapore: 30s. weight, 25s. to 30s. meast.; per steamer via Suez Canal, 70s. weight, 60s. meast. To Ceylon: 20s. to 25s. weight, 20s. meast; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 60s. meast At New York to China; $12 to $15 per ton of 40 cubic feet.

The current quotations for coal, &c., are as follows:—From Wear or Tyne per keel.—For Hiogo: £35. For Galle: £27. From Newport, Cardiff, or Swansea per ton.—For Hiogo: £1 14s. For Shanghai: £1 16s. For Hong Kong: £1 16s. For Singapore: £1 16s. For Galle: £1 6s.

Off Gibraltar.—July 25, Prins Hendrik der Nederlanden (s.), from Amsterdam, for Java.

At Port Said.—July 24, Eldon (str.), Asker, from Liverpool, and left for Shanghai.

At Ismailia (passed between 3rd and 9th August).—Delaware (str.), Liverpool to China, &c.; Ajax (str.), China to London.

At Suez.—Aug. 7, Ajax (str.), from China, &c., in tow; machinery disabled.

At St. Helena.—July 7, Lady Turner, Vincent, from Singapore, for New York; Vooruit, Logger, from Java, for Rotterdam; Zoraster, Baker, from Colombo, and cleared for London; 10, Chica, de Cucullo, from Manila, for Cadiz; 12, Clifton, Matthews, from Singapore for Boston; 13, Aline, Kier, from Batavia, for Channel.

Off St. Helena.—July 6, Maria y Dolores, from Manila.

At Table Bay.—June 29, Queen of the Seas, Haveron, sailed for Singapore.

At Simon's Bay.—June 30, Charles Auguste, Cogrel, from Hong Kong.

At Port Elizabeth.—July 1, Carl and Auguste, List, from Singapore to New York, put in there, June 19, for medical aid.

Advices from Port Elizabeth, dated July 1, state that the remainder of the damaged coffee ex Hanover, Burgess, from Colombo to London, had been sold.

The Benvenue, Penang to London, wrecked.—The work on the cargo having been discontinued, the ship being now greatly lightened, tenders are invited for raising the wreck, with the cargo remaining in her, consisting of rattans, slabs tin, &c.

CASUALTIES.

The Jacoba and Christina, from Amsterdam to Sourabaya, which put into Falmouth, July 26, with damages, in consequence of collision, has discharged a portion of her cargo, apparently in good condition, but will have to dock for repairs.

The Vooruit, lugger, from Java to Rotterdam, which arrived at St. Helena, July 7, was thrown on her beam ends and lost sails, rigging, and everything moveable from the deck, during a cyclone from N.W. to W.S.W., April 19, 14 S., 100 E.

The Galatea (ship), of Boston, Crowell, which arrived at New York, July 29, from Ilo Ilo, reported having struck on a coral reef, called Might's Shoal, near Balabak Straits, March 17, and had to throw overboard a portion of her cargo; she also lost anchors, hawsers, &c., but as she was not leaking, she proceeded. On April 20, 15 S. 99 E., she encountered a severe hurricane, commencing at W.N.W. and veering to N.N.E., E., S.E., and S.S.W., causing her to leak so as to keep one pump constantly going during the gale; from Mauritius to the Cape of Good Hope she was leaking about three inches per hour in heavy weather.

LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT OF MEAT.

FOUR GOLD MEDALS.

Supplied to the British, French, Prussian, Russian, Italian, Dutch, and other Governments. Dr. Lankester writes regarding Extract of Meat:—"But there is a difference in flavour, and here, as in all other kinds of food, it is the flavour that makes the quality." It is essentially on account of the fine meaty flavour, as distinguished from the burnt taste of other Extracts, that LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT defeated all Australian and other sorts at Paris, Havre, and Amsterdam, and is so universally preferred in all European markets.

One pint of fine-flavoured Beef-tea at 2½d. Most convenient and economic "stock."

CAUTION.—Require Baron Liebig's, the inventor's, signature on every jar, and ask distinctly for LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT.

As stated by the War Office, the assertion of an Australian Agent of solely supplying the British Government is proved to be nothing but an untrue statement.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

The most effectual remedy for Bowel Complaints and Disorders of the Stomach. At this season of the year, when these complaints are so prevalent, there is no better remedy than Holloway's Pills, whether as a preventive or cure. When taken in moderate doses, and strict attention be paid to diet, the worst cases will be relieved. The strengthening properties of these Pills restore the impaired tone of the stomach, and cleanse the liver. Nothing so good has been discovered for the cure of persons suffering from a long residence in hot climates, and they surpass every other medicine for general family use. They have the happiest effect on the stomach and secretions, promoting digestion, and gently stimulating the torpid bowels.

CAUTION.

THE GROSS FRAUDS which continue to be practised by obscure manufacturers, more particularly in Germany, by imitating the labels attached to JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s PERFUMERY, render it imperative upon the Proprietors to Caution the public against such nefarious proceedings, and to request their friends and patrons to purchase only of respectable dealers, who import direct from JOHN GOSNELL and Co., and invite special attention to the address, ANGEL-PASSAGE, 93, UPPER THAMES-STREET, late of 12, Three King-court, Lombard-street, London, E.C.

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vessels of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds. All superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

There are TWO DRY DOCKS, each capable of admitting two vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with depth of water ranging to 20 feet

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers. &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMONS, and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon-street, London, E.C.

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

War has broken out in the Awa provinces. Formerly the island f Awa-shima was independent of the Daimiate of Awa, but has since been annexed thereto, and become subject to the Daimio. But, on the death of the late Governor of the island, when his son was a boy of tender years, the Governorship was assumed by his uncle until lately, when the boy had reached his nineteenth year. A struggle for independence was then commenced by a massacre of about 1,400 natives of the province of Awa. In consequence, the Prince of Awa has declared his intention to put the island to the sword, and to spare no means for its subjugation.

We lately reported the possibility of the Korea being opened up to foreign commerce. It now appears that the Koreans have been encroaching on the territories of Satsuma, and otherwise infringing on some of its prerogatives. The foreign Ministers and naval commanders-in-chief in these waters have been invited to a conference thereon, the probable result of which will be the granting of foreign aid to Satsuma to obtain redress, upon such terms as will secure treaty advantages to foreigners. There is some talk about Simonoseki being thrown open to foreign trade by Chosiu, who is believed to be desirous to do so; and if the foreign Treaty Powers would agree with him personally in the matter, and not through the intervention of the Government, it would be quickly done. Events are hurrying on towards one goal,—throwing open the whole Empire to foreigners.

The telegraph line between Yokohama and Yedo has been thrown open to the public for the transmission of messages.

The American ship F. A. Palmer, which arrived on the 23rd June, experienced rough weather on her voyage from Hong Kong to San Francisco with 500 Chinese passengers, half of whom were attacked with violent smallpox. Infuriated by their sufferings, we hear that the latter had shown signs of mutinous disposition, and the captain bore up for this port for repairs, medical aid, and also for some assistance. The F. A. Palmer was encountered by a Japanese steamer, which towed her up to the harbour, but omitted to berth her, and, although timely representations were made to Sir Harry Parkes, the quarantine flag was still visible in the same position on the date of our advices. The ship is the property of an owner at St. Salvador, and claims protection of the American flag.

Great excitement was created in barracks by the loss of a little child, the son of Sergeant Gilbert, of H.M. 1st bat. 10th Regt. The boy, who was only four years old, not returning from school, it was feared that he had been kidnapped by the Japanese; such indeed proved to be the case, but, by the prompt kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Lynes, of Daibutz, the child was saved from that calamity, and restored to his parents. The woman who had stolen the child, a strong, well-dressed Japanese, has been handed over to the police.

The recent scarcity of rice naturally led to immediate imports, and, as usual, the trade has been overdone. The consequence is that prices have advanced at Saigon and declined here, until rice, which, perhaps, is not laid down here at a less cost, everything taken into account, than nearly $3 per picul, is saleable at little more than two-thirds of that price. The quotations to-day (June 15) are best round-grain Saigon, $2.25; middling, $2.15; long grain do., $1.80. Siam, $1.75 to 1.90. Even at these reduced prices demand is slack, and deliveries small. The profits made at the beginning of the rice-shipping season thus seem likely to be counterbalanced by the losses on late cargoes arriving at its end.

NAGASAKI.

JUNE 24, 1870.

My last, dated 14th inst., was sent via San Francisco. During the past ten days events have not been numerous.

The schooner Kiuoiu, which was built in Holland for the Japanese, has changed her flag, and now flies the Satsuma one in addition to the national one. The movements of the men-of-war have been as follows:—North German corvette Medusa, which arrived here from Hong Kong at the time of closing my last letter, sailed again on the 15th inst. for Yokohama. His Imperial Majesty's corvette Dupleix arrived on the 20th inst. from a cruise; this vessel' movements excited a little curiosity, as she is continually in and out of this port, and has gone out again this morning. Her Majesty's ship Salamis arrived here from Shanghai on the 13th inst., having on board Vice-Admiral Sir Henry Kellet, K.C.B., and left again for Yokomama on the 17th inst., after coaling. Her Britannic Majesty's gunboat Grasshopper remains in port.

The following has been issued here :—" Notice is hereby given, that this Consulate has been handed over to Max Militzer, Esq., who will take charge of the office as acting Consul for the North German Confederation. George Westphal, Esq., will discharge, during the temporary absence of Max Militzer, Esq., the official duties of the Consulate. (Signed) G. Schottler, Acting Consul for the North German Confederation. Nagasaki, June 17, 1870."

Besides the above I have to record the change in the Consulate of France. M. Roussel takes charge and supersedes M. Leon Dury.

The following has also been made public :—" In the matter of Rainbow, Lewis, and Co., bankrupts. This being the day appointed for a public sitting of the Court, adjourned from the 28th May, 1870, for the said bankrupts to pass their last examination, and also to make application for discharge under the Bankruptcy Act of 1861 (whereof, and of the purport whereof, the notice in that behalf was duly given), a public sitting was held before A. A. Annesley, Esq., H.B.M.'s acting Consul, Nagasaki, acting in prosecution of the said bankruptcy, when George Lewis, one of the above named bankrupts, passed his last examination, and made application for his discharge, and there being no opposition thereto it was adjudged by the Court that the said bankrupt was entitled to such discharge. The order of discharge will be signed and delivered out to the said bankrupt on the 11th July, 1870, provided no appeal be instituted before that time. H.B.M. Provincial Court, Nagasaki, 11th June, 1870."

Vessels loading and rate of freight to London the same as last advised. Exchange nominal. No arrivals or departures of vessels from the home side. Nebus have reached 436, at which price very few dollars are to be had.

Extracts from Nagasaki Newspapers.

Shipping List, June 18, 1870.—Our readers will be sorry to learn that Monsieur Léon Dury, who has resided in Nagasaki for the last eight years, and who has for a considerable time held the position of Consul to his Imperial Majesty, has been superseded by M. Roussel, who arrived here from Yokohama by the last Pacific mail steamer.

During the period that he has held office, and for which he received but a trifling emolument, he has at all times endeavoured, in the most zealous and praiseworthy manner, to discharge the duties imposed upon him with honour to his country and credit to himself; whilst his gentlemanly deportment and genial disposition have gained for him the goodwill and esteem of every foreigner in Nagasaki. The conscientious enthusiasm which he has always displayed, both in his private and official capacity, will render his loss the more keenly felt.

The tenure of Monsieur Roussel as Vice Consul at this port, we understand, will be limited, it being the intention of the Government to appoint merely a Consular agent who will receive no remuneration for his services.

We are informed that a meeting at the Club will be convened, in order that the residents may have an opportunity of expressing their sense of sorrow at his dismissal, their high appreciation of his services, and the friendly and cordial estimation in which he is held by all. Wherever his field of labour may be in the future, we feel assured that the same honesty of purpose, the same assiduity and perseverance, and the same urbanity, which have characterised him in Nagasaki, will be borne along with him, while those qualities which have so greatly endeared him to all here will ever be remembered with mingled feelings of pleasure and regret.

Two months ago the Japanese Government asked permission of the Consular body to allow them to have the names and places of residence of Japanese servants in the employ of foreigners registered; the object of which they then stated to be, their sure and ready apprehension in the event of robbery. The foreign Consuls, at the time seeing no objection, but rather considering it a very proper step, readily acquiesced, but the true motive of their project, and their apparent anxiety for the protection of the property of foreigners, has at last dawned upon us. The deceptive, as also the grasping propensities of the Government are exhibited in the fact of their demanding one tempo per month from each servant so registered, in return for which they receive a small wooden tablet. Some foreigners, we are informed, have allowed the amount to be paid, but the demand being in every way illegal, we trust that, should any officer from the Custom-House or elsewhere again request such a payment to be made, they will detain him pending inquiries being instituted as to whose authority he dare to make such an application. The census taken every year gives the Government every information they may require from their subjects, and, should they have any desire to replenish their now much impaired treasury, there are various honourable methods which they may adopt advantageously to themselves and others, but they must be taught that by imposition they will not be allowed to do so.

TIENTSIN.

THE TIENTSIN TRAGEDY.

The details of this barbarous affair, of which we were first apprised by a telegram through Grant's Circular Message, via Kiachta, have now been received. The information was first conveyed by the steamer Dragon to Shanghai, and from thence to Hong Kong by the steamer Nile, bound to London with teas. The North China Daily News of the 27th June published an extra, from which we gather that for several days there had been great excitement amongst the Chinese against foreigners at that place. It was openly said that the French Cathedral would be burnt and the foreigners exterminated. To a certain extent this is sadly verified. By a special courier overtaking the steamer Dragon, which left Tientsin on the afternoon of the 21st June, the news was conveyed that the French Consulate and French Cathedral were in flames; and that the French Consul, several other Frenchmen, and Sisters of Mercy had been murdered. H.M. gunboat Opossum was lying at Chefoo when this news arrived, and started at once (on the night of the 23rd) for Tientsin. The Dwarf left Shanghai for Tientsin, in consequence of this news, and the French gunboat Flamme follows. In the meantime the Aspic and Scorpion remain in Shanghai; and H.M. Zebra at Nagasaki has been requested to come over.

The steamers Manchu (Russell and Co. S. S. Navigation Company) and the Appin (Jardine's) were detained in Tientsin to give as much protection to foreign residents as possible. No cause is assigned for the murderous assault at Tientsin.

It is reported that M. Rochechouart, who holds the position of Charge d'Affaires at Peking, had been also a victim; but this is not so correctly ascertained as the other facts. One of the victims at Tientsin is stated to be a French medical man, but we have not learnt his name.

A meeting was held at Shanghai, convened by Sir Ed. Hornby (late commandant of the Volunteers), and resolutions passed thereat, in consequence of which the Volunteers were called out, in order to defend the settlement in the absence of the gunboats.

Mr. Mayers, acting Consul at Chefoo, writes on June 23 that he had received information from Tientsin of the outrage. He says :—As the information I have comes from Her Majesty's Consulate at Tientsin, there can be no question as to its authenticity, and although I have no power to order the Commander of the British steamer Dragon to proceed with all despatch to Shanghai, to convey the official communications which have been addressed by myself to Commander May, R.N., to H.M. Consular and Naval authorities at that port, I consider it eminently desirable that she should proceed with as little delay as possible.

A Shanghai paper says :—The news arrived at Shanghai at two P.M. on the 27th June, when the Nile was clearing for sea, and Capt. Wright immediately proffered his services to the English and French Consuls to bring down the intelligence to the senior officer on this station. He had no intention of calling at Hong Kong, as he was bound home with a full cargo, a large portion of which was engaged at the high freight of £6, on condition of his making the voyage in sixty days, and for the remainder he was under guarantee not to call anywhere until he reached the Red Sea. This guarantee was waived, however, in consideration of the urgency of the case, but the Nile is still to arrive in sixty days from Shanghai, or to lose £1 of her freight. Under these circumstances Captain Wright's offer to bring down the news must be thoroughly appreciated, utterly disinterested as it is, and proceeding from motives of pure courtesy and humanity. The offer was duly appreciated by the French Consul.

Another account of the tragedy is from a correspondent at Shanghai.

A startling piece of news has just come in from Tientsin, by the steamer Dragon, sent in specially for assistance, that the French Cathedral and Consulate at Tientsin have been burnt down, and the French Consul and six Sisters of Charity killed. There was, unfortunately, no gunboat at Tientsin at the time, so Mr. Lay, the Consul, was organising the defence of the English Settlement against attack. This attack has followed close upon the outbreak at Nanking. The same accusations were brought against the French missionaries of kidnapping children; but none know better than the Chinese themselves the untruth of these charges. This fact, together with the murder of the Consul and others said to be killed, convinces me that these affairs are got up for plunder, and afford a plausible pretext for attacking foreigners and looting their houses. It is to be hoped that the French will take summary measures of reprisal for these murders, and not sit down under them like Lord Clarendon, who is morally guilty of these slaughters of unoffending people. The affair began at Nanking, when the English missionaries had to fly, as they knew they could get no help, owing to Lord Clarendon's instructions, which give up a distinct treaty right. Had the Chinese thought that these outrages would be avenged, they would never have committed them. The English gunboat Opossum has gone to Tientsin from Chefoo, and the Dwarf left here for the same destination two hours after the news arrived. The Zebra has been sent for to Nagasaki, where she went a few days ago. There are three French gunboats in harbour, and they will doubtless hurry to the scene of danger. A public meeting is to be held here to-morrow, for the purpose of organising a volunteer force for the defence of Shanghai.

My opinion is that without a respectable naval force in the Gulf of Pechelee there will never be any satisfactory relations with the Court of Peking. The only thing likely to arouse the Government at home would be the massacre of their Minister at Peking, not at all an unlikely event. Much anxiety is felt here for the foreigners at Peking, as should an outbreak take place there they would be unable to defend themselves. I only wonder that they have not massacred them long ago. It appears that this affair at Tientsin has been meditated for some time, and has been known to the Chinese here. The Canton men are in a state of excitement, as they have much valuable goods stored at Tientsin, and advantage may be taken by the mob to loot their stores, as the Canton men are as much foreigners at Tientsin as we are. It appears from the correspondent of the Daily News that the Sisters of Mercy have been purchasing children for the foundling institutions, which I have always looked upon as dens of murder. The children in those institutions all die before they reach two years of age. It is the custom of the Chinese not to attack foreigners without some specious cause, which, if not actually existing, can soon be found. Kidnapping is an institution in China as brigandage in Italy and Greece, but missionaries have never taken any part in it. Children can be bought for sixpence each, or eight for a dollar, that is cheaper than fowls, which are three for a dollar. These children are bought that they may be entered as converts to Christianity, but as they all die I cannot perceive how it benefits them.

The China Mail of 7th July says:—It is needless to say that great excitement prevails in Hong Kong, and that the preparations which are being made by our military and naval authorities for active work should necessity arise meets with the unqualified approbation of men of all nationalities, not excepting even the Chinese.

A military force from the garrison of Hong Kong is under orders to proceed at a moment's notice to the scene of the disturbances in the North. The force will consist of 200 men of H.M.'s 75th Regiment, 300 men of the 29th M.N.I., two batteries of Royal Artillery, and a small detachment of the Commissariat Staff Corps. Colonel Gore, it is said, has volunteered to command the troops; and Captain Sexton, R. A., will be commander of the Artillery batteries.

It is a curious fact that two foreign officers who stand probably highest in the Foreign Inspectorate of Customs—viz., Mr. Robert Hart (Inspector-General), and Baron de Meritens—should be at Hong Kong at the present crisis. Captain Forbes, R.N., Inspector of Marine, is also here, or at Canton, at present.

When the news reached Shanghai, Consul Medhurst at once despatched fifteen police from that port (ten English and five French) as a small quota of a protecting force.

A rumour is in circulation here that the attacking Chinese, after their bloody operations had been got through at the French Consulate, were on their way to the English Consul's residence, when they were intercepted by the Tartar-General. This, however, is only a rumour, the origin of which is not easily accounted for. French troops are expected to be brought up from Cochin China.

SHANGHAI.

The outward mail of May 12 arrived out on June 24. Dates are down to 1st July.

A correspondent of the North China Herald, with regard to the kidnapping of children, says there has been a great mortality amongst the children, both at the Teen-choo-tang and at the Yen-tsze-tang, during most of this spring; and some of the Chinese inhabitants residing near these places having seen, every now and then, coffins leaving the missions for the burial ground, various surmises sprang up as to the cause of the deaths. The rumour having got current that the priests and sisters had destroyed the children for the sake of getting their eyes, some people proceeded at night to the burial ground and dug up the coffins; and rumour declares that they found two or three bodies in the coffins, the eyes of which had been extracted. No foreigner would believe for a moment that the priests or the sisters themselves would be guilty of such an act; still, the mass of the Chinese people actually credit this, and the consequence is that there is now a bitter feeling of animosity on the part of the people of Tientsin against both the Roman Catholic priests and the sisters of charity. There is no doubt in my mind, judging from what I have heard from time to time regarding the Chinese connected with the Roman Catholic missions, that the priests and sisters have in their service some of the greatest scoundrels in China, the acts of whom cause the Roman Catholics to be intensely hated by the Chinese people generally. It is really dangerous for a foreigner, who was a stranger to the people, to walk through the streets of this city. I am told that even Dr. Fraser, who had been at the hospital of the sister of charity, was obliged to fly home to the settlement, the manner of the people being of such a threatening character. I have not heard that any of the foreign mercantile people were interfered with in the smallest way. The people of the city appear to hate only the missionary class. The present state of affairs at Tientsin does not speak favourably as to the measures the priests have pursued to propagate the morality of Christ amongst the Chinese people; the result clearly showing that there has been something extremely rotten in their system, as the Chinese people cannot distinguish their followers from kidnappers for brothels, and ruffians of that class.

The China Mail says:—Briefly the position is this—1 There is a belief at Nanking that kidnapping abounds, and that the practice is encouraged by foreigners. 2. The local authorities offer $100 reward for the discovery of kidnappers, consequently the popular belief that the practice is real is established. 3. Concurrently with this official endorsement of the popular belief is increased the animosity against foreigners, who are believed to be the only kidnappers. 4. Now the only foreigners in Nanking are missionaries, of French and English nationalities, and the head of the latter is Mr. Taylor, who has already been identified with the Yanchow outrage, when his property was destroyed, and the lives of himself, wife and family, placed in imminent danger Recognising the old familiar signs of tumult, he withdrew his mission from the city, and left it to the French missionaries to bear the whole brunt of the "difficulty."

Mr. Taylor must be acquitted of any charge of pusillanimity in retiring from his post when it became endangered. He knew that The Times would be ready with its pronunciamento if, in defending himself against unlawful violence, he gave occasion for the interference of the "inevitable gunboat."

Sir Edmund Hornby presided, on the 28th June, at a meeting for the re-establishment of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps, which was attended by about 130 gentlemen. It having been resolved that the Shanghai Volunteer Corps should be resuscitated, and the Rifle Club invited to join as the first company, about one-half of those present signed the muster-roll before leaving the meeting.

The third annual meeting of the Union Steam Navigation Company was held on the 28th June, at the offices of Messrs. Glover, Dow, and Co., when the report and accounts of the directors were passed. The net profits for the past year as set down were Tls. 39,655; of which Tls. 18,503 was absorbed by an interim dividend at the half-yearly meeting of 6 per cent., and a return of 5 per cent. on freight to contributing shareholders. The report proposed a further dividend of 6 per cent. and return of 5 per cent., Tls. 2,000 to reserve, and the balance to new account. Mr. L. H. Stoddard was appointed general manager from the 19th June, 1870, to the 30th September next, in place of Messrs. Glover, Dow, and Co., pending arrangements for changing the company into a public company.

We have received further particulars bearing on the history of the kidnapping affair. It appears that a dead body was found in the city of Nanking in a horribly mutilated state. This circumstance caused great excitement, as it was at once connected with the idea of the mutilations having been made for necromantic purposes. Certain draining operations were at the time going on in the Roman Catholic premises, and this and the well-known practice of the Catholic missionaries of sending children from Nanking to the orphanages at Shanghai, soon brought out in an exaggerated form all the customary superstitions of the people in connection with missionary operations.

Mr. Hudson Taylor, who had moved his party away from the city, left one representative there, and it is remarked that the Protestant mission has entirely escaped the popular hostility.

The exact number of persons beheaded for kidnapping is eighteen. All accounts agree that the commotion is fast subsiding; so much so, that at Chinkiang and other places the children are returning to the missionary schools.

During her recent cruise after pirates among the islands at the mouth of the Yangtse, the Chinese gunboat Chowkiang hoisted the flag of the English Mercantile Marine to lull the suspicions of the pirates, by making them believe that she was merely an English merchant steamer passing through. Having landed on various islands the crew apprehended about thirty of the inhabitants, whom, they proceeded to torture in order to extract evidence. These poor wretches were accordingly hung up by the fingers and by the toes; and one woman, who was believed to be the wife of one of the pirates, was severely flogged and had her fingures broken in a kind of rack. It is true that these atrocities were put in practice after dark, when the British flag was hauled down, but they were practised on board a steamer which was carrying the British flag all the time that a flag was visible, and which the sufferers therefore believed to be a British vessel. We understand that sworn information of the above facts having been laid before H. B. M.'s Consul, he has represented the matter to Peking protesting against it.

The Evening Courier of June 30 says that the mail had been postponed to July 1. A traveller returning from Chinkiang reports that things continue quiet there, though symptoms of the recent excitement are still to be seen in the surly bearing of the Chinese towards foreigners. This is especially marked at Yangchow. He saw on all the dead walls within the city at Chinkiang large yellow placards on which was inscribed in large characters, "Beware of the kidnappers! The kidnappers are coming!"

H.M.S. Adventure, arrived from Japan, will, it is understood, remain here until the arrival of the Zebra.

The Yangtse this year presents a singular phenomenon. The water at Hankow has reached a rise of thirty-eight feet above its lowest level last winter. But below Kiukiang the rise is great, out of all proportion to that at Hankow; in fact, it is already as high as the highest point of the flood of 1866. This is naturally attributed to some abnormal elevation of the waters of the Poyang Lake, but how this elevation has been produced no one seems able to explain.

Several changes have taken place in the S. S. N. Company.

The new steamer Moning has taken the name of Hupeh, the former name both as written and spoken bearing such a resemblance to that of their other steamer Moyune as might lead to mistakes. The following changes have been made in the command of various steamers:—Captain George Choate Johnston, late of the Moyune, takes command of the Hupeh, Captain Jayne, who has just brought out the latter steamer, gets the Shanse, Captain Hawse, of the Shanse is transferred to the Shantung, Captain Friend, of the Shantung takes the Moyune, Captain Lloyd, of the Hangchow takes the Fusiyama, and Captain Harman takes the Hangchow.

The result of Mr. Bisset's sale on the 24th was as follows:—

Hooper's estate, corrugated Iron Godown, bought in at Tls 2,200. Mr. Alex. Cock's estate. Lot of land on river side below Messrs. Gibb, Livingston and Co.'s wharf—10 mow 5 fun brought Tls. 28½ per mow. 5 shares Shanghai Gas Company—Tls. 119.00 each. Winchurst's estate. Quarter interest in unexpired portion of 10 years lease of land, and 73 Chinese houses built thereon Tls. 6.00. For account of concerned. 8 mow land near Camden-place, Hongkew; Tls. 11.00 per mow. 14 mow land near Lindsay's Wharf, Pootung, Tls. 14 per mow. 12 mow land west of Groom's Bungalow, Bubbling Well-road, Tls. 2,000 for lot. 1 mow 7 fun in Nanzing-road, Hongkew, with six-roomed Chinese house thereon, Tls. 500. 2 mow 6 fun on east of Woosung-road, Hongkew, Tls. 305. 10 mow east of Dow's Godowns, with river frontage, Tls. 30 per mow. 20 mow at Woosung, with river frontage, Tls. 12 per mow. The lot measuring 2 mow 8 fun, on part of which the Lyceum stands, together with the house built thereon, known as "Macao Buildings," was bought in for Tls. 7,000.

The Courier points out the omission of Mr. Medhurst's name in the list of Consuls recommended by Sir Rutherford Alcock for an increase in salary. We quite agree with the Courier that of all the consular servants Mr. Medhurst deserved the most to be remembered.

Mr. Ray has resigned his post as Harbour-master, and goes home by next mail. Mr. Jaques, of the Customs, leaves also for England at the same time, on eighteen months' leave. Mr. Hart left a few days ago for Swatow, having decided, before his departure, to turn the tonnage dues of Amoy at last into their proper channel. A lighthouse is to be erected in Chapel Island, where it is much required by navigators both up and down the coast. Mr. Boyce, of the British Government Board of Works Department, has also left for Swatow, having ordered the interpreter's house here to be partially pulled down and rebuilt. When this building and the new offices and gaol are finished it is said that Amoy will have sufficient accommodation for any consular staff likely to be required.

The removal of the consular offices to Koolangsoo in very inconvenient to commercial men, the more so as the new Custom House in course of erection is in Amoy. The Leekim people are more obstructive than ever, so much so as to justify the fear of a collision. A few days ago a boat belonging to Messrs. Tait and Co., of this place, was stopped in the harbour, in open day, by the Lakini people; and baskets containing tiffin, &c., were overhauled, under the excuse of searching whether any opium or other contraband articles were concealed in them. On the same night the watchman in charge of their premises was assaulted by an armed body of Leekim rowdies. It is impossible to describe adequately the espionage to which the merchants are subjected by these people. Goods are not allowed to be taken ten yards from their doors without being at once reported, and made to pay the tax. Spies are constantly in and out of the merchants' compounds, reporting stocks, &c., to the Leekim officers. The effect of this system is as injurious as it is humiliating; not only are our pockets taxed, but our self-respect is insulted. I am, however, inclined to think that a crisis is impending. What should be done is to compel the Central Government to pay better salaries to their local officials, and severely punish them when they are detected in "squeezing"—an abuse which, since the Customs revenue has been remitted to Peking, has been much resorted to by way of making up for the reduced incomes of the employés.

I do not wish to say a word against the Foreign Customs in general; it is in its local application to Amoy, under the present system, that it is radically vicious.

It is useless in China to attempt to effect partial reforms. Let the Octroi duties be levied in China, as in Europe, at a moderate and fixed tariff, approved by all the Treaty Powers, and let any official detected in fraudulent exaction be condignly punished, besides being dismissed, and we may reasonably hope for a better state of things. But while the present abuses are suffered to remain at the root of the evil, piece-meal legislation will be in vain.

HONG KONG.

The London mail of May 27 arrived out on July 3. Dates are now down to the 7th.

The account of the arrival of the news from Tientsin is given under Tientsin:—

Mr. Robert Hart, Chief Inspector of Customs, has received the honour of the Grand Cross of Francis Joseph, for services rendered to the Austrian Embassy, in the framing and passing of the Austro-Hungarian Treaty with China.

A new rule has been laid down by Mr. Hart, the Inspector-General, by which any master or officer of a steamer assisting in the capture of smuggled opium is entitled to receive one half of the sum realised by the sale. The first to benefit by the rule is Captain Ashton, of the Yesso, who discovered about 30,000 dollars worth of opium concealed on board his vessel, and receives, on reporting it, half of the total. Captain Ashton was severely handled, while making the seizure, by the Chinese owners of the drug.

The Hon. P. Ryrie has been elected Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, the Hon. James Whittall having declined to accept the post. The samples of cotton yarn and piece goods brought from England to Bombay by the steamer Danube, via the Suez Canal, have also been received by the Hong Kong Chamber. They are good, though not of the best material, and are interesting principally because of the remarkable expedition which enters into all mercantile affairs in these days. They were forwarded by Messrs. Learoyd, of Huddersfield.

The time of departure of the English homeward mail from July 21 has been fixed at noon, instead of nine A.M. on the advertised days.

The Rev. D. Vrooman, U.S. Consular Interpreter, has been elected Acting Consul at Canton to fill the post of the late Col. Chenoweth, until such time as the Consul-General at Shanghai shall make proper arrangements for filling the vacancy. Mr. Vrooman is an old resident of Canton, a thorough Chinese scholar, and well versed in Consular duties.

Section B of Marine Lot 132, Bonham Strand, with the house thereon, was sold by Mr. Armstrong for $1,650. The British barque Navarino was purchased by a Chinaman on the 30th for $5,200.

The China Mail says:—It is our painful duty to record the death of Mr. Thomas Hunt, formerly of Whampoa, who died at Salem on the 21st of May, in his sixty-fifth year. Mr. Hunt was one of the pioneers of Southern China, and before the cession of Hong Kong acted as U. S. Vice-Consul.

We have advices from Takao (Formosa) that the total exports of sugar this year exceed all those of former seasons. From 1st January the export of sugar from Takao and Taiwan is estimated at 600,000 piculs despatched by the three foreign firms in Formosa. The export of rice, sessamum seeds, &c., is also reported to be considerably in excess of former years. It is said that $50,000 will be appropriated for the removal of some sand banks and the construction of new piers and other improvements in this port.

The celebration of the 4th July by the American members of our community passed off quietly, but enthusiastically. A salute was fired at twelve o'clock by the American steamer Ashuelot, responded to by the Princess Charlotte and the other men-of-war in harbour. A reception was held by Lieut. Col. Goulding, the American Consul.

The Italian corvette Principessa Clotilde, which proceeded to Batavia and the Island of Borneo in search of a suitable location for the proposed Italian colony in the East, has arrived at Saigon, where orders awaited her to proceed to Yokohama to protect the Italian merchants trading with the Japanese in silkworms. She is expected to return here in October. Can her visit to Yokohama have any connection with the proposed Korean Expedition?

BORNEO.

SARAWAK.

From what is termed the Government Gazette of Sarawak we learn that an expedition of 11,000 Malays and Dyaks, commanded by H.H. the Rajah of Sarawak, started in the beginning of June to attack a large body of Dyaks who were living up a small and dangerous stream named Katibas, a tributary of the Rejang, and under Sarawak rule. This stream, which is only accessible for small boats, has been infested for the last year by Dyaks, who have defied Government authority, and persisted in taking the herds of Malays, Chinese, and, in fact, all persons not belonging to their own circle. They are nearly related to the tribe inhabiting the head of the Kapuas, or Pontianak River, under the rule of the Netherlands Government; and, as the force approached, were largely reinforced from that direction. After several days of excessively hard labour in pulling and poling the 300 boats over the rapids and shoals, and having been four days in the heart of the enemy's country, the force returned, having completely accomplished their object in in burning and destroying all the houses and property belonging to the enemy. The loss on the Sarawak side was forty killed and many wounded; the casualties on the part of the enemy are not exactly known, but they must have suffered heavily. It is expected that this expedition will be the means of bringing these decapitating Dyaks to their senses, and enabling traders to develop the resources of these primitive lands, which abound in guttapercha, camphor, beeswax, rattans, hard wood, &c. &c.

The Rejang District contains a population of from seventy to eighty thousand, the principal part of whom are friendly and well disposed; and trade for some years has been rapidly increasing. Once clear of head-hunters, there will be a line of traffic by this river direct into the centre of the island of Borneo. The main river is navigable for steamers for about 160 miles, above which rapids have to be passed by boats. The inland tribes speak many different tongues, and make trading voyages about twice a year to the Government station, Sibu, about sixty miles from the mouth of the Rejang. The Rajah was accompanied by Messrs. Paul, Chapman, Skelton, Nelson, and Low, officers in charge of outstations in the Sarawak territory.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this opportunity extend to July 15. On the 5th the P. and O. steamer Hindostan arrived with the English mail of the 3rd June, and on the 10th the M.I. steamer Imperatrice arrived with the mail of the 10th June.

There are no matters of political interest to report. H.E. the Governor was absent on a visit to the native rulers along the east coast of the Malay peninsula, though whether with any political end in view has not been made public. The Legislative Council had not yet resumed its sittings, but the shorthand report of the meeting on the 20th ult., which was chiefly occupied by the debate on the second reading of the Preservation of the Peace Bill, has been published. The acting Attorney-General made a telling speech in favour of the Bill.

The Straits Times says that two more tea steamers have passed through here, homeward bound, via the Suez Canal—the Ajax on the 3rd, and the United Service on the 6th; the Nile will probably arrive here to-day (18th). Arrivals of outward steamers via the Canal have been few. The Nestor arrived here on the 2nd inst., the Chieftain on the 7th, and the Hipparchus yesterday. The passage of the last-named vessel is the quickest made between England and this port since the opening of the Canal, having occupied only forty days; she left Liverpool on the 4th of June, and arrived at Singapore on the 14th July.

Monday, the 4th inst., being the ninety-fourth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence of America, was the occasion of a most unusual display of bunting at the Fort Canning flagstaff, with the American ensign uppermost. The United States Consul here entertained the Foreign Consuls, the Government officials, and some of the principal residents, at a tiffin at the Hotel d'Europe, in honour of the day.

Commercial Report.

STRAITS, JAVA, AND CHINA IMPORTS.

SHANGHAI.—Business generally had been brought almost to a standstill by advices of the massacre at Tientsin. Grey Shirtings: A decline in price, immediately after the departure of last mail, led to transactions of some magnitude. But the desire to sell was too strong, and rates daily became worse. In heavier kinds there had been scarcely any business, and quotations were nominal. Some auction sales of mildews had supplied the demand. White Shirtings: Barter transactions reported, quotations lower. T-Cloths: Some large sales of Mexican quality, at rates which compare unfavourably with those ruling when last mail left. Best goods worth nominally only Tls. 1.71 per piece. Drills: Market utterly demoralised; each transaction established a further concession to buyers. Jeans: Also lower. Fancy Cottons: The very low prices at which Chintzes and Velveteens were offering had induced buyers to operate in those fabrics. In other kinds of fancies business trifling. Woollens: The following actual sales will best illustrate the state of the Woollen market. Long Ells, Assorted, Tls. 5.50 per piece; Spanish Stripes, Tls. 44 per yard; Camlets, SS, Tls. 10.40 per piece. In Lustres and Lastings very little done, quotations nominal. Transactions in Crape Lastings at Tls. 5.50 per piece, cash, had more than satisfied the demand. Metals.—Iron: Market extremely quiet; sales only 8,000 bundles, at Tls. 2.10 per picul for fair to good assortments, and Tls. 2.20 per picul for small sizes. Lead: Quotations nominally unaltered, but a few parcels of L.B. were only waiting fair offers to find sellers; no correct rate could be obtained. Coals—Cardiff: A small cargo afloat sold at Tls. 8.3.5 per ton. Lower offers made for another ship cargo. English: A cargo afloat sold at Tls. 6.2.5 per ton. American: No sales; and without inquiry.

HANKOW.—Grey Shirtings: The bulk of the sales made at the rates last quoted, but the serious fall advised from Shanghai had led to a corresponding decline, and closing rates were Tls. 1.85 to 1.90 for 7 lbs., Tls. 2.16 to 2.25 for 8½ lbs., and Tls. 2.45 to 2.65 per piece for 9 to 10lbs. T-Cloths: But little doing, only fine Mexican commanded any attention. 7 lbs., 3 to 4 candareens; lower 8 lbs., unchanged. Drills: Also lower, with only moderate sales of Dutch at Tls 2.90 to 3.29, and English at Tls. 3.20 to 3.30 per piece, American Tls. 3.50 to 3.60, nominal. Jeans, quoted Tls. 3.30 to 3.40 per piece. Fancy and Dyed Cottons: Quite neglected, qotations nominal. Woollen and Worsteds.—Camlets: Holders willing to accept lower rates, but could not make sales. Long Ells: A large quantity bartered against Tea, reoffered for sale on the market at very low rates. Spanish Stripes: Also bartered, ordinary sales impracticable. Medium and Broad Cloths: No sales. Figured Orleans: No enquiry.

HONG KONG.—A fair amount of business had been done during the fortnight, but sales had been of a more or less forced character, on account of the strong necessity that existed for making room for the heavy supplies that came into this market. Cotton Yarn: Early in the fortnight finest quality 16-24 realised $140 to 142; ordinary, about $135 per bale, but since there had been a sale at $132.50 per bale, showing the weakening tendency created by anxiety to sell. A few lots of 28-32's moved at very inadequate rates, $140 to 145 for good to best spinnings; 38-42's declined, owing to large supplies, and were fully $5 per bale lower. Grey Shirtings: Less inquiry for both 7 lbs. and 84. lbs., but holders being anxious to sell, a further concession of about 5 cents per piece all round had been made. White Shirtings: Little or no inquiry. Grey T-Cloths: Common 7 lbs. sold at $2 per piece; fine qualities also receded; a sale of 3,000 pieces 6 lbs. at $1.80, and some 36 in. 8 lbs. had been forced off at $2.55 per piece. Grey Twills: Small sales of Dutch at $4.25 for 15 lbs. American and English not inquired for. Dyed and Fancy Cottons—Handkerchiefs: Some 3,800 dozen changed hands at irregular prices. Woollen Cloths: More doing in medium; German importation had the preference with buyers. Spanish Stripes: A small sale of Scarlet at 92 cents per yard. Long Ells: A further fall must be noted. Sales of H quality Scarlet at $7 05; Assorted at $14.50 per piece. Camlets: Further small sales of SS at $14.50 per piece. Lastings: No improvement; small lots moved at $15.35 to $14.75 per piece, according to quality. Metals: Nail Rod Iron firmly held for prices which dealers would not pay. Flat Bar taken at $2.45 per picul. Wire neglected. Steel, nothing doing. Tin Plates sold at last quotation. Quicksilver quiet, but firm. Lead: Several re-sales of L.B. at $5.50 per picul, and of W.B. at $5 70 per picul. Quotations:—Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.45 to 2.47½; 8-4 lbs., $2.82½ to 2.87½; 9 to 10 lbs., $3 to $3.80, White Shirtings, $2.30 to 3.40; Finer qualities, $4. T-Cloths, 6 lbs., 32 inch., $1.77½ to 2; 7-lbs., 32 inch., $1.97½ to 2.37½; 8 to 8.4 lbs., 36 inch., $2.50 to 2.60.

BATAVIA.—The following is from Messrs. Hunter, Houghton, and Co.'s Circular: Cambrics, 45 inches by 12 yards: Not much doing; Stocks of 15/16s continue large; best, f.4.80 to f 4.90: medium, f.4.70 to f.4.75; ordinary, f.4.50 to f.4.60 per piece. No. 24s less sought for, but at f.3 to f 3¼ per piece. White Shirtings, 40 yards: Demand for 45 inch continues slight, no advance established; 40/41 inch scarce, and held for higher rates; 35 inch, 64/66 reeds, in better demand, at f.8¾ to f.9 per piece. Grey Shirtings, 38½ yards: Both Dutch and English have assumed a better appearance, stocks being small, and holders generally firm for an advance; 39 inch 7 lbs. at f.7⅛ to f.7¾; 8¼ lbs., f.8½ to f.8¾; 45 inch 8 lbs., f.8⅝ to f.8¼ per piece. Maddapollams, 24 yards, without material change. Dutch White, 33/34 inch, f.5¼ to f.5½; 40/41 inch, f.6 to f.6.30 per piece; English Grey, 3 lbs., 32/33 inch, f.3 to f.3⅜, short credit. Prints: New designs readily placed, but not at any advance; Pink Pads, f. 7¾ to f.8¼, according to printing and cloth; Purple Pads, f.7¼ to f.7½; Green Grounds, f.7¼ to f.7⅜; Steams, f.4¼ to f.5 per piece. Printed Jacconets, 9/8 by 24 yards: Can only be placed at low rates. Dyed Madapollams, 9/8 by 24 yards: Orange is in less demand, at f.4 to f.4¼ per piece, short credit; other colours neglected. Twist in small supply, demand not very active; 40s, f.450 to f.455; 30s, f.395 to f.400; 24s, f.375 to f.380; 20s, f.340 to f.350 per bale.

SINGAPORE.—We take the following from Messrs. Boustead and Co.'s Report:—The arrivals with general cargoes during the fortnight are the s.s. Nestor, Malacca, and Hipparchus from Liverpool, and Roslin Castle from Glasgow. 30-inch Grey Shirtings: Demand limited—quotations lower; 8¼ lb. placed at $2.85 to 2.82½; 7 lb., at $2.40 to 2.37½; 6 lb., $2.07½ to 2.05. 45-inch: Supplies large—sales very trifling; quotations are nominal. 32-inch Grey T-Cloths: Little change; Transactions moderate, at about last quotations, but offers slightly lower. 4 lb., $1.27½ to 1.30; 4½ lb., $1.37½ to 1.40; 5 lb., $1.52½ to to 1.55; 6 lb., $1.77½ to 1.80; and 7 lb., $2 to 2.05. 32-inch Grey Madapollams: Little inquiry; sales made with difficulty at low rates. Quotation, $19½ to 20 for 2¾ lb., and $20½ to 21 for 3 lb. 36-inch Grey Long Cloths: Total absence of demand—quotations nominal. 36-inch White Shirtings in limited inquiry, and to effect sales lower prices accepted, with full stocks holders anxious to realise. Sales of low at $1.85 to 1.90. 45-inch: Business very small. White Spots: Late demand supplied, and transactions limited. White Cambrics quite neglected. No. 24's, 16 by 16, quoted $19½ to 19¾; 18 by 18, $20 to 20¼; No. 15/16s', $30¼. White Jacconets and White Madapollams unsaleable. Dyed Shirtings very dull. Nothing doing in Velvets. Turkey Red Cambrics: Small sales reported at $2 07½ for 2¼ lb., and $2.65 for 3¼ lb. Woollens: Camlets unsaleable. Scarlet Long Ells quoted nominally $7.75 for 1 lb. All Wool Lastings, Scarlet Bombazetees, Spanish Stripes, and Brocade Lustres no inquiry. Grey Yarns placed to a very moderate extent at slightly lower rates. 18's to 24's, $102 50 to 135; stocks large. 30's, $125 to 127.50; 40's, $132.50 to 135, but small sales of inferior $130 to 131. Turkey Red Yarn, Glasgow dye, in fair demand, at $140 to 142.50 for 10½ lb., and $150 to 152.50 for 12 lb. Copper Sheathing and Yellow Metal easier, but fair sales of the latter at $20 to 20¼. Iron: Actual business not large; several inquiries at lower rates than holders would accept. Of large Flat Bar sales at $2.40 to 2.50. Sales of Pig Lead at $5·60 to 5.65.

PENANG.—During the fortnight the Piece Goods market had been exceptionally dull, the quantities disposed of had been but small, and prices of nearly all articles had again declined. Grey Shirtings difficult to move. Only unimportant sales of 6 lbs., at $43 to 42; 7 lbs., at $40 to 47; 8½ lbs., at $59 to 57 per corge. Grey Long Cloths inactive; a few sales of 7½ lbs. at $50 per corge, cash. Madapollams not moved. T-Cloths few buyers; small sales of 6 lbs. at $38, and 7 lbs. at $42 to $43 per corge. White Shirtings: Finer qualities very hard to move, lower qualities easier, but only small quantities taken at $59½ to 83½, according to quality. A few 45-inch disposed of at $77 per corge. White Cambrics not in request. Low, $20¼ and 20; medium to fine, $26½ and 26 per corge; Nos. 15/16, $31 and 31½. Yarn not improved. Grey Mule very weak; sales of No. 30 at $125 and 124; No. 40, at 135½ per bale of 400 lbs. Sales of Turkey Red, No. 20/22, at $130; No 40, at $145 and 144 per bale of 200 lbs. A few bales of Imperial Red, No. 40, disposed of at $75 and 74, and of Green, No. 40, at $80 per bale of 200 lbs. Iron: Sales of Nail Rod at $2.55 per picul. Pig Lead disposed of at $5.60 to 6; Sheet, at $6¼ per picul. Yellow Metal at $21½ and 23 per picul.

STRAITS, JAVA, AND CHINA EXPORTS.

TEA.

Shanghai.—Black: A very large business transacted during the fortnight, and shipments of purchases made at the river ports had also assumed important dimensions. Prices opened at a decline of about four taels on those previously current, but since then part of this decline had been recovered. Medium Teas had shown a drooping tendency, as also had common, and both classes must be considered nearly three taels down. Purchases had shown shown great and unusual irregularity even for the Shanghai market. The stock embraced many characterless parcels, and was bountiful and indifferent. Settlements for the fortnight, 56,500 chests; Reshipments on owners' account, 39,500 chests; Stock, 288 chops, or 92,000 packages. Quotations, duty paid (exchange for credits, six months' sight, at 0s. 2d. per tael, and freight at £3 per ton). Hohow, common to fine, Tls. 21½ to 31, equal to 1s. 3s. to 1s. 9d.; Oonam and Oanfaa, common to fine, Tls. 19 to 30, equal to 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 8½d.; Ningchow, fair to fine, Tls. 24 to 34, equal to 1s. 4¾d. to 1s. 11d.; Oopack, fair to fine, Tls. 22 to 29½, equal to 1s. 3½d. to 1s. 8½d. Green: A good business had been done in new Pingsueys during the fortnight, resulting in the settlement of 14,734 half-chests. The few chops of fine Teas that had come to hand had realised very full rates. Quotations for whole chops, Tls. 33 to 40; fine lines in boxes, Tls. 45 to 47. Settlements for the fortnight, 15,406 chests; Re-shipments on owners' account, 579 chests; Stock, 10 chops, or 9,818 packages, and 5,387 half-chests of old Tea.

Hankow.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer, and Co. report as follows:—Our market continues to exhibit almost the same features as last year. The opening of the Shanghai market at higher rates than could be obtained here has raised the hopes of Teamen, and they have been very firm. This, combined with a sharp rise in exchange, has led to a comparatively small business. The last day or two buyers seem to have given way a little, latest settlements, considering quality, showing a slight advance in prices. Since we last advised, 18,000 chests, 4,400 half-chests, 1,250 boxes have been settled at from 13 to 25¾ taels, against last year, during same period, 35,000 chests, 2,200 half-chests, and 1,700 boxes, at 12½ to 24 taels. Owing to the haste of native holders to place their teas on the Shanghai market our stock has been greatly reduced, and consists now chiefly of common and low medium sorts. Teamen report a probable falling off of first crop Teas of 35,000 packages. During the fortnight, shipments on native account are 50,000 packages, and since the opening 96,000 packages, against 97,500 in 1869. We quote Oopacks and Oonfars, fair to medium, 14 to 20 taels; medium to fine, 20 to 26 taels. In Shuntams, one or two small sales have been made at Tls. 13 to 14½. Settlements from 10th June to date are:—3,200 chests and 400 half chests, at Tls. 13 to 15, equal, at exchange 6/4, freight £3, to 1s. 0¾d. to 1s. 2½d.; 1,700 chests and 1,400 half-chests, at Tls. 16 to 17¾, equal, at exchange 6/4, freight £3, to 1s. 2¾d. to 1s. 4½d.; 3,700 chests and 1,000 half-chests, at Tls. 18 to 19¾, equal, at exchange 6/4, freight £3, to 1s. 4¾d. to 1s. 5½d.; 9,100 chests and 1,600 half-chests, at Tls. 20 to 25¾, equal, at exchange 6/4, freight £3, to 1s. 5½d. to 1s. 9¾d.; total, 17,700 chests and 4,400 half-chests.

Kiukiang.—Black: Only one settlement is reported, consisting of a chop—612 half-chests—Ningchow at Tls. 21. Green: No settlements.

Foochow.—The arrivals from the country had been large. Those of Congou continued to be chiefly of common Tea, contrasting unfavourably in make with those of the first crop last year. The Souchongs on the market appeared better in leaf than last season, being less dusty; but there were few choice chops in the stock. The Oolongs appeared to be less dusty, but were badly made. The finest had not been offered for sale. There had been no disposition shown to commence purchases, and the receipt of advice from Shanghai of a rise in exchange to 6s. 5d. for six months' Bank bills had tended to postpone the opening still longer. There was no pressure on the teamen for money, as the native banks had arranged to give them credit for their advances until the Teas were sold.

Canton.—A considerable business transacted during the fortnight in Scented Teas on decidedly easier terms, not, however, so much noticeable in the price as in the quality. The purchases were much more free from old and spurious leaf than any teas offered before in the market this season. A portion of the settlements of Scented Orange Pekoe and Green Tea would probably be re-packed for shipment to South America. Settlements from June 18 to July 2:—Country Congous, nil; Canton District Congous, nil; Scented Orange Pekoe, 12,000 boxes, at Tls. 17 to Tls. 31; Scented Caper, 24,000 boxes, at Tls. 13 to Tls. 31. Canton Greens—Gunpowder 1,500 boxes 500 half-chests at Tls. 18 to 21; Young Hyson, None; Imperial, 600 boxes 200 half-chests, at Tls. 15 to Tls. 22.

SILK.

Shanghai.—The following is from Messrs. C. J. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular:—After the departure of last mail there was a short lull, buyers generally expecting a lower tael price as exchange advanced; this, however, was not realised, as the Chinese held for last quotations being unable to replace their stocks at lower prices in the country, and some 2,500 bales were settled, exchange then ruling at 6s. 3½d. Koofong-sings and Choopings, No. 3, sold at Tls. 600, equal to 32s. 8d.; Dragon No. 3, Tls. 595 to 600, equal to 32s. 5d. to 32s. 8d.; Donkey No. 3, Tls. 585, equal to 31s. 10d.; Incense No. 3, Tls. 580, equal to 31s. 7d.; Blue Flag No. 3, Tls. 560, equal to 30s. 6d. Lion Chop No. 3, Tls. 560 to 565, equal to 30s. 6d. to 30s. 9d.; "Euke-fong," Elephant chop, Tls. 540, equal to 29s. 6d.; Gold Lion chop 1 and 2, Tls. 555 and 535, equal to 30s. 3d. and 29s. 3d.; Red Peacocks, Tls. 530, equal to 28s. 10d.; Kahing Ching Yuen Sing, No. 1, Tls. 500, equal to 27s. 3d.; No. 1 Yuenfa, Tls. 505 to 510, equal to 27s. 7d. to 27s. 10d.; Skeins, Tls. 395 to 415, equal to 21s. 8d. to 22s. 10d.; Shong San Taysaam, Tls. 420, equal to 23s. 1d.; Foosic, Tls. 410, equal to 22s. 6d; Re-reeled Hainins (so-called) have been sold at Tls. 590 to 600, equal to 32s. 1d. to 32s. 8d.; the musters we have seen are mostly Tsatlee silk, loaded with rice and sugar; Re-reeled Tsatlees fetch Tls. 570 to 580, equal to 31s. to 31s. 7d. Fatmow's Hainins are very inferior this season, No. 2 not being better than 2½ and best 3 of former years. Owing to the high prices ruling here, silk has been hurried forward, but any attempt to lower prices in the interior only tends to check supplies. With regard to the second crop, small musters are reported to have been seen by the dealers in the interior, who say the silk is decidedly inferior, and that the yield will not exceed 4,000 to 5,000 bales, thus confirming the opinion that the probable export will not exceed 40,000 bales for the season.

Canton.—After the departure of last mail, buyers having very persistently kept out of the market, the result was an accumulation of stocks and a marked willingness on the part of holders to accept the prices offered them, viz.:—$540 for selected No. 1, Tsatlee, $525 for No. 1, and $510 for the usual run of market quality,—and at these prices a good business had been done. The weather continued fine, but the reports from the country were not quite so encouraging regarding the third crop. A fair average yield was nevertheless looked for. For America and Bombay there was less doing.

JAVA AND STRAITS PRODUCE.

Batavia.—Arrack: Little had been done, owing to great scarcity of casks and of shipping opportunity. Value is about f.75 per leaguer. Coffee: Local business inconsiderable, and at Samarang no transactions in good ordinary Java, though for favourite crops f.30 per picul would be readily paid. Government auction at Padang on the 30th June—44,400 piculs first quality, average f.34.49 per picul; 2,000 second quality, average f.11.26 per picul. Gum Dammar: Prices receded from f.36 to f.32; supplies heavy, production having greatly increased—a parcel of Palembang (second quality) placed at f.29 per picul. Rattans have not been much sought after. Rice: Absence of demand for export, and increasing supplies—8,000 piculs second quality sold at f.127 and f.128 per coyan for Banka, and about 1,000 piculs of first at f.140. The crop of Kandanghauer table rice, consisting of about 35,000 piculs, sold privately at f.225 per coyan, inclusive of bags. Sugar: Large stocks of Chinese manufacture, but the qualities being low, there was no disposition to treat, except at low prices. At Samarang some business in White at the extreme rate of f.15½ per per picul for No. 14.

Singapore.—Produce had been fairly active, and prices on the whole well supported. Gambier coming in less freely, moderate business at $3.05 to 3.07½ per picul. Market closes steady at higher quotations. Rhio Cubes: Some inquiry for good quality in bags at $3.12½ to 3.15 per picul. Baskets not in request at $2.90 to 2.92½ per picul. Black Pepper: Buyers at $8.20 to 8.25 per picul, but supplies almost ceased. White also difficult to procure at $11.80 to 12 per picul. Pearl Sago declined to $3 to 3.05 per picul, little demand. Sago Flour: Considerable supplies from Labuan and Sarawak readily taken at $2.55 per picul. Coffee scarce, and a small parcel of Bonthyne on the market held for $13 per picul. Tin: Early in the fortnight a purchase made for China at $31, but value since declined to $20½ per picul (£126. 8s. 4d. per ton), at which there had been some buying for America and Europe. Buffalo Hides in moderate demand at $10½ to 10¾ per picul. Buffalo Horns inquired for at $9½ to 9¾ per picul for parcels averaging 3 lbs. weight.

Penang.—The Produce Market had not been very well supplied during the fortnight. Tin had been rather scarce, and arrivals met some competition; as high as $30.50 per picul was paid, but the price has since declined to $29.75, at which rate it closes firm, with light stocks. Black Pepper in moderate supply; West Coast, $8.40 to 8.50 per picul, to arrive; arrivals of Acheen (Simpang Olim) taken at $8.15 to 8.30. Some arrivals of White Pepper secured at $11.75 to 12 per picul. Sugar continued in demand; sales of No. 1 at $6.35 and 7; No. 2, at $4.35 and 5.35 per picul; Chinese make also wanted, but crops not forward. Hides in very moderate supply; arrivals of Buffalo taken at $10¼ to 10.40, Cow at $14 to 14½ per picul. Horns are purchased at $9.60 and 9.85 per picul.

(Received via Galle, Aug. 16.)

Shanghai, July 22.—The settlement is quiet, but uneasiness still prevails. The French missionary establishment is considered unsafe. The English and French admirals are at Tientsin. It is reported that the Chinese authorities are using their utmost endeavours to persuade England and America to interfere and avert retribution for the late massacre. The investigation into the affair is proceeding at Tientsin, and strong evidence has been obtained to justify the belief that the murderous rising was directed against all foreigners.

THE OPIUM TRADE AND MINISTERIAL MORALITY.

A pamphlet has been published on the late debate on Sir Wilfrid Lawson's motion on the opium trade. The author is evidently sincere, and his little treatise may therefore be fairly termed exhaustive of the arguments of the respectable and influential party, which would unconditionally extrude the opium monopoly from our fiscal system. We could have wished that, in a cause manifestly so conscientious, the author's style had been a little less florid and sardonic. Direct appeals to the Almighty, and quasi comparisons of the First Lord of the Treasury with the Prince of Darkness, weaken an argument which would otherwise be listened to with unreserved respect. Nor can we congratulate the author on the success or purity of his redundant quotations, parodies, and classicisms. To talk of the Roman "naumachia" is surely an example of the "flippant Latinity" which the writer condemns. The object of the present pamphlet is solely to expose the moral evils of the opium trade; and this it accomplishes with a masterly and a not over-scrupulous hand. Of the indirect good which may spring from the exercise of a traffic, open intrinsically to grave objection, it says not a word. Of any substitute for the revenue which it yields to our Empire in the East it offers no suggestion. It is, moreover, not quite fair in its comparisons of the evil effects of opium and alcohol. With these slight reservations, however, we gladly accept the present pamphlet as the best argument that can be presented by the opponents of a traffic which we should all be rejoiced to discontinue—if we only knew how to set about it. One page of suggestion to this end would outweigh a whole volume of invectives against the present system; and if the author of "Ministerial Morality," who has certainly exhausted that form of argument, should induce only one practical mind to show us how to relieve ourselves of the reproach which he describes, his pamphlet will not have been written in vain.

From a telegram which appears in another column it is evident that the fruits of the present—or we think we may now venture to say the late—policy towards China are now developing. The news of the rejection of the new Convention will arrive at Peking most opportunely, and no doubt will very materially alter the instructions from thence to the provincial authorities. Be this as it may, we feel assured that the Imperial Government will perceive that a change has occurred in our policy, and that the "inevitable gunboat" must again take its place in the adjustment of the insults we are repeatedly subjected to. The Chinese certainly take a deal of drilling; but if these late outrages are properly handled by the French and ourselves, we believe that we shall not see a repetition of them for a long time. It is indispensable, however, that the present opportunity should not be lost. The local mandarins of the places where the outrages have occurred must be degraded and proclaimed in the Peking Gazette, and ample pecuniary compensation exacted for the losses and inconvenience sustained. A perusal of our mail news will show that the details of the Tientsin massacre are very incomplete.

THE STEAMER FOR THE STRAITS.

We understand that the Home Government have decided on supplying the Straits Settlements with a small steamer at a cost of about £8,000, and that they will order the Peiho and Rainbow, now in use, to be disposed of. The new steamer has been launched from the yard of Mr. Lawrie, at Whiteinch, on the Clyde. She is a paddle-wheel, of 400 tons, and is specially fitted for conveying the Governor or officials. With reference to this subject the following letter has been addressed by Mr. Tidman, the secretary to the Straits Settlements Association, to the Earl of Kimberley, Secretary of State for the Colonies:—

I am requested to solicit your attention to the following paragraph in the speech of Governor Sir H. Ord, delivered in Singapore on the 23rd May last, at the opening of the Legislative Council of the Straits Settlements:—"In conveying the approval of Her Majesty's Government of the estimates for the year 1870-71, the Secretary of State informs me that the proposed expenditure of $117,000 for a new steamer is considered to be too large, and that Her Majesty's Government will endeavour to purchase a fast and commodious vessel which will answer the purpose of the Government for a much smaller sum. The conclusion has of late been forced upon me that it would have been more advantageous for the colony if the steamer had originally been ordered to be built here instead of at home. She might not have been so perfect a vessel, but time and money would have been saved, and all local requirements would have been carefully attended to Hitherto there has been no opportunity of bringing forward this idea, but I have taken advantage of that which this communication presents, and have written to the Secretary of State, pointing out that a vessel in all respects suitable for our purpose could be built on the spot for a sum not exceeding $80,000, and suggesting that it would be far better to adopt this arrangement than that in contemplation. As Her Majesty's Government have approved of my recommendation, that the present steamers shall eventually be sold as favourable opportunities offer, the actual expenditure it will entail will be considerably below this sum."

The letter which I had the honour to address to your Lordship's predecessor in office recapitulates the grounds upon which opposition has been made to the purchase of an expensive steam yacht for the Governor's use, and I am to express the great satisfaction felt by the Association that Earl Granville should have interposed to spare the colony so heavy and unnecessary an outlay as was contemplated by Governor Ord. The greatly extended and daily increasing facilities for the conveyance of public servants, mails, &c., between one part of the colony and the other, and the very moderate cost at which it is understood that the lighthouse service could be carried out by contract, make it evident that for these purposes there is no necessity for maintaining a colonial steamer at all; but I am to point out to your Lordship, that in any event the wants of the settlement would be met by the maintenance of one of the existing steamers; and that all that is required is, to dispose of the Rainbow and retain the Peiho in commission. The latter vessel was purchased by Governor Ord only so recently as 1867 for $62,000, and was then a new vessel. She has just been surveyed by officers of Her Majesty's ship Donegal, now on her way to England, and the ship and machinery are reported in good order, and fit for several years' service.

The Association, therefore, are unwilling to believe that Her Majesty's Government, with a full knowledge of the facts before them, will approve of the Governor's recommendation to incur so serious a loss as would be involved in the sale of the Peiho, a loss estimated by himself at $42,000, and that, in addition to this, they will sanction the outlay of $80,000 on a new steamer, thus further taxing the Colony to the extent of $122,000, while no more efficient steam service than already exists would be provided for it. Your Lordship is doubtless aware that the Governor's scheme has been unanimously opposed by the unofficial members of Council, and that the vote for the steamer was introduced into the Colonial estimates by the casting vote of Sir H. Ord. As for Sir H. Ord's proposal to build a new steamer under his own supervision in the Colony, at a supposed cost of $80,000, the Association, mindful of the dangerously elastic character of his former estimates (as evidenced in the expenditure on the new Government House), can only regard it as a dernier ressort and one undeserving of serious consideration.

It is hoped, therefore, that your lordship will see fit to forbid any further expenditure in the direction referred to, and that in event of one vessel being required in the meantime, to meet any possible exigencies of the Colonial Service, your lordship will direct the Peiho to be retained in commission, and the second existing steamer, the Rainbow, to be forthwith disposed of.

Advices from Colombo report coffee properties as greatly depressed at present. Crops are expected to be short this season, and estates of all sizes, from forty to 800 acres, are offering at prices ranging from £200 to £12,000. The low districts are at the greatest discount, and purchasers there at present rates can make very profitable investments. The favourite districts, Dimboola and Dickoya, command fancy prices even in these depressed times. The movement for the total abolition of the coffee duty in England is again active. It is said that the duty costs almost as much in collection as it realises.

THE WAR AND THE SITUATION.

(London and China Express, Aug. 19.)

The spectacle of la belle France at the present moment is one which cannot fail to excite compassionate sympathy for the nation, at least commensurate with the indignation aroused by the mad incompetence of her Government. The war was undertaken for no righteous object, and the failure of the expedition of NAPOLEON the THIRD cannot be regarded without thankfulness; but France, though convulsed and shattered, is not yet humiliated. She owes her present sufferings to the false system under which she has too long permitted herself to be governed, and one more great reverse will probably destroy the last remains of her allegiance to the Empire. Unless some great and authentic good news be received in Paris from the camp in a few days it is believed that a revolution cannot be avoided, if, indeed, it be not anticipated by the abdication of NAPOLEON the THIRD, in imitation of the conduct of his uncle in 1814. It is lamentable to reflect that many thousands of men are doomed, according to appearance, to perish in a last and almost hopeless struggle for the rehabilitation of the Empire. But, whatever may be the result of the impending battle, France, as a nation, can never be humiliated until her capital is besieged. There is nothing to lead us to believe that Prussia would inflict this indignity upon a prostrate and mistaken foe. Such a course would be opposed, not only to humanity, but to policy. The present Lord DERBY said well, many years ago, that nothing could be more infatuated than to humiliate a Power which it was not intended finally to crush. It is impossible that France should be crushed in the sense intended. One more victory and it will be expected of King WILLIAM that he should propose terms of honourable peace. That these terms should include the abdication of the EMPEROR is hardly less likely to be required by France than insisted upon by her antagonist. The traditional policy of Prussia may also require a pecuniary indemnity for the expenses of the war; and, indeed, a sum of forty millions sterling—about the value of the bullion in the Bank of France—has already been mentioned. The exact amount of such a penalty would probably be referred to the arbitration of independent Powers; but, with her army shattered, her capital on the eve of revolution, her provinces—and even her African colony—in a state of siege, it would be better that France should empty her treasury than that the French nation should be decimated by the famine which always follows on the heels of triumphant invasion.

THE CHINA CONVENTION.

WHEN the official circular of Earl GRANVILLE—given in our impression of the 5th Aug.—was issued, the home press did not notice it, owing to the all-absorbing interest of the war, but the Daily News of the 16th contains the following:—

Lord Granville has exercised a wise discretion in refusing to carry out Lord Clarendon's intention of ratifying Sir Rutherford Alcock's Convention with China. After the recent murders of the French Consul and other French subjects it would have been imprudent, if not actually rash, to make any fresh concessions to the Imperial Government. If in its immediate vicinity it is incapable of insuring the safety of foreigners, what chance would there be of its doing so, even if it were disposed to do so, in remote portions of the Empire? The difficulty with respect to Mr. Burlingame's credentials, and the pretensions put forward in them by the Emperor of China, has never been cleared up. The whole of the European commercial community, both in our settlements and in the open ports, was unanimous in protesting against negotiations with him on the basis he was instructed to propose. By the Treaty of Tientsin we have accorded as much to the claims of the Chinese as is at all consistent with a due regard to the commercial interests of this country. Any further attempts at conciliation would be wholly misunderstood at Peking, and would almost inevitably lead to a renewal of those misunderstandings which have already cost us so dearly. In our past intercourse with the Chinese we have certainly not been altogether guiltless, and if our intercourse with them were only now commencing, we may assume that it would be conducted on very different principles. But as we have gained a footing in the Empire by the sword, it is by the sword that we must, for some time at least, announce ourselves prepared if necessary to maintain it. Through countless generations the Chinese have been accustomed to look upon the will of the stronger as the legitimate rule of life, and they would not understand any other argument we might lay before them for our interference. If we show a too ready inclination to listen to their demands they will attribute it to fear; the security of our trade will be jeopardised, and, what is in the long run of greater consequence, all hopes of diffusing a tincture of European civilisation among the vast hordes of the Middle Kingdom must be indefinitely postponed.

THE steamer Edinburgh left the Thames on the 20th inst., with part of the telegraph cable, which is to connect Penang and Madras. The Scanderia with the remaining portion will be despatched the first week in September, to be followed by the William Cory. The two last-named vessels will proceed via the Suez Canal.

Monetary and Commercial.

It is understood that Mr. Hargreaves, who lately failed at Shanghai, and who is now in England, has not made any arrangement with creditors here. He will return to attend the meeting of creditors in Shanghai in October. Great dissatisfaction has been expressed at Judge Hornby permitting him to leave Shanghai.

The circular of Mr. John Dent, announcing his establishment under the form of Dent and Co., Shanghai, with Messrs. Ashton and Co. as London agents, has been received.

A circular has been issued by Messrs. Barber, Nephew, and Co. announcing that Mr. Simpson, many years in the house of Messrs. Matheson and Co., will continue their business undr the style of Barber, Simpson, and Co., during the liquidation of their firm. It is impossible to say how the liquidation will result; the chief cause of the stoppage was advances on cotton.

There is some anxiety as to the vessels under the North German flag now on the way from the Far East. The only one from China is the Paradies, bound to Hamburg with a cargo of tea, cassia, drugs, and sundries, which has arrived safely at Scilly, having escaped the French cruisers. From Manila there are two vessels, the Jacob Rothenburg and Jessie, with sugar and hemp cargoes. From Bangkok there are two with rice cargoes, the Max and Venus. From Penang and Singapore, with general cargoes of Straits produce, the list is as follows:—

April 27	Carl and Augusto	... ...	New York
May 10	Professor	... ...	Boston
,, 14	Malabar	... ...	Philadelphia
June 4	Joseph Haydn	... ...	London
,, 18	Christel	... ...	New York
,, 28	Mercur	... ...	Boston

The tenders for £400,000 bills on India were received on Wednesday, when the amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £299,100; to Bombay, £100,000; and to Madras, £900. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 10d. on all the Presidencies—a further reduction of 1 per cent.—and tenders on Calcutta and Madras at 1s. 10¼d will receive about 84 per cent., and on Bombay at that price in full. These results show a moderate revival of the demand for means of remittance to the East, which was interrupted by the recent panic.

The following vessels passed through the Suez Canal from the 10th to the 16th inst.:—Outward bound—English steamers Alonzo and Olga; American steamer Palos; Dutch vessel Prins Hendrik der Nederlanden; French steamer Byzantin; Messageries Imperiales steamer Hoogly, and his Imperial Majesty's vessels D'Assas and Justine. Homeward bound—English steamers United Service, Alhambra, Craigforth, and Blue Cross; Austrian Lloyd's steamer Apis; Egyptian steamer Doussouk; and his Imperial Majesty's vessels Amorique and Aveyron.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Delta, from Southampton on the 20th inst., was:—In silver, to Hong Hong, £24,479.

EXPORT OF COTTON GOODS TO THE FAR EAST.

The following is a summary of Mr. Sam Mendel's tables for the present month, containing details of the quantities of Cotton Manufactures and Yarn shipped from the ports of London, Liverpool, Southampton, and the Clyde, to Hong Kong, Shanghai, Japan, Singapore, Batavia, Manila, and Ceylon, during the month and twelve months ended 16th August, 1870, compared with the corresponding periods of the two preceding years:—
